RUMOR INDIA'S SERVICE CHIEFS RESIGN

Said Quitting Over Row With Khrishna Menon

Services Heads Quarrel With Defence Minister

By WATSON SIMS

NEW DELHI (AP)—India, beset by Red Chinese aggressive moves, was thrown into crisis today by reports that the heads of all three of India's military services were resigning in a row with Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon.

Congress party leaders in parliament said they had heard Menon had given Prime Minister Nehru a letter containing his own resignation and giving Nehru a free hand to deal with the situation.

The report of the resignations of the service chiefs was carried by a newspaper.

There was no immediate official confirmation of either report. The speaker of the lower house refused to permit debate on the report until Prime Minister Nehru could be present. Nehru went to the airport today for a brief meeting with Pakistan President Mohammed Ayub Khan, and it was indicated he would not appear in Parliament until Wednesday.

Although Menon was in the house, he refused to say whether the report were true. He said he had discussed it with Nehru and the prime minister wished to deal with it himself.

CAUSING ANXIETY

Members complained angrily that the report is causing anxiety throughout India, coming at a time when Chinese Communist troops are trespassing on territory claimed by India along the north-east, uninhabited frontier with Tibet.

The report of the resignations was published by the British-owned Statesman of Calcutta and New Delhi.

It said the army chief of staff, Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, decided to resign after repeated differences with Menon and that navy and air force commanders likely would do likewise.

The paper said Thimayya accused Menon, one of India's most trusted aides, of promoting officers against the army's wishes and of injecting politics into the defence ministry.

Menon was inquiring for Thimayya were told he was in conference with Nehru on a similar response from the office of Vice-Admiral R. D. Katari, the navy chief of staff.

The air force chief, Air Vice Marshal S. Mukerji, was in London. His office said it had no information on the report.

CHINESE ON FRONTIER

Anxiety over the situation on India's northern frontiers was deepened by a report that a force of nearly 400 armed Chinese had occupied a mountain pass deep inside the Himalayan state of Bhutan, a protectorate of India.

Another report said a Chinese patrol had crossed into the province and captured an American engineering firm which participated in the construction of the Cambodian - American friendship highway recently built with U.S. aid.

An official announcement said an "Indian foreigner" abducted the package to Prince Vakrivin. Inside was a lacquered box studded in it a second box, locked with a key and bound with tape.

Will Cost Ontario Seven Billion For Roads Adequate for '77 Needs

SUDBURY (CP)—The Ontario department of highways needs a total of $7,152,920,000 price-tag for a completely integrated, province-wide network of roads, including urban streets and highways sufficient for 1977 motorists, highways Minister Cass said today.

He told the Ontario Municipal Association the cost figure—which was a 20-year one, based on a 1956 study—is "tentative" being implemented by the government in 1957 and a 1959 report on the province's roads and streets and updated highway data.

The 20 - year cost figure is broken down as follows: urban streets, $2,828,040,000, county roads $731,760,000, township roads $1,154,340,000 and provincial highways $2,438,780,000.

Mr. Cass said the price tag "is not too greatly in excess of what we have been spending.

"The significance of the 20-year cost figure lies in the fact that we never before has it been possible to arrive at such an estimate and we have now obtained it we are in a position to decide whether or not it is within our means to carry out the most equitable method of sharing the cost."

He said that with the highway program well under way, the report clearly indicated that urban streets, which constitute only 12 per cent of total mileage but carry 40 per cent of total motor vehicle traffic, present the most pressing problem.

The text of his speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

CNE Employees Breathe Easier, Kids' Day Over

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian National Exhibition's 4,000 officials, policemen and general employees can look forward to 15 hours of comparative peace today.

Children's Day was Monday.

Today is given over to the automobile and it should be fairly smooth going. Rhys M. Sale, president of Ford of Canada, will speak at the directors' luncheon.

Only major disturbance will come from the naval guns in Lake Ontario. Two Canadian destroyer escorts, HMCS Kootenay and Restigouche, anchored with the NATO fleet, will demonstrate mortar firing and anti-aircraft teenies.

Attracted by slashed admission prices and half-dares on most midway rides, 172,000 children and parents visited the grounds on Monday's hot sun. Last year Children's Day drew 168,000.

DRILLIA ART SPEAKS

At the directors' luncheon, 17-year-old Peter Barnaby of Orillia, winner of the all - Ontario Hydro speaking contest, told an audience of teachers and politicians his generation wanted "freedom from fear of war."

"We are interested in adults a major lack of confidence behind current fears," he said. "and many ourselves we are doing more to forward freedom than any other generation of our time."

He called modern youth "the most intelligent and least understood" group in history, but said only five per cent are delinquents and the rest have "a lot of common sense."

"We are probably more aware of what we want out of life than most of our parents were."

Crusty Adenauer Makes Friendly Gesture To Poles

Apologizes for Nazis, Eisenhower Gets Credit

By MARVIN ARROWSMITH

LONDON (AP) — President Eisenhower took a rest from diplomacy today with signs from both sides of the Iron Curtain that his European mission was bringing results.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer made an unexpected gesture of conciliation and friendship to Poland, largest of the East European countries controlled by the Communists.

The crusty West German leader broadcast a message of peace and friendship to the Poles on the eve of the 20th anniversary of Hitler's attack on Poland. Adenauer apologized for the Nazi act.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev made a declaration of trust in Eisenhower.

"The president of the United States realizes the main thing now is to ensure peace," the Soviet leader said. "In this we have no differences."

DINNER TONIGHT

His talks with Prime Minister Macmillan are expected for social meetings. Eisenhower planned to spend today on golf, a sport he loves that has piled up since he left Washington last week.

A personal high spot of Eisenhower's tour comes tonight, when he is host at a stag dinner for 24 British military leaders and statesmen who were his wartime associates.

Among the guests at Winfield House, the U.S. ambassadorial residence where Eisenhower is staying, will be Macmillan, Sir Winston Churchill, and field marshals Montgomery and Alanbrooke. Both of the latter had critical things to say about Eisenhower's military ability in recent memoirs.

The new note of warmth in West Germany's approach to the Communist East was attributed at least in part to Eisenhower's influence. In talking with Adenauer, Soon last week, they urged a forward-looking approach in dealing with the Communists.

CONCILIATORY MOVES

Adenauer followed this Monday night with his broadcast expressing regret that the Poles and Germans may one day be good neighbors.

Eisenhower and Macmillan ended their talks with a chat between the two governments-on unprecedented in European politics. Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd the two leaders won high praise from British newspapers.

The Times of Eisenhower, "is the imperative of our time."

The Daily Mail said the biggest job in the world, how to keep peace and justice," the prime minister said.

RELIEVES IN SUMMIT

Macmillan reiterated his belief that a summit conference should be held and told the American press:

"I think your visits to these three European capitals and the

Ike Resists Bid By Macmillan For Summit Meet

LONDON (AP)—President Eisenhower resisted a strong new bid by Prime Minister Macmillan for an early summit conference with Russia, high diplomatic sources said today.

The American leader instead insisted during his talks with the prime minister that any decision on top-level talks must await the outcome of his pending meeting with Premier Khrushchev, the sources said.

Macmillan went along with Eisenhower's argument, evidently after realizing that the American position was not a subject for change, they added.

Skies Overcast As Prince Edward Islanders Vote

Overcast skies with the possibility of rain was forecast, but the weather was not expected to influence the heavy vote called for by contesting Liberals and Conservatives. Voting continues to 6 p.m. ADT.

Premier Alex Matheson is seeking the second mandate for his Liberal government since taking over the leadership in 1953. The Liberals have held power continuously on the island since 1935.

Walter R. Shaw, who has never sat in the legislature but served as deputy agriculture minister under Conservative and Liberal administrations, heads the PCs in their strongest fight in years to take control.

URGE UNITED TEAM

The Conservatives have urged election of a government that would form "a united team" with the federal Conservative government, "the most just and generous" in Canadian history.

The importance of the island election result to federal Conservatives is obvious from the participation of the four Conservative island members of Parliament. They have campaigned intensely for election of a Tory government. The Liberals won provincially in 1955 by 3,000 votes while the majority given the party in the 1958 federal election was more than 11,000.

Federal Fisheries Minister J. Angus MacLean told a party meeting last night that it is for landers to be "blinded by habit" and said it's time to trade in the 1935 model for something better."

Premier Matheson replied:

"They talk about an old, tired team. The average age of the present government is 52. The average age of that team (the Conservatives) would be 56."

MUNICIPALITIES MUST GUT COSTS GATHERING TOLD

Spending Too High Says Ont. Treasurer

SUDBURY (CP) — Municipal spending was a prime topic during Monday's sessions of the Ontario Municipal Association convention.

Provincial Treasurer Allan told delegates that municipal and provincial spending had grown "basically" in the last decade, closely paralleling the population increase.

He said 10 years ago the province's levy of 4 mills municipalities was about $150,000,000. Now it exceeds $475,999,900. Provincial aid to municipalities and associated bodies was 25 per cent of the government's total expenditure or 44 per cent of its total revenue.

"For every $2 local government rates raised itself by way of taxes, we contribute a further $1," he said.

CAN BE HELD LIABLE

J. W. P. Carter, Ontario deputy minister of municipal affairs, warned that "when elected representatives vote for improper expenditures they render themselves liable for the funds spent."

He warned municipal officials to familiarize within their legal limits and to refer problems to the department before they got into trouble.

Mr. Carter also urged a "pay-as-you-go" basis for more capital works and the building of reserves for future capital expenditures.

Municipalities should stay out of long-term financing — more than 10 years—except in emergency cases, he said as "this

U.S. Correspondent Recalls Scenes in Berlin on Day When Second War Broke

It was to have been peace in our time, but for months the world waited and watched, eyes focused on Hitler's Berlin. Would he give the word? Then, 20 years ago today, it came — and with it the end of a world. Here an American correspondent who covered the momentous events vividly recaptures the scene in this first of three articles on the outbreak of the Second World War.

By EDWIN SHANKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berliners awoke early on the morning of Sept. 1, 1939, to the blare of heavy military marches on their radios instead of gay waltzes and soft symphonies.

They've marched haven't they?" my German landlady asked anxiously.

And in a moment she had her answer.

Fanfares burst forth on the radio. A solemn - voiced announcer read Adolf Hitler's order of the day to his army, air force and navy to "meet force with force." Hours earlier, while the Polish ship, Nazi armored columns had planes had struck at Poland.

"The world war took my husband," my landlady said. "I'm afraid this one will take my son's baby. He's somewhere on that Polish front, you know."

She turned to her housework, troubled about what the future held.

For weeks Germans had sensed that Hitler intended to go to war. The Nazi propaganda machine, steadily building up a series of alleged frontier incidents, had seen to that. But at the same time, most Germans had hoped the war tension would all end in another of Hitler's diplomatic bluffs — as in the case of the Rhineland, Austria, Sudetenland, Czechoslovakia and Memel.

The hope was shattered on that rainy, late summer day. And the German mind began working, resigned as usual but fearful.

Later that morning I went to the Kroll Opera House in the Tiergarten Park of Central Berlin to hear Hitler address his rubber - stamp Reichstag.

Brown - clad deputies packed the hall. There was an empty seat in the diplomats' gallery where the Polish ambassador usually sat.

Then, sharply at 10 a.m. Hitler rode in with his entourage crowding behind him. As he passed down the aisle the deputies rose as a man. Arms shot upward in the Nazi salute.

It was a familiar sight — with one small exception demonstrating the lengths and detail to which Hitler had gone in planning the war. For the first time, he and his adjutants appeared in well-tailored outfits made of the field grey cloth the German army wore instead of the brown Nazi party uniform.

"I have never desired anything more than to serve the state as a soldier," Hitler declared in a strong voice. "I am putting on the uniform and I shall take it off only in victory or death."

Then he read the text of the act of "Sieg Heil" - Hail Victory) echoed through the hall.

Hitler finished his war tirade without a formal declaration of war. A colleague said I walked out into the Tiergarten to cool my ear.

THREE KILLED BY BOMB SENT CAMBODIA'S KING

Disguised as Gift, Explodes as Opened

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—The king and queen of Cambodia narrowly escaped death Monday night when a bomb disguised as a gift went off at the royal palace. Three of the palace staff were killed and three others injured.

King Norodom Suramarit and Queen Sisowath Kossanak looked on as the acting premier, Chief Prince Norodom Vakrivin, began opening the package. It was addressed to the queen and was marked "from a Hong Kong friend."

Suddenly the king said he must receive his deputy prime minister, who is leaving today to represent Cambodia at the United Nations. He told the queen to follow him.

A few seconds after the couple left the room a loud explosion shook the building.

THREE KILLED

There was some indication that the bombing might have been a crude attempt to whip up anti-American sentiment.

One official said the package carried the card of an American engineering firm which participated in the construction of the Cambodian - American friendship highway recently built with U.S. aid.

An official announcement said an "Indian foreigner" abducted the package to Prince Vakrivin. Inside was a lacquered box studded in it a second box, locked with a key and bound with tape.

Quebec Children Will Suffer As Result of Vaccine Theft

MONTREAL (CP) — Civic and provincial health officials say the puzzling theft of $50,000 worth of poliomyelitis Salk vaccine Monday is a severe blow to the campaign against, Quebec's polio epidemic.

Children will be the victims, said Dr. Adelard Groulx, head of Montreal's health department.

The vaccine, enough for 75,000 inoculations, was ear m a r k e d for 50,000 children and expectant mothers in the province.

Four masked gunmen made off with 10,000 vials of vaccine in a hit-and-run raid in suburban Les Rapides.

The means by which the thieves hoped to profit from the well-planned theft puzzled police and medical authorities.

There was speculation they planned to try to sell the vaccine at inflated prices to private doctors, but most medical men thought there was little chance of such a black-market operation succeeding.

The vaccine must be kept at 40 degrees Fahrenheit or it will be useless after 48 hours. And it is relatively easy to spot degenerated vaccine since it turns from a clear, sherry-colored liquid to a cloudy mixture.

"If a person were given a shot of degenerated vaccine it could cause a violent reaction," Groulx said.

Dr. Lionel Portie, assistant director of the Institute of Biology and Hygiene in Laval des Rapides, said the thieves probably had a market for the vaccine but "no medical person would buy it from an unknown."

He warned individuals not to buy vaccine from other than authorized sources. He said they should call police if it is offered to them.

He also suggested that physicians question patients who bring their own vaccine as to its origin.

Hees Says Ships Caught in Seaway By Freeze Will Have to Stay There

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters) — Canadian Transport Minister George Hees said today the Canadian government this year does not plan to help ships caught in the St. Lawrence Seaway by early freeze.

Last winter, 13 ships — mostly foreign — were stranded at Montreal by the onset of winter. Government - to - seamen and employer - to - employer gangs opened a path for them.

He told reporters:

"Last year we went to untold expense and trouble to clear those ships, but this year we are not going to do that, we are going to fix a date for the closing of the canal.

"The date will be carefully worked out and shipping companies will be notified well in advance. We expect them to plan their schedules accordingly.

"If people are not going to follow that requirement, they are going to be stuck for the winter."

Hees said work on the 27-mile capacity of the Welland Canal by 25 per cent will begin in November and should be finished in time for next year's navigation. A dock machinery will be given a thorough overhaul, he added.

Lionel Chevrier, former president of the St. Lawrence Seaway commission and a former transport minister, was on the same liner. Chevrier, accompanied by his wife, said the seaway will make a "tremendous port" of Montreal — parallel with New York.

Fumes From Gasoline Motor Overcome 3 Marmora Men, One of Them Drowns in Well

MARMORA (Special) — A Marmora district farmer is dead and two other men were overcome in an unusual accident north of Marmora Monday evening during an attempt to clean out a well.

Dead is 51-year-old Elmer Moffatt who drowned in the 36 foot well after being overcome by carbon monoxide fumes when he went down to re-start a gasoline motor which was being used to pump out the well.

Two other men, assisting to clean the well, attempted to haul his unconscious form back to the surface but the rope attached around his waist broke. Two other men lowered over the dug well in rescue attempts were also overcome. They were saved by artificial respiration but respiration teams working for three-and-a-half hours failed to revive Mr. Moffatt.

Marmora physicians, Dr. H. G. Parkin and Dr. Robb. Shafford, made an incision in Mr. Moffatt's chest and massaged his heart in an unsuccessful attempt to save his life.

Two neighbors, Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora township, and Maurice McFaul, were assisting Mr. Moffatt to clean out the well. The pump had been lowered and Mr. Moffatt went down to start the motor, only to be overcome.

After the rope broke as Mr. McCoy and Mr. McFaul attempted to haul Mr. Moffatt to the surface, Mr. McFaul went down to put another rope around the unconscious man and he also was overcome by the fumes.

In the meantime Marmora Fire Department had been called and Fire Chief Jim Walker went down wearing a gas mask and he was not overcome.

Mr. Moffatt was married with two children, a daughter, Mary, works in the office of Marmora, while a son resides at home.

There will be no inquest.

New Black Diamond Cheese Plant to Cost Half Million

Plans for an immediate start in the construction— of a new Black Diamond Cheese plant on 38 acres of land just outside the northern limits of the city were announced today by the vice-president and general manager, D. G. Joss.

The new plant will be built north of 401 highway and just east of the No. 37 highway interchange. The contractor on the new plant is Finley McLachlan Ltd., of Toronto, with the building scheduled for completion early in the spring of 1960.

Cost of the plant will be half a million dollars and will be of the most modern design. The building will be air conditioned and refrigerated throughout and will be extensively landscaped along its entire frontage on 401. The plant is designed to handle up to half a million pounds of cheese a day and will feature truck level loading for bulk cheese and will have the most modern equipment for the prepackaging of natural cheese for consumer use.

Commenting on the future of Black Diamond Cheese, Mr. Joss forecast sales in excess of one million dollars annually within the next two years. He stated that the company intends to operate exclusively with cheese but to follow the current industry trend of diversifying its product line by handling different types of cheese. Black Diamond Cheese Limited is already merchandising two types of Kraft-like cheese under the Black Diamond label in Canada and United States, and negotiations are under way for additional foreign cheese lines.

MIGHT ISSUE STOCK

When asked about processed cheese Mr. Joss noted that all Black Diamond's competitors are in this field. Management has been giving this matter serious consideration and an announcement about this might be expected in the near future.

Mr. Joss also stated however, that the primary business of Black Diamond is cheese and the Company has no intention of going into other products. It is the opinion of the management of Black Diamond, that the name and reputation of Black Diamond Cheese can best be maintained if the efforts of the entire company are directed toward cheese products exclusively.

In reply to the question as to whether Black Diamond Cheese Limited is likely to have a public stock issue, Mr. Joss noted that the corporate structure of the company allows for this and he could see a move in this direction in the foreseeable future.

Werner Daechsel Administrator For Hospital

Appointment of a new administrator for Belleville General Hospital to succeed Gerald Smith, who is leaving to take up a position with the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, has been made by the Hospital Board of Governors, it was announced today by board chairman, Frank Donnelson.

The new administrator is Werner J. G. Daechsel, present administrator at Kingston General Hospital for the past three years.

It was not learned when the new administrator will take over his duties at Belleville. Mr. Smith's resignation was to take effect 21st, although he stated that he would stay on for a short time until a new man was appointed.

Fatally Hurt Near Wellington

PICTON — Thrown from a car in which he was riding after rounding a curve west of Wellington last evening, John Sharpe, 35, of 126 Hazelbrae Drive, Rochester, N.Y., was fatally injured. He died in Trenton Memorial Hospital shortly after admittance.

Mr. Sharpe with his wife, Doreen, and son Peter, 13, arrived in Wellington on Monday morning to visit with his brother-in-law, Ewart Pearsell, and family for a few days. Last evening, with Mr. Pearsell driving, the visitors went for a drive toward Huyck's Point at the west end of Prince Edward County. In rounding a curve on the gravel road, the car went out of control, went into the ditch and toppled over, throwing Mr. Sharpe from the driver's side. He suffered a fractured skull.

Chief Earl Marvin of Wellington investigated and had the injured man removed to Trenton Memorial, but he died shortly after admittance.

A change of address after being in the same location for 30 years, was made last week by Dan Stewart, from Front St. barber, who has opened a new shop a few doors up the street and directly across from the McCarthy Theatre.

The former Stewart barber shop had been the familiar barber's striped pole hung outside the door for over half a century and is now vacant.

Mr. Stewart has been in the barbering business for 38 years. He went to Toronto in 1921 and there learned his trade. He then barbered in Bancroft and in Madoc before coming to Belleville to work at the Jim Sullivan barber shop on upper Front Street.

Thirty years ago he set up business for himself taking over the shop formerly operated by Jack Wills.

That was back in the "hungry thirties" and even at 25 cents business men were a long time between haircuts.

"Even 25c was hard to get sometimes", recalled Mr. Stewart. "I'm still carrying a few cents change for haircuts received back in the 30's when they didn't have the two bits".

75 Distributors, Jobbers Of New Equipment in City

Alemite industrial distributors and Jobber sales groups from Vancouver, B.C., to St. John, N.B., are in Belleville this week attending a three-day introduction of new industrial lubricating equipment, which is to be made available across Canada.

Some of the new industrial lubricating equipment will be manufactured at the Stewart-Warner plant in Belleville while components for other equipment are likely to be shipped in from the United States for assembly here. About 75 distributors and jobbers from all across Canada are in attendance at the three-day meeting being held at the Hotel Quinte.

Host for the three-day meeting is Arthur Young, general manager of Stewart Warner Corporation of Canada, along with G. C. Robson, sales manager, Belleville.

The demonstration meeting at which the various applications of the new industrial lubricating equipment are outlined, is being conducted by Keiley Co. of five industrial engineers from the executive offices of the parent plant at Chicago.

Other engineers in the city for the meeting are Raymond Woodley, Cy Olsen, John Bjork and Tom Murphy.

TREMENDOUS FUTURE

Visiting engineers indicated there are tremendous opportunities in the field of industrial lubricating equipment which they said was going over in a big way in the United States.

In addition to specialized lubricating equipment, material handling equipment and centralized automatic lubrication systems are being demonstrated.

Topic for today's meeting is material handling of equipment which ranges all the way from airless paint spraying equipment to specialized equipment for putting the fancy icing on wedding cakes. Equipment in this field has a wide range of uses in conveying materials other than lubricants.

Displays of the new equipment are set up for each day's meeting with visiting engineers explaining the fine points to the distributors and jobbers.

The local club is entered in the South-Eastern Ontario Chess League again this year, with Kingston, Brockville and Peterborough the other entrants and with the first matches to be played here on Sept. 27. Dick Payne was named team captain.

JOBS FOR MANY

The provincial fishing industry in Ontario provides employment for about 4,000 persons directly and many more indirectly.

Douglas Paton New Physical 'Y' Director

A new face will be seen around the "Y" building on Campbell Street after today. With the transfer of Jack Bernhardt, previous boys' physical education director, to a post in another city the local YMCA has been fortunate to acquire the services of Mr. J. Douglas Paton for this post according to Mr. Jack McArthur, chairman of the personnel committee of the "Y".

"Doug comes to Belleville well qualified and with a good background of physical education experiences, and he should be an asset to the high standard of the ever growing program of physical activities in our YMCA", commented Mr. McArthur.

Mr. Paton has held positions with the Broadview YMCA in Toronto, Toronto Western, the Windsor YMCA and Brantford's YMCA's Camp Buddy. He was commissioned as chief director of the Fredericton, N.B., "Y" as well.

Swimming has played a large part of Mr. Paton's background. For three years he was a member of the University of New Brunswick's swimming team both in competition and in coaching and is the current Maritime One-Meter Diving Champion.

A qualified YMCA aquatic examiner, a senior master swimmer, a Red Cross water safety instructor, and a YMCA master life saving instructor, Mr. Paton's term of employment begins today following his second season as recreation director for the village of Bolton's day camp.

Rotarians View Education Film At Luncheon

Appropriate to the time of year, local Rotarians viewed a film on education during their weekly dinner meeting at the Quinte Hotel yesterday afternoon. The film, which was introduced by Rotarian Bill Morrison was entitled "Who Is Going To Teach Your Children." It dealt with the problem of having adequately trained teachers teaching students.

In introducing the film Mr. Morrison, former principal of the Ontario School for the Deaf, mentioned that education was more than what is taught in the school . . . every time a child goes into the street he receives a part of his education. Schools, churches, the community, the newspaper, and parents all contribute to the education observed Mr. Morrison.

He also suggested that sports are too heavily emphasized in our current life as an end in themselves and offered the opinion that sports should be only for the development of the physique so that boys and girls might be better prepared to take better advantage of and make better use of their education.

Bill Hurst was chairman for the meeting and George Hamilton introduced the club's guests. Birthday greetings were extended to Lee Demma, Alfred Holmes, Virgil James and Fred Adsett.

Animals Need Holiday Too They Maintain

BARRIE (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Durtnell today began their vacation here with their five children and their pets—two dogs, three monkeys, a chimpanzee, a baboon, a kinkajou related to the raccoon), a bush baby (known as "the thing"), an African turtle, three budgies and a parrot.

"Animals need a holiday just as much as human," said Mr. Durtnell. The animals live inside the Durtnells' summer cottage, outside it, on the roof, in trees and on the chimney.

At the Durtnell home in Toronto suburb of Weston they have a room all to themselves.

Mr. Durtnell regards collecting animals a hobby "like bird watching or stamp collecting."

Convict Editors Praise Brand Of Penology

OTTAWA (CP)—The convict-editors of Kingston Penitentiary's K. P. 'Telescope are worried about escapes from the penitentiary's wall - less prison at William Head, B.C.

An editorial in the current magazine express hope that these "teething troubles" won't mean the innovation will be removed from the general penal system.

The magazine says:

"We behind bars perhaps realize more than anyone else the value of William Head Institution for many of us it is too late; but we can think back of the first 'slit' and how a little of the William Head) brand of penology might have saved us that second, third or fourth term we have done since."

RECENT ESCAPES

The editorial refers to recent escapes from the minimum-security institution on Vancouver Island. Four inmates escaped individually and in a third breakout four made off with a prison truck. All have been recaptured.

William Head opened this year with a capacity of about 100 prisoners. A similar institution later is planned at Valleyfield, Que.

They are the first such Canadian institutions although a temporary dormitory has been in use since 1957 at Joyceville, near Kingston, where a new medium-security penitentiary will be officially opened within a few weeks.

EIGHT ESCAPEES

Between 40 and 50 prisoners have been kept at the Joyceville dormitory. Eight have escaped during the two years. Two are still at large.

The Kingston convict - editors commented:

"Thanks to the efforts of dedicated progress - thinking penologists, we are finally taking the first steps towards a corrective and rehabilitative penology.

They "have had to fight biased public opinion (as well as bias in places of authority) in order to gain what ground they have."

It concluded:

"Today's penologists are in much the same boat as were the reformers who advocated more humane, remedial treatment of the insane instead of locking them out of sight and ignoring their problems. Given public disagreement, later events proved their theories right.

"Given a fair chance, events might well prove the William Head project right."

TRENTON — Vagn Lange, John Farrell, Cliff Baker and Jim McDonald were named a committee to meet and represent the Trenton Community Centre at a special meeting in Toronto concerning the present heating system which was installed in the arena.

The committee was named at the regular meeting of the building of the board called in the board room. All but one member of the commission, Lyle Carr, were in attendance.

The meeting in Toronto will be held on Friday and will be with the chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board, the Ontario Fire Marshal and the Minister of Resources for Ontario. The meeting was arranged through Mr. Sandercock.

In a statement last night, Mr. Farrell, chairman of the Community Centre Board, said that they welcome the opportunity of discussing the heating problem with competent authorities and hope that the long standing and unessential matter will be settled as favorably and expeditiously as possible.

Mr. Farrell also said he felt it was a step in the right direction and that all the information was required to do was to present this to the officials.

DONATE FANS

It was also brought up at last night's meeting by Cliff Baker that the Lions Club had donated four large exhaust fans to the community centre at no cost and asked that the Centre pay costs of installation. They also requested that the fans be installed before the next Lions Club Bingo.

Ron Thornton, manager of the Centre, said that the four fans have already been delivered to the rink and he has been informed that they will be used at coming soon.

Bingo during the winter months, when there is ice on the rink, was also discussed and it was decided that board members Cliff Baker and D. R. Fraser meet with executive of the Lions Club concerning this.

It has been suggested that a portable floor made of durable sheets of pressed sawdust and glue be used. This type of floor could be installed when needed in sections of four feet by eight feet, and removed and stored at the rink while not in use.

It would not injure the ice surface it was stated.

The board also agreed to have an expert come in to examine the Centre's Public Address system and to give an estimate of what it would cost to have it made suitable. The board was told last night that the system had never worked properly and that they felt it was an important feature for the rink.

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Churchill clicked solidly Monday night in their unscripted television discussion of world problems.

A small audience watching the performance in London's Press Club was impressed. Three people here, discussing afterwards the program in a following broadcast, gave it good marks, though they had some reservations.

BETTER THAN IN 1953

Macmillan, once regarded as a TV failure, was at ease throughout. He spoke freely and with conviction. In 1953 party political broadcasts, the prime minister seemed wooden and lifeless.

For Eisenhower, the broadcast came as the seal on the great personal triumph he has already registered.

The man whom British liberals three or four years ago were labelling the "hollow man" left no possible doubt of his vigor. To most viewers, he must have seemed the like of wartime days.

ELECTION COMING UP

The prime minister is expected to call an election in mid-October, and his part in the broadcast will almost certainly increase the image of moderation as a man doing his best for peace.

In a discussion program following the broadcast, American commentator Eric Sevareid said wood praised the broadcast as "unprecedented and remarkable."

Marquis Childs, well - known Washington correspondent, said it was interesting as an "exercise in goodwill" by the British.

Both journalist Keith Kyle expressed mild regret that it may have blurred over some serious issues.

Gas Frig Kills Father and Son

BEMIDJI, Minn. (AP) — A faulty gas-burning refrigerator filled a cabin's monadic concentrates in a motel room here in which a Toronto father and his teen-aged son died.

The finding, which did not specify cause of death, was contained in a report sent by the state board of health to the state attorney-general's office Monday.

John W. Cairnes, 55, died in hospital here Sunday night of carbon monoxide gas. His son Wesley, 13, was found dead in the motel bed Thursday morning.

Cairnes' wife has remained conscious in a Bemidji hospital but doctors said her condition remains critical.

Day of Worship At Exhibition

By AUBREY WICE

There'll be a free day at the Exhibition in Toronto this year and there's everyone. And for a lot of people, this is going to be the most important day of the whole CNE — the world's greatest annual exposition.

The day is Sept. 7.

It's Sunday, you say, and the Exhibition isn't open, well, I'll have it on the authority of General Manager Hiram McCallum that it will be open, and there'll be a big event.

You'll remember that in other years there has been a sportsmen's church service at the bandshell. I believe football player Don Moomaw, and pole vaulter Rev. Bob Richards took the services. There wasn't a service last year because neither of these men could come.

But this year there will be worship and witness under the dynamic leadership of Gus Ambrose, director of Metro's Voice of Christian Youth.

AN EXPERT

Mr. Ambrose, or Gus, as everyone calls him after a conversation of 30 seconds, is an expert in holding large evangelistic services. He's filled Varsity Stadium and the Coliseum many times.

This is the lineup:

Special speaker is Rev. Don Brandels who, Gus said, is in demand everywhere and is booked for campaigns until 1961. Mr. Brandels has been here drawing capacity crowds several times. For many years since his conversion from the Jewish faith, they have been 25,000 decisions for Christ at his meetings.

For music there will be an outstanding program featuring well known soloists. A big platform is the 50- piece Salvation Army band. The Ambassador's Male Quartet — a top flight group of singers will also be here.

To round out the program, a number of Toronto's ministers and civic leaders will be on the platform.

The time of this service is three p.m. There are lots of free, comfortable seats in front of the C.N.E. bandshell.

It is expected 10,000 will attend the service.

The Big Stick

Teddy Roosevelt, a former American president, had the right idea — "Walk softly, but carry a big stick." It is too bad that succeeding generations of statesmen did not take this to heart when the League of Nations and the United Nations were formed.

These organizations were formed to maintain law and order and preserve the peace of the world — an ideal which can hardly be surpassed. But each has found its difficulties to be similar. Along comes a jingoist, backed by military might and a credo of nationalism (or internationalism) which gains him the moral support of his country, who doesn't subscribe to the high ideals of international peace and goodwill.

Now if a person of this type were placed in a community setting, any display of force or aggression would shortly be terminated by the local constabulary. That is their purpose — to maintain the laws of the community and to preserve the peace. The lawmakers can legislate to set up the rules by which people should govern themselves; but they need an enforcement body to see the laws are adhered to. This concept is basic to any type of government — democratic or otherwise.

Why then, we may ask, has the United Nations failed to establish a police force adequate to meet the area of its assumed jurisdiction? Surely the founders could still read the handwriting of failure on the walls of the shell which once was the League of Nations. Surely the need for a permanent UN police force was realized after the Korean crisis, or the Suez crisis, or almost any of the flare-ups of minor wars which have occurred across the globe since 1946. Why was no action taken? Canada's statesmen, to their credit, have pressed for the establishment of a police force within the United Nations — but none has been forthcoming.

Now we have the situation in India, which we seriously doubt to be only a minor "show of force" or sabre-rattling on the part of Red China. This is to blame for the spinelessness of the U.N. in such a situation? There is only one answer—the free world, the member nations of the United Nations who subscribe to a democratic and free government for mankind.

It is easy to see who has the big stick and who is treading not so lightly through the avenues of international politics, waving said stick with all the gay abandon of a child who knows he has something the other kids have not—the star of the red spotlight, Mr. Khrushchev.

This situation developed some time ago but no steps were taken by the many statesmen in the big glass skyscraper on the New York skyline. We fail to understand their tardiness, we can only hope that they will act as quickly as possible to remedy the lack of foresight and that the major nations of the free world will give them unqualified and steadfast support.

The business of dabbling about in world affairs as a directive body governing the international behavior of nations without providing an adequate and independent enforcement body is, to say the least, immoral. The UN had better right this wrong immediately if chaos and anarchy are not to become the chief characteristics of international conduct.

Another Myth

The basis of all scientific knowledge is experiment, which is another way of saying that it is the product of experience.

Yet, every now and then, we run into beliefs firmly held by men with the most intimate experience in the field in question which are yet disputed by the scientists.

Of such stuff is the angler's insistence that "grass pike" and "northern" pike are different fish, the hunter's certainty that the breast feathers of a duck coming straight at him can turn the pellets of No. 6 chilled shot, the drinker's belief that "wine sends everybody nuts", to quote the words uttered in court at Lindsay by Magistrate R. I. Moore.

It is no good for the ichthyologist to say that environment determines whether a pike is of the "grass" or "northern" variety; the ballistic expert merely gives tempituous smiles when he explains the penetrating power of lead propelled by a heavy charge of smokeless powder; and as long as men drink there will be some who will maintain that the difference between being drunk on beer and being drunk on wine is not adequately explained by the differences in their alcoholic content.

QUESTION

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The dancer with the nimble feet
Announced that he would sing a song.
But, oh, his voice was far from sweet;
He did not in that game belong.

Then one who had been born to song
Declared that she would dance a bit;
She tried to do a Scottish fling
And made a sorry mess of it.

Why is it men and women fair
Disdain the gifts which they possess,
And spend their time in striving where
They never can achieve success?

The Only Way A Man Can Stay Whole

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the lads waiting on table for the summer in a nearresort is studying for the ministry, and he is perplexed by some of the "hard" sayings of the Bible.

"For instance, I don't understand," he said to me recently, "what it really means that you lose your life in order to find it. Does it mean that you have to die before you can know who and what you are?"

I think that modern psychology throws a great light on another seeming paradox. Most of the old moral and mystical truths have been illuminated by recent delvings into the unconscious makeup of man.

That man must lose oneself to find reality is a biological fact as well as a spiritual one. What Alber calls the "reflex sense of personality" is abolished in the expert riffleman as he shoots, in the surgeon as he operates.

When a person finds an act, or a situation, that is demanding larger than himself, his whole personality becomes unified to converge upon it. At the moment of full participation, he literally forgets himself in a higher identification with his object.

At these times, he feels a sense of exhilaration, of intensified consciousness that takes him beyond himself. He has, in fact, lost himself in order to find himself.

This explains the passion with which we throw ourselves into and also the vital function of work. It is true that most hobbies, and most work, are not worthy of this concentration; but, even at the lowest level, it is healthier than a neurotic obsession with oneself.

Those who torture ourselves until we make effective contact with reality, until our relationships with other persons and with the outside world become a real transaction, and not merely a distorted reflection of our own needs and desires.

This is the meaning of losing the outer shell of egocentricity, and becoming, in a sense, somehow "reborn." On the religious level, this process is sometimes a "conversion"; on the psychological level, it means abandoning the neurotic defenses that separate us from others and prevent us from truly loving and giving more than we get back in return.

To lose one's life in order to find it is more than a mere paradox — it is something more and more than a vague spiritual myth. It means, in effect, to deposit need of the human being — the need to become aware of one's true identity by donating these powers to a force outside ourselves.

The only power that can adequately satisfy this need is God; and in His absence from our sight it is understandable that some people, to retain their sanity, concentrate all of our gross sales or any of the other false deities of our time. Man, to stay whole, must worship something outside of himself.

DRUMHELLER, ALBERTA

This famous coal-mining district in Southern Alberta was named for Samuel Drumheller, who conceived the idea of forming a township in 1910. Coal was discovered as far back as 1893, but was not commercially mined until 1911, when large basins were issued by the government for coal prospects. It was incorporated as a city in 1930.

Sharks Grist For This Mill

Ulster Commentary

Sharks are the raw materials which now are being processed in the peasant little Co. Antrim village of Glenarm. The great fish are caught on the Waverley aboard to which area they are attended by the waters of the Gulf Stream. They are dismembered and sent in specially-constructed motor trucks to Glenavy for processing.

The Northern Ireland (Ulster Farm By-Products) first of all extracts the oil from the shark livers by a hydraulic process in cookers, sterilization and dehydration. This is sent to England where, after treatment it is used for industrial purposes. The oil-free flesh is then cut, salted and bagged before being shipped across the country to firms which specialize in the manufacture of protein meals. Shark meat has a high protein content and is blended with other meals before being fed to livestock.

Shark processing is seasonal and the operations in Glenavy will cease this month. The average weight of shark meat handled during each of the past 12 or 13 weeks was 50 tons.

Proper Way To Pour Beer

Pembroke Observer

Having just read a rather pleasurable novel from an earlier day when English was an intriguing if flowery language, we have been casting about for something we could take issue or brag at (or is it with or about?) Thanks to the Canadian Journal and its advertising columns we have found something . . . a statement of how to pour beer from bottle to glass.

A few years ago, in the days when we preferred our beer straight from the bottle while reclining in an easy chair, there would have been no cause for umbrage. Only now that the requirements of etiquette and the demands of a wife have made a glass necessary could we find displeasure in an advertisement which said the proper way to pour beer is to "incline down the middle," not along the side of the glass.

Now this advertisement was in an American newspaper, and was the same sort of trouble. Our lesser product even if from the Saguenay-Dore city of Milwaukee than any Canadian brew is still, pouring beer straight down! Unheard of!

The advertisement said that by pouring straight down the middle, the character of the ale and lager is achieved. That may be so with Budweiser, but in Canada the pourer would end up with a glass full of foam and a bottle full of beer—which is no beer. And as every beer man knows, foam is the beer's pulpe, but should never be allowed to interfere with the actual gratification of the appetite.

The proper way to pour, of course, is with bottle and glass both tilted slightly inward so that the liquid pours in a slow, unbroken stream. The head is then kept for perhaps a half-inch neck of foam. A similar result is often achieved by the more meager habit of dropping the mouth of the bottle to the bottom of the glass, and allowing the contents to run around it. This method is never to be used in polite company, unless the pourer should be a man who has learned to perform his duties properly.

How much better if the man who wrote that Canadian Journal advertisement had first refreshed himself in Canada. Local, I agree, but the fact is that it just doesn't seem to work. And it won't work, then it isn't the ticket for us.

Police Make Bad Mistake

New York Herald Tribune

There has been a lot of talk lately about the dangers of walking in Central Park after dark. But Mr. Seymour Krell, a soft-spoken clothier from the Brooklyn, can be pardoned if he feels it's not so safe sitting home watching television either.

He was doing just that one evening when detectives broke in and arrested him. He was arrested, hauled off to jail, booked, fingerprinted and thrown into a cell over night, all because his name was Seymour Krell and there was one of that name had deserted a wife and four children in Utica in 1934. Mr. Krell protested tearfully that he had never even been in Utica, much less abandoned a family there.

But the New York DA's office finally did some checking. By the time of his second appearance in court the police established that the Brooklyn Mr. Krell was, in fact, a New Yorker thirty-five years ago, while the Utica Mr. Krell was born in Chicago forty-six years ago; that the men were of substantially different height; that they had different fingerprints, social security numbers and war records. The case was dismissed, apologies given.

The million-dollar claim Mr. Krell has filed against the city will, of course, be settled without out of line. But there can be no denying that his treatment was inexcusable.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G Molner, M.D.

TWO SKIN PROBLEMS ARE COMMON IN INFANCY

"Dear Dr. Molner: My son is 4 years old and has a very dry scalp since he was an infant. I've tried massage with olive oil, and with petroleum jelly, but neither has helped. Does he lack something in his diet? — A.M.M."

There are two common skin conditions in infancy which cause troubles are skin troubles since, after all ,the scalp is skin.

One is an allergic condition called atopic dermatitis. This generally proves to be due to sensitivity to something that is eaten or touched.

The other common one is seborrheic dermatitis, often called "cradle cap", since many times it causes a crusting of the scalp. Its cause is not known.

For the allergic type, egg albumin is perhaps the greatest offender as anything, but there are other foods that can cause the same sort of trouble. Wheat, milk, certain vegetables or fruits can cause allergic reactions in some children, with resulting skin troubles.

Often these youngsters "outgrow" the problem. Either they adjust to the food, or the natural acids of the skin and hair are reached — which happens later in childhood. Of course, if the child has a severe one, you will find it necessary to discover just what it is causing the trouble and then either avoid that food or materials, or resort to treatment by an allergist. However, when the allergy is severe, it will be obvious enough to leave no doubt.

Now for "cradle cap". As I said, the cause is not known, but this ailment is slightly more common in boys than girls. It usually begins with a dryness of the scalp, especially in chubby or fat, or sometimes overweight babies.

Reduction of fats and starches in the diet, bringing a loss in weight, often seems to prove the effective in getting rid of the trouble. Whether it is the control of weight, or the curtailment of fats and starches, I don't know. They go together. At any rate, frequently it works.

Getting the youngster leveled off is correct, however, is a useful byproduct of the process. The use of olive oil or other remedies on the scalp sometimes local, I agree, but the fact is that it just doesn't work. And when it does it won't work, then it isn't the ticket for us.

"I would fall asleep in the evenings while reading, while watching TV. So many old people burn to death. So I said, This is it, old woman, you are not going to buy another pack'.

"I stopped, and it was not too bad. Now, two years later, I have not had even one, and I have no craving. I smoked for 30 years.

Note to F.B.: The best answer I can offer to you for this: It is relatively rare that the eyes have any effect on the sense of balance. The care (oddly enough) have a great deal to do with it. Look at it this way: In total darkness, your eyes can't possibly be of any use. The matter of balance (in the dark or the light) is not dependent on what you hear, but on some other qualities of the inner ear.

Animals Aid One Another

From "The Animals' Champion".

Many people have an idea that animals do not help each other to any extent, as do human beings.

This is a mistake. There are many instances of devotion between animals that often forbids more than three examples.

"A Welsh miner, seeing two rats dragging a piece of bacon from a piece of wood at one and killed it. To his surprise the other rats made no attempt to flee. He waited and examined it, and was astonished that that it was blind. He had noticed previously that the two rats had been connected by a piece of bacon, each of which each held in its mouth. The reason the blind one was apparent. The blind rat was being led about by the normal fellow, just as blind people are conducted through the streets. The miner was disturbed when he found what he had done."

"In Africa a baby elephant's love caused her to stop a train when that it was blind. He had noticed previously that the two rats had been connected by a piece of bacon, each of which each held in its mouth. The reason why this

70,000 More Ont. Children Than Last Year Will Be Trekking to School Sept 8

CP CROSS - CANADA SURVEY

Well, mom—it may be a relief or it may not—but the kids are going back to school.

They'll show some reluctance, of course, but in reality they have never had it so good.

More school bells will clang in the ears of more children, and more and better - paid teachers will pat them through their first day's paces than ever before in Canada.

Chances are that the local school board has fewer worries than it had a year ago, a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows.

LATE START THIS YEAR

It's been a longer holiday than usual. The Labor Day holiday falls on Sept. 7 this year and traditionally the school year opens the following day.

In Ontario, 1,250,000 children—70,000 more than last year—go back to school on Sept. 8. In Newfoundland, where there was an abnormal number of polio cases during the summer, the children stay home until Sept. 14. Roman Catholic schools in Quebec province will also delay opening from Sept. 2 to 14 because of the polio epidemic.

All across Canada increases in school statistics have been noted by the various provincial education departments.

In Nova Scotia, for instance, enrolment is expected to increase by 5,000, giving the province close to 170,000 public and secondary school students.

SHORTAGE EASED

Prince Edward Island, with only 800 teachers, reports the shortage of qualified teachers—long acute—has eased to the extent that many of the 100 "low-rating" teachers won't be needed this fall.

Education officials in New Brunswick estimate enrolment will be about 138,000, an increase of around 6,000, in four N.B. counties school will open early and close for two weeks during the potato-picking season.

The province also will have an additional 700 classrooms this year in its 125 new schools, and reports no shortage of accomodation. The province has 1,000,000 pupils, all but 100,000 of whom are in Roman Catholic schools.

In Quebec new courses being offered to Grade 12 students in Quebec this year are political economics, geographical economics and advanced accounting.

YOUNG TEACHERS

There will be 45,000 men and women teaching in Ontario's schools in the new term — 2,300 more than last year. Most of them are young people attracted to the profession by increased salaries.

The province's grants to local school boards in Ontario will total $147,000,000 this year. Since the vacation started, 500 new buildings and additions have been made ready for occupancy.

But crowded classrooms, and a system of staggered classes, are still evident, especially in rapidly - expanding residential areas.

In Winnipeg there will be 1,600 more students than last year, but staggered classes won't be necessary because of eight new additions and a new high school.

Regina will have about 1,200 more students than last year. A new collegiate institute, two new secondary schools and additions to others will take care of them. There are some secondary school vacancies for teachers, but no shortage is expected in elementary schools.

RECORD FOR ALBERTA

Alberta will have a record 265,000 students at school opening, an increase of 9,000 over last year. The number of teachers will top the 10,000 mark for the first time, but local school boards are having difficulty finding enough high school teachers.

British Columbia, like some other provinces, finds itself short of secondary school teachers. But the survey shows that the situation is not acute in any particular area.

Of the 300,000 children who will attend school in B.C. this term 70 are children of parents in the Doukhobor branch, who were released from the provincial government dormitory school at New Denver last July.

These children will go to public schools in their home areas for the first time.

Mine-Mill National President Sets Stage for Power Struggle

TORONTO (CP)—The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) will elect a new president this month, but the real battle for power apparently will come in November.

National President Nels Thibault temporarily transferred the national union to the sidelines Monday. He announced he would leave his post in an attempt to oust Don Gillis, chief of Local 598 in Sudbury and immediate head of almost half the union's 34,000 members.

Mr. Thibault made his announcement as the union's executive board met to pave the way for the Sept. 14-18 convention.

BREAKAWAY BID SEEN

He accused Mr. Gillis of trying to split the powerful Sudbury local from the rest of the union and said he would accept certification for president in Local 598's November elections.

The accusation drew immediate reaction from Sudbury, where Mr. Gillis said that the "good name" of the local has been restored only since his executive took office earlier this year.

The Local 598 leader took over as head of 15,000 International Nickel employees—workers who he defeated Mike Solski in an election delayed several months by a prolonged strike against Inco.

"It was the members' decision that put me in office by a very large majority and it will be the will of the majority that will decide who goes back into office at the next election," Mr. Gillis said.

He is not a member of the national executive but will be among about 150 delegates to the convention when the new president is chosen.

POLITICS CHARGE

Elsewhere in his statement, Mr. Thibault—former nickel miner who helped organize Local 598 and served as its president from 1947 to 1952—accused Mr. Gillis of losing membership and bringing politics into the local.

"Since the election of Gillis to the office of local president I have worked unfailingly to weld together the forces within Local 598, in the interests of the membership of Local 598 and the national union," Mr. Thibault said.

"My efforts in this direction have been road-blocked by lack of co-operation while at the same time indignities have been registered against the national position which I sincerely try to represent."

In reply, Mr. Gillis cited his campaign promises — one of which was to take petty politics out of the union.

In his campaign, Mr. Gillis also promised an audit of union funds as administered by the Solski regime.

The audit was made by former Sudbury city solicitor Stewart of Winnipeg, who reported in June that more than $200,000 of the local's funds had been spent over the previous few years without membership authorization.

Mr. Thibault charged that the Stewart report, "coupled with constant attacks on the national union," was the major factor in the recent loss by the Congress of Industrial Organization of America (CLC) of bargaining rights at the Consolidated Denison Uranium Mine at Elliot Lake.

Another major feature of Mr. Gillis' campaign platform has been his strong support for moves to affiliate the Mine-Mill union with the Canadian Labor Congress.

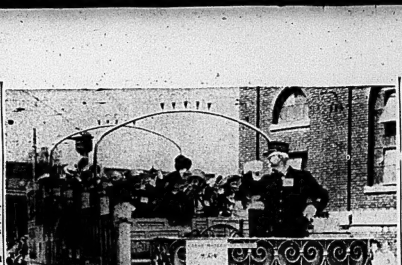
Mine-Mill members across the country recently voted in favor of applying for affiliation with the CLC but no final action has been taken.

Mr. Thibault said his association was not connected with that decision. He denied also that it had anything to do with the decision from the Sudbury local urging that Communists and their sympathizers be ousted from the union.

The resolution, passed Aug. 27, will be presented to the national convention.

Say Pickpockets Making $10,000 Daily at CNE

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Monday that several pairs of pickpockets, working in streetcars carrying people to and from the Canadian National Exhibition, are making well over $10,000 a day.



Police said they believe between 20 and 25 persons are operating. Only one arrest has been made so far.

One man stands in front of the victim and two other behind. Police said in describing how the pickpockets operate.

Just before the vehicle reaches a stop, the man behind barges into the victim, lifts his wallet and slips it to his partner, who quickly gets off.

The victim knows his wallet has been taken but the man who took it no longer has it.

"It's extremely difficult to nab the operators," an officer said.

We found a soldier about to stencil an army symbol on the front and rear fenders before driving it off. Dozens of other cars also parked along the shady Tiergarten streets already bore army identifications.

"There are no requisitioned for the general staff," the soldier explained.

"But there must be some mistake," we protested. "We're foreign newspaper men and haven't been served with any requisition order."

The soldier conferred with his superior, accepted our explanation and let us drive. We had unwittingly parked in a section of the street set aside for an army car pool.

Queues of housewives stood outside grocery, butcher and milk stores. They clutched newly issued food ration cards. Restaurants also crowded into other shops hoping to buy up still-unrationed foods — anything at all — against an uncertain future.

Canada Expects Eisenhower Will Veto Bill

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canadian authorities apparently are confident President Eisenhower would again veto any bill designed to allow Chicago to take more water out of the Great Lakes.

This embassy officials here do not appear too deeply upset by Senate defeat of a motion to have the Chicago water diversion bill sent to the foreign relations committee for detailed study instead of Canada's protest.

In a move one senator later described as a "slap" to Canada, the Senate voted Monday against the committee study proposed by opponents of the bill.

This would have been a delaying action—to have the committee study Canada's protest against the measure which already has been approved by the house of representatives.

Debate continues on the Senate floor with jubilant supporters figuring they have a good chance of passage before the current session ends, possibly in a few weeks. But opponents to the bill, which Canada has condemned, are pledged to dig in for a stiff fight to delay a showdown vote by offering a number of amendments to the bill. If that fails they still have the possibility of a White House veto as was the case in 1954 and 1956.

VOTE NEAREST YET -

This is a slap to Canada which has repeatedly protested the diversion bill, now over 40 years old," said Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) in an interview after the Senate voted 45 to 41 against the motion to send the bill to committee. Six Great Lakes states are fighting the measure.

We might have had a victory on our side, perhaps by 25 votes to spare, in the committee if it hadn't been for Johnson and Dirksen," said Proxmire. "They opposed us and they've got a lot of support."

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem. Tex.) is Senate majority leader and Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep. Ill.) the minority leader. Both voted against the committee study.

The Canadian embassy declined comment on the development. Ambassador A. D. P. Heeney in a news protest three weeks ago charged that any additional diversion of Lake Michigan water for Chicago will breach Canada-U.S. agreements.

Chicago already diverts 167,000,000 gallons of Lake Michigan water a day and wants an additional 648,000,000 gallons daily for sewage disposal on a one-year trial run.

Opponents estimated this would lower the Great Lakes by one-quarter of an inch, affecting both shipping and power projects.

FREDICT 450 DEATHS

CHICAGO (AP)—The national safety council estimated today traffic accidents might kill 450 persons in the U.S. during next weekend's three-day Labor Day holiday. The estimate, covering 78 hours from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday, is 30 higher than the actual toll for Labor Day weekend last year.

Twp. Lawyer Gives Rebuttal In Land Inquiry

T. Keiso Creighton, counsel for the investigating commission, delivered a five-hour, 65-page brief Monday, urging Judge Joseph Sweet to consider criminal court actions against township officials.

He said Reeve Chris Tonks "and a direct conflict of interest between his duties as a councillor and as a private citizen" when he bought land from the municipality for $8,600. Mr. Tonks may not legally own the land because he bought it through his office, he charged.

MAGISTRATE UNDER FIRE

Mr. Creighton said the testimony of township businessman Noel J. Bowes and Harbors builder Harold Payne constituted a "damning indictment" of Magistrate Fred Hall, former township reeve now chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto Licensing Commission, and councillor Harold Linden, a lawyer.

Mr. May testified Mr. Hall and Mr. Linden wanted money from him for an election and a return for a building permit. Mr. Payne said he paid Mr. Linden $100 for Mr. May's permit.

Mr. Creighton said Judge Sweet will base his decision on testimony given by township realtor Arthur Puncett, who said he paid Deputy Reeve William Graham $100 for a permit for builder Ray Zucchinetti.

Mr. Porter also charged Deputy Reeve

RYAN—ASHLEY

Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty and lovely mid-summer wedding on Saturday, August 15th, at high noon, when Helen Dorothy Ashley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ashley, became the bride of Alexander Clinton Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Ryan.

Mrs. Lois Miller, church organist, provided the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. William H. Smith, who sang, "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

Baskets of white chrysanthemums and deep pink snapdragons adorned the altar of the church, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely, dark haired bride chose a chapel-length wedding gown of frost white silk organza and lace over satin. The hooped organza skirt featured a deep band of appliqued lace and a bustle bow of satin. The lace bodice was a light basque delicately sprinkled with iridescent sequins and seed pearls, the sabrina neckline coming to a deep "V" in the back, and the long sleeves pointed over the wrists. Her shoulder-length veil of scalloped tulle illusion was caught to a tiny cap of lace and organza, encrusted with iridescent sequins and seed pearls, and she wore a single strand of pearls and matching earrings, the gift of the bridegroom, and white satin opera pumps, and carried a nosegay of deep pink rosamellias, ivy and caladium leaves.

Miss Lynda Canning was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Jola MacDonald and Miss Joan MacDonald, gowned alike in crystal charm sheath dresses of robin's egg blue, featuring sabrina necklines and very full embroidered organza overskirts. Their net headdresses were trimmed with bows to match their gowns. They wore short white gloves, white open pumps and carried nosegays of pink carnations and pink velvet leaves.

Little Miss Wendy Ashley, niece of the bride, was a charming flower girl, wearing a short dress of frost white embroidered organza. The full skirt was caught at the waistline with a robin's egg blue sash, the streamers of the large back bow falling to the hem of her dress. Her headband was blue and she carried a basket of blue cornflowers, white baby chrysanthemums and pink rosebuds.

Mr. Ron Ryan attended his brother as best man, and Mr. Robert Ashley, brother of the bride, and Mr. Dan Ryan, brother of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served in the church parlors which were attractively decorated for the occasion.

The many guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing an ensemble of beige lace with avocado accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of turquoise lace with white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

EASTON — STONE

A lovely, mid-summer, double ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, August 15, at 2.00 p.m. in Sidney Baptist Church, Halloway, Ontario, when Grace Mary Stone, of Halloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stone, of Cannilton, was united in marriage to William Jay Easton, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilford Easton, by the Rev. Hector Mansey, of Sidney Baptist Church, beneath an arch of blue and white streamers and wedding bells. Pink and white gladioli adorned the chancel rail and pink Sweetheart roses designated the guest pews.

Mrs. Floyd MacInnes, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Marguerite McMullen, aunt of the bride, who sang, before the ceremony, "Because," and "I Love You Truly," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of Chantilly lace over satin, featuring a molded bodice with bateau neckline with scalloped effect and long sleeves tapering over the wrists. The graceful skirt was accented at the hip line by scalloped lace over net. She wore a rhinestone-encrusted tiara and fingertip length veil of tulle and lace and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses. A single strand of pearls completed her bridal costume.

She was attended by Mrs. Wendell Pond, of Halloway, as matron of honor, gowned in coral pure silk over chiffon in ballerina-length with bow and streamers, and matching jacket, picture hat shoes and gloves. She carried a nosegay of white carnations centred with pink roses.

Miss Pat Chisholm, of Belleville, as bridesmaid, wore an identical gown in tropik-water shade with matching accessories, and carried a nosegay of yellow mums centred with white roses.

Mr. Joseph Mays, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Wendell Pond, of Halloway, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mr. Norman Gayes, also of Belleville, cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held in Turner's School adorned with pink and white streamers, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a pale green blocked nylon with white accessories, and corsage of pink roses. Assisting her was the bride's groom's mother, attired in pale blue linen with white accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table, with its white damask linen, and three-tier wedding cake (a gift of Mrs. Mabel Green, of Toronto), topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and misted about the base with white tulle an dried roses, brass candelabra and bridal bouquets made a delightful nuptial picture.

For the wedding trip to Georgian Bay and the United States the bride donned a yellow figured nylon dress with matching duster, with picture hat, and accessories with a corsage of white mums. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Easton will reside in Belleville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Lorne Reid, assisted by Mrs. Floyd MacInnes, as co-hostess. The bride was also presented with a table lamp and electric iron by the staff of the Bel Shirt Company of which she is an employee.

Those attending were present from Brantford; Toronto; Stirling; Trenton; Point Anne and Belleville.

Chef Contends Potato Most Neglected Food

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dieting women, take heart.

It's not the potato itself that is fattening, but the way it's prepared that adds the calories.

That's what Ken Jones of Vancouver said in an interview while here for the recent Canadian Potato Conference.

"Of course, moderation must be practised," said the chef of 20 years' experience.

"The average five-ounce potato has only 100 calories, which isn't very much for a food which has so many qualities," he said. But it has become one of Canada's most neglected foods, Mr. Jones contended.

"I think it's one item on the meal that should be given more attention when in preparation. Of all potatoes served by Canadian women, 15 per cent are mashed, the Canadian working man, if he eats potatoes at all, eats nothing but mashed potatoes."

Mr. Jones said there are 250 different methods of preparing potatoes.

"When I prepare a potato meal, I pay great attention to its eye appeal. It's what the eye sees that arouses gastric juices to flow," he said.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by reasonable exercise and counsellors.

Lucas R. — We should invite my sister.

• • •

Lucas R. — All through our 20 years of marriage my wife and my older sister have been feuding. Many bitter things have been said and at last count my sister so infuriated my wife that they have not been on speaking terms for four years.

Now our oldest daughter is to be married. We are having a big affair and all our relatives and friends will be there. I feel it will look terrible if my sister doesn't come. I would like to invite her partly because if we don't it will mean the end of any chance of healing the breach.

My wife says it will upset her too much to see my sister. But I say it isn't even necessary to talk to my aunt. Just let her come and offer congratulations if she wants to.

• • •

Francine R. — This sister-in-law of mine is the most impossible person. She has a tongue that is sheer poison and she might have ruined our marriage if we hadn't been strong enough to fight her. She is a domineering person and feels it is not only her right, but her duty to run the family.

Well, I want to show her that the family can run itself very well without her. My husband always submitted to her will, but we have gotten along without her opinions during these last few years. Now our daughter is making a wonderful marriage. My sister-in-law doesn't even know the young man — and I'm glad of it.

I think it's very likely that she wouldn't even come to the wedding if invited. Why expose ourselves to a snub?

• • •

The Council: Francine appears to be genuinely afraid of this sister-in-law. She may have very good reason. Yet we think there are other considerations besides her own fear.

For one thing, there is her husband's desire to heal the breach. This is far more important than how it would look to other people. Most family feuds are more or less dissolved at happy or tragic occasions. It is so much better to choose the opportunity afforded by a wedding. Francine should consider her husband's feelings in this. Whatever kind of a woman his sister is, Lucas still feels some loyalty and affection for her and the breach is painful to him.

For another thing, there are the bride's feelings to be considered. She should certainly be consulted. Brides like to feel that everyone wishes them well and a sense of family togetherness adds to the joyousness of the occasion.

It is possible that this unpleasant sister-in-law would not take this opportunity to bring about better feeling. Then the fault will be hers and the R's can feel that they at least extended the hand of peace and friendship. They will be more at ease with themselves and there would be no reason to take offense at the other woman's unwise behavior.

If this sister-in-law is asked and attends the wedding, Francine should remember that she needs only to be the gracious hostess. It is not the occasion for discussion of any past events.

First Pictures Of Fall Fashions To Be Shown

Silhouettes range from slim tubes for daytime suits and dresses to tunic effects, fairly bulky coats, and some odd shapes for evening.

Suit jackets generally are longer, and the waistline is just about where the waist is. On dresses it is usually fitted or belted. On suits it's semi-slack.

Favored materials are soft "caravan" woollens, slightly hairy surfaces for daytime, and satin, velvet and lame brocades for evening wear.

In the bidding are Dior's "paper bag" skirt with tight knee cuff; Hein's "test tube" silhouette for day wear and "goblet" for evening; the balloon-like sleeves designer Jules Cranay made for Miss Ricci; Pierre Cardin's long-jacketed tunic suits and new color shadings; the new over-vest by Guy Laroche; Pierre Dalmsin's stem - like straight skirts and "blossoming" bustline; Paluu's front-split hemline, and everybody's Sherlock Holmes coats—for trimmings and tunic effects.

Women's Institute

MADOC W.I.

MADOC — Madoc Women's Institute held the August meeting at the home of Mrs. George McCrimmon on Friday afternoon with 11 members and four visitors present.

Mrs. E. T. Naylor presided and gave the welcome greeting. An interesting roll call was used by naming "One of the newest developments in Canadian Agriculture or a Canadian Industry and what it manufactures."

During the business period, it was decided to give a radio to the Nursing Home at Queensboro. The new flag that was purchased for the new public was on display. A discussion followed as to whether the W.I. would sponsor another Village dance and it was decided to have Ted Curi again on September 18 if the arrangements are available.

The topic for August was Agriculture and Canadian Industries with the conveners, Mrs. A. Herrington and Mrs. George Allore in charge.

A paper on "Industries in Canada" was given by Mrs. Allore. Fishing, fur trading came first and then Agriculture, other industries were added.

Clippings were read by each member present, Mrs. Allore reading "Where Is The Line Fence", was given by Mrs. Herrington. All Industries began from the farm. Agriculture being the most important industry.

Mrs. Allore extended thanks to the hostess and program conveners. A social half hour followed.

The designers have done right by dance and date dresses, especially for the young in their lithe, slender figure, as is this example. The long, snug bodice is of black cut velvet and the floaty, filmy skirt is of black silk chiffon, fully flared. It is for the restricted wardrobe because a dress of this kind can be accessorized to suit each occasion and always look right.

Prize Winner At Shows Tells How to Do It

RIDGETOWN, Ont. (CP)—Advice on how to grow flowers and win prizes at flower shows was given by Mrs. C. P. Duck, who has been exhibiting at Ridgetown's annual fair for 25 years, and who won nine ribbons this year.

Mrs. Duck said the secret of winning rose entry for instance is in the picking. A rose should be picked as it starts to bud, and kept in the refrigerator until it is entered as an exhibit.

A thorough gardener at nearby Morpeth, about 40 miles south of St. Thomas, Mrs. Duck waters her garden heavily twice a week and weeds it daily. She regularly sprays it for insects, and once a year applies commercial fertilizer.

She has 40 different kinds of flowers and bushes. The largest flower bed borders 200 feet of the driveway from the highway to the house. Her daughter Helene, a school teacher, provides most of the garden labor force.

Mrs. Duck and her daughter say they learn a lot at the flower shows every year. "You're never too old to stop learning," said Mrs. Duck.

WIDOW'S CORRECT SIGNATURE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please explain in your column the really correct way for a widow to sign her signature? We would be most grateful to you. This matter is causing much controversy in our family, one of the members of which is now a widow. — G. L.

A widow should sign her informal name (Mary Smith Blake) and use her formal name (Mrs. John Blake) exactly as she did when her husband was living.

She should sign her business or professional letters:

Very truly yours,
Mary Smith Blake
(or Mary S. Blake)
(Mrs. John Blake)

Her social letters to people whom she doesn't know very well and who must be informed of her formal name, to be used in their reply, she should sign:

Sincerely yours,
Mary Smith Blake
(Mrs. John Blake)

Her visiting card: Never should she sign a letter, any kind of letter, business or social, with her name before the name: never "Mrs. Mary Smith Blake," and never "Mrs. John Blake."

For a widow, as for a married woman or divorcee, her informal name (Mary Smith Blake or Mary S. Blake) is the correct signature to use in all letters which are not signed with her first name only (as her letters to relatives and friends).

HOW TO ADDRESS LETTER TO WIDOW

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me what form of name is correct to use when addressing an envelope to a widow — "Mrs. John Smith" or "Mrs. Joan Smith"? I read in an etiquette column that either form is correct. A friend of mine said she also read that either "Mrs. John Smith" or "Mrs. Joan Smith" is correct. However, a mutual friend of ours insisted we were wrong, that only "Mrs. John Smith" is proper, that "Mrs. Joan Smith" should be used. Since both these friends seem to be up on etiquette, I'm now uncertain. — M. V.

You should address a letter to a widow: Mrs. John Smith. Correctly a woman does not change the form of her name when her husband dies. She should continue to use Mrs. John Smith for all time, just as she did when her husband was living. And a widow, you know, what's what deeply resents having letters addressed to her as "Mrs. Joan Smith."

But I have to stress some of the details of this homemade for it has some new angles that my dentist brother is intensely interested in. Vegetable oils and non-carbohydrate foods are all the rage with nutritionists who are advocating high protein diets (sweet, fish, fowl, eggs, cheese, milk, nuts). While oil is restricted on many reducing diets, the manufacturers claim that vegetable oils are so necessary that reducers must include them to balance the extra calories thus consumed, by cutting down on carbohydrates to a bare minimum.

I used a whole 16-oz. bottle of cold vegetable oil, liquid sugar) to sweeten it, freshly squeezed lemon juice to sour it and prepared mustard to give it zip.

KEEM'S MAYONNAISE

(for health diet)
3 large cold egg yolks
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon liquid sucaryl (OR 1 tablespoon sugar)
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tbsps freshly strained lemon juice
2 cups cold vegetable oil, (corn, peanut or cottonseed).

Beat cold egg yolks well with the mustard, salt and pepper and sucaryl until pale and thick. Add 2 teaspoon cold oil and beat well until it is incorporated. Add and beat 1 teaspoon cold oil at a time until you have used 1/4 cup and mixture has begun to emulsify. Add 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Continue in the same way, but you can beat beating in 1 tablespoon cold oil at a time now until each tablespoon of oil and lemon and mixture getting thicker gradually with each addition and beating until all is used. This yields more than one Imperial pint of the finest mayonnaise any epicure could wish for. If you have a salad shunner, win him to them by moistening your salads with this.

I want it for a crisp cabbage and green pepper salad tonight and for a mask for a half of a Restigouche salmon I have cooked and chilled.

SALMON MAYONNAISE

This is a dish made famous years ago by the chef at the Parliamentary dining room in Ottawa. Have a compact piece of cooked chilled salmon (or 3 or 4 poached and chilled salmon steaks), bone in, on a large cold platter. Spread over it evenly—

JELLIED MAYONNAISE

Soften 2 teaspoons plain gelatine in 2 tablespoons each lemon juice and cold water, then dissolve by stirring over hot water. Stir in 1 cup good quality genuine mayonnaise (above) and spread evenly over the top and sides of a skinless cold salmon. At once decorate with an attractive design of sliced stuffed olives and capers. Chill until mayonnaise is set. Garnish with a border of lemon and tomato wedges and unpeeled but forkseored cucumber.

Mother's Helper

HAVING TROUBLE getting Ronald medicine into your baby? Perhaps you haven't tried this: when you're ready to give him his bottle, measure the proper amount of medication into a sterilized plastic dropper. Slip the end of the dropper into his mouth, next to the nipple. Once or two squeezes should do it.

BIG AND SMALL OF IT

Matchmaker Frank Tunney has gone all out to provide the Belleville wrestling fans with an all-star attraction for this coming Friday night's weekly card here.

As a matter of fact, two of the biggest men in the game will have to give their best or they will find themselves playing second fiddle to four of the smallest.

The main bout of the evening will pit Don Leo Jonathan, 230-pound Mormon giant, against Yukon Eric, another of the king-sized brand at 275 pounds. Man, that is a lot of beef.

Jonathan earned himself a "badman" title the last trip here and if any man in the business is capable of taming the big fellow, Yukon Eric is the boy to do it.

But getting back to those "little fellows," we find four of the world's top wrestling midgets matching their zaney antics in a one-fall, tag-team bout.

The combo of Little Beaver and the Brown Panther will tackle rubbery Ski Lo Lo and Funny Cupid. They have been here before and never fail to keep the fans in an uproar. But it's not all laughs. These boys know every hold in the business and, with their terrific speed and sense of humor, they supply a guaranteed riot from start to finish.

JUNIOR HOCKEY ASSURED

Attention, all you eager young hockey players, better start getting in shape and checking up on last year's equipment. Belleville will have a junior hockey club.

Eddie Pista dropped by the other day to assure us that the Lambert-Collins Junior "B"'s would operate this coming season. Eddie took over the coaching reins last season and apparently is going to handle the chore again this winter.

"We are going to lose some players, I understand, and that is what I wanted to ask you about. Tell the fellows that we want them to turn out for this team if they are of junior age and think they can play Junior "B" class hockey," he said.

"I don't mean just Belleville boys, either. We would like to see young fellows from all around the district, out at Madoc, for instance, turn out for the club. There are a lot of good young players around if we can just get them to come out," Pista continued.

"We are going to lose the Trenton players, I guess, since they are planning to have a team up there. Then too, a couple of the boys may be going to Stirling or Campbellford. We will leave room for newcomers. Luckily very few of last season's players are over age so that won't hurt the club.

"We would like to hear from these district players now so we can plan accordingly, and know what we still need. Ask the boys from the nearby places to get in touch with either manager Mel Richards or myself if they would like to try out for the team," he concluded.

Earlier, the coach had said that possibly help in the form of a few players would be coming from the Toronto Staple Leaf organization. Pista talked to Punch Imlach recently and received an invitation to attend some junior camps in September in which the Leafs have a hand.

It appears that junior hockey could be in for a good year in this city. Let's hope the fans will turn out and support it.

ON SPORTS CARS

Next week Canada will be marking its debut to the world in international sand speed records when Ed Leavens of London, well-known Canadian sports car racing driver, will be piloting a specially-prepared Austin Healey Sprite at the Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah. Together with Tommy Wisdom of Great Britain and Gus Ehrman of Connecticut, Leavens will be attempting to drive the four-cylinder, 948 cc. happens 60 cubic inches) Sprite vehicle for an average speed of 110 miles per hour for twelve hours!

Mr. Leavens has been prominent in British Motors Corporation's competitive attempts. He has been a member of that firm's English team in the 24-Hour Grand Prix on two successful occasions and has won a number of first-in-lass and first overall victories at the various sports car racing circuits in both Canada and the United States.

The engine for the Leavens car, known as the EX 219, is a modified version of that normally supplied in Austin-Healey Sprite, Morris Minor and Austin A-40 motor cars. The special parts used in the modification of the basic engine assembly are identical to those supplied the everyday motorist or enthusiast who might be interested in competition-tuning his engine.

The international speed record attempts are being made under the supervision of Captain George E. T. Eyston, O.B.E., M.C., three times holder of the World's Land Speed Record, the world's most eminent authority on this type of competition.

Hayward gunned Miss Supertest to a Harmsworth speed record on the Detroit River in the Canada-U.S. Exhibition — rare, emblematic of world speedboat racing supremacy.

Sandy Koufax Ties Record By Whiffing Eighteen

Los Angeles Dodgers Beat Giants 5-2 to Pull Within One Game of Loop Leaders

By ED WILES
Associated Press Staff Writer

Since the turn of the century, only Bobby Feller ever had struck out 18 men in a nine-inning game. And only two pitchers, Jack Coombs and Warren Spahn, ever struck out that many in a game that went extra innings.

Coombs did it twice, needing 24 innings the first time when Boston beat Philadelphia 2-1 in 1910. Spahn did it again in 16. Still, they were the only pitchers to do it—until Monday night. Then Sandy Koufax, a lonus lefty who's been a long time coming, matched Feller's major league record, turning back San Francisco 5-2 as Wally Moon's three-run, ninth - inning homer boosted the second place Los Angeles Dodgers within one game of the National League leading Giants.

BETTERS NL MARK

While trying to tie pitching's strikeout performance, Koufax also set a National League record, fanning 16 batters in 12 innings to tie Dizzy Dean for St. Louis against Chicago's Cubs in 1933.

Koufax, a 23-year-old southpaw, also bettered the major league record for a no - decision in games with a total of 31 after fanning 13 in his last start, against Pittsburgh. Jack Harshman, the old record at 29, capped by 12 in his final game of the 1953 season.

With Koufax 8-4 pitching his first complete game since the Giants since he signed a $20,000 bonus with the Dodgers in 1954, the Dodgers swept the last two games in the three-game series and now are only one behind the Giants in the lost column.

It was the only game scheduled in the NL and also out San Francisco's edge over third place Milwaukee to 2½ games. Fourth place Pittsburgh trails by 3½.

SINGLE AL GAME

In the American League, Boston beat Washington 4-3 in 10 innings on Pete Runnels' homerun, and New York's game at Baltimore was rained out. No other games were scheduled.

Koufax, passed over by the Giants five years ago after a wild performance in a workout, also bettered his own major league record for a night game (16), set last June against the Phils.

He did it all against a batting order overloaded with right-handed hitters—supposed to be poison for lefties. Rookie Willie McCovey, who broke 4-1 tie with a 10th inning homer, was the only left-hander Koufax faced.

In all, Koufax gave up seven hits—with the Giants scoring in the first on doubles by Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda—and walked two.

FANS EVERY GIANT

He struck out every Giant at least once, getting Jackie Brandt three times each and fanned the side in the fifth inning. Daryl Spencer and Sanford in order in the ninth to tie the record.

The Dodgers, who managed seven hits, tying the Giants in the first inning as Don Demeter passed ball and an infield out. Wes Covington hit the 400-foot drive when Moon walked, got to second on a sacrifice and scored on two wild pitches.

Moon then broke it up, sheing home on Koufax' single by Spencer for his 12th homer after Al Worthington had replaced Sandy Amoros' leadoff single by Ken Kufax and Gilliam.

Koufax struck out Willie Kapp to end the game, setting a two-team major league record of 23.

Record Crowd Saw Lions Win Thriller From Eskies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders swept easily into first place in the Western Interprovincial Football Union Monday night with a 28-10 victory over the injury-stricken Saskatchewan Roughriders.

While only 19,500 watched the game in Calgary, a record crowd of 31,273 in Vancouver saw British Columbia Lions nip Edmonton Eskimos 21-16 in a thriller.

Eskimos made a strong drive in the last quarter but a fumble, two pass interceptions and a wide field goal attempt frustrated the attack.

Calgary now has four wins in five games. Second are Winnipeg Blue Bombers and the Lions, each with a 3-2 record.

Edmonton has two losses in Lions against two victories, and Saskatchewan is last with five losses.

KRISTOPAITIS STARS

B.C.'s scoring was done by kicking specialists Lou Kristopaitis (formerly of Toronto Argonauts, who booted two field goals and two singles) and Ken Ploen (field goal attempts.

Veteran fullback Johnny Bright scored a touchdown for Edmonton and rookie import Tommy-Joe Coffey added a point after but missed the convert to Bright's touchdown and that would have tied the game.

The loss of quarterback Jackie Parker, out with a stretched knee ligament, obviously hurt Eskies. Canadian Gerry Shaw threw nine completions in 22 pass attempts for 140 yards. On the ground, Eskie made 214 yards.

B.C.'s Randy Duncan also passed for 140 yards on nine completions in 21 tries. Lions made 210 yards rushing.

At halftime Lions presented $10,000 in gifts to a fan chosen in a draw and a $1,000,000 to attend a B.C. home game since Lions' club entered the WIFU in 1954.

RIDERS OVERWHELMED

In the other game Stamps had 24 first downs to 10 by Riders and were ahead 305 to 153 in yards rushing and 171 to 53 in yards passing.

Riders intercepted five of Calgary's 36 passes, but Stamps had 18 completions. Three of Saskatchewan's 29 passes were intercepted and 12 were completed.

Quarterback Joe Kapp tossed three touchdown passes, two to halfback Donnie Stone and one to end Ernie Warlick. Kapp scored a touchdown on a quarterback plunge. Doug Brown converted all four.

Halfback John Harris, replacing injured Gene Fox Schriewer, took a pass 10 yards for Riders' touchdown. Record Byrd White-Lake converted and also kicked a field goal.

Buffalo Bisons Can Win Pennant By Taking Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This could be the biggest night in the history of baseball in Buffalo if the International League-leading Bisons can beat Montreal Royals.

It would give the International League champions a mathematical pennant since Paul Richards turned the trick in 1949. Buffalo reduced its magic number to one with Monday night's 4-1 victory over the Royals Monday night.

Columbus, 7½ games back in second place, can eliminate Fox Schriewer, 5-3, in a 4-2 victory over Havana. A Columbus loss tonight is the start of a 4-game series with the pennant-clinching purposes.

Miami defeated Rochester 6-5 and Toronto defeated Rochester 8-5.

Bison Art Mahaffey (7-5) limited Montreal to five hits, one Mike Goliat's 14th, home. Dick Brodowski took his 15, for Buffalo.

CUBANS DROP BACK

Havana gained a 1½-game hold on second place over the Cubans at George Blackburn (3-1) beat Raul Sanchez (11-5). Tom Burgess hit his 26th home run for the Colts. Jim Pisoni came in the seventh off reliever Pedro Ramos, scoring on a base on balls. Flowers (7) James (9) and D. Johnson.

Rochester 003 112 100—8 15 1
Hochester 100 220 000—5 12 2
Miami (5) Burgess and Howard; Brodowski and Wade Browning combined in relief to stop Rochester. Harry Harrell and Lake Easter homered for the Wings. Howie Reed (3-4) and Brodowski (3-4) was the winner.

FARM HORSES

Horses on Canadian farms reached a record low of 624,000 at the beginning of June, 1959.

Bobcats Dump Sports Centre 10-1 To Tie Series; 3rd Game Tonight

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Bobcats evened their OASA, Intermediate "AA" elimination series with Sports Centre at one game apiece by downing the Commercial League club 10-1 at CNRA Park last night.

A combination of Bobby Hull's pitching, a ten-hit attack and Sports Centre's errors set the pattern for the contest from the beginning. The Cats took a 2-0 first-inning lead and built it into a 6-0 margin after four frames. They added doubles again in the seventh and ninth while the boxers finally broke the spell for their lone marker in the final stanza.

The third and deciding game will be played at the same place tonight at six o'clock. The winner will meet Peterborough in the opening round of the OASA playdowns.

18 IN ROW

Hull pitched near perfect ball over the first eight frames last night. He was bombed for a base hit by Boo Brooks in the second frame and with the exception of a walk then and another in the eighth, mowed the opposition down in order. He retired 18 men in a row after Brook's hit. Sports Centre reached him for their only lasting safeties. He struck out nine in all and gave but two earlier-mentioned walks.

Lefty Ken Kibblewhite was Don Dolan's choice for the Sports' mound duties. He toiled eight innings, allowed eight runs on nine hits, fanned none and gave up four. "Bunk" Young worked the ninth, gave one hit, two runs, whiled one and walked one.

Errors made the pitching chore more difficult for Kibblewhite and Young with six errors contributing to as many of the Bobcat runs.

A walk and his batter put two on with no many out in the first before Denny Hayden doubled both across the plate. Kibblewhite's error cost two more in the second as Floyd Crawford's bunt hit above the run home.

Hull singled to start the third and went all the way, round as two miscues were committed on the same play. A walk, two wild pitches and Lou Smrke's single netted another. In the fourth a base-on-balls and a throwing error made it 6-0.

LAMIRANDE HOMERS

Following a walk in the seventh Jean-Paul Lamirande lined a shot to right field that went for a home run when McBride tried in vane for a shoestring catch. A walk, Smrke's base knock and a final pair of errors plated the Cats last two runs.

Hull walked St. Denis in the second and Brooks singled to left where the winners' lone error was put the men on second and third with none out. But the next three went down on strikes to end the threat.

Ab Wright led off the ninth with a single to left and later took third on Frank Murray's base hit. St. Denis liged a ball-off umpire Jim Tebworth at third base to plate his club's only run.

Jean-Paul Lamirande with a homer and single topped the Bobcat attack. Smrke also singled twice while Denny Hayden doubled. The other base hits were divided among Floyd Crawford, Wiener, Brooks, Bobby Hull, Earl Cousins and Jackie Hughes.

"Wiener" St. Denis doubled in a losing effort with singles for Bob Brooks, Ab Wright and Shiner Murray.

Smythe Says New Pro Loop Doomed Due to High Costs

TORONTO (CP)—Conn Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said Tuesday he cannot endorse the proposed formation of professional Hockey League and feels it is "doomed to heavy financial losses."

The six - team league was formed recently from offshoots of the now-defunct professional Quebec Hockey League and two Ontario Hockey Association groups. It embraces Montreal Royals, Trois - Rivieres Lions, Sudbury Wolves, Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds, Toronto Marlboros and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens.

Smythe said in a statement made available to the newspapers that "might give the impression that the Pacific Coast League has not given this league its unanimous blessing."

NOT DISCUSSED

"This is not so. As a matter of fact the owners of the National Hockey League met to date and had no chance to even discuss this matter because of the pre-season of the league and high costs of maintaining a minor league professional team. However, I can safely tell the league is doomed to heavy financial losses.

"As chairman of the relations committee of the National Hockey League I have no notified my fellow owners, and have also privately, and in confidence to Campbell, the league president, that I could, neither publicly nor privately, endorse the new project."

It was announced in Ottawa last week that Edward J. Houston of Ottawa will be the first president of the new league.

Mr. Houston said in connection with the formation of the new league, Mr. Campbell said this week that he had no comment.

The new league's relationship with the NHL would be the same as that of other minor leagues.

In Ottawa, Mr. Houston said no formal approval has been given by the NHL but five of six NHL teams have expressed an interest in the new league.

"I think we can make a go of it," Mr. Houston said in a statement. "Mr. Smythe's attitude to the new league is doomed to heavy financial losses.

Two New Rules Will Be Tried In Pacific Loop

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—The Pacific Coast Amateur Hockey League will try out two new rulings this year at the request of the National Hockey League.

Referees called for icing the puck will lose the puck to its opponents. A player assembled the puck must pass it to another player and not shoot for a goal.

The other new ruling to be tried prohibits a goaltender from coming out of his crease to smother a puck to the side or directly behind the net. He will still be allowed to move out in front of the net.

TOP BACK RETURNS

SARNIA (CP)—Import fullback L. B. Negroes Leading Headlong Rush of U.S. for Walloping Haul of Gold Medals, Records

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP)—Ray Norton, jilt coffee-colored comet from Oakland, Calif., and Earlene Brown, chesky 210 - pound Los Angeles housewife, today led a headlong rush of United States athletes for a walloping haul of gold medals and broken records at the Pan American Games.

Each ended the fourth day of the 13-day Games with two gold medals—best individual showings of the 24-country, 2,135-athlete festival.

It's becoming more obvious every day that broken records mean practically nothing. Canadians, in particular, realize this. They got in a splurge of shattered Pan American marks in preliminary rounds in track, field and swimming—but they were still outshone, for the most part, by the Americans.

EASY VICTORY

Norton, who won the 100-metre dash Saturday, won his second title with an easy triumph in the 200-metre dash.

Mrs. Brown now owns the discus and shotput titles after her shotput victory Monday.

Two Canadians won both heats in the men's 1,500-metre semi-finals Monday night despite the record-gobbling by the Americans in other events.

Randy Mason, 25-year-old Toronto electrician, headed the first heat in 3:38.7, which wasn't as good as his mark of 3:33.3 when he won the Canadian championship.

HURDLER PLACES SECOND

Edmonton-born Pat Power goes into the final of the women's 80-metre hurdles today after smashing a Pan American record with 11.5 — second performance Monday night.

Miss Power, from Vancouver, who holds the Canadian championship with a mark of 11.3, placed second behind Barbara Mueller of the United States, whose time was 11.4 compared with the old games record of 11.7.

Marian Monroe, 17, Richmond Hill, and Sally McCallum, Vancouver, also qualified for the 80-metre. Miss Munroe placed third in 11.6 in a heat headed by a Cuban girl in 11.3 but the record-breaking mark was disallowed due to an assisting wind of seven miles an hour. Miss McCallum placed fourth in 11.6 in the second heat won by Miss Mueller in 11.4.

Miss Power, who is married and has a two-year-old daughter, was the first Canadian to qualify for the final. She won her heat in 11.5 with ease.

MAN OF THE HOUR — Australia's Neale Fraser holds Davis Cup high after he defeated Barry MacKay of U.S. in singles match that decided possession of the trophy at Forest Hills, Queens, today. Score was 8-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4. (AP Wirephoto).

Neale Fraser Beats Mackay To Win Davis Cup for Aussies

By ED CORRIGAN

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Neale Fraser, well-to-do son of a prominent Melbourne judge, waited patiently six years for his chance to play in a Davis Cup challenge round.

When it came he made the most of it. Just as Alex Olmedo practically single-handedly won the coveted cup — symbolic of world amateur tennis supremacy — for the United States last year, Fraser snatched it back virtually by himself this year.

The handsome left-hander completed a 3-2 Australian triumph Monday when he whipped Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, 8-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4. The first two sets were played Sunday but darkness intervened and the rest of the match had to be put off until Monday.

Fraser won both his singles matches — against Olmedo and MacKay—and teamed with Roy Emerson to capture the doubles from Olmedo and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis. Olmedo and MacKay both beat Rod Laver for the two U.S. points.

SOLID VICTORY

It was a solid Australian victory and Barry Hopman's lads deserved to win. They whipped America's ace, Olmedo. Even Hopman was inclined to concede two singles to Olmedo and place his hopes on the doubles and beating MacKay twice.

So no matter who the U.S. leads down under 16 months from now to try to regain the cup, the Aussies will be favored. Fraser will be around—he hasn't had any pro offers—and so will Rod Laver, the young lefty who has been improving by leaps and bounds.

Fraser's rise in the past five weeks has been meteoric.

"I'd certainly consider a professional offer," he said Monday. "But so far I haven't had one. I'd better win some tournaments first. I know I can't go on like this forever, just playing tennis around the world."

SERVICE ON

"I won those last two sets from MacKay because my service was on and his was off," he commented. "The day before (when MacKay was superior), Barry's service was on and mine was off. That was the difference and it could happen to anyone."

Fraser never has been too impressed with Olmedo, even though Hopman still considers Alex at the top of the list.

"I thought that performance of his last year was a fluke," said Fraser. "He had too many set points against him. It had to be a fluke."

A six-year veteran in international tennis, Fraser was or Australian cup teams with Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall, but never before played a challenge round.

"I've never seen Fraser play better," observed Hopman. "In my opinion, either he or Olmedo could turn out to be the best amateur in the world. The one who wins the nationals will get my vote". They open Friday.

Sam Peckinpah, Television Writer, Does Not Own Set

By PATRICK McNULTY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Next time you tune in Gunsmoke, Riflemen or the other TV shoot-'em-ups, think of Sam Peckinpah. He's the fellow who puts the brave words in the hero's mouth.

Writers for movies and Broadway usually are established professionals. And it's difficult for a barefoot boy with typewriter to break in.

Not so in television. Many of TV's brightest writing stars—Paddy Chayefsky and Rod Serling among them, began just where Sam did four years ago—broke and hungry.

AND THEN THEY PRODUCE

And many, Chayefsky, Serling and Arron Spelling to name three, have graduated into the production end of the business. They are busy writing, directing and producing their own hour-long shows. That's where Sam is heading. Why? Very simple.

That's where the dollars are.

Sam got the message after an agency hired him to write a movie scenario from the novel, The Authentic Death of Hendry Jones. Sam's script was sold as "Invitation to Jackpot," a western in which Maureen O'Hara is director and starred.

Sam got $4,000 for his trouble. The agency got $150,000.

REARED ON RANCH

Sam writes only westerns. And he comes by his cowboy lore naturally. He was reared on a cattle ranch near North Fork, in California's rugged Madera County.

He is one of the creators of the "Riflemen" series and twice has been nominated for the writers guild of America's best western award.

"Writing is tough work and I like to take my time," Sam said.

He usually works at his ocean-front home in Malibu, where he lives with his wife and three children. But he keeps an office in Hollywood where he retreats if the kids get too noisy.

By next year, Sam hopes to have his own production company.

He gets his material from books and from stories he picked up as a youngster. His father was a TV set.

"I just don't have time to watch television," he said.

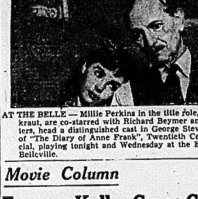
MONTREAL (CP) — With his left knee in a cast and his right knee taped, Hal Patterson can watch the Montreal Alouettes work out today secure in the knowledge that he will be playing with them again this year.

The Big Four clubs have named their imports and general manager Gorman Kennedy said Monday night that the Montreal list of 12 players includes Patterson.

Rumors had circulated that because of injuries, Patterson would be dropped. He injured both knees when tackled in a game against Toronto Argonauts. When he will be able to play is uncertain.

Others on Montreal's import list:



Quarterback Sam Etcheverry, centre Tom Hugo, guard Jack Simpson, tackles Ted Urness and Bill Hudsen, ends Gene Siminski and Red O'Quinn, halfbacks Joe Wells and Jim Cpicough, wingback Bill Closson and fullback Teryl Switzer.

Tackle George Deiderich and quarterback Wes Gideon were named as reserve members.

Seven changes may be made in the list before Oct. 15.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Where are the clowns of yesteryear? They're dying off," says Emmett Kelly, one of the great clowns. "A lot of them have left the business. There aren't many new clowns coming up because the young kinds don't see any future in clowning.

"In the old days, there were 26 circuses on rails. Even the smallest would have about 25 clowns. The ringling circus was split into two units with 40 clowns apiece.

"A clown would look forward to working for a big outfit with a carnival and, as he perfected his act, he'd get offers from bigger shows. Eventually he could work up to the big show. But new Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey has gone in for auditorium presentations and carries only about 35 clowns."

It's significant that Emmett Kelly is one of the circus's last hanging on longest run in one place of his 38-year career. He is officially vice-president in charge of fun at Pacific Ocean Park, where he spends his days mingling among the kids and making them laugh.

I saw him during a break in his chores, and he was worrying about his future. He'd already explained that he couldn't risk washing or dry - cleaning it and the colognes he poured onto it didn't always do the job on a hot day.

35 Expeditions Sent Out To Gather Data on Subjects From Archaeology to Zoology

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The endocrine systems of lemmings on Ellesmere Island are undergoing careful scrutiny this summer.

Charles J. Kreb, a post-graduate zoology student at the University of British Columbia, knows the little rodents as dicrostonyx greenlandicus.

He was sent to the island at the northern tip of the Canadian Arctic archipelago on a $5,000 grant to find out why the lemming population fluctuates so violently. He must put special emphasis "on the role of stress and the endocrine system in controlling fluctuations in the numbers of dicrostonyx."

Mr. Kreb is one of the men in 35 expeditions sent out this summer by the Arctic Institute of North America to gather data on subjects ranging from archaeology to zoology.

WIDE SURVEYS

These expeditions — 19 Canadian and 25 American—have a wide variety of projects.

John M. Powell, a post-graduate botany student at McGill University, has a $1,500 grant to study the flowers that bloom on Ellesmere Island's mountainous, glacial terrain.

P. M. Driver has $2,800 to study the love life of diving ducks on the Belcher Islands in Hudson Bay. He is a post-graduate ornithology student at McGill.

A nine-man team—four Canadians and five Americans—is investigating ice conditions on the shelf that slopes northward from Ellesmere Island into the Polar Basin.

ORGANISED SEARCH

The institute is an incorporated craving for knowledge of the high north. Under its supervision a body of scientific information is slowly growing, fed by scraps sent in by young men toiling on unlikely ventures under a summer sun that never sets.

Many of the field expeditions are carried out by those who study at McGill's northern research department on Carnegie Arctic Scholarships. Other Arctic study departments are being formed elsewhere in Canada, notably at the universities of British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba.

Anybody who thinks of an Arctic subject that should be studied is free to send in his ideas. A committee of Canadian and American university men study the suggestion, and if it's a good one the man who had the brain wave may find himself on his way north to follow it through.

"People come in with the most startling ideas," says Mike Marsden, acting director of the institute. "Some are ridiculous. Others are pretty good."

THRIVING CALVES

One man went out with the institute's blessing, captured three muskox calves in Keewatin Territory and brought them back to his farm in New England.

"Now," says Mr. Marsden, "They are twice the weight of the all-time record muskox captured in the Barren Grounds."

Mr. Marsden, a red - bearded geomorphologist of 30, says the institute operates on the principle of "completely free research so original ideas can come to the top."

Governments and companies do research toward specific objectives, he says, and are thus limited in the pure research field.

Many of the institute's esoteric-sounding projects have highly practical applications. Charles Krebs' lemming study, for example. Lemmings are at the bottom of the Arctic food pyramid. They eat tundra plants, turning the tundra to meat, and in turn are eaten by wolves and foxes. A large lemming population means lots of white foxes and prosperity for the Eskimos who sell their skins.

EARNEST GROUP

The institute was set up in 1945 by a group of Canadians and Americans disgruntled with the rate at which northern studies were being tackled.

It aims to conduct field research, provide research tools, disseminate information, maintain liaison among groups concerned with the north, and provide training and experience for young scientists.

The institute lists nearly 300 field research projects it has carried out.

As a research tool it publishes and revises yearly—at a cost of about $125,000 a year—an Arctic bibliography with 500,000 cross-indexed extracts of books, articles and pamphlets from 23 languages.

It is financed by private donations — $46,000 from Canada and $60,000 from the United States last year.

Some operating costs of the institute are charged up to companies and governments for which it does scientific research cost plus overhead contracts. The institute takes no profit so it can demand that all results be made public. During the International Geophysical Year $800,000 worth of research was done on contract for the U.S. government.

EXECUTIVE LEADER

The executive director, A. T. Bolther, a retired RCMP deputy commissioner, controls headquarters in Montreal and offices in New York, Washington and temporarily in Boston.

Mr. Marsden alternately works a year in the field and a year in his mso-lined office in the institute's headquarters, a converted home just off the McGill campus.

"Ninety per cent of the world's population lives north of 20 degrees north latitude," he says.

Mr. Marsden visualizes important trade routes under the polar ice cap—and although the Northwest Passage—for nuclear submarines. But so far the routes submarines could follow through the Canadian archipelago have not been sounded.

The institute itself pioneered much of the work being done by the Canadian and United States governments.

When Mr. Marsden gets north next year he plans to investigate deep fjords that penetrate Axel Heiberg Island, just west of Ellesmere Island. These fjords, he explains, usually extend out to sea as deep troughs in the ocean floor.

"Something must happen down there," he muses. What he discovers on the ocean floor may provide important clues to many of the Arctic's geological secrets.

PC Govt. First Time In 24 Years

Only 7 Liberals Back In Thirty-Seat House

By DON HOYT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Prince Edward Island has a Progressive Conservative government today, it's first in more than 24 years.

Led by 71-year - old Walter Shaw, the Conservatives scored a smashing triumph after an issue - election campaign that emphasized the need for "a united team" of PC governments here and in Ottawa. The victory reduced Premier Alex Matheson's Liberals to seven members.

PCs	23	3
Lbs	7	27
Doubtful	1
Totals	30	30

Mr. Shaw said in a statement at a victory rally here that "the people just got tired of a government that had got out of touch with the needs of the province."

TO TACKLE CAUSEWAY

He said that as soon as "the party of the causeway" took power vigorous steps would be taken towards construction of the proposed nine - mile causeway across Northumberland Strait to mainland New Brunswick.

Premier Matheson, who said he would be ready to relinquish power on Confederation Day, Sept. 13, told a reporter the province would have the best opposition in 24 years—the last time the Liberals sat in opposition.

He said he was surprised by the government's defeat although he had expected a reduced majority.

SHAW MARGIN NARROW

The Canadian Press reported at 8:30 p.m. ADT, 24 hours after the polls closed that the defeat of the Liberal government was indicated. Mr. Shaw's personal victory margin was about eight minutes earlier. He squeezed out Liberal Gerald Sinclair by 39 votes in Queens First.

Premier Matheson and Health Minister Dr. M. Lorne Bonnell were re-elected in Kings Fourth. Mr. Matheson won by 365 votes. The Conservatives defeated five members of Mr. Matheson's cabinet.

Premier-elect Shaw has a legislature seat for the first time. He lost out in a 1955 bid for election. Two years ago he was named party leader and directed opposition strategy in the legislature from a bench provided by the government.

ONE TIE

The only seat in doubt today was in Kings Fifth where incumbent Liberal George E. Saville and Conservative Leslie S. Hunter were deadlocked with 615 votes each. All the polls had been counted.

The Conservatives gained 18 seats from the Liberals. After the last general election in 1955 they won 27 seats to the Coalition Liberal-Labor Progressives' three. But a 1957 by-election was won by the Conservatives, cutting the Liberal majority by one seat.

P.E.I. voters were the first to reject their government in four federal elections this year. Governments in Alberta, Newfoundland, Ontario and Manitoba were returned to

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A storm which developed over the Ohio Valley valley centre across southwestern Ontario this morning causing widespread rains across the lower lakes. Eastern and central Ontario are likely to experience heavy rain falls this afternoon and tonight, as this storm moves northeast from Georgian Bay. Temperatures shot up again overnight as the warm air from the Mississippi Valley in advance of the storm. There will be some relief from the warmth on Thursday but above normal temperatures continue.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today congratulated Walter Shaw and those associated with him for the Progressive Conservative victory in Tuesday's Prince Edward Island election.

However, he declined further comment as he entered a morning cabinet meeting. He was asked about construction of a causeway from the mainland to the island province, one of the things the P.E.I. Conservatives promised to press for during the election campaign.

Mr. Diefenbaker replied that the situation is the same as it was. The fullest and most careful survey—"the first serious effort to assess the difficulties"—that has been made in that general government will have before it "all the information for a final conclusion."

The National Liberal Party regrets the Progressive Conservative sweep scored in the P.E.I. election, a statement from the office of Liberal Leader Pearson, Ottawa, said.

But Prince Edward Island Liberals can take comfort in the fact that the popular vote was virtually even, it said, adding that the Liberals had been "reticent on local and provincial issues in contrast with the recent Newfoundland campaign which resulted in a Liberal victory."

The statement was issued in the absence of Mr. Pearson, who returns Thursday from a visit to Britain.

TORONTO (CP) — Four persons, including Toronto Argonaut football star Dave Mann, were committed Tuesday for trial on a charge of illegal possession of narcotics.

Magistrate Donald Graham announced his decision after hearing evidence by RCMP officers of raids on two midtown apartments. A small envelope containing marijuana was found in one of the raids, police testified.

Mann, 27, has not played or practised with the Toronto Argonauts since the charges were laid before the Big Four season opened. He was to have been sent to Toronto last year from Chicago Cardinals of the National League.

RCMP Constable Gordon Tomalty testified Monday he visited Mann and Miss D'Arcy, both in their underwear, when police raided the Bloor Street apartment. The marijuana was found in a white envelope on a dresser. Also found were a chinese air-cooled pipe and a package of cigaret papers.

PARISIANS GIVE EISENHOWER WARM WELCOME

De Gaulle, President Trade Compliments

PARIS (CP)—President Eisenhower went into conference with President de Gaulle today to "concert all our efforts toward the single goal of peace."

The two statesmen began their first conference of a two-day visit after an eight-mile drive through the streets of Paris cheered by an estimated 500,000 people shouting a welcome to "ami Ike" and waving flags.

They met for their talks at the Elysee Palace two hours after Eisenhower had arrived from London at Le Bourget airfield on the third and last stop of a 10-day European tour. The visit was designed as a prelude to meetings later this month with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Paper rained into the streets and wave after wave of cheering went up as Eisenhower drove past, standing up in the back of an open car waving back to people lining the streets and hanging from upper windows.

Though reporters who have covered Eisenhower's earlier visits

German Cruiser in Danzig On 'Courtesy Visit' Pumped Shells Into Beautiful City

In Danzig an opening chapter of the Second World War unfolded 20 years ago — as recalled by an Associated Press correspondent then stationed there. This is the second of three articles on the 20th anniversary of the start of the war.

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press Staff Writer

The guns spoke at 4:47 a. m. in Danzig, putting the world at war for the second time in a generation.

It was Sept. 1, 1939, and the fateful shots had been expected for months. Adolf Hitler was fulfilling his promise to seize Danzig back from League of Nations trusteeship for his "Greater German Reich."

As the ominous rumble of gunfire echoed over the city, pigeons cooed from the gables of the ancient houses. Windows flew up. Hitler's storm troopers already were pasting up signs proclaiming Danzig's return to Germany.

Down in the harbor the German cruiser Schleswig Holstein, which had slipped into port a week earlier on a "courtesy visit," was pumping shell after shell into the Westerplatte Peninsula. Here the small Polish garrison in the city guarded a munitions dump.

The free state of Danzig, including the city and a small surrounding area, had been created under the Treaty of Versailles after the First World War at Polish insistence. It was placed under "the protection of the League of Nations."

There has been no mistaking the approach of war in Danzig. For weeks, straight - backed strangers with the unmistakable bearing of the German army had been converting the city in civilian clothes.

Barbed wire had sprouted at strategic positions. A pontoon bridge had been built over the Motlau River. Communications lines were laid openly from the city to various hideaways in the surrounding countryside.

The day before it happened, more strangers appeared. The stores had been crowded all day with Germans. They had the greedy, luxury - loving glint in their eyes which became the austerities of Hitler's Reich ever before the war. The wise Danzigers long ago clamped down the sale of coffee and other delicacies.

Ridge of Fossils on Pacific Bed Plainly Marks Location of Equator

It actually exists as a ridge of life on the Pacific Ocean bottom. It is made out of fossils and skeletons of things that once lived in the sea, then sank when they died.

This material makes a narrow, detectable line right where man drew the equator for convenience to divide the globe into northern and southern hemispheres.

With it, he could also draw lines of latitude parallel to the equator to the poles to help tell him where he lives or where he is sailing.

Now the equator line on the sea floor has been used to settle whether the North Pole has gone through a period in the past. It also promises clues to causes and kinds of ice ages.

This story was described to the first International Oceanographic Congress by Prof. Gustaf Arrhenius of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, La Jolla, Calif. Here is how the ridge is formed:

Some of it flows north, some south. From down below, deep cold water rises up to fill the void, and this cold water is rich in tiny animals life and minerals.

Ultimately this material sinks down along the equator. Take borings through the fossils layer by layer, and you can tell how long ago these marine organisms lived, Arrhenius said.

Or you could tell whether the appropriate equator always has been where it is now.

If it has moved, then the North and South Poles had to be somewhere else also at that same time.

There are reasons to suspect that the geographic North Pole was located near the Hawaiian Islands some 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 years ago, Arrhenius said.

It could have changed location because the earth tilted on its axis for some unknown reason. The samples or corings taken so far indicate the equator has stayed put for about the last half-million years and this, of course, would mean the North Pole has too.

MUNICIPALITIES ENDORSE SWEEPS TO RAISE MONEY

Resolutions Board Is Overruled

SUDBURY (CP)—The Ontario Municipal Association moves into the final day of its annual convention today with several major financial questions up for discussion and a host of resolutions behind it.

An important item at today's sessions is a recommendation from the towns and villages section that a federal subsidy be requested, to hold municipal debenturing for development purposes to five per cent maximum interest.

This proposal has been rejected by the resolutions committee, but the towns and villages section represents 1,120 of the 1,775 anticipating communities and is expected to make a strong effort to push it through.

FAVOR SWEEPSTAKE

The resolutions committee was overruled Tuesday when delegates voted endorsement of a national sweepstake to raise money for Ontario hospitals.

More than 200 of the 800 delegates sponsored a resolution urging Queen's Park to "judicially investigate, consider and assist in establishing a national lottery or sweepstake under direct control of the attorney-general's department."

Three other major resolutions were referred to the executive committee for study.

ASK PROVINCIAL CONTROLS

One recommends control over construction of assembly halls, rinks and urges provincial approval of such buildings and periodic inspections.

This resolution was prompted by colleges of Listowel Memorial Arena last winter in which several youngsters were killed.

Another resolution calls for provincial investigation of teachers' salaries and would request the education minister to devise a new basis for meeting education costs.

The third, already approved in principle, asks for the establishment of retarded children be placed on the same basis as that of normal children.

Approval was given a resolution calling for municipal polls for voters "confined to hospitals, registered nursing homes and infirmaries."

Mayor Leo Del Villano of Timmins said the proposal would apply, perhaps on the same basis to advanced polls.

Mayor Albert Deere, a member of the University of Toronto school of social work, told delegates that the nation's poor are being discriminated against and deserve more attention from the public housing with "trouble-free families who have the nerve it. The result was the needy were deprived.

Doubts Province Has Power To Run Hospital Sweepstakes

SUDBURY (CP) — Looking hard for new sources of revenue, the Ontario Municipal Association came out in favor of legalized lotteries Tuesday, over-ruling its own resolutions committee in the process.

The question almost—split the convention down the middle but a majority voted to ask the provincial government to investigate the possibility of holding hospital sweepstakes.

James McCuggin, clerk-solicitor for Sault Ste. Sound, said, however, he doubted if the province could introduce sweepstakes since gambling is controlled by the federal government under the Criminal Code.

Councillor J. C. McNulty of Grantham Township said municipalities had constantly stressed the need for more sources of revenue to relieve the proper revenue of some of his tax burden.

The proceeds of the hospital sweepstakes would go towards construction of new hospitals and hospital facilities, as in Ireland.

Mr. McNulty said that a present 4 weepstakes tickets are "being sold openly" in Ontario without any benefit to municipalities.

Legislation could be framed to prohibit minors from buying the tickets, which could be sold to service clubs for resale under the supervision of the attorney-general's department, he said.

Mayor Leo Del Villano of Timmins said: "We go to horse races and make bets. Why not even gambled here at this convention?"

He was apparently referring to Monte Carlo Night Monday when delegates were guests of Falconbridge Township at the Canadian Legion hall.

The time has come to "bring it out into the open," said Mayor Del Villano.

Chairmen had no kind words today for the OMA's resolution asking for legalized sweepstakes to provide revenue for hospitals.

"Sweepstakes are a great big racket," said Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the United Church's board of evangelism and social service. "The hospitals in races like the Irish Sweepstakes get about 15 per cent of the returns while persons on the

Menon's Work Praised; Border Situation Eases

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru told Parliament today that India's defence command is continuing unchanged despite a rift between Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon and Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, the army commander.

Nehru said Thimayya resigned Monday in a dispute over the promotion of an army officer but had withdrawn his resignation at the prime minister's request.

The prime minister gave full backing to Krishna Menon, long one of his closest advisers on foreign policy. He said the defence minister's position was sound and justified and praised him for his "great energy and enthusiasm."

"Civil authority must remain supreme," Nehru declared.

NO RESIGNATION

This appeared to put at rest reports that Krishna Menon would be removed from the cabinet or shifted to another post. Nehru gave no indication that the defence minister had offered to resign, as high sources in the Congress party had reported.

Nehru called Thimayya a good soldier and a refreshing character in the Institute of Microbiology and Hygiene on suburban Laval des Rapides three days ago and died in a stolen car with 10,000 vials of Salk vaccine destined for distribution in Quebec province.

Police said the man was an employee of a provincial health and hygiene centre in a community across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal. He was about 30 years old.

SET UP FREE CLINICS

Police said the man set up a series of free anti-polio clinics in towns and municipalities across the province. They said he made frequent visits to the microbiology institute to take delivery of supplies for the clinics.

Detectives said they were questioning the man about the possibility that he had failed to deliver to the free clinics all the vaccine he got from the institute.

Meanwhile, the 2,000 shots of Salk vaccine seized from the Pont Viau druggist were being held in the special vault at provincial police headquarters.

The vaccine was seized as detectives questioned the suburban druggist who said he bought it from a wholesaler. He did not know, but whose credentials were in order.

The vaccine in police hands has the same serial numbers, 119-1 and 119-3, as the 50,000 shipment stolen in a four-man raid on the Connaught Laboratories laboratory early Monday, but this does not mean that it is part of the stolen shipment.

It could be part of the same manufactured batch that went out on the general market, police said.

Expects Break In Montreal Vaccine Theft

MONTREAL (CP)—Provincial police today questioned a man in connection with the theft of 75,000 doses of Salk anti-polio vaccine from a suburban University of Montreal research laboratory.

Lepold Trottier, assistant director of the Quebec police, said a break in the $50,000 polio robbery may come later today.

Asked if a black market in the Salk vaccine exists in this politic-stricken province, Mr. Trottier said: "I think so." He declined to elaborate.

He said the man being held was picked up late Tuesday near suburban Pont Viau drug store where provincial police had seized 2,000 shots of the cherry-coloured vaccine.

DRUGGIST NOT DETAINED

The drug store owner and three others were also questioned by police Tuesday but were not detained.

Provincial police sought clues to four armed and masked men who ran a re-run of a holdup-type in the Institute of Microbiology and Hygiene on suburban Laval des Rapides three days ago and fled in a stolen car with 10,000 vials of Salk vaccine destined for distribution in Quebec province.

Police said the man was an employee of a provincial health and hygiene centre in a community across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal. He was about 30 years old.

Ike's Stag Dinner for Wartime Buddies Enjoyable, Cordial One

LONDON (AP) — President Eisenhower spent a happy reunion in a reminiscing atmosphere Tuesday night with British comrades of the Second World War. By coincidence, the stag dinner was held on the 20th anniversary of the German invasion of Poland.

Eisenhower cordially greeted Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, whose frequently critical comments Eisenhower resented so much that he snubbed a card to from Montgomery last Christmas.

When the evening was over, Montgomery left beaming and waving enthusiastically to a cheering crowd outside Winfield House, the residence of U.S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney, where the dinner was held.

At dinner Montgomery sat within talking range of Eisenhower, just five feet across the table, but they never talked and the cordial was not disclosed.

But Eisenhower was in high spirits had to be invited to raise past antagonisms.

The president, an honored seat at his left Field Marshal Viscount Alanbrooke, who also has had a few criticisms of Eisenhower's wartime leadership. Alanbrooke was British chief of commander of Allied ground forces in North Africa and later in Italy during the early days of Eisenhower's fight.

PARISIANS GIVE

its to Bonn and London agreed the Paris welcome appeared to be somewhat less demonstrative than in the two other capitals, it was certainly a boisterous and happy one.

The 30-minute airport cavalcade had ended at the Quai D'Orsay, the French foreign office where Eisenhower is spending tonight. After a brief rest there, he emerged to drive across to the Elysee Palace and his initial session with De Gaulle.

PRIVATE CONFERENCE

They shook hands immediately and went inside to open their discussions in de Gaulle's magnificent floor office, once the drawing room of the Empress Eugenie. Another 85,000 men will only Eisenhower's interpreter and a secretary-stenographer with them.

Thousands cheered and clapped as Le Bourget airport. Both men doffed their hats and waved flags along the eight-mile drive into the city. Flags, big, bright, fluttered everywhere with the Stars and Stripes and plastered with I Like Ike posters.

HAILED BY DE GAULLE

De Gaulle met Eisenhower at the plane and in a few words of welcome hailed him as "the eversglorious leader of the armories of liberation."

"France and America must unite," declared de Gaulle. He said: "We must work together for the good of our people."

"Since there are difficult times, it is natural that Americans should meet. We are meeting in all friendship for the sake of our common effort for the cause of ourselves and for the whole world."

SYMBOL OF COURAGE

Eisenhower responded that de Gaulle was "the symbol of French courage . . . when freedom itself was in danger."

"We must find ways to make our common effort more effective," the President declared, de Gaulle said.

The airport crowd cheered as de Gaulle and Eisenhower set out in a long, black car flying the flags of France and the United States, tal standards. Policemen standing every 10 yards flanked the route into the city, where crowds jammed the sidewalks to greet the American visitor.

IKE WAVED TO CROWDS

De Gaulle sat quietly while Eisenhower received the plaudits, waving occasionally to the people in the open car and waving his arms from time to time.

In downtown Paris, Eisenhower was greeted by a huge sign on a building reading "We Like Ike. Paris newspapers also broke their banner type, but I-Ike more outside the rest. "Welcome to you, Ike" said its banner — in English.

Plain-clothes men moved unobtrusively through the crowds. Some Algerians along the route were taken aside and frisked for arms but no arrests were reported.

As the motorcade drove into the gravelled courtyard of the foreign ministry, Eisenhower's handshakes until Thursday, a band struck up Hail to the Chief. The two presidents walked quickly up the stairway, Eisenhower talking animatedly with de Gaulle, despite each's relative ignorance of the other's language.

The 180-gun salute reserved for chiefs of state began booming over the city from cannons near the foreign ministry.

BIG BRITISH SENDOFF

Eisenhower had flown to London airport by helicopter from the residence of U.S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney. A 15-minute hop. The weather was fine, as it had been through almost all of his visit to Britain.

He was seen off by Prime Minister Macmillan and a cheering crowd of more than 1,000.

"I think you will have realized the pleasure your visit has given to every section of the country," Macmillan said in a brief farewell exchange.

Then he recalled the wildly enthusiastic welcome half a million Londoners gave Eisenhower on his arrival, saying, "I shall never forget, and I think you will not, your drive from the airport Thursday night."

NOSTALGIC FAREWELL

"For me," Eisenhower replied, "there will always be a bit of sadness in my heart when I leave this country. But I go in peace and right, I-103, ultra-thin waterproof, 10kt. yellow gold filled, steel back, with manual wind $115.00 have formed some of my most valued friendships here."

Entomology Lab Imports Irish Caterpillars

The Irish are invading Canada. At least their caterpillars are, according to reports from the Entomology Laboratory on Dundas Street here.

A load of the critters (90 to be exact) has arrived at Idlewild Airport in New York aboard an Irish Air Lines plane, enroute to Belleville for use in biological control tests.

There in Belleville the caterpillars, which eventually turn into Cinnibar moths, will be used in laboratory tests to see if these "Fighting Irishmen" can outscore Tansy Ragwort, a pasture weed which is prading rapidly in Western Ontario and in Nova Scotia.

"Importing insects is nothing out of the way for us," explained Dr. B. P. Beirne, in charge of the Entomology Laboratory here. "During the past 30 years we have imported over a billion of them."

He went on to say that the Cinnibar Moth is being imported from various countries to see which is the most adaptable to Canadian conditions and to determine at the same time if they will attack Tansy Ragwort. For months, will undergo thorough laboratory tests before they are let into actual field use.

Dr. Beirne noted that the Cinnibar Moth had been tried very successfully in California.

U.S. Officials Do Not Like Canada's Plan

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada's new deficiency payment plan for eggs has caught the eye of the United States agriculture department and officials say: "Frankly, we don't like it."

They fear the plan in effect will mean subsidized exports of Canadian eggs, with the U.S. as one market target. They say that would be unfair to U.S. producers, in addition to slapping special duties on egg imports from Canada.

Such a situation may be met with Canadian officials at Ottawa Sept. 8 when they meet for clarification of the Canadian plan.

The U.S. government supports many of its own farm products but one agriculture department official explained: "We don't like subsidized food into countries that don't want it. We don't mind free and open competition of eggs in the U.S., but subsidized production is a different matter."

STARTS OCT. 1

The Canadian agriculture department announced last week that the deficiency payment plan will start Oct. 1.

Instead of the government buying surplus eggs at a fixed support price as it does now, farmers will do all their own marketing, getting what price they can. If the national average price received shows increases due to free trade between the two countries is confined mainly to border points.

The deficiency payment will be limited to 4,000 dozen eggs for any one producer during a 12-month period. The Canadian administration apparently hopes this limitation may restrain production, but U.S. officials argue their experience indicates the plan may lead to widespread growth in the number of small producers and increased production.

Egg trade between the two Generally Canadian prices have tended to be a bit higher than those in the U.S.

Youth Admits Leading Attack On Two Boys

NEW YORK (AP) — Police picked up their prey today and he told them he was the cape-clad Dracula who led an attack in which two 16-year-old boys were stabbed to death Sunday.

Dracula earned his nickname because he wore a nurse's dark cape which made him resemble the vampire of horror stories and movies.

Police said the youth who identified himself as Sal Agron of Brooklyn, said he did not admit the fatal stabbings but said he "cut somebody" during the attack.

Lakeland Gas Closes Office

TRENTON — Lakeland Natural Gas Company moved its office out of Trenton yesterday, it was reported by reliable sources.

The Trenton business will be handled through the company's regional office in Belleville, its local office had been situated in the office of Whitley's Insurance Agency on Dundas Street West in Trenton.

There will still be a service man living in town to answer any calls which may come in but it is understood people having trouble with their gas appliances will be required to phone the Belleville office which will get in touch with the local man and relay the message to him.

The Trenton office had been set up shortly after the gas line was installed in town and has been operating from the office of Mr. Whitley since that time.

Septuagenarian Defends Youth

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyers learned in civil liberties will take a crack at a Canadian bill of rights today as the Canadian Bar Association continues its week-long convention.

This is among several discussion topics on today's agenda, which also includes continued argument on the Juvenile Delinquents Act and a panel on bingo, gambling and lotteries in separate CBA section meetings.

During discussions about bringing the Juvenile Delinquents Act up to date, erring youth found support from George A. Chidren of Nepawa, Man., a 70-year-old lawyer.

It was suggested the act be changed so the term "juvenile delinquent" be used only for those charged under the Criminal Code and not in the two lesser conditions, comparatively trivial offences.

Mr. Children said it is absurd to call a boy who committed a traffic offence a juvenile delinquent.

Mrs. L. Teed of Lancaster, Ont., said the term "juvenile delinquent" today it is a dirty word.

Child Breaks Both Wrists in Fall From Tree

DESERONTO — A fall from a tree on Wednesday resulted in two broken wrists for Sharon Kimmett, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Kimmett. Apparently the girl was playing in a tree in her own yard, when she fell and suffered a compound fracture of each wrist. Not too much can be learned as Sharon's recollection of the accident is quite hazy. However she must have taken the force of the fall on her hands to save herself as her chin was badly bruised and her mouth suffered some damage also. Had it not been for that she might have hurt herself severely. Her father took her to the Belleville Hospital, where she remained for a few days while the bones were properly set. She is now at home and is able to walk about and carrying one in a sling.

SPOTTED DEER

On Saturday night Bob Bell and his son Jimmie were returning from Belleville when they saw a doe and a fawn near the highway in front of their car. They soon located them and saw the two animals quite clearly at Port's Hill, just west of Marysville. This is quite unusual in this part of the country as it is seldom that deer travel this far south, particularly near a busy highway like No. 2.

HELPFUL SPIDER

Seven Swimmers Pass Tests, Get Society Awards

Saturday was examination day at the Thomas Municipal Swimming pool as nine local swimmers tried out for Royal Life Saving Society awards. Seven were successful.

The examiner was Mr. H. C. Hallett, of Trenton.

Winner of the highest life saving award was Louise Fisher, 18, who will receive the Royal Life Saving Society's Merit Award. This is the highest award which can be tried for at the local pool before one examiner. For the highest award of this kind the aspirant must take his or her test before two examiners and pass a written examination. Two others competing for this award received lesser awards.

Those trying for the bronze cross, the second highest award, were all successful. They are David Fisher, Pat Matthews, Ann Sager and Judith Johnson.

Bronze medallion winners, those receiving the third highest award, are Diane Howe and Gary MacMurray. They were the only two trying for this award. Miss Linda Devereux is the instructor for this class of life saving instruction.

The successful aspirants expect to receive their cards and crests which are given in addition to the award itself, by October or November. The awards have been received until next spring as they must be shipped from England.

Change Sought In Mining Act

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The Ontario public lands investigation committee held its first open meeting here Tuesday. Its complaints were submitted in writing and the session lasted just 20 minutes.

T. A. McMurray, a prospector, voiced a complaint from the floor. He asked that the Mining Act be amended so that a developer, when he had completed assessment work on a claim, could at once obtain title to the mineral rights.

Mr. McMurray's proposal, the developer would be left to make his own agreement with the owner or lessee of any private property affected by the development. If no agreement could be reached, the mining courts could arbitrate.

The committee was appointed by provincial order - in - council Feb. 26 to look into laws bearing on the use and disposal of public or crown lands; to hear complaints about these laws or their interpretation and to submit recommendations to the legislature.

SUMMER'S END

The thermometer and the calendar have been fighting a brisk duel, these past several days, so that it is difficult to realize that this is the last week of a season, that by next week this time schools will have been re-opened, summer cottages will have been closed and the family will be settling down for the long grind between Labor Day and Christmas, with only a brief Thanksgiving Day break to recall the carefree season now closing.

Most of us dislike seeing summer fading into the past. We may complain of the heat, the mosquitoes and the dandelions, we may sing the praises of cooling breezes, crisp evenings with the frost upon the pumpkin and the freedom from toil when lawns need mowing only once a fortnight — but we are still in love with summer.

Once fall gets here, though, we shall not be long in recognizing its compensations. They are not only those provided by Nature, but also stem from the resumption of our normal round of activities with our friends and acquaintances, with many of whom we may have been out of touch as different interests, or the holiday season, sent us along different paths in the weeks just behind us.

Despite the heat which provoked so many bitter complaints last week, it has been a good summer, providing a little of everything for everybody, not so continuously hot as to melt the tempers of those who dislike high temperatures, nor so cool as to denude the beaches; not so dry as to cause despair amongst the gardeners, nor so wet as to fray the temper of the sports enthusiast.

If fall treats us as well, any winter after it, we shall have no complaints until spring is here — and then, alas, we know that we shall all find it too long in coming, too cool, and, we, too wet, until suddenly, some June day, we shall be gasping in the heat again, with all the summer lying before us.

AN EXTRAORDINARY THEFT

If it had been recounted in a work of fiction, its improbability would have drawn the wrath of the critics. But it happened in real life, not in some far-away land on the rim of civilization but in Montreal, Canada's largest city — the theft of Salk vaccine valued at $50,000.

What, in the name of all that is wonderful, did the three armed bandits who robbed the University of Montreal laboratory Monday plan to do with the 75,000 doses of Salk vaccine they stole? That is enough vaccine to provide 25,000 people with immunity from polio. Could they be agents for some little kingdom or sheikdom, patriots bent on providing their country's children with protection against a dread disease. Preposterous! And yet it would appear equally preposterous to presume that they expected to be able to retail these 75,000 doses to Canadians seeking protection from polio. The only alternative theory that occurs, and it is an unpleasant one, is that the men were cranks who regard immunization procedures as, against the law of nature or the law of their own peculiar god, and that they aim to destroy, rather than to bootleg, the life-protecting vaccine.

WAR CUT MUNICIPAL DEBT

Wars are not only costly but also wasteful.

There is one realm, though, in which the Second Great War produced an apparent, although probably deceiving, picture of financial stability.

The 1958 annual report of municipal statistics, just issued by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs, contains examples.

One of these shows that gross municipal debenture debt outstanding amounted to $494,434,000 in 1933, fell to a low of $219,948,000 in 1947, just after the close of the war, and had risen to $1,189,520,661 in 1957.

Of course the low debenture debt in 1947 told only half the story. Most municipalities had a long list of needs which they had been unable to satisfy during the war years. It was the provision of these needed services which sent the debenture debt soaring. But having regard to the increase in prosperity, the fall in the purchasing power of the dollar and the increase in population, municipal debenture debt today does not appear to be too far out of line with the 1933 figure.

I KNEW HIM WHEN

By EDGAR A. GUEST

When'er a man has made a strike—
Purchase the author of a play—
Has linked success unto his name
And seems upon the top to stay
When he is being talked about,
Is much discussed by fellowsmen,
There's always someone who will brag
And say: "I knew him when."

When he has by his labors won
The glory and the words of praise
That earth bestows on men who do
Great deeds, and honor their own town
Somebody in his native town
Will gravely shake his head and frown
Remark unto an eager throng:
"Oh, say! I knew him when—"

But one fad these "I knew him when—"
Raisers never talk about,
And that is that they all agree
He'd be a failure, without doubt.
They never say they "knew him when"
They did their best to keep him down:
And that is with encouragement
He had to leave his native town.

Grim Outlook When Cities Begin to Decay

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Our little village (Pop. 344) was shocked last week when a teenage girl was killed by a car as she was walking along the side of the road. It was the first auto fatality of the year in the area, and the populance is still shaken by it.

When I return to Chicago, I will be content back to a country life while one person a day is killed in auto accidents. As a result, we think little of it, unless it happens to be a close friend or relative.

As population pressures increase everywhere, the mere fact of size makes community living dangerous in every aspect. I believe there are some real values and virtues to living in the city; that is why I continue to live in one despite its noise and lagging far behind the problems.

The chief problem is that while the population increases in an arithmetical progression, the problems increase in a geometrical progression. That is to say, 40,000 persons are only 10 times as large as 4,000 persons — but the problems become a hundred-fold more intense.

This is true of all social relationships. A dinner party for eight is a relatively simple affair; but, as every hostess knows, a party for 18 is not merely twice as complicated — it is ten times as hard, in terms of preparing and serving, as it is entertaining. The number only doubles, but the difficulties may quadruple.

Now, as late as 1940, the United States was pretty balanced between an urban and a rural population — about 50 per cent in each area. Today more than two-thirds of the population lives in urban areas; rural communities are losing their people by the millions, as young people look for wider opportunities in the cities.

We have scarcely begun to cope with this rapid shift in population. Our cities today are still 20 years behind in housing, traffic control, police administration, and the inevitable public welfare problems that arise between the needs of unskilled and unschooled workers descend upon a metropolis.

Moreover, the mere fact of size tends to create an emotional hardening of the arteries. Nobody gets excited by fatalities; nobody expects the administration of justice to be anything but cumbersome, partial, capricious, and often venal.

Finally, civilization, since Babylonian times, the cities have marked the high point of culture. When they began to decay, it was not long before the whole civilization crumbled. In our mad flight to the suburbs, in our callous neglect of the city's Americans now pulling down the pillars that support the entire economic and industrial structure of the nation.

ONTARIO (PROVINCE OF)

One of the original members of Confederation in 1867, Ontario has been for the two richest provinces, sharing that honour with Quebec. It takes its name from Lake Ontario, on which it borders. The title of both lake and province was conferred by the Iroquois Indians, the name meaning "Beautiful High In the Water," presumably in allusion to the rugged face of the Niagara Escarpment.

8,000 Room World's Seas

New York Times

There are 8,000 "men without a country" roaming the seas in search of a non-fictional character, Philip Nolan, their lot is safe from land. A court imposed Nolan's permanent exile to sea. These refugees voluntarily have their freedom curtailed on ships. Now, lacking the proper documents, they are unable to come ashore.

What they seek is a country they can call their own. Some have fled in an apparent conclusion of 1937 at the Hague by Victoria Hotel. This pact authorities conditions for the issuance of travel documents and provides for refugees getting ashore to talk with representatives of countries that might be willing to grant them asylum.

While compelled to remain at sea such men are not without help who would exploit them. They often must accept low pay and remain virtually prisoners of their ship. In this World Refugee Year, it is proper that fitting steps be taken to find for these men a welcome land.

How to Be A Gentleman

Fort Morgan, Colo., Times

Speaking before the youth at a father's day dinner the head of one of the big schools of the country had this to say:

"To be a cultured gentleman, one does not need to wear clothes cut in the latest fashion, or to be able to judge the vintage of a choice wine. He does not need to command a ninety or hundred dollar tip for his manner at a social gathering.

Basically he needs to have a deep spirit of altruism, an urge to aid his fellowmen, and especially thus to aid by his depth and breadth of thought and his skill in imparting his ideas to those about him. He may not call himself a cultured gentleman, or allow others to do so; he may dislike the term — but basically he is a leader, and a leader whose eminence is not based on the keenness, or demagogury, or financial power, or clannishness in any form, but which rather is based upon presenting to his fellows ideas of progression which they will recognize, and be willing to follow because of their inherent worth.

He needs to be a forceful individual to be heard amid the disordered clamor of our all. He needs to be one who will stand firm on his convictions, the perseverance to attain a broad and deep grasp of things and some skill in the complicated ramifications, and to ponder thereon as the true basis for wisdom.

This is an ideal which can be followed by every youth here before our gifted youth with the firm conviction that he is worthy of our steel, and that if they fully grasp it, they will then be leaders throughout our history we have had many citizens of this type, others we would not now as a nation be what we are.

They are found us today in positions of eminence, and in humble stations where their talents are lent and admirable ways to guide us around the rocks in the path and lead us to the heights.

Is Much Ado Over Hairpin

Brantford Expositor

A few years ago, in London, England, workmen digging up a street came upon the remains of an ancient Roman garrison, dedicated to the un-Roman sun god, Mithras. Among the artifacts extracted people from all over the place — or places — in Europe, Foreign Office. The head of Mithras was well worth looking at, and there were a number of more treasure trove in the hole.

A few weeks ago the curator of the Guildhall Museum let it be known that a "unique" archaeological find had been made under an arch of London's Cannon Street Station. Workmen, interested public, including a bunch of reporters and photographers, gathered round the hole.

And, what did they find?

No mask of Mithras, but a mere hairpin.

It was picked up out of the dirt about 20 feet below the surface in pretty piece, about five inches long, the color of brass with a pair of spiral pendants on each side of the head.

Not important? The experts say it is. They will doubtless look for more relics. Where there is a hairpin there must have been hair, and where hair perhaps the skull that once held it, and where the skull no doubt the skeleton, and all sorts of things to tell us about the older inhabitants of Old London once thought.

Due to the trivial pin, we may get the more important point.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

CARBON TETRACHLORIDE FUMES ARE DANGEROUS

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have been using carbon tetrachloride for cleaning, and would like to know what signs to watch for, so I will not breathe too much of it. — L.T."

Carbon tetrachloride has been useful chemical in its day, but it has also been a very dangerous one, perhaps more dangerous than we want to be used generally in homes and industry.

It still causes serious illness and even death among people who have breathed too much of the fumes.

It's a pungent liquid with an odor that can't be confused with anything else I know of. The liquid (like other cleaning fluids) evaporates rapidly. Unlike a good many others, it is not inflammable, which account for its popularity. In fact, it has been used in fire extinguishers.

Yet breathing the fumes is extremely dangerous. Some people are so extremely sensitive that even careful use of the chemical can cause serious damage to the liver and kidneys.

More often the user complains of mild headache, fatigue, poor appetite, indigestion, perhaps nausea.

The trouble is that some people haven't understood "adequate".

Where it is used industrially, special ventilation and devices are used to keep fumes away from workers. To such workers, "adequate" is sufficient, the operation should be checked by an industrial hygiene expert. Many industries, however, have quit using it altogether, since safer and safer substitutes are available.

For home use, the only safety rules I suggest are these: If you can smell the vapor, it is dangerous. That boils down to this: Don't use it in the home, even in a well-ventilated room, if you are dangerous without good cross ventilation — open windows and fan. "

"Dear Dr. Molner: Over the years I've been using the mailing list of several firms that claim they have products to make the breast grow. This had no problem. I can't wear a bathing suit without looking silly, and I'd sure like to buy dresses two sizes too large.

"So please tell all those flat-chested girls that padded bras are really nice, and they can take them off when they want to. — L.H."

I'll tell them — or let your letter tell them. But I don't suppose it will do any good.

Note to A.M.G.: Nothing I have learned in over a half century makes me think or even suspect that milk is "bad" for older people. That is true for pork — unless some very special case is involved, in any event, it won't bother your arthritis.

Muscovites Took Books

St. Catharines Standard

The fact that the people of Russia are hungry for good books has been shown by the closing of the library on wheels at the Canadian exhibit at Moscow.

The bookmobile proved one of the most popular lures for the Russians, and the books proved irresistible to the crowds. In fact, they kept disappearing until the stock was exhausted.

And this been an advertising stunt the stock would have been quickly replaced. Even so, the exhibit it would have proven good advertising had the United States had sufficient publications. Pamphlets and magazines shipped to Moscow to permit every Russian who visited the exhibit to walk off with an American book.

The books would have provided something to talk about, something— if printed in Russian—to read. And perhaps in reading the Russian people would have caught a new glimpse of America.

Peach Known 4,000 Years

Owen Sound Sun-Times

The peach, now again making its appearance in fruit and grocery stores, has been known for 4,000 years, according to Silver Cross first cultivated in China for firewood only. They spread from China to Persia to Greece to southern Europe, Spaniards brought peaches to Mexico and in the 16th century, peaches were brought to Ontario.

The first commercial peach orchard in Ontario was owned by James Durham on the Niagara Road, near Queenston in 1825.

Fifty years ago in Canada total peach production was approximately 2,000,000 pounds. For 1958 its estimated total production for Ontario only was 100,000,000 pounds.

Ontario's peach crop is produced by growers and 2,000 varieties of peaches are produced in Ontario with new varieties introduced each year.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MEDICINAL SOLITUDE

In my lifetime I have looked upon my body as a wonderful machine and I have tried to treat it kindly. I like doctors but I get at their medicines. It a little under par I like to get to the forest and atmosphere of nature. I love to look out into an inspiring forest on a sunny day when I can hear the whispers and talk my fool about me. All day long. I find quiet and superb solitude.

Nature is my doctor. She sends me back her pills marked gold. Usually, she has to make friends with my doctors largely because I am a hypochondriac and nervous man. But nature is my best doctor, because she sends me to the forest, and to quiet places. She praises solitude as a great medicine. I have every evidence that she is right.

If Thoreau were living it would be an event just to have talked with him a brief spell. Solitude has been the mother of thousands. Now I love every hill and hollow and meets its neighbor, and how fascinating to silently whisper to the trees in the forest where Solitude reigns. The clean air, the fragrant pines and hemlocks, the springy paths of brilliant green mosses, and crushed leaves, I tread I covered the familiar wintergreen leaves scattered over acres of ground. Nature's good is always within call. Invisible, but always ready. I always associate solitude with the floating clouds, both of them medicines to the soul.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DETERMINATION

One of the interesting minor events of the last century was the single-handed voyage around the world of Captain Alfred Johnson, a 36-foot sloop, the "Spray." Starting in 1895, Captain Johnson sailed 46,000 miles in three years and two months before returning to Gloucester.

It is hardly necessary to recount the qualities which Captain Slocum possessed to make such a voyage: nautical skill and experience, courage, patience, endurance, and, no doubt, there were many times when rough weather, sickness, accidents, and storms made him regret he had ever vested a less determined man from carrying out his project.

Yet the greatest threat to the completion of these things, but quite the opposite. So pleasant was his single-handed voyage, he says, "it was not without regret that I looked forward to the day of sailing from a country of so many pleasant associations. I believe I was never in my element in my own way when I could have given it up, it is a life of freedom, but not of anchor for a better post being open, I weighed anchor."

It is just as easy to be seduced from one's job by pleasure as to be driven away from it by hardships — perhaps even easier. Captain Johnson's single-purposed determination.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Just because a man is a professional musician does not mean that he knows anything about music. Many musicians who have been laboriously taught to blow a horn or scrape a fiddle as a means of livelihood like being taught plastering or running a locomotive, and possibly his parents were the kind of people who try to make children's lives in addition to their own and forced the poor kid to study music. Nor is he was the docile type of child who found it easier to learn his fathers' instructions than frankly to say he hated music.

Anyway, he rises high and gets his degrees at conservatories, becomes a fine artist in his line of music. But does that mean anything about music other than the mechanics of it, the history and the credits of other people's conceptions of music?

Listening to radio and attending the occasional concert, I cannot get rid of the suspicion that among the doctors of music who are chosen, because of their professional standing, to be the head of programming, there are some who detest music.

Or is it possible that nothing about music and things merely as sweet sound? Do not know that music is like that? Is not a sort of elementary mathematics, something lofty, intellectual, mysterious?

Okay, you take the music, and I'll take the sweet sound.

THE TEMPERATURE

OF THE SURFACE OF ALL THE WORLD MELTS A SAUCER OF ICE EVERY MINUTE, A SAUCER OF ICE EVERY ONE-MINUTE.

NEW FEATURE — The Northern Electric Research and Development laboratories on West Bridge Street now have the first industrial anechoic chamber in Canada. Above two of the men responsible for its design and construction, Tony Jamroz and Robert Tanner, examine the setting of an experimental stereo microphone prior to testing in the new chamber.

NEW PRODUCT — Robert Tanner (left), Belleville Branch Manager of Northern Electric's research and development laboratories, and Brewer Hunt, general manager of that firm's research and development division, examine the new stereophonic microphone developed in the Belleville laboratory. This particular microphone is the first of its kind for commercial use in the world and the first of its type in North America.

Stereo Mike, Anechoic Room Two Firsts for N.E. Team

Yesterday the Northern Electric Research and Development people unveiled two firsts for the Canadian electronics industry, one of which is an important first in microphone development in North America, if not the world. The other is the completion of the first industrial anechoic chamber in Canada.

The latter, which might be considered first since it led into the development of the new stereophonic microphone, was designed by a local research team consisting of Tony Jamroz, Robert Tanner, and Walter Benger of the Northern Electric staff. The chamber was required to provide an enclosure which was, for all practical purposes, free of extraneous sounds and would not allow sound reflections of a sound source being used for testing purposes, or keep such reflections at a low enough level that they would not complicate the testing or measuring of a piece of apparatus.

To acquire this objective a complete room-within-a-room was constructed and floated on six-teen rubber pads. The interior of the room consists of fibreglass wedges, specially built for the purpose by Fibreglass of Canada at Sarnia. These wedges are mounted with the thin part of the wedge facing towards the centre of the room. These, combined with air spaces behind them, absorb sound wave reflections. They are also mounted on the ceiling and floor as well as the walls. The floor also has an eight-inch sand base, which helps to absorb the effect of any outside sound energy. The outside dimensions of the room are: height — 14' 2", width — 24 feet, length — 26' 6". The inside dimensions are: height — 6' 6", width — 14' 2", length — 16' 8". There is a suspended floor of expanded metal gratings, which may be removed for critical testing. The total structure weighs close to 50 tons.

Besides measuring the performance capabilities of electroacoustic equipment, this chamber may also be used to measure the human response to any sound stimulus.

Thus the effects of many new theories in sound reproduction or systems, such as the stereophonic sound system, can be measured under controlled conditions, which is the only way in which the performance of a piece of equipment may be accurately predicted for another set of conditions.

HAD TO HAVE ROOM

The construction of the anechoic chamber allowed the local research division to develop the first practical stereophonic microphone unit in the world today. (Although there is a German developed microphone of similar purpose the design of this is not practical for commercial use.) Although work had started on this microphone previous to the completion of the testing chamber it was not until the acoustics provided by this room were available that the final "bugs" could be ironed out of the design of the new microphone.

This microphone is unique in that it allows the two channels of sound requisite to a stereo system to be recorded from one position using one unit rather than two microphones as is the current procedure. This new microphone will allow a natural reproduction of the original sound rather than the somewhat exaggerated dual-source sound common to current stereo reproduction systems.

The effect of the new microphone, as demonstrated by the Northern Electric people, is to provide the listener with an unbroken wall of sound. This gives one an idea as to the location of the various components of the sound being reproduced with equal clarity and amplitude for those sounds originating, let us say, in the centre of the orchestra with those emanating from either side. This cures one of the major weaknesses of current stereo reproduction utilizing two microphones in which the sounds at the centre of the source are usually lacking in distinction or volume. In short, an instrument is playing second fiddle to any other through technical inadequacies of reproduction.

It is expected that this new microphone will be on the market shortly for use by recording and broadcasting organizations.

The development of both of these items, unique to the Canadian electronic industry and, in one case, new to the world, is certainly a very creditable show by the employees concerned and is a local contribution to progress of which this city may well be proud.

GERMAN CRUISER

staying for nearly two months, it was hot and unusually quiet on the night of Aug. 31. The three-piece German orchestra in the cafe signed off with a flourish earlier than usual and departed, never to return.

Notices were posted announcing that the sale of alcoholic drinks was being discontinued. The disappearance of whipped cream was another telltale sign of emergency.

EARLY CALL IS HINT

Shortly before 10 p. m. that night, a German with a leathery face and demanding voice stepped up to the night operator in the hotel and said: "Herr porter, call me promptly at 4 a. m."

He couldn't be anything but a German army officer. And his early call could mean nothing but trouble.

The streets filled quickly as the gunfire in the harbor increased. Danzig Nazis raced through the streets arresting all the Poles they could find. Polish business houses were ransacked, Polish mailboxes torn down.

But down on the Westerplatte, a long narrow peninsula on which the Poles were permitted to keep a small garrison and a munitions dump, a thin little Polish major named Henryk Sucharski was doing what he had been sent there to do.

MEN VS. METAL

He had 201 men with 165 rifles, 38 revolvers, 16 heavy machine-guns, 22 light machine-guns, four 88-m.m. mortars, two 37-m.m. anti-tank guns and one three-inch field gun which really was a museum piece.

Facing him, only 100 yards away, was the Schleswig-Holstein with four 11-inch guns, 10 six-inch guns and other guns of smaller calibre. In addition, the Germans had almost unlimited ground and air forces to throw against him.

The Polish field gun was hit by a German shell after firing only 30 rounds. But Sucharski and his men repulsed the ground attack. They repulsed two more attacks at dusk.

When night fell over Danzig, Sucharski ordered some tracer bullets fired into the sky from the Westerplatte to taunt the Germans and show he was still there. Hitler had planned to take Danzig in one day. All the decorations for a celebration had been put up in the city.

For six days and nights, while their positions crumbled about them, fires burned and their communications were destroyed. Sucharski and his shrinking band held the fort.

On the seventh day, he put on his big sword, lined up 71 men who could still stand and surrendered. The other members of the garrison were dead or wounded.

22 Vehicles In Antique Car Parade

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty years ago today crowds at the Canadian National Exhibition were tasting the last few hours of peace before Canada's entry in the Second World War.

Today, Food Products and Merchants' Day, they will drink and nibble at some of the fruits of a 14-year recovery.

Only reminder of the dark days of 1939 at the exhibition this year is a Second World War Spitfire—the last in the RCAF, The fighter, part of the armed services display, is from a museum at Camp Borden.

Sam Alpert, a mechanic from Madison, N.J., trundled off in his 1904 Cadillac with the trophy for the safest car in the parade. Mr. Alpert and his family were part of a 12-car contingent from the New Jersey branch of the Antique Automobile Club of America.

Joe Guest of Toronto, who operates a body shop for the CNE and owns several veteran cars himself, said the downpour of the parade was a 1914 Rolls Royce Silver Ghost, owned by Ernest Marshall of Toronto.

"But there was nothing to touch the Cadillac. It was in beautiful condition." Mr. Guest said. "Mr. Alpert and his son did all the work on it themselves."

Modern transportation will be seen at the Canadian International Airshow at the CNE lakefront Sept. 11-12. RCAF officials have announced a Russian TU-104 passenger jet transport will arrive here Sept. 7 for the show.

In London, the air ministry said two RAF Bomber Command aircraft—a Vickers Victor and a Valiant—will also take part in the show.

Hot weather still hung over the exhibition Tuesday and 179,500 people visited the grounds.

Dr. Percy Ziemann, general secretary-treasurer of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, said gambling "gives people a wrong sense of values. In most cases the winners of large sums of money after a few months are right back where they began."

Robert L. Crombi, honorary treasurer of the general synod of the Anglican Church in Canada, said "lotteries and the like will stop voluntary effort. People have to learn they have a responsibility to maintain hospitals."

Rev. A. J. Goeland, secretary of the Presbyterian Church's board of evangelism and social action, commented: "Gambling is a legal sweep where the proceeds go to a hospital is no better than betting on horses. There are no degrees of gambling."

WALKER — FOX

On Saturday, August 29, at 3:00 p.m. in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, a lovely wedding was solemnized by the Reverend J. Maurice McLeod, when Jane Marie Fox, student nurse of Peterborough Civic Hospital, daughter of Mr. John Fox, of Toronto, and the late Mrs. Fox, was united in marriage to Marvin Roy Walker, of Pamour, Ontario, son of Mrs. Roy Walker and the late Mr. Walker.

Multi-colored gladioli adorned the altar, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mrs. J. M. McLeod presided at the console of the organ and accompanied Mr. Kenneth Sider of Port Credit, in his rendition of "Ilaveas", before the ceremony, and "The Wedding Prayer", during the signing of the register.

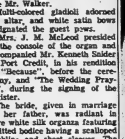
The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in pure white silk organza featuring a fitted bodice having a scalloped neckline and short sleeves. The billowing skirt floated into a chapel train. Delicate appliques of imported lace and seed pearls enhanced the bodice and skirt. She wore a heart-shaped headdress with finger-tip veil of silk tulle illusion, white gloves, and carried a cascade of red Sweetheart roses, white gladioli floribunda and stephanotis.

Miss Carol Ann Fox, of Toronto, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, gowned in sea-spray green imported silk organza over taffeta lastex, with matching headdress.

Miss Deanna McCoy, of Marmora, and Mrs. Raymore Walker, of Peterborough, were bridesmaids, wearing identical gowns of snow-lilac shade imported silk organza chiffon over taffeta and matching headdresses. All three gowns had bouffant skirts in multi-shades. The three attendants carried nosegays of yellow roses, mingled with yellow and white mums, and were also white gloves.

Mr. Robert Clark, of Kitchener, Ontario was groomsman, while Mr. Raymore Walker, of Peterborough, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. David Knox, of Belleville, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church hall, where the bride's table was appointed in white damask, graced by a three-tier wedding cake decorated with pink satin roses. Low bowls of blue larkspur and white and pink sweetheart bouquets completed the nuptial setting.



The bride's aunt, Mrs. Georg: Renwick, received, wearing a beige and white silk gown with white accessories. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. Fox, was also in the receiving line, attired in mauve with black accessories. Assisting was Mrs. Walker, the bridegroom's mother, who wore midnight blue romain sheath in sheer crepe, with white accessories. All wore corsages of white carnations.

For the wedding trip to eastern points, the bride travelled in a sheath dress of fortism in bubterscotch color, with matching accessories, and green orchid corsage. The happy couple will reside in Pamour, Ontario.

AUSSIE MARRIAGES

More than twice as many Australian, British and New Zealand-born women married European immigrants in Australia in 1957 as in 1950.

FUTERS — REDNER

Tall white standards and baskets of multi-colored gladioli adorned the chancel rail, and white satin the guest pews in Calvary Temple, Belleville, on Saturday, August 22nd, at 2.00 p.m. for a lovely late summer wedding when Beverley June Redner, of Carrying Place R.R. 1, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bernard Redner, became the bride of Frederick Ernest Futers, of Marysville, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Futers. The Reverend Laurie Price, assisted by the Reverend Hope Smith, officiated.

Mr. Mervin Saunders, church organist, provided the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. James MacKay, who sang before the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer," and while the bridal couple were kneeling, "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register, "O Promise Me."

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a charming bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over satin in floor-length, fashioned with molded bodice having a scalloped nylon yoke with jewel neckline, accented by daisy flowers of seed pearls and sequins. The long, tapering sleeves ended in illy-points over the hands. She wore a crown style headdress encrusted with sequins and seed pearls, with hand scalloped finger-tip veil of nylon net, and carried a white Bible crested with red roses and satin rose streamers.

Miss Jean Futers, of Marysville, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, was attired in blue flowered nylon over taffeta with matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations encircled by double rows of white and pink mums.

The two bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Redner, of Carrying Place, R.R. 1, sister of the bride, and Miss P. Twigg, Trenton, Ont, were gowned alike in pink flowered nylon over pink taffeta with matching headdresses, and carrying nosegays of blue carnations encircled by two rows of blue and white 'mums.

The little flower girl, Miss Toni Langman, of Carrying Place, was demure in her white nylon frock in knee-length, with white floral hankies, and carrying a basket of pink Sweetheart roses mingled with pink and white mums.

Mr. Jack Futers, of Belleville, attended his brother as groomsman, while Messrs. Gerald Warner and Wayne Parks, both of Belleville, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the bride's home, prettily decorated with pink and white streamers above the bride's table, which was centred by a three-tier, all-white wedding cake nestled about the base with white tulle, and flanked by silver candle holders with tall white candles. The bridal bouquets added a delightful nuptial accent to the setting.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing pink lace in sheath style with matching jacket, and corsage of silver-sprayed white carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, gowned in beige lace with matching jacket, and corsage of silver-sprayed white carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, and the outlook on Paudash Lake, near Bancroft, the bride chose a beige suit with brown accessories and corsage of red Sweetheart roses. The young couple are residing at 283 George Street, Belleville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Grant Barks, Belleville.

BEDFORD — McCRACKEN

Grace United Church, Trenton, was the setting on Saturday, August 29, at 3.00 p.m. for a pretty summertime wedding when Marjorie Tomma McCracken, of Trenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Hillis of Trenton, became the bride of Leonard George Bedford, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bedford, of Belleville, R.R. No. 1. The Reverend G. A. Putterham officiated before a beautiful background of pastel-hued gladioli and chrysanthemums.

The bride was lovely in her white, full-length gown of net over satin with long, "V"-pointed sleeves and bodice of nylon net trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. She wore a circular crown headdress and shoulder-length veil of lace-edged nylon net, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

She was attended by Mrs. Lorne Thompson, wearing a street-length gown of white nylon over taffeta, daintily flocked with salmon pink and green flowers. She wore a white, feather headdress and carried a nosegay of pink and white tinted 'mums.

The two bridesmaids, Mrs. Earl Hewlon of Frankford and Miss Audrey Bedford sister of the bridegroom, were attired in blue nylon chiffon street-length dresses with white feather headdresses and carried blue and white tinted 'mums.

Mr. Robert Fraser of Redneersville, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Keith Dickey, also of Redneersville and Mr. Ronald Carter, of Centre, ushered the guests.

For the honeymoon the bride travelled in a blue ensemble with orchid corsage.

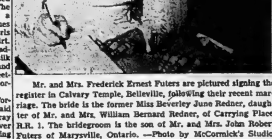
Jr. Members Of Red Cross Enjoy Visit

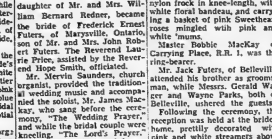
LONDON (CP) — Three members of the British Junior Red Cross arrived in London Tuesday night from Canada with glowing accounts of their visit.

Pat Holland, 17, of London, John Barrett, 18, of Birmingham, and Geoffrey Jackson, 18, of Darlington, sporting brightly colored jackets made for them in Canada, said the 2-day visit was "a wonderful experience."

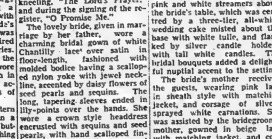


Jackson summed up his colleague's opinions of Canada when he said: "It's a big country with big ideas. Canadians lead a fast life and don't bear a cross and do nothing. They work hard and they play hard."

WOMAN'S WORLD



The three youngsters said Canada is a woman's world. "She has everything in the home. She just pushes buttons. They added: "The men are not henpecked, though."



The British group was part of an international gathering that went to Toronto to celebrate the jubilee of the Canadian Red Cross Society and the centenary of the Red Cross. Some 175 representatives from 41 countries took part.

PETRIE—LADOUCIER

A lovely wedding was solemnized on Saturday, August 8, in the picturesque Albury United Church, when Sheila Ladoucier of Carrying Place R.R. 1, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ladoucier, became the bride of Ralph Leon Petrie, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Petrie. Mr. T. S. Monson, president of Eastern Canadian Mission of Latter Day Saints, assisted by Mr. T. H. Willis, president of Belleville branch, officiated before a beautiful background of white and cerise gladioli, interspersed with fern.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Earle MacKay, who accompanied Miss Evangeline Reilly, the soloist, as she sang as a prelude to the ceremony, "I'll Walk Beside You," and during the signing of the register, "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her story-book bridal gown fashioned on princess lines with empire fitted bodice of white chantilly lace having a scalloped, scooped neckline, and long lily-point sleeves. The full-length bouffant skirt of silk organza fell in graceful folds over tiers of tulle and silk hooped crinoline, accented by a deep lace inset. She wore a seed pearl and sequin tiara with three-quarter length tulle illusion veil edged with lily-of-the-valley and carried a semi-cascade of Happiness roses and Shasta 'mums set in tulle with lacelon streamers.

Her maid of honor, Miss Arlene Bauder, of St. Petersburg, Florida, wore a gown of flowered white embossed nylon over sunshine yellow net and taffeta. The bodice was fashioned with a deep square neckline, tiny cap sleeves, and trimmed with bows of narrow sunshine ribbon at the closing back. The bouffant skirt billowed over tiers of tulle and taffeta. She wore a white feather hat, white accessories, and carried a lovely nosegay of spring blue-tinted carnations surrounded by blue and white 'mums set in tulle and lace. A pearl duster pendant completed her ensemble.

The bridesmaid, Miss Susan Hopkins, of Burlington, was attractively attired in white flowered embossed nylon over white net and taffeta, fashioned in similar style to that of the maid of honor. She also wore a white feather hat, white accessories, and pearl pendant, and carried a nosegay of blossom-pink carnations encircled by pink and white 'mums set in tulle and lace.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Judith Ladoucier, sister of the bride, was also in white embossed flowered nylon over mauve pink taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice with short cap sleeves, high round neckline and waistline accented by a full, knife-pleated skirt. Her white feather hat and white accessories completed her costume. She wore a pearl pendant drop and carried a nosegay of blue carnations encircled by white and blue 'mums set in lace and tulle.

The bridegroom, best man and ushers were smart in their dark suits, white boutonnieres. Mr. John Ashley attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Robert E. Ladoucier and Carl Bernard Ladoucier, brothers of the bride, ushered the guests.

The reception following the ceremony was held in the church parlor, where the guests were received by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ladoucier and the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Petrie, and members of the bridal party. Mrs. Ladoucier wore a sheath-style gown of beige-tone linen with bolero, accented by touches of green, while accessories, and corsage of orange delight roses and white feathered carnations.

Mrs. Petrie chose a gown of powder blue nylon lace over taffeta, with corsage of pink and white feathered 'mums, with white accessories.

The bride's table was appointed with white linen, and centred by the traditional three-tier wedding cake set on crystal pillars, adorned with pink roses, and topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of white roses and white bells. Tall pink candles in silver holders and the bridal flowers completed the nuptial setting.

For travelling, the bride chore a pale pink embroidered sateen sheath with short jacket, white feather hat, white accessories, and single strand of pearls. The happy couple left by motor for Sault St. Marie, and other points west.

Guests were present from England; London, Ontario; Keswick; Florida; Burlington. Carrying Place, and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Petrie will reside at 165 William Street, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Leon Petrie are shown following their recent marriage in Albury United Church. They are the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ladoucier, Carrying Place, R.R. No. 1. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Petrie, of Belleville.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

"Oh, hello there — and what did you do during your holidays?"

How long will we be making this familiar enquiry before the autumn takes us along in its stride? This question poses another which follows naturally. My, how time flies doesn't it? It does, indeed.

No doubt we grown-ups take an occasional glance backwards with wishful and various reflections. Mother, with resignation, gathers her brood for the school term. Father with a little bravado may recall over and over again that big lunge that got away. Some of us may look with despair on a depleted bank account and set our eyes determinedly on next summer with the philosophical declamation that "Boy, it was all worth it, every red cent's worth."

Regardless of our several memories, the fact remains irrevocable that the second hand moves onward. And after all, maybe it is the boys and girls who return to us the dividends of a summer well spent and there is a sincere sadness for unfortunate ones who never get away from their slum dwelling. It matters not where or how we glance backward or hitch our wagon forward to the illusive star, both sides of every picture present themselves.

And what did T and T do — well, let us say that laziness rather than accomplishment was the rule of thumb. We did, however, see Niagara Falls for the very first time and how easy it would be to take off on such a confession. Having been born and brought up on the old St. Lawrence, we had never seen Niagara Falls before. One is inclined to become a bore by raving over a scene nearly everybody has seen and only this simple truth prevents us from repeating over and over again — "did you see —?" But you have.

It would be rather terrible though if Chicago is allowed to divert more and more millions of cubic feet from the Great Lakes until a mighty wonder became a tiny trickle. However, we saw a new and small section of Ontario — and what a mighty province it is. Having seen so small a section and reflecting on how vast it seemed, it is not difficult to think in relative terms about the great expanse our province truly is.

One morning we found ourselves in Lindsay. We had parked to stretch our legs. A sign beckoned us because it brought us back home. A sign that read "Leslie Shoe Store" drew Mr. Art Hill, a native of Bellevillian. We decided in to say hello to Art who asked where we were going. We didn't know. We were at loose-ends. He emphatically advised us to drive through the beautiful Haliburton district; which we did, and discovered it to be as beautiful as Art had said.

Necessity does not invariably bring disappointment. In our case seeing a little of Ontario was a revelation and a practical application of the motto "See Ontario first." The spider webb of throughways, overpasses, cloverleafs appearing over night around Toronto not only amazed but frightened. Bumbling through, getting off the desired route and coming with mysterious directions almost overwhelmed our primitive selves and made us wonder if the approaches to New York had somehow been lifted to Toronto.

It was all quite exciting and instructive and alarming.

However in the midst of all that is best from Ontario's acreage, to highway intricacies, to something small and something BIG Canadian stands out.

A friend of ours who was a 1939 veteran, a prisoner of war, from that a tuberculosis victim from malnutrition, is now foreman in a tiny but fascinating all-Canadian and sole Canadian brier pipe manufacturing company. If ever this walking along the south side of King Street in Toronto west of Yonge, you will notice the Brigham pipe factory situated in the Prince Arcade building. This complete factory, showroom and sales is right there. We have learned since that the discriminating pipe smoker who prefers to buy Canadian can satisfy both his taste in pipes and his loyalty. Our friend requested that his name be withheld but did say we could pass along the story of a pipe.

Only the root of the white briar is used. Once a year a buyer goes to New York to buy nothing but the best white briar roots from Greece, Turkey, Algiers and other southern Mediterranean countries. The higher on a hill the roots are taken the finer the grain and the harder. The roots are cut into blocks then boiled for two hours in water, then they are taken out and air dried; then they are cured in salt and sent all over the world. The closer and straighter the grain the more expensive the pipe. It is interesting to see how the pipes are bored and the stems. We were told that several of the machines for boring and for manufacturing Brigham's own type of filter were designed by this Canadian firm for its own use. It is one of the few processes we ever heard of that goes from the natural product to the finished product in one room. If your husband are pipe users, T and T believes they would be interested in seeing this all Canadian plant because the simplicity of the process and the story of a pipe adds to the best in pride of workmanship. I was fascinated and I don't smoke a pipe.

The proud foreman is a local man, Stanley man from Banbeing South has grown Dundee. They have a fine home and a family of two girls in Port Credit.

SHOULD BEAUTY SHOP OPERATOR USE CLIENT'S NAME?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle a discussion that arose in the beauty shop last evening. An operator, saying good-by to a client, said "Good-by, Madam." That was resented. The operator asked how she could call an older woman, the mother of several children, "Miss." Several in the group suggested that "Ma'am" be used, which is an abbreviation of "Madam" and which they thought sounds better than "Madam."

Should the operator, not knowing the client's name, have said "Good-by, Madam" or "Good-by, Ma'am"? Also if the operator knows the client's name, wouldn't it be nicer for her to use the woman's name: Good-by Mrs. Hamilton"? Please reply soon so that I may show your answer to those who were involved in the discussion. Thank you, very much. E. G.

To answer your last question first: If the operator knows the client's name, there is really no problem, and it is proper, courteous, for her to use it: "Good-by, Mrs. Hamilton." However, even if she knows the client's name, it is also correct for her to say "Madam"; "Good-by, Madam." "Ma'am" is quite correct, too, though most shops and stores prefer the use of "Madam."

The beauty shop operator who said "Good-by, Madam" to the client, an older woman, was entirely correct. And "Good-by, Ma'am" would have been correct. Certainly this matron, mother of several children, wouldn't expect to be addressed as "Miss." As a matter of fact, many stores and shops today ask their salespeople to avoid using "Miss" in addressing customers and clients, except very young girls; suggesting "Madam" in addressing a matron.

NEVER SEND A PRINTED THANK-YOU CARD

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Under what circumstances is it correct to send a printed thank-you card? (Your answer to this question is to settle a discussion we are having — and to settle a bet also.) — L. C.

And my answer is: It is never correct to send a printed thank-you card for anything.

Have A Heart — On A Silver Platter

by Mary Moore

On the theory that we should serve one organ meat such as liver, kidney, heart, tongue, sweetbreads or braine once per week, we bought a beef heart this week. Actually it was half of a huge ox cut lengthwise and that much weighed three pounds.

So there it was lying in front of me on the counter. How could I make it look and taste its very best?

What I did turned out fine and here's how:

BEEF HEART WITH CURRY SAUCE AND RICE:

Wash heart and trim arteries from top and simmer covered 4 hours in 1 quart water with 1 teaspoon salt. Remove from stock to hot platter and keep hot. Make Curry Sauce: Sauté in 3 tablespoons butter 1-2 shredded Spanish onion, 1 green pepper chopped, with 1 1-2 teaspoons curry powder, until vegetables are limp but not brown at all. Stir in 6 tablespoons flour, then the stock in which the heart was cooked. You should have 3 1-2 cups. If you do not have this much cook, make it up with boiling water. Stir until thick and smooth. Meanwhile, to your rice, six cups, 1 1-2 cups long grain rice in 3 1-2 cups boiling water with 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon butter. Cover it, bring to boil, turn heat low and cook covered until all water is absorbed. Rice will be flaky and tender. Arrange rice in border around heart on silver platter. Pour Curry Sauce over heart allowing some to flow over the rice. My brother sliced this with great finesse just as if he were serving roast beef. I don't always really licked the platter clean. It was a treat.

If you should have some left-over and can put your hand on another cupful of cooked meat such as pork or ham make

HEARTY GOULASH:

1 cup chopped cooked heart, 1 cup chopped cooked pork or ham, 3 tablespoons diced onion, 1 tablespoon fat or butter, 1 cup heart stock or vegetable stock or water, 1 1-4 teaspoons salt, 1-3 cup canned or raw tomatoes or tomato juice, 1-2 cup diced raw carrot, 3 tablespoons chopped celery, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons cold water, 2 1-2 to 3 cups cooked noodles.

Brown heart, pork and onions in fat gently. Add water, salt, carrots and celery and cook until vegetables are tender about 20 minutes. Add tomatoes and Worcestershire Sauce. Mix the flour with the cold water to a smooth paste and stir into meat mixture until thick. Serve on bed of hot cooked noodles (or rice).

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mark. S. — He stays out late every night.

Stephen S. —All I hear is nag, nag, nag.

Marie S. — My husband and I have been married ten years and have two youngsters. We are in our early 30's.

My problem is that my husband stays away from home four or five nights a week. He says his business requires this late work, but I don't believe it. I'm not accusing him of going out with other women. He was never one for that sort of thing, but I know that he and a couple of other men in the vicinity of our business spend a lot of time just fooling around, going in for a beer, etc. When Steve does come home he just yawns, glares at me and goes to bed.

I don't feel I can stand this life any more — every night home alone with only the four walls and the TV set for company.

* * *

Stephen S. — What's there to hurry home to when all I get is nag, nag, nag? No matter what time I come home Marie wants to know what I was doing so long at work, why I couldn't make it sooner.

After that there is a long boring story about everything the children did wrong, what the storekeepers and neighbors said to her and what she said to them. Then she starts talking about what to send her sister for an anniversary present and then she starts yelling at me for not paying any attention.

How long does she think I can take it? I bring home the bacon. I don't drink, gamble or run around with women. What more does she want?

* * *

The Council: Evidently there is plenty missing in this marriage. It takes more than bacon and TV to make a house a home.

Things are very likely to get dull when human beings have no interests and no goals. When the average man and woman had to toil from dawn to dark to keep body and soul together they didn't have to worry about such hazards as boredom or the disintegration of mind and emotions from lack of stress.

Things today are different however, and the average family must make an active effort to keep from falling into the quicksands of sheer sluggishness.

If their feeling for one another had been kept warm and alive, Marie and Steve would have been aware of their own and one another's needs and would find a means of satisfying them instead of just blaming one another for their unhappiness.

Marie should be aware that she cannot expect Steve to fully satisfy her need for more in life than household duties and packaged entertainment. She needs sociability of the meaningful sort — not simple gossip with the neighbors. She should join a church or civic group, entertain, take a course, find a hobby, do something more than wait for Steve to come home.

Steve needs stimulation of a similar type. It is fairly evident that one reason he can't keep his wife's conversation off the dull commonplaces is that he has nothing of his own to contribute.

Steve and Marie appear to be living a totally negative, meaningless existence. Their two youngsters undoubtedly feel the effects of this as well as the lack of warm feeling in the home. Boredom is a disease that can breed other diseases and we think it is vital for this couple to stir themselves to do something about it at once.

Red Chinese Dragon May Find Self Grappling With Tiger

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Red Chinese dragon, in process of molesting, harassing and antagonizing at the Indian lamb, may find itself grappling with a tiger in lamb's clothing.

A high commonwealth source, in appraising the situation, says India is in a good military and geographic position to defend itself against any Chinese invasion from China. He described India's military forces as small but in top shape.

More important perhaps at this time is India's Prime Minister Nehru, essentially a man of peace, has finally become aroused.

Latest reports are that he may shake up his cabinet to replace the controversial V. K. Krishna Menon in the vital defence portfolio. Menon is more of a diplomat than a military man and he is shown no great love for the West.

Now at this crucial stage in India - China tensions he has clashed with his three military service chiefs over such things as promotions of junior officers and other administrative issues. And on the eve of the reported shake-up, India's ambassador to the United States, M.C. Chagla, has proclaimed that India's frontiers are sacred "and we will defend them with all the power and resources that we possess."

With the undoubted approval of Nehru, Chagla told the National Press Club in Washington: "China will be making a terrible mistake if she thinks that because we are devoted to peace, we will not fight in defence of our country."

This was a much stronger and more positive statement than the one Nehru originally made to parliament after the Red Chinese penetrated India's northern frontiers. At that time he said: "We hope this will be settled by discussions and conferences, and we do not propose to go to war."

Some observers now see in these remarks that Nehru was speaking softly while preparing the big stick. Still to be seen is just how far he will go.

The well qualified Commonwealth source expressed the opinion that any India - China border skirmish will not lead to a general war. Why then have Mao Tse-tung's forces cross the Indian frontiers?

Some well - placed authorities say the action is inexplicable. Others suggest Mao is consolidating his brutal conquest of Tibet and spreading defences to prevent the westing of his kingdom from his power and it may also be a case of ultra-benevolent theologica! support for the Reds in India. Nehru has suspected Communist infiltration among the Indian state of Kerala, the only state in India which elected the Reds to power.

15,000 Canadian Soldiers, Dependents Now on Move

OTTAWA (CP) — An advance party leaves Montreal by ship Oct. 8 to begin the movement of more than 15,000 Canadian soldiers and their dependents in the army's annual rotation of personnel between Canada and Germany.

This year's rotation, details of which were announced Tuesday night, is the first under a new plan of three-year instead of two-year tours of duty with Canada's NATO brigade in Germany.

The two-way move by ship and plane affects two-thirds of the strength of the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade group and stretches over a three - month period.

Major units returning to Canada are the Royal Canadian Dragoons; the 2nd Battalion, Canadian Guards; the 3rd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, and the reconnaissance squadron of the Lord Strathcona's Horse.

Replacing them in Germany are the 1st Canadian Hussars, Camp Gagetown, N.B.; the 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards, Camp Petawawa, and the 1st Battalion, the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada, Camp Aldershot, N.S.

TWO GROUPS-STAY

Missing out of this year's lift will be the 2nd Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, and the 1st Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery. Both units remain in Germany until the fall of 1960.

One innovation this year will be large-scale air movement of troops with 31 round-trip flights carrying a total of 1,526 soldiers each way. The shuttle airlift by Trans-Canada Air Lines and the RCAF begins on Oct. 1 and ends Dec. 15.

Another innovation is that many troops will be accompanied aboard ship by their families.

In previous years, the soldiers had gone ahead with dependents following. Also the army will have 635 permanent married-quarters available which means only half the soldiers with dependents will have to be sent ahead to rent quarters from German civilians.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army has abandoned the rotation of troops by units between the U.S. and Europe.

The army gave no reason for giving up on "operation group cope," as the unit rotation to Europe was designated when launched in January, 1955. At that time, an infantry division in Germany traded posts with one at Ft. Riley, Kan.

Later, battle groups, battalions and certain lesser units continued to go to Europe and come home by units.

For future replacements, the army announced Tuesday a "carefully company replacement system."

Under this system, four-man teams are formed for training. During advanced training, these teams will be formed with companies ranging from 70 to 250 men each.

These carrier companies will be shipped to Europe at a group, but once loaded in Europe, the companies may be broken up and the men flown to Europe to extend among units needing replacements.

On the other hand, battle groups and battalions, as units, will go to Korea as needed.

Child Taken From Parents, Given Blood

SUDBURY (CP)—A four-day-old baby girl has been given a blood transfusion after an emergency court hearing in Sudbury General Hospital took her from her Jehovah's Witness parents who gave her a charge of the Children's Aid Society.

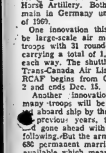
The child, born in the hospital on Thursday while the Richvale, Ont., couple were on their holidays in Sudbury, Ontario, developed jaundice and suffering from severe jaundice, a condition similar to that caused by the Rh factor in premature births.

Pediatrician Dr. Nick Jaro told the parents that a transfusion was necessary at once to change the baby's blood type. Both parents refused on grounds that the religion of the infant's Witnesses forbids blood transfusions.

EMERGENCY HEARING

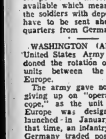
Magistrate W. F. Woodlife convened an emergency hearing in the hospital's administrative office. Dr. Jaro argued that the transfusion was necessary immediately to prevent serious brain damage or possible death of the baby.



When both parents still refused to allow the transfusion to take place, Dan Penny, superintendent of the Sudbury Children's Aid Society, asked that custody of the child be given to the society.

Mr. McWally asked for a day's adjournment to enable him to contact legal authorities in Toronto. On the doctor's advice, Magistrate Woodlife denied the motion. The child was put in the care of the Children's Aid Society for one month.

She is in satisfactory condition.



SILENT GUARD CHANGE

LONDON (Reuters) — The guard was changed quietly at Buckingham Palace Tuesday. Coldstream Guardsmen began carrying a new semi-automatic rifle, which cannot be banged on the ground as the old one was during the guard-changing drill.

TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

More than half of the 4,500 miles of the Trans-Canada Highway will be paved to specifications by the end of this year. Construction has been pushed by the participating provinces — all except Quebec — because federal assistance expires Dec. 31, 1960.

Map shows status of construction so far. Solid line shows completed highway, although some sections — notably in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick — are not up to standard.

The only two real gaps (broken line) are north of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and east of Revelstoke, B.C. Broken line in Newfoundland indicates gravel road.

By the end of next year it is expected that it will be possible to drive from St. John's, Nfld., to Victoria. (CP Newsmap).

4,500-Mile Ribbon of Road, The Trans-Canada Highway, Rapidly Being Put in Shape

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Trans-Canada highway, a 4,500-mile ribbon of pavement stretching from coast to coast, is rapidly being worked into shape.

With the expiry date of Dec. 31, 1960, for federal assistance drawing closer, a Canadian Press survey shows that construction by the participating provinces has been spurring ahead. Quebec is not in the program, but a direct hard-surfaced route across Quebec province keeps the coast-to-coast chain intact.

Not all the route will be paved by the end of next year, but by then it is expected that it will be possible to go directly by car from St. John's, Nfld., to Victoria on Vancouver Island.

SCENIC BEAUTY

Leaving St. John's, the motorist will be able to drive through the rugged hills of Newfoundland and across to the mainland on a ferry via Cabot Strait. The highway will run through Prince Edward Island farmlands, the highlands of Cape Breton, N.S., and the forests of New Brunswick.

Quebec's St. Lawrence River route allows the motorist to pick up the Trans - Canada highway again at the Ontario border. Passing through the nation's capital, the highway swings across Eastern Ontario and up around the north shore of Lake Superior.

It cuts a long, straight swath through Prairie wheatfields, snakes through the Rockies and down through the lush Okanagan Valley area of British Columbia to the west coast. A ferry takes the car across the Strait of Georgia to Vancouver Island.

Nearly 2,500 miles of the highway—more than half—will have been paved by Trans - Canada specifications by the end of this year. This represents an increase of 500 miles in 15 months and 1,600 miles in two years. About 900 miles will be completed this year.

SASKATCHEWAN COMPLETE

One province, Saskatchewan, has completed its part of the highway. Both Prince Edward Island and Alberta have finished their sections except for tiny gaps. All that remains to be completed in Manitoba is the 24-mile Winnipeg bypass, most of which will be done this year.

Cost of the job through 1960 has been revised around $600,000,000—double the amount estimated when the project was launched.

This is based on a maximum federal contribution of $350,000,000—$200,000,000 more than when the 10-year federal - provincial agreement went into effect. The Trans - Canada Highway Act passed Dec. 10, 1949, set total federal contribution at $150,000,000. The act called for the highway to be completed by 1956.

By 1953 it had become apparent the highway was a much bigger undertaking than originally anticipated, and Ottawa has twice raised its contributions by $100,000,000—in 1956 and again at the last session of Parliament. Total value of construction appears so far to be $483,000,000.

The federal government has been paying half the cost of new construction and half that of bringing existing provincial roads up to Trans-Canada standards, a hard-surfaced, two-lane highway with ample pavement and shoulder widths, bridge clearances, low gradients and gentle curves.

Since 1956 it has also been paying 90 per cent of the cost of closing vital uncompleted gaps up to 10 per cent of the mileage within any one province. The remaining 10 per cent is paid through national parks and cost of these sections is paid for entirely by Ottawa.

At least two of the provinces—Newfoundland and British Columbia—are expected to be able to get their alloted sections finished before the cost - sharing agreement runs out.

Newfoundland, has to build a relatively long 554 - mile stretch across difficult terrain. It follows a route that was entirely unused. Other provinces have been able to cut corners by bringing already-paved roads up to standard.

In B.C., work crews have hit trouble at Rogers Pass, an 82-mile stretch through the Rocky Mountains where rugged defiles make it a battle every foot of the way.

As the 10-year agreement approaches expiration, officials in Ottawa and the provinces among some provinces to avoid long-term construction contracts that might extend beyond next year. All participating provinces have struck tough sections.

The Saddle Hock section south of Squamish, B.C., is costing $1,600,000 a mile, reported provincial Highways Minister Gaglardi. In comparison, a seven - mile stretch between Weyconomagan and the Inverness-Victoria County line in Nova Scotia cost only $44,000 a mile because of heavy debridding is believed responsible for the low price.

COST IN ONTARIO

Ontario is spending $31,000,000 on a 163-mile stretch between Agawa River, north of Sault Ste. Marie, and Marathon, to the northwest. The route follows the Lake Superior shoreline and goes through deep rock cuts. It is already graded except for gaps totalling 38 miles.

The Canadian Press survey shows that sections already completed are generally handling traffic well, with some localized congestion reported around big cities in Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan. Some critics are saying the Calgary-Banff section in Alberta should have been four lanes.

Province - by - province, this is how the highway looks. Mileage expected to be paved by the end of this year is bracketed:

P.E.I. — total miles 71 (71), highway completed except for bridges and approaches which are far $2,000,000, needed to complete $2,000,000.

Nova Scotia — total miles 318 (175), cost so far $13,300,000, needed to complete $44,000,000.

New Brunsfick — total miles 388 (133), cost so far $20,000,000, needed to complete $50,000,000 to $60,000,000.

Quebec — not in program on grounds federal assistance would infringe on provincial jurisdiction over highways, but motorists going from N.B. to Ontario will have a gap of 40 — mile route across Quebec.

Ontario — total miles 1,440 (650), cost so far $154,847,000.

Manitoba — total miles 309 (300), cost so far $32,841,000.

Alberta — total miles 282 (282), cost so far $35,150,000, needed to complete $2,400,000.

British Columbia — total miles 618 (473), cost so far $132,000,-000, needed to complete $118,000,-000.

STUDY EUROPEAN SYSTEMS

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Churchill will make a swing through a number of European countries prior to the Commonwealth finance and trade ministers conference in London late next month. Mr. Churchill said Monday in an interview that the object of his trip will be to bring himself up to date on common market trading arrangements.

RUGGED WORK — A wide variety of terrain ranging from rolling farmland to towering mountains faced workers along the 4,500 miles of the Trans-Canada Highway. Federal assistance expires at the end of 1960 as provinces have been pushing construction. Here a bulldozer grades a section of roadbed at Banff, Alta. (CP from National Film Board).

Union of Anglican, United Churches Some Time Away

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP) — Union between the Anglican and United Churches of Canada is apparently still some time away, but both churches are working energetically towards it.

Bishop John Dixon of Montreal, chairman of the Anglican Church committee which has been discussing union with the United Church, told his church's 30th general synod Tuesday the laity's ignorance and indifference have been main stumbling blocks.

To combat it he proposed the two churches set up a study guide on reunion and institute a common league of prayer for unity.

The synod, which includes about 350 clerical and lay delegates from Canadian dioceses, speedily approved both his suggestions.

DIVIDE PRESBYTERIANS

They also approved Bishop Dixon's proposal for a formal invitation to the Presbyterian Church of Canada to renew meeting with the Anglicans on the subject of union.

Bishop Dixon noted such meetings with United Church have been in progress for about 30 years.

One difficulty has been a misunderstanding about the term "organic union," he said. He emphasized, as did Archbishop Philip Carrington, acting primate, in his opening address, that the term need not necessarily mean regimentation or uniformity.

Part of the delay was caused by procedural disputes, perhaps heightened by the sweltering weather. Bishops sat through the long afternoon and evening sessions in their full robes, but most of the delegates, including other clergy, were coatless.

EXTENSION OPPOSED

The finance committee report cited stiff opposition from delegates who hesitated to approve a $600,000 addition to the church's administrative centre in Toronto.

Some delegates urged the present building in downtown Toronto and the valuable property it stands on be sold and a new building be built outside Toronto.

R. H. Seward of Toronto, chairman of the building committee, replied that such sale would bring in only the price of the land since the three-year-old building, not big enough for commercial purposes, would have to be demolished by any buyer.

The discussion was to resume today. The report of the budget committee also was put over to today.

Mom Carries Fund-Raising Drive to West

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte has carried her fund-raising drive to the western provinces in an attempt to get a $10,000 down payment to option property for a new children's home.

After poorly attended Ontario meetings, Mrs. Whyte failed to get the down payment by an Aug. 28 deadline she set in Fort McMurray, Alta. She was granted a month's extension and left for Winnipeg.

Her first meeting was held Sunday in Winnipeg at the Faith Temple Church of Rev. James Spiers, who, with his wife, was at Mrs. Whyte's side during her struggle with Ontario government officials who closed her Whyte-haven Mission last month. A crowd of 250 donated $1,000

CHAMPIONSHIP TECHNIQUE — A typical scoring thrust finds rugged Jack Bionda shaking his check and grabbing a pass in full flight to break away for a rush at goal in a Vancouver lacrosse game. The six-foot, 200-pound winger of New Westminster Adanacs and joined New Westminster in 1956, pacing the team to the Canadian senior championship.

He is also a hockey player, and at one time played for the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins. Last winter he was with Providence in the American Hockey League, and was named to the second all-star team despite his club's last-place finish.

For next winter he has been given permission by the parent Boston club to negotiate with Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League.

O'Keefe's broke the Canadian senior lacrosse scoring record Aug 13. Bionda reached 144 points in 26 games to smash the record of 135 points set by Billy Wilson, also a New Westminster forward. Bionda led the Brampton, Ont., Excelsiors to the Canadian junior lacrosse title in 1954 and the O'Keefe's to the senior title in 1958. (CP Photo).

Jack Bionda Holds All-Time Canadian Scoring Record in Lacrosse, Hailed as Greatest

By BOB TAMBEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW WESTMINISTER, B.C., (CP)—There has been no short cut to the all - time Canadian senior lacrosse scoring record for Jack Bionda of New Westminster O'Keefes.

"I used to practise three hours a day in my backyard as a kid and my father would fill in as goalkeeper," says the 25-year-old native of Huntsville, Ont.

"But it has been fun because I really love lacrosse. It was the only sport played in our town in those days. I guess the fun I had as a kid never has left me."

He's still fun for the six-foot, 200-pound winger, though there are times when "fun" doesn't exactly describe the action in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

COLOR GUY

Bionda is the color guy of the league. When he's playing a good crowd is a certainty. He has sparked a resurgence of interest even in this lacrosse centre, which has won the Canadian senior championship a record 12 times.

"Our attendance is up by about 20 per cent," says team manager Harry McKnight. "There is no doubt Jack is the reason. He is the greatest lacrosse player I've ever seen."

Jack Proctor, New Westminster coach and a former lacrosse star with Vancouver, says: "There may have been players just as good as Jack but I don't remember any. Certainly there have been none better."

What aroused the tributes to Bionda was his scoring pace of 5.5 points a game, which enabled him to smash a 23-year-old scoring record of 135 points. Bionda reached 144 points in 26 games this season, with 70 goals and 74 assists. His team was in first place.

The old mark was set by Billy Wilson, also a New Westminster forward, when the goal was a foot wider and a foot higher, and there was no goal crease.

ENTICED FROM EAST

Bionda was brought west by Victoria Shamrocks in 1954, the year after he led Brampton, Ont., Excelsiors to the Canadian junior title. He returned to Victoria in 1957 after a year in eastern Canada and joined New Westminster in 1956, pacing the team to the Canadian senior championship.

He is also a hockey player, and at one time played for the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins. Last winter he was with Providence in the American Hockey League, and was named to the second all-star team despite his club's last-place finish.

For next winter he has been given permission by the parent Boston club to negotiate with Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League.

Leaders Confident of Aid From NHL Clubs Except Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Leaders of Canada's newest professional hockey league are confident of support from most National League clubs despite Conn Smythe's prediction that the new loop is headed for big financial losses.

The consensus is that all NHL clubs would come through except Toronto—and one club president said he expected some help from the Maple Leafs as well.

Smythe, president of Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, issued a statement Monday saying he has told his fellow NHL owners and Clarence Campbell, NHL president, that he could not endorse the new project.

He said it was not correct, as news stories might indicate, that the NHL had given its blessing to the newly-formed Eastern Professional Hockey League. He said NHL owners had not at that time had any opportunity to discuss the matter.

SAYS FIRM COMMITMENT

Ted Hill, president of Sudbury Wolves, replied Monday, that Punch Imlach, Toronto general manager, had made a firm commitment that Sudbury would have first call on any Leaf players who failed to make Rochester Americans, the Leafs' American League farm team.

Hill said he was confident Imlach would be able to carry out the undertaking.

Other teams in the new league, formed of offshoots of the now-defunct Quebec League and two Ontario Hockey Association groups, are Montreal Royals, Trois-Rivieres Lions, Hull - Ottawa Canadiens, Kingston Frontenacs and Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds.

"Smythe is yelling sour grapes. If we develop young players in the new league he'll be the first to try to find some means of grafting them by Toronto . . .

"We new Toronto wasn't interested. But the other five general managers are happy."

WON'T PAY

Said Sam Pollock, chief of the Hull-Ottawas team:

"Conn Smythe and I don't want to put up any money. The other clubs seem to feel that investing in Canadian hockey players is a good thing. Our budget is not any greater than in the past."

Agreement that all NHL clubs but Toronto are interested came from president Bob Borton of Sault Ste. Marie and acting president Jum Sheridan of Kingston.

"I'm surprised at Smythe's comments that the NHL has not endorsed the league," Sheridan said. "The general managers—who must be acting for their owners—have shown more than passing interest."

Borton commented:

"I'll bet that by the time this year is out, or possibly by next season, Smythe will want into this setup."

Relative to gate receipts, Sault Hockey Promotions Limited said Tuesday sales of booster club seats and season tickets already have more than doubled those of last reason.

Boston said season ticket sales had reached 1,100 compared to 300 last season and predicted no difficulty in passing the 2,000 mark.

Balls Present New Menace To Expressway

DETROIT (CP) — Golf balls have presented a new menace to the city's expressway system.

The hazard exists on a section of the Ford Expressway to open in December, which has a golf course adjoining it.

A survey indicates that more than 50 balls are hit into the expressway on an average weekend.

Two possible corrections have been studied. Either raise the height of the fence at the course boundary or reverse the holes so that only hooked balls would go over the fence. Officials were told that slices outnumber hooks about eight to one.

Big Four Gossip

'The Rifle' Gives Advice To Ronnie Knox of Argos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sam Etcheverry of Montreal Alouettes, ruled by many as the best passer in Canadian football, has some advice for quarterback Ronnie Knox of Toronto Argos.

Knox shouldn't try the running-jump pass so often, said Sam.

Rehashing last Friday night's Big Four game in which Alouettes defeated Argos 24-6, Sam said in an interview:

"That running jump pass Knox was throwing most of the game is the hardest pass to throw in the game. I only know of one fellow — a Harry Gilmer who played for Washington Redskins —who could throw those jump passes any good.

"I have to keep my feet right on the ground to get away a decent pass."

JACKSON TO START

Also on the quarterback front came word that homebrew Rust Jackson will replace veteran Frank Tripucka as starting quarterback for the winless Rough Riders against Montreal Saturday.

Coach Frank Clair said he hopes Jackson will give the club a lift. At the same time he expressed some disappointment in Tripucka's passing.

Tripucka had four passes intercepted Saturday by league-leading Hamilton who beat Riders 34-10.

In Hamilton, coach Jim Trimble said his Tiger-Cats are no better than any other club in the Big Four even though they're undefeated in three starts.

The difference, said Trimble, is in preparedness and organization.

"We're not any better, but we're better prepared," he said.

"If the court's the least bit soft this guy's unbeatable!"

in an interview.

"We take five days to prepare for a game and we'll be working this Saturday and Sunday for Monday's game against Argos. I wonder how many otherstreams will be working this weekend?

"We follow a prepared program explicitly for every game and the players know exactly what to expect before they come to practice."

IS THE FUN GOING OUT OF FOOTBALL?

Joe Krol — famous Argos player from a few years back warns us to save the game before it is too late! Why? Find out in the current Star Weekly.

Yvon Durelle Placed Third As Contender

NEW YORK (CP)—Yvon Durelle has dropped to second contender spot in the latest ring ratings since his recent knockout loss to Archie Moore in a light-heavyweight title bout.

The slot has been taken over by Harold Johnson of Philadelphia with Eric Schoppner of Germany third.

Other knockout victims also suffered in Ring magazine's latest listings former champions Carmen Basilio and Hogan (Kid) Bassey both lost their leading contender positions.

Basilio, erstwhile middleweight titleholder, was dumped from No. 1 to No. 3 as a result of his loss to Gene Fullmer last Friday. Fullmer moved into the No. 1 spot while Spider Webb of Chicago advanced to second place.

STICK BY ROBINSON

Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring, said of Robinson, however, that unless he agrees to defend the crown against Fullmer within a reasonable time "there will be no alternative but to regard Ray as a retired champion."

Bassey, former bantamweight king from Nigeria, tumbled to third place among the 126-pounders. He was stopped by champ Davey Moore in a return go. Ricardo Gonzalez of Argentina took over Bassey's No. 1 post and Harold Gomes of Providence, the junior lightweight champion, climbed into second place.

Alex Miteff's victory over Alonzo Johnson moved the rugged Argentinian into eighth place among the heavies. Johnson slipped to 10th and Willie Pastrano was eliminated from the first 10.

HAMMING SAMMY SNEAD

The Napanee Golf and Country Club had a very distinguished visitor one day last week, none other than "Slammin'" Sammy Snead.

Sammy was enjoying a short vacation with some friends in Napanee when he was persuaded to try a couple of rounds on the town's nine-hole course. He shot a two-under-par 33 going out and finished with 34 for a three-under-par 67 total.

Snead apparently liked the course, commenting, "If these greens were better and the flags put in the centre of the greens it would be a pleasure to play here anytime."

His 67 was just two strokes over the course record of 65, held by Glen Wager. Sammy had a little trouble with his putting but still managed to give the small crowd that followed him around quite a few thrills with his fine shots. He consistently had drives of between 275 and 300 yards.

WITH A GRAIN OF SALT

Paul Patton, Sudbury Star sports editor, and his staff, always seem to know more about what's going on in the hockey world, not just near their home town but all over the world, than any other sports department.

And the "news" is promptly printed for one and all to see. If we thought about it long enough we could probably remember when one of these famous "scoops" proved true. But we haven't got that-much time to waste.

Everyone has a right to his opinion. And a newspaper's business is to provide news. But why must those "valuable bits of misinformation" always have that sarcastic touch?

Just a small example of what we are talking about appeared the other day under a Bob Scott byline. After, in the column announcing that Quebec Aces and Les Angeles are preparing to enter the National Hockey League, Scott turns to the senior "A" picture.

He passes along a tip to the Sudbury Wolves, entered in the new Eastern professional league, that if they are interested they can have Lorne McLellan.

He then reports that Johnny made more money with Belleville than he ever made in the professional American League, but that the Maser salary offers are slightly smaller this season. And right in the middle of the whole things, in brackets, is another line reading, "remember the city treasury loss!"

McLellan was a top scorer for years with the Cleveland Barons of the American League, which is just one thin step below the NHL.

Some of the boys were overpaid here, that we will never body, but please, Mr. Scott, let's not be ridiculous.

And as to that "city treasury" bit, it seems that some people find it much easier to be sarcastic than fair.

SOCCER FIXES

The Northern Electric Soccer Club, which has clinched the Eastern Ontario Football League's top spot, passes along word that the 1958 world soccer championship matches will be shown on film here this weekend.

A showing of the film for adults will be held at the Bridge Street Armouries this Friday at 8.00 p.m. You can bring your kids along if you like but there will be a special showing just for the youngsters at four o'clock Saturday at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. The Saturday show will be free to the kids while tickets for Friday night's viewing cost half a dollar. They are available from any member of the club or you can buy one at the door.

The film is approximately two hours long. The first half shows parts of all the games while the last half is the cup final game itself.

Looks like a good show for district soccer fans.

Turning back to the Northern team itself, we understand that it has a proud record since entering the league. Actually the team took over the opening left when the RCAF team was forced to drop out, and has proved the top club in the league.

Other teams in the loop, which winds up its schedule in a couple of weeks, are Batawa, Belleville Wilson's and three teams from Kingston; Sports, Dynamos and City.

A TIGHT ONE

Well, they have finally declared an OASA representative for Belleville in the Intermediate "AA" division but man alive, was that a close one!

Bobcats are slated to open the playdowns in Peterborough tonight at 8.15, if the rain holds off, and the return game is here Saturday at 5.30 at the CNR.

Sports Centre put up a great battle before dropping last night's 8 opener to Peterborough. Here was the Tabbies' hero, slightly overshadowing the fine game that the loser's Al Adams threw. The old "Bearcat" was great and he got some excellent fielding help from Jim Wright and "Shaker" Baker. And don't forget that Hull tossed a three-hitter in his second complete game in as many nights.

It was a good series for everyone involved. Bobcats met the challenge and the losers gave it all they had. Furthermore it was a financial success with both clubs doing well at the gates.

Now for the Petes and what should be another good series.

POLICE STUDY DRAW

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police are studying the method used last night to pick the "1,000,000th fan" at a British Columbia Lions-Edmonton Eskimos WIFU football game here. A draw was used with Ron MacRae, 26, of North Vancouver winning some $10,000 in prizes. The investigation would determine whether the draw was an illegal lottery under the Criminal Code.

The three-day match opens Saturday at the Toronto Cricket, Curling and Skating Club. Norman Lee of Brantford will be the spare man.

Add another chapter to the strange career of Jim Bunning, the lean right-hander who was a surprise 20-game winner two years ago, then pitched a no-hit masterpiece—and then faded.

Tuesday night he shut out Chicago's streaking, first - place White Sox, one of the toughest clubs to blank in the American League, putting them away on three singles and ending their winning streak at five as Detroit took a 4-0 victory.

It was Bunning's first shutout in 45 starts since July 20 last year—the day he no-hit Boston 3-0. And it was only the sixth time this season that the White Sox—their edge over rain-idled Cleveland cut to five games—have been held scoreless, a blow matched only by Boston in the AL.

KLU HITS TWO

Ted Kluszewski had two of the White Sox hits, in the fourth and the ninth. Luis Aparicio had the other as Bunning, now 14-10, bagged his fifth straight victory.

It also was the Tigers' fifth success in a row, matching their best streak of the year, and retained their one-game hold on third place (14½ games behind) over New York. The Yankees defeated Baltimore 5-0 as Whitey Ford and reliever Ryne Duren combined for a seven-hit shutout. Washington beat Boston 7-4, with Harmon Killebrew regaining a share of the major league home run lead with his 39th.

Jim Bunning continued his spell over the White Sox—he's beaten them four in a row over the past year and nine times out of 10 over five seasons — the Tigers added to their hex over Bob Shaw. The young right-hander, who broke in with Detroit in '57, has beaten every club but the Tigers in his brief career. Now 16-5 for the season, he's 0-3 against Detroit.

SLAM 12 HITS

The Tigers tagged him for nine of their 13 hits and all their runs in his five innings, giving Bunning the win he needed in the first inning when Larry Osborne singled, Harvey Kuenn doubled and Al Kaline hit a sacrifice fly. Kuenn was 4-for-5, upping his AL average to five points to .356.

Five singles gave the Yankees three first - inning runs against loser Jerry Walker. They got their other two against Arnie Portocarrero in the ninth. Ford (14-7) gave up six hits, giving way in the seventh when the Orioles twice loaded the bases.

Killebrew's homer, tying Cleveland's Rocky Colavito for the lead, gave the Senators a 4-2 lead in the seventh inning. Then they added it with three runs in the eighth. Camilo Pascual (13-10) won it with Tex Clevenger's relief.

You'd think those Los Angeles Dodgers have a mental block when it comes to closing in on the National League lead.

Since last May, they were tied for first in mid-month, then lost five in a row and fell to fourth. It took ten more than a month to get back, finally moving within a game of the top on June 26 after winning nine of 10. But then they lost four out of five.

They were only a half-game shy at the first all-star game break. But then they lost five out of seven. Twelve days later, they were just a half-game behind once more, only to lose three out of four.

What more? They were first by a half-game July 29, then skidded to third. On Aug. 8 they were only a half game away from first. Then they lost three straight.

MISSED AGAIN

Now they've missed again. After winning four of three from San Francisco, they had a chance to move within a half-game of first-place Giants Tuesday night.

So what happens? Old nemesis Larry Jackson shut them up with a three-hitter and St. Louis won a 3-0 winner, dropping the Dodgers 1½ games behind.

The Giants made hay all around, Philadelphia cracked third - place Pittsburgh 5-0 on pitcher Don Cardwell's two-run homer in the ninth. That left the Braves three games behind and just a half-game ahead of Pittsburgh's Pirates, whose game with Cincinnati was rained out.

Jackson handed the Dodgers their fifth shutout (low in the majors) of the season.

TWO HOMERS

The Cards had only four hits, but two were home runs, Ken Boyer's 26th, a second - inning shot that extended his hitting streak to 20 games, ended Johnny Podres' winning string at four. Podres (12-8) also gave up Alex Grammas' No. 3 homer. Cardwell, who had managed just one hit in 43 at bats this year, discarded his regular 30-ounce bat, picked up a 40 - ounce cannon and tagged Bob Buhl's first pitch for the ue - breaking homer at Milwaukee. His only other home run in the majors came when he was a rookie in '57.

The big righthander, now 9-7 with his fourth straight victory, allowed only six hits, including Ed Mathews' 36th home run and Joe Adcock's 22nd.

Def helpp. The Nats were out-hit 13-4, but collected 11 walks, eight by loser Earl Wilson (1-1) in 3 1-3 innings.

YORKSHIRE WINS

LONDON (CP)—Yorkshire won the English County cricket championship Tuesday on a 215-run, two-runs-a - minute victory over Sussex with only seven minutes to spare. The team then waited for two hours for the Surrey-Middlesex result. A victory for Surrey would have left it needing only a victory over Northamptonshire in the last match of the season to retain the championship. But the game was a draw and Surrey's eight-year reign as champion was over.

Bobcats Oust Sports Centre On 'Wiener' Brown's Homer

By GARRY ALEXANDER

"Wiener" Brown's eighth-inning home run gave the Belleville Bobcats a narrow 3-2 victory over Sports Centre at CNRA Park last night and qualified the 'Cats for the OASA Intermediate "A" playdowns.

Bobcats open their first round in Peterborough tonight at 8.15 with the second game back here Saturday at 5.30 at the CNR. The losers open their Commercial League finals against Belle Cleaners Thursday at 6.15.

The 'Cats took a 2-0 lead with single runs in the second and fifth frames. Sports Centre evened the score at 2-2 in the seventh, setting the stage for the dramatic finish.

Bobcats got the winning run on base in the bottom of the seventh on an error but could not get the runner around as Adams' slow stuff proved effective. He got leadoff man Crawford on a ground ball to open the eighth. But Brown hammered a solid drive over DeRushie's head in left field and beat the relay across the plate to register the deciding tally.

FANS TEN

Bobby Hull toed the rubber once again for the Bobcats and tossed three-hit ball over the distance. He was in hot water only once, in the seventh, when he had a brief spell of control trouble. Hull struck out ten and passed three.

Al Adams surrendered six hits in also going the route. He nipped a single batter on strikes and did not walk a man. Ground balls and pop-ups accounted for the Sports Centre putouts on most occasions.

Hull topped a leadoff double and stole third base to get the Bobcats under way in the second inning. Hayden watched a third-strike slowball go by but Earl Coustins doubled to left for the 1-0 score.

Adams retired the next nine batters until Lamirande stepped to the plate with one out in the fifth. The stock third-sacker poled his second home run in as many nights over Brooks' head in centre field to open up a 2-0 lead.

Hull held the Sports crew until a bad bounce infield hit by "Shiner" Murray in the seventh. An error on the next play put two on with only one out. Hull suddenly could not find the plate and walked the next two batters, forcing in one run. A passed ball allowed the equalizer to score while Adams was fanning. Wright bolstered out to centre to end the scoring.

Then came Brown's millionaire blow to climax the evenly-played affair.

Sports Centre's only other good scoring opportunity came back in the third when Adams singled and Wright walked. Hull had fanned the first two batters and pulled out unharmed when Doug Murray popped to Hayden.

"Wiener" Brown also had a double to make him the night's lone player with more than one safety. Jean-Paul Lamirande homered, Hull and Earl Coustins had doubles and Lou Smrke a single to complete the victors' attack.

"Shaker" Baker, "Shiner" Murray and Al Adams collected the Sports Centre hits.

Lineups: Sports Centre: Wright ss, D. Murray 3b, St. Denis rf, Brooks cf, F. Murray c, Baker 2b, Derushie rf, H. Calman lf, Adams p, Young rf, Whalling (p.h. in seventh).

U.S. Rush for Medals Hits Startling Temporary Snag, Canadians Make Good Show

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP) — The Americans have been boasting that they've assembled the greatest track and field squad ever here. But there are a few countries in these Pan - American games, including Canada, ready to argue.

Responsible were three Trinidad runners, a Cuban beauty, a Brazilian miss and three Canadian girls.

For the first time since the track and field program started last Friday, the Americans failed to place a representative on the three-platform, dias to receive a medal.

BLANKED TWICE

It happened twice in the men's 400-metre final and the women's 80-metre hurdles — and the results made the all-conquering Americans realize they've got to perk up in these events before the 1960 Rome Olympics.

The Canadians didn't win any gold medals but the tracksterswon one silver and two bronze to make it a total of two silver and six bronze for the 175-athlete team at the halfway mark in the 19-day Games. Track - field accounted for the two silvers and four bronze.

Bob Bedard, who has become known as the upset expert of the courts during the current tournament, assured Canada of another medal—gold or silver—by qualifying for the tennis singles final today.

The 27-year-old teacher from Sherbrooke, Que., defeated Francisco Contreras of Mexico in the semi-finals Tuesday, 7-5, 6-2, 7-5. The Mexican was seeded fifth and Bedard, three times winner of the Canadian open, No. 8.

Luis Ayala of Chile reached the final in the opening day Tuesday of the U.S. 7-5, 6-2, 6-1.

SECOND, BUT DISGUSTED

Silver medalist Alice Whitty, Vancouver veteran, threatened to "go out and get disgusted" after her high jump of only four feet, 11 inches earned her a second-place tie Tuesday night.

"I don't know what happened," said Miss Whitty. "The whole field was terrible. I jumped five feet, one inch when I was 14 years old and now—4-11.

The other Canadian medal winners were jubilant. Marian Munroe of Richmond Hill shed tears of joy when she realized she was third in the hurdles, just a whisker behind Brazil's Vanda Dos Santos. Winner Berta Diaz of Cuba, who set a record 11.2 seconds, also won.

THRILLING RACE

The hurdles was the most thrilling race of the night as Misses Munroe, Barbara Mueller of the U.S. and Pat Power of Vancouver, fifth, were all clocked in 11.5.

The 19-year-old Miss Munroe wore a heavy sweater under her track suit, explaining that she had a touch of laryngitis just 10 hours before the race. She also had some heat treatments for a knee injured slightly during a semi-final Monday.

Sally McCallum of Vernon, B.C., "choked up with a big lump in the throat" as she mounted the rostrum to accept the bronze medal for her third in the women's 200-metre final in 24.8, which broke the old Pan American record.

TRINIDAD 1-2-3

A small crowd of about 10,000 pro-American fans could hardly believe the results of the men's quarter-mile when three Trinidad runners who competed in the 1958 British Empire Games finished 1-2-3 ahead of Canadian-born Dave Mills, a former resident of Sudbury, competing for the United States.

The West Indies won its first gold medal when George Kerr tied his Trinidad teammates across the finish line in 46.1 seconds. He was three yards ahead of Basil Lane. Mal Spence was close behind, followed by Mills. Canadians had hopeful eyes fixed on one of today's major events, the marathon, in which Gord Dickson of Hamilton was considered a strong contender, having placed third in the Boston Marathon. Argentina's Osvaldo Suarez, winner of the 10,000-metre race, has been forced to drop out of the marathon for health reasons.

SWIMMERS ADVANCE

Eleven Canadians were entered, individual swimming events Tuesday and all but three qualified for the finals. Irene MacDonald, a star of Olympic and British Empire Games, went after the gold medal that has so far eluded her by placing second in a qualifying round of the women's springboard diving.

Helen Stewart Hunt of Vancouver qualified for the 4-lap final women's 100-metre freestyle but it was a tight squeeze. The defending champion in the event, she saw her 1955 championship time of 1:07.7 bettered by five swimmers, including Margaret Iwasaki of Vancouver. Sandra Scott of Toronto also qualified.

Two other Canadian — Bonnie Benson of Toronto in the women's 200 breaststroke and Robert Wheaton of Toronto in the men's 100 backstroke—participated in the record-breaking.

Parry O'Brien of the U.S. raised his own Games shot put record from 57 feet 8½ inches to 62-5½. Stan Nalko of Hamilton was fifth.

Canada's 1,600 relay team, of which George Shepherd, Peter Colborne is a member, qualified for the final, placing second to the U.S. in its heat.

In basketball, the U.S. women defeated Canada 53-29 and Brazil defeated the Canadian men 60-53.

The U.S. had won 23 gold medals, 21 silver medals, and 12 bronze third-place medals. The nearest competition was Cuba with two gold, one silver and one bronze; the West Indies with one gold, four silver and six bronze and Argentina with one gold and three silver.

KOUFAX AFTER WHIFFING 18 GIANTS — A tired Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers acknowledges the wild cheers of 82,794 fans as he walked to the dressing room after striking out 18 San Francisco Giants last night to set a National League record. The Dodgers won the game 3-2 on a ninth-inning home run. The young left-hander's feat also tied the major league strikeout record of 18 by Bob Feller. (CP from AP).

K-W Dutchmen Sign Former Argo Tackle

KITCHENER (CP)—Coach Bob Jauron of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen announced Tuesday that the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior club has signed Canadian tackle Bert Novis, former Toronto Argonaut and, coincidentally to Calgary Stampeders by Argos earlier this season.

Dutchmen have also released import end Bob Borah to make room for an unnamed replacement.

Jauron said that Milt Campbell, speedy fullback placed on waivers by Hamilton Tiger-Cats last week, is interested in joining the club if he fails to make Montreal Alouettes.

Another player who visited the Kitchener camp Tuesday night was halback Eddie Simms, former London Lord who was cut this week by Toronto Argos. He was voted the senior ORFU's most valuable Canadian player in 1958.

Jauron also announced that quarterback Bob Celeri is a doubtful starter for today's game against London. Celeri got back into action in Sarnia last Saturday after 10 days absence due to a virus infection. He was stricken with the same complaint again Tuesday.

If Celeri is sidelined the quarterbacking will likely be done by Mack Wetzel, an import who came here after being cut from Lords.

Golden Gaels Badly Need More Depth

KINGSTON (CP) — Coach Frank Tindall of Queen's University ran 34 perspiring football players through a two-a-day drill session in 85-degree heat Tuesday as the Queens Golden Gaels opened training for the Intercollegiate Football Union season.

Gone this year are quarterback Cal Connor and tackle-linebacker Pete Wilyk. Both are academically ineligible.

"I could have a good boy in 195-pound Fred Eadley of Stratford but we desperately need more depth," Tindall commented.

Eadley ripped apart his school league in the past few seasons and passed up opportunities to attend the University of Western Ontario and Loudiana State and Tulane University.

Only quarterbacks in camp on opening day were Neil Wilson, a former last year's intermediate Comets, and Rics Brown of Peterborough.

20 Victories Likely for Six Major Hurlers

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Twenty victories, the magic figure that separates the men from the boys, will probably be attained by at least six major league pitchers this season.

With less than a month remaining in the 1959 campaign, the likeliest 20-game winners are Johnny Antonelli and Sam Jones of San Francisco, Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette of Milwaukee, Early Wynn of Chicago White Sox and Frank Lary of Detroit. Antonelli and Burdette each have won 18 games. The others are 17-game winners.

Of the six only Jones, the Giants' hard - throwing righthander, never has won 20. Spahn already holds the National League record for most season winning, 21 more games by a left-hander. He is shooting for No. 10. Antonelli won 23 games in 1954 — the Giants last pennant - winning season—and 20 in 1956. Burdette picked up 20 victories for the first time last year, Wynn has reached the coveted total four times and Lary once, in 1956.

Reliever Elroy Face of Pittsburgh, with 17 straight triumphs and 22 over two seasons has an outside chance to win 20. So have Cal McLish of Cleveland, a 16-game winner, and Don Drysdale of Los Angeles, Vern Law of Pittsburgh and Bud Daley of Kansas City with 15 victories apiece. Law has won his last four.

Series Will Deal With Boy Doing Anything to Get Girl

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Humorist Max Shulman will bring television its first "anti - togethernets" series when his The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis has its premiere Sept. 29 on CBS.

The half-hour situation comedy, occupying the prime P.M. slot each Tuesday, is based on more than 100 Shulman short stories written during the last 17 years.

"Dobie," explains creator Shulman, "is a high school kid who will do anything to get a girl. He's not a wolf. He just has to have a girl. That's his main mission in life.

"This is an anti-togetherness series. Dobie doesn't quite understand his parents, and they don't quite understand him. There are no family discussions in his house to iron out problems. Everybody just tries to keep off everybody else's back.

"Dobie wants to get out of the house as fast as he can to find a girl. The attitude of his father, who operates a grocery store, is best summed up when he moans, 'someday I'm gonna murder that kid,' which of course he doesn't mean. Essentially, Dobie is a likeable kid. A little wacky, perhaps, but nice."

In the Shulman short stories, Dobie was a college boy but he has been reduced to high school age for television to keep up with changing times.

"Most of the freshmen I know," says Shulman, who still maintains an animal college campus tour by doing the wares of a cigaret manufacturer, "are pretty smart these days and don't go for this kind of foolishness.

"Also by putting Dobie back to high school I was able to have him live at home. If the series lasts one year, I'm toying with the idea of having him get married. Teen - age marriages seem to be increasing and that might open up a whole new field for Dobie."

Shulman wrote only eight of the Dobie Gillis scripts himself, but did the rewriting on scripts submitted by the likable cast of writers.

"I'm a corporation now," he says. "An anti-togetherness corporation with an assembly line."

Dana Andrews Says It Pays To Do a Broadway Show

By BOB THOMAS

In the case of Dana Andrews, the answer is yes. He has just returned from a yearly run in Two For the Seesaw, taking over the role Henry Fonda created in the two-character play.

"Financially, I did better than I have in films, although I made less money," he said. "I've been earning $500,000 a year in films for the last five years. During the last year, I made $200,000. I was getting 10 per cent of the play's gross, which was usually $3,000 a week. The rest of my income was from payments on pictures that had been spread out over a few years.

"But because all my living expenses in the east were deductible, I was able to save a third more money than I would here. Also, I did nothing but work, so I wasn't spending money.

ACTING IMPROVES

"As far as my own work is concerned, I think it did a great deal of good. I was working on the character all the time, and I was always getting suggestions. Mary came up with the change; she would see the play every three months and said it improved tremendously.

"My picture career? I think it helped that, too. I left here because of two unfortunate situations: I had got some bad publicity about a couple of incidents that concerned drinking; and I had done a couple of bad pictures.

"The fact that I did eight shows a week for a year and could draw capacity audiences for that time seems to have impressed the producers. At least I'm getting some better offers now."

MAKE PLAYER CUTS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night released 4 of their club players subject to recall when the minor leagues concluded their schedules. Included were pitcher Ralph Mauriello and first baseman Jim Koranda of Montreal of the International League.

AT THE PARK — "Old Hickory" Charlton Heston presents another unforgettable film performance as General Andrew Jackson in "The Buccaneer," Technicolor and VistaVision production, supervised by Cecil B. DeMille now playing at the Park Theatre for the last times. Yul Brynner is co-starred in the film with Heston and Claire Bloom. The new program includes "The Trap", stars Richard Widmark.

At the Belle

The Wynn Story
— Comedy to Drama

The selection of Ed Wynn to play an important principal role in "The Diary of Anne Frank", now in its fifth and final day at the Belle Theatre, as brought to the screen by George Stevens, is at once a startling tribute to the versatility of the veteran comedian and an indication of the very human quality of the new film.

For over fifty years Ed Wynn (now aged 73) was a topmost comedian — and solely a comedian. Within the past couple of years he has made a switch—a sudden one, just like that — and began playing straight dramatic parts. His success has been the talk of the movie and television industries, for nothing quite like this particular blazing of fresh trails has occurred before, as far back as the records run.

The new Ed Wynn, with no funny hats, no giggles, no zany mannerisms in the style that two generations of theatregoers have laughed at and loved and cherished, has already scored strongly on the screen in "The Great Man", with Jose Ferrer, Julie London and his son Keenan Wynn, and in "Marjorie Morningstar," with Natalie Wood and Gene Kelly at the same time he has made a new splash with his new personality role in "Hoax" and "Prestige". It has been a one man revolution.

So when George Stevens began gathering the cast for "The Diary of Anne Frank", he thought of the character of Mr. Dussel, the dentist, and immediately afterwards thought of Ed Wynn as the man who could play that cantankerous but, at bottom, loyal and lovable person as it deserved to be played. What a happy thought it was, has been evidenced by the warm approach of critics and audiences since "The Diary of Anne Frank" opened its premiere engagements in New York, Los Angeles and other cities.

Ed Wynn is Mr. Dussel. That is, an actor of the first rank has taken a rich human character and makes it live and breathe as only a fine actor can.

As recognition of the success of his characterization in the new personality role, Mr. Wynn was awarded many honors by organizations throughout the country.

AT THE PARK — Jerry Lewis and friends, Nobu Atsumi McCarthy and Robert Kazuyoshi Hirano share some hilarious experiences in Jerry's newest laugh hit, "The Geisha Boy". The Technicolor-VistaVision Paramount comedy arrives Thursday at the Park Theatre with co-stars Marie McDonald and Sessue Hayakawa. On the same program is Technicolor "The Pony Express", starring Charlton Heston, Forrest Tucker and Rhonda Fleming.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue in all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores, satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

The result followed the 1921 pattern when Conservatives were elected provincially a year after Conservatives won the federal house. In 1933 islanders elected a Liberal government which had held power since.

Mr. Shaw, deputy agriculture minister under both Liberal and conservative governments, pledged an array of practical improvements. They included a marketing extension service, pay-ment of a part of teachers' sala-ries now paid by local school boards, and reform of the proce-dure by which some voters can set ballots for both councillors and assemblymen.

DUAL RIDINGS

The province is divided into three counties, each with 10 members in the legislature. Each of the dual ridings elects a councillor and assemblyman al-though there is no distinction be-tween them in the legislature. All voters can cast ballots for as-semblymen, but only owners of property worth $325, veterans and clergymen can vote for coun-cillors.

The campaign was a straight two-way fight between Conserva-tives and Liberals. Each had full slates of candidates, all men.

A SECOND IN A BILLION PARTS — Two national research council scientists look over their atomic clock which can measure time to a few billionths of a second. The second of its kind in the Western world — the other is in England — it will be used where precise timing is necessary in atomic and space research, in industry and for military purpose. It was built under the direction of Dr. S. N. Kalra (left), 32, head of the high frequency laboratory of the NRC, and Ralph Bailey, 47, formerly of Eyebrow, Sask. (CP Photo).

Atomic Clock, Just Devised Will Measure Time Within A Few Billionths of Second

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — An atomic timepiece accurate within a few billionths of a second has been developed and put into operation by the National Research Council.

Second of its kind in the Western world—the other is in England—it represents man's greatest measure of accuracy in telling time. Scientists have increasingly combined astronomy and atomic physics to determine time to an almost infinite degree of fineness.

A massive instrument connected to a bank of electronic control equipment, the atomic clock will play an invaluable role in research, especially in space travel and in learning more about the secrets of nuclear fission.

It will also have important industrial and military-applications in fields where precise timing is a necessity, including communications and the firing of missiles.

YOUNG BUILDER

The atomic clock, similar to one at the National Physical Laboratory in England, was built at NRC's division of applied physics under direction of Dr. S. N. Kalra, 32-year-old head of the division's high frequency laboratory.

Dr. Kalra, a native of India who has been with NRC since 1952, started work on the clock in 1956. Associated with him in this research are Ralph Bailey, 47, formerly of Eyebrow, Sask., and Herman Daniels, 42, a native of Holland on the NRC staff for 2½ years.

The sand and water clocks of early times and the pendulum clocks of more recent years are crude instruments compared with high-precision timing devices now in general use. But even these clocks — using the radio waves from quartz crystals—do not fill today's need for accurate time. Scientists doing research with radio waves—which travel at the speed of light, or 186,282 miles a second—need timing accuracy up to a millionth of a second and better.

The atomic clock works in conjunction with a crystal clock. It periodically checks the crystal clock, improves its performance and ensures that there is no change in its radio frequencies. By doing this the system tells time with an accuracy of within one second in 300 years.

"In techniques of timing, precision of a few billionths of a second have become a reality," Dr. Kalra said in an interview.

He said his research program has made it possible to compare astronomical methods of time measurement against an atomic clock.

OTTAWA (CP) — An atomic "The work has already revealed many shortcomings in using the rotation of the earth around its axis as a means of measuring time. The earth has shown itself to have both predictable and unpredictable changes in its period of rotation, and these give rise to uncertainty in time measurements."

Astronomers also determine time in terms of the motion of the moon around the earth. This results in a more uniform time scale, but requires observations over long periods to obtain high precision.

EARTH'S ORBIT

The latest astronomical definition bases time on the period of the earth's orbit around the sun. But once this time is established it is another matter to keep it, to measure it off in fractions of a second and to calibrate clocks which will record it.

Measurement of the time interval therefore is a supporting job to be done by physicists, and their most revolutionary timepiece is the atomic clock.

The clock itself does not tell the time directly. It is used to control the radio frequencies of quartz crystals, the most accurate form of time measurement yet devised.

Dr. Kalra said all man-made clocks which depend on some mechanical or electro-mechanical property of matter are not stable to the required accuracy, and a means of checking their rate is thus required.

"Atomic clocks fill this need quite adequately, and represent the highest precision attained so far."

Jury Indicts Three Former MBS Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three former officials of the Mutual Broadcasting System were accused Tues. of accepting $150,000 to put out political propaganda favorable to the Dominican Republic over the American network.

The accusation was made in an indictment charging them with failure to register with the United States justice department as agent for a foreign principal.

Attorney - General William P. Rogers, announced that the indictment, returned by a federal grand jury, named the following:

International financier Alexander L. Guterma who was Mutual's president during the early months of this year;

Hal Roach Jr., former Mutual board chairman;

The indictment named as co-conspirators, but not as defendants, MBS Incorporated and Radio News Service Corporation, described as having been organized by the three indicted Mutual officials.

Also named as a co-conspirator was Otto Vega, an official of the Dominican Republic government.

The indictment charged that Guterma, Roach and Culpepper obtained $750,000 from the Dominican government in early February of this year on an understanding that Mutual's radio facilities in the United States would be used to disseminate political propaganda favourable to the Dominican Republic.

The indictment said the foreign principals who were to be represented in the U.S. by the three Mutual officials were Vega, Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina, Porfirio Rubirosa and the Dominican Republic government.

Guterma, Roach and Culpepper ceased to hold official positions with Mutual when that radio network went into a bankruptcy reorganization several weeks ago.

Guterma is already under two federal indictments in New York city on charges of failing to make required reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission in connection with his international operations in high finance.

The indictment contained three counts of failing to register as foreign agents and conspiring wilfully to fail to register mutual as a foreign agent. Each count carries possible maximum penalties of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

'Classic Warfare' Showdown Fight Looms In Laos

Reds' Guerrilla Tactics Abandoned in Big Push

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Laotian government troops threw up a defence line against advancing Communist rebels today only 12 miles from Sam Neua, the royal army's military headquarters in northern Laos.

Red forces since Sunday have overrun lightly manned outposts. Advance units were reported within 10 to 18 miles of the town of Sam Neua in what shaped up as a major offensive.

"It's classic warfare, not guerrilla tactics," Defence Secretary Phoumi Nosavan said this morning.

He charged that the attackers included at least one battalion of regular North Viet Nam troops, from Laos' neighbor to the east.

PEIPING (Reuters)

"We intend to hold Sam Neua at all costs," Phoumi declared. "We will let the world be a witness to the aggression of the world that Pathet Lao forces were re-established in their old domain."

The rebels of the Pathet Lao movement, who want to set up a Communist regime in the little Indochinese kingdom, control the two North Laotian provinces of Phong Saly and Sam Neua during the last years of the Indochinese war.

Only a week ago the rebel movement reached a truce with the royal government and agreed to disband. The rebels resumed activity this summer and the government charged that they had retrained and supplied by North Viet Nam's Communist government.

GRAB 80 VILLAGES

Officials said the Reds launched a concerted attack Sunday morning 10 miles from the North Viet Nam border, and captured 80 Laotian villages.

Government troops, mostly irregulars, retreated along a 35-mile front in the face of the assault, which the defence secretary said was supported by a bombardment of artillery supplied by North Viet Nam.

Brig.-Gen. Chanee Rithikone, commander of the royal armed forces, estimated the total rebel strength at about 3,500. Government forces in the Sam Neua area are reported to number six battalions and units of another.

Regular air traffic to the town of Sam Neua was suspended Wednesday but planes are reported carrying supplies to the defenders.

House, Senate Reach Agreement On Labor Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—A committee labor bill agreed upon in days of arduous bargaining by committees of the Senate and House of Representatives comes up in the Senate today for expected near-unanimous passage.

The measure then will go to the House, which may send it on to President Eisenhower Friday.

Eisenhower's approval is considered certain since the final product meets most of the specifications he laid down for effective legislation curbing abuses by labor unions.

The compromise writer into federal law for the first time detailed controls over internal operations of unions on such points as finances, elections, trusteeships and rights of members.

DISPUTES CONTROL

But it also—and this is the part that caused the long and difficult conference—strengthens the Taft-Hartley labor law on such explosive issues as secondary boycotts—those affecting neutral employers in a labor dispute—and organizational picketing.

In the end, the committees accepted the basic pattern of the broader Landrum-Griffin House measure, the Taft-Hartley changes.

But Senate Democrats succeeded in getting into the measure limitations on the new Taft-Hartley provisions aimed at protecting legitimate union rights.

The Republican minority expressed disappointment in the bill. The AFL-CIO has criticized the measure in the form it passed the Senate and strongly assailed the Landrum-Griffin version.

Smallwood Will Be Speaker Byelection

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, arch enemy of the federal Progressive Conservative government, has been invited to speak in the Russell byelection campaign.

Mr. Smallwood has indicated that he would like to keep the speaking engagement if it can be fitted in with plans for a national speaking tour, Liberal constituency workers said Wednesday night.

"We would have liked to have him kick off the campaign," said Aldermas H. Maxwell, Ottawa lawyer who is working for Liberal candidate Hartland Molson, acting Ottawa mayor. "But we hope now that Mr. Smallwood can fit in an appearance toward the end of the campaign."

The Russell byelection is Oct. 5. Mr. Smallwood said after his short provincial election victory that he planned a tour Canada to air his grievances against the federal government.

Russell constituency was last vacant in the Commons with the death earlier this year of Liberal J. O. Gour.

VISIT SOVIET WORKERS

LONDON (Reuters) — Hugh Gaitskell and his wife chatted with Russian workers in a Sheffield steel foundry Wednesday while Aneurin Bevan talked to newspapers in the lobby. The British Labor party leaders also visited the Soviet cruiser Aurora, Tass said.

Today's Chuckle

Success is relative — the more success the more relatives.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Southern Ontario enjoyed the most comfortable night in almost a month as slightly cooler and considerably less humid air swept into the province in the wake of Wednesday's unsettled weather. This trend towards more comfortable temperatures and humidity will be predominantly sunny both days with temperatures ranging from afternoon highs of 75-80 to overnight lows of 55-60.

PAYROLL SUBSIDY WILL BE GIVEN MUNICIPALITIES

Winter Works Program Available

OTTAWA (CP)—The same federal aid offered municipalities last winter will be available again to help combat unemployment, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday.

The aid will start at the same time—Dec. 1—and run until April 30, a month less than last year when the program was extended one month.

Projects approved by the provincial committees for construction and improvement of municipal roads, streets, sidewalks and like or such development as parks and playgrounds — will get a federal subsidy of half the payroll costs involved.

PLANNED EARLIER

The main change is that the program has been confirmed earlier this year, Mr. Diefenbaker said he hopes that will allow more municipalities to get their programs in shape and so force-cast a 50-per-cent increase on the $10,000,000 his government paid as payroll subsidies last year.

Provincial reaction was slow to materialize.

But Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan's socialist government said he still thinks the program starts too late at Dec. 1. He also said this, with the tight-money situation, municipalities would be able to buy all the materials they might want for approved projects.

ONTARIO IN PLAN

The Ontario government announced assumed 25 per cent of the labor cost of approved projects and municipalities paid 25 per cent and the cost of materials.

"In principle we support the federal government and we are willing now to see the actual terms of the Ottawa plan," the premier told the Legislature Wednesday night.

Correspondent Recalls First Attack on Warsaw as Hitler Sought to Destroy Poland

Destruction of Poland was Hitler's first order of business as he started the Second World War 20 years ago. In this last of three articles on those events a former Associated Press correspondent recalls the first attacks on Warsaw.

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
Written for The Associated Press

At 5:30 on a misty and cloudy morning—Sept. 1, 1939—the Second World War started in our "backyard" in Warsaw.

A screaming siren lifted Elmer Peterson (Associated Press, bureau chief in Warsaw) and me out of our beds. Then a terrific explosion rocked our office-apartment, the, locale that Hitler had triggered as a war to end all wars to change the life of the whole world.

The Nazi bombs were aimed at a bridge over the nearby Vistula, but fortune on the first course less than a block away. German bombs also hit an airbase in the Polish Corridor near Danzig at almost the same time as well as Krakow, Katowice and other fortified areas minutes later.

We were shocked, somewhat jittery, but not surprised. For two or three days, as Polish and German troops mobilized and moved closer to the frontier, all signs had pointed to war. Blackouts had been ordered in Warsaw for might before.

Peterson and I began hammering out the first of a flow of stories as we got scraps of information from the war office, the U.S. Embassy, and Polish newspaper friends. Day later we formed many of our urgent messages still spiked in the cable and radio offices, and a dateline of a deserted censor's office.

As the first few days of scattered air raids, there was only sporadic anti-aircraft fire and we saw not more than four or five Polish planes take the air against the bombers.

But in Warsaw the Poles were brimming over with optimism. Their troops were "fighting like lions" and would soon invade Germany. They had guns that would make it impossible for any Nazi planes to fly over Warsaw.

The Poles were fighting courageously at the front. A powerful cavalry unit actually did invade Germany, but it never came back.

No one in Poland seemed to know that the Poles, gallant and brave as they were, did not have the firepower, equipment, tanks, planes to stand up to Hitler's forces. By comparison with the Nazis they were ill-armed.

Soon after that first bomb fell the Polish radio became the self alarm system. Warsaw Concerto was played over and over accompanied by, interrupted only by major war news or air raid alarms.

The terrible confusion of alarms, attacks and evacuation made it extremely difficult to report what occurred.

Then from somewhere in Pomerania behind the German lines came to tighten up their reading pattern and the Heinkel bombers swooped closer and closer.

When the Poles learned late on Sunday that Britain and France had declared war on Germany they were so fully absorbed in saying that it meant a quick, sure victory. By the hundreds they mobilized and yelled and sang down our street to the French Embassy until long past midnight.

Almost as their cheers died Nazi bombs Germans launched coordinated attacks along Poland's borders, pushing toward Warsaw. The Polish High Command, in a dream, that Poland would be smashed within 10 days. Help never came and never would be the same again.

BILL OF RIGHTS STAND SOUGHT FROM LAWYERS

May Force Meeting To Voice an Opinion

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — An expression of opinion on the question of a Canadian bill of rights may be forced from the Canadian Bar Association this week by its civil liberties section.

The association, after two years of policy statement study, has expressed no opinion representing the body as a whole.

A suggestion was put forward that a draft resolution be placed before the section meeting to move or less define the area of discussion in an attempt to reach a conclusion. Failing that the session, the resolution will go before the convention's annual meeting.

Only one indication of unanimity of thought was apparent: That there is a bundle of rights in what ever form it may take, is inevitable because every government in Ottawa has decided to put one on the statute books.

Elsewhere in the convention Wednesday:

The constitutional justice section called for a complete revision of the Juvenile Delinquents Act with particular attention to distinguishing between juveniles charged with serious offences and those charged with minor offences.

SPEEDY LOWER COURTS

The same section undertook, at the suggestion of Saskatoon lawyer J. M. Goldenberg, to carry out a study in all provinces of the magistrates' courts.

Mr. Goldenberg said the magistrate and his court, by the decentralization of justice, are not held in the same respect as superior courts and their judges and this influences the approach to appointment, qualifications and tenure of security of the magistrate.

A dinner audience of 1,700 gave a standing ovation to a convention visitor—Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, former prime minister and now honorary life president of the CBA—who will see his son, Renaud, installed Saturday as CBA president.

Waves Force Swimmer to Abandon Effort

TORONTO (CP)—Tom Oakes, 35, was within four miles of the international border at Fort Erie Wednesday in his 26-mile swim when steadily mounting waves forced him to abandon the effort.

He and his trainer, Steve Molors, stopped the swim just past 7:30 p.m. EDT. It was almost impossible to get food from the boat because of the waves, he said. Canadian breast-stroke champion, said today.

Oakes had been in the water 15 hours. Last week he swam 21½ miles from Sarnie to Ormillia.

Water Diversion Bill Killed For Session by Senate Vote

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Senate, it had been generally expected that the bill would be passed and be vetoed by President Eisenhower.

The House of Representatives has approved similar legislation four times and the Senate twice. The measures passed by both houses of Congress because of Canadian objections.

Democratic Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois, principal supporter of the diversion bill, predicted the Senate action would end any substantial defeat of the measure.

He argued that the increased amount of water Chicago wants would lower the levels of lakes Michigan and Huron by one one-quarter of an inch. He said Canada has been given generous treatment on boundary waters and the foreign relations group's study is unnecessary.

Coexistence or War Only Choices, No Third Path, States Khrushchev

NEW YORK (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev says the West must fall in with the Soviet policy of peaceful coexistence of communism and capitalism or face "the most destructive war in history."

"There is no third choice," the Soviet premier said in an article appearing in the current issue of Foreign Affairs, quarterly review of the Council on Foreign Relations, a private organization of prominent Americans.

Khrushchev said that if relations between the West and the Communist bloc are to improve, "the cold war must be terminated, trade must be removed" to let peaceful competition develop nor-

Congo Reform Advocate Quits Belgian Cabinet

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The resignation of Jean Rey as minister for the Belgian Congo was announced today but the rest of the Premier Gaston Eyskens government is expected to stay in office.

Van Hemelryck's resignation was tendered at a meeting on the Congo situation Wednesday when he was reported to have opposed Eyskens' plan to grant ministers over his proposals for political and economic reforms.

The government announced after the meeting that it would remain "faithful" to its declaration of last January to institute gradual political reforms in the Congo and put the African colony on the road to independence.

Ike Tells NATO Every Country Has Equal Voice

Says No Country Needs To Take 'Second Place'

PARIS (AP)—President Eisenhower said today there will be no war if the 15 member countries of the North Atlantic Alliance pledge "patriotic, deep devotion" to the principles of NATO.

In a surprise talk to members of NATO's permanent council, Eisenhower also declared that no member country of the alliance "need take a second place."

That clearly was an allusion to France, which has been demanding a bigger voice in shaping NATO policy.

WON'T BE FORGOTTEN

Eisenhower reassured the 14 other partners of the alliance that he won't forget them when he exchanges visits with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The NATO council session was behind closed doors and the White House press secretary, James Hagerty, later gave an account of the remarks.

Eisenhower told the group that his decision to make a visit to testimony to the importance that he and the people attach to NATO and its permanent council.

"In an apparent additional assurance to de Gaulle and smaller NATO powers, Eisenhower said:

"The United States seeks no position in NATO and that of equal position and is ready to work with all member nations regardless of their size."

MEETS LEADERS

Also on his schedule was a meeting with Italian Premier Antonio Segni and Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella and a talk about the Western military situation with Gen. Lauris Norstad, NATO's supreme military commander in Europe.

Informed sources said the Eisenhower-de Gaulle talks Wednesday would be a preliminary stage but got off to a promising beginning.

They reported that the French leader was gradually unfolding his ideas for a settlement of the nationalist rebellion in Algeria and France's demands for a place in NATO councils equal to that of the United States and Britain.

Diplomatic sources said the two presidents also discussed possibilities of a summit conference after the Berlin situation.

WARM GREETING

Eisenhower's visit was bathed in affection, proved by unfolding estimated 1,000,000 Frenchmen who lined the streets Wednesday to greet as he and de Gaulle dents drove about the city.

"Although the years pass, nothing can efface the memory of the victory won under his command, by the skilled armies of the nationality in France, with soldiers of France.

"I repeat that one does not forget? Paris has just given it."

"Je vous aime, tous"—"I love you, all."

Is Sure 600,000-Year-Old Skull Found in Africa Is Missing Link

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—A British scientist said today he is convinced a pre-historic skull found in Tanganyika recently represents the long-sought missing link between the African ape-man and human beings.

Anthropologist Louis Leakey and his wife found the skull, he said, is convincing evidence of the truth of his theory that man is descended from lower orders of animals.

He was giving a press conference on his return from a pan-African conference on African pre-history in Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, where he announced the discovery of the skull.

He said scientists had been trying for many years to find the "missing link" between South African "ape men" and true-man and "at last we have got the link."

He said the skull is that of a 15- to 18-year-old boy and he estimates its age at 600,000 years.

Leakey's findings, leading anthropologists, palaeontologists and geologists at the Leopoldville congress agreed with his findings.

States Accused Of Instigating 'Civil War'

By RONALD FARQUHAR

PEKING (Reuters)—Red China's Premier Chou En-lai, Marshal Chen Yi, Wednesday accused the United States of instigating "civil war" in Laos.

At the same time he denied that Communist China has ever encroached on other countries and warned other countries against encroaching on it.

Chen was speaking at a North Viet Nam national day reception at which Indian Ambassador G. Parthasarathy was present, along with Chinese Premier Chou En-lai.

FRONTIER INCIDENTS

Chen made no reference to India by name, but observers interpreted his statement as a reference to recent frontier incidents involving Chinese and Indian troops.

"In international affairs we always stand for settlement of disputes between nations through peaceful negotiations," Chen declared, "and for peaceful coexistence and peaceful competition and cooperation with different social systems."

His reference to "encroachment" came immediately after his attack on the U.S. policy in Washington "instigating" the "civil war" in Laos and was meeting the security of China and North Viet Nam.

The U.S. is trying to draw Laos further into its military bloc, Chen added. It had introduced armed personnel and arms into Laos and set up expanded military bases and centres "for disguised special agents near the borders of China and (north) Viet Nam."

Inquiry Report Will Be Given In Late October

TORONTO (CP) — A government-ordered inquiry into suburban York township land deals, blocked by earlier stages by accusations of bribery, ended quietly Wednesday.

Judge Joseph Sweet, who presided, has more than 8,000 pages of evidence to study before he submits his report.

He said the actual pre-paration of the report could not be hasty. "It must ask for patience from the persons concerned and the public, but my hope is that it will not be far or too long in preparation."

Judge Sweet would ask for consideration of criminal action connected with evidence of alleged bribery and suggest certain administrative changes in the system.

The document is expected by late October or early November. It was either to be the first contribution to the investigation into municipal dealings in the area the judge gave special mention to commission counsel T. Kelso Roberts, acting township counsel John J. Robinette.

Witnesses Hold 3-Day Meeting

Seventy-five Belleville and district residents travelled to Kingston today to attend a three-day convention of Jehovah's Witnesses, it was announced by Mr. Ralph E. Wickerson, spokesman for the local congregation.

Mr. Wickerson and three other Belleville men, William Alton, William Neave and Robert Joy, will speak to close to one thousand delegates representing seventeen congregations assembled in the Kingston Communication Memorial Centre. "The theme of our convention is 'Do the Divine Will' and its purpose is to aid Jehovah's Witnesses in carrying out their Christian responsibilities both as students of the Bible and as teachers of it," Mr. Wickerson said.

The principal speaker will be Mr. Arnold MacNamara of Toronto, special representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society which is the legal governing body of Jehovah's Witnesses in 175 lands.

Saturday evening a color movie of the Divine Will International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses will be shown by Mr. MacNamara. This eight-day assembly held in New York City last summer drew an all-time record attendance of 253,922 persons and over 7,000 new Witnesses were baptized in one day there. Patterned after the New York Assembly, though on somewhat smaller scale the Kingston assembly will also feature a baptism service.

Another highlight of the assembly will be Mr. MacNamara's Sunday afternoon discourse entitled "When is God's Will to be Done on Earth?" to which the general public is especially invited.

New School Signs To Be Colored Blue and White

In conformity with Ontario Department of Highways regulations calling for standardization of highway signs across the province, new school signs are in the order of erection in the city with most expected to be in position by the opening of school next week.

Under the new regulations, schools signs are now to be blue and white instead of the former black and white.

School crossing signs may be either white or blue in background with the alternative color being used for the lettering and familiar figures of children. These signs are to be placed at all school crossings in the city.

In addition, a "school ahead" sign, blue background with white lettering and pointed at the top, will be placed approximately 300 feet before each school crossing, thus giving adequate warning to motorists that a school crossing is ahead.

Also in place of the former oval yellow and black hand "stop" signs carried by school patrols, this year these hand signs will be the octagonal red signs now used for all stop streets.

The city public works department has been erecting new school crossing signs throughout the city during the summer holiday period.

National Home Builders' Week May Be Held in Area

The success of National Home Builders' Week in various communities across Canada was outlined to members of the Quinte Home Builders' Association by T. C. Thompson, executive secretary of the National Home Builders' Association, at their first monthly meeting of the fall season yesterday evening. This Dominion-wide project, which will be held from September 26th to October 3rd, was stressed as being an opportunity for all builders to promote home building within their area by a combined effort for everyone's advantage. Timed for the early fall this project helps to promote a high level of winter home building and aids in providing winter work for construction tradesmen and workers.

Mr. Thompson also gave a description of "Houses '59," a Canada-wide showing of specially selected homes, sponsored by Christine magazine for Home Builders' Week. This project provides for specially attractive homes to be displayed in major cities across Canada, from Vancouver, B.C., to Halifax, N.S.

The advantages of builders' land co-operatives were also outlined by Mr. Thompson. Using the Sarnia, Ontario, co-operative as an example, the most successful example in the speaker's opinion, he showed how builders could take action to provide serviced land developments at reasonable cost, avoiding the high prices charged by real estate agents. He pointed out the success of these in various cities where land speculation was hindering housing developments such as in Winnipeg and Calgary.

Mention was also made of the excellent speakers and films which were available to local home builders' associations from the national organization including in many important aspects of house building and its allied problems.

Another guest speaker was Phil Flagler of CJBQ radio station, who outlined a proposed promotion project for the members of the Quinte Home Builders' Association to participate in for Home Builders' Week.

WOULD HOLD BROADCASTS

The proposal consisted of holding several live broadcasts a day from a "model home" in Belleville. The home would be completely equipped with every-thing from food in the refrigerator to a car in the garage and would be lived in by a member of the CJBQ staff who would interview visitors to the home and describe the home's features to the radio audience. Those present showed a considerable interest in the project, and plans for a meeting of the executive and interested members is planned for the near future in order to finalize their decision. The scheme would provide all members of the Quinte Home Builders' Association and suppliers of items used in the home.

Pat Halloran introduced the new members to the association. These included Dick Pocsitra, plastering contractor, Al Van Rompey, local bricklayer, and Fred Pope, of the Bellwood manufacturing Company. Guests included King Ganon of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in Kingston, Eric Carter, local inspector of the CMHC, and Roy Care of United Concrete Products in Cobourg.

An invitation was extended to members to attend an outdoor product display put on by the Belleville Brick firm at the cottage of Bernard Beehler on Robin Lake next Wednesday.

Doug Black, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and president Charles Lambert was chairman for the meeting. Grace was given by Bert Houston.

Trenton Airmen Flying Twelve Jets to Turkey

TRENTON — The weather was hot and muggy at Uplands airport near Ottawa Tuesday afternoon. A small group of officers watched as 12 shiny T33 Silver Star jet trainers took to the air in quick succession. Also in the group was Turkish Air Attache Lt. Col. Kemal Akat, who in company with Wing Commander C. Allison, Acting Commanding Officer of RCAF Uplands, had just finished inspecting aircraft and flying personnel taking part in Operation "Western Way".

The aircraft, being presented to Turkey as a gift under NATO mutual air aid, had seen service previously as training aircraft at RCAF units in the prairies and were flown by the experienced crews from 128 Acceptance and Ferry Flight of 6 Repair Depot, Trenton, Ontario.

Ultimate destination of the craft is the Turkish Air Force Base at Eskisehir, Turkey, and time of arrival is September 9. Before this final touch-down, however, the jet trainers will land on the soil of six nations, five of which are members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Due to the limited range of the T33 the route is broken down into "legs" and landings for refueling and servicing will be made at Goose Bay, Labrador; Sondestrom, Greenland; Keflavik (RCAF station), Iceland; 4 Fighter Wing, Germany and Naples, Italy.

ENVIABLE RECORD

Commanding the operation is Squadron Leader W. G. Richmond of Vancouver, B.C., who as commander of 128 Acceptance and Ferry Flight, is well aware of the capabilities of the personnel involved. 128 is a "F"F's third overseas operation in as many months. The unit already has an enviable reputation for ferry flight work in North American circles.

Flight Lieutenant Hugh Elliott of Hamilton, Ont. serving as flight leader, will see his "flock" at twelve increase to 22 when 10 T-Birds are added to the mass flight at 4 Fighter Wing, Germany.

As in former trans-Atlantic flights, rescue facilities will be supplied by the RCAF and USAF on over-water legs. Here "duck-butt" aircraft orbit over specific areas of the ocean along the route, supplying a navigation aid as well as rescue facilities.

In flights of this kind, base servicing is not taxed by the ferried aircraft since the RCAF supplies its own servicing crews who leapfrog ahead of the jets in a "mother" craft, in this case a North Star of 426 Transport Squadron, long experienced in overseas jet ferry operations. This squadron formerly based at Lachine, P.Q. is now functioning from RCAF Station Trenton.

In all, eleven NATO countries have benefited from NATO air aid by Canada. Only last summer Turkey received its initial allotment of T33s under the plan. Other nations receiving aid are the United Kingdom, West Germany, France, Belgium, Demark, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Italy, Greece and Portugal.

Twenty Years After

Twenty years after!

Magic words those, the title of one of Alexandre Dumas' most exciting books, the sequel to "The Three Musketeers."

How strange it seemed, in distant boyhood days, to read of Athos and Porthos and Aramis and D'Artagnan riding and fighting again — after twenty years! Could it be that men, even heroes like these, could retain their skill and vigor after the passing of such a great time?

It was cause for wonder — but no greater cause than would have been the suggestion, twenty years ago today, that the time would come when we would look back at the events of this memorable September day and recall them but vaguely.

Probably few of us can remember accurately exactly what we did on Sept. 3, 1939. Many of us, though, may remember more clearly what our feelings were.

It is strange, after all these years, to discover that a reaction which we suspected at the time was completely individual was shared by others.

Tom Henshaw, Associated Press writer, said it in a review of the events of the first three days of September, 1939, published in Monday's issue of the Ontario Intelligencer.

"It was a thing to be dreaded, yet to some it came as a relief."

That sentence he used in his description of the events of the first day of the month, when Hitler's storm troopers blasted their way into Poland.

Somehow, we doubt whether many Poles felt relief —but in lands more distant from the battles this reaction was apparently not the sole property of one or two.

The relief did not come that first day, but three days later, when Britain and France announced that they were honoring their treaty with Poland and were at war with Germany.

The die was cast. The long months of mounting tension, the gnawing indecision, were past. The worst had come.

It is doubtful whether, even in the blackest days of the war, even among those on whom war laid its heaviest burdens of pain and disfigurement and grief, that the decision made that day was regretted by many.

Between the tensions that gripped the world at that time and those which exist today there would seem to be two major differences. Then nobody really believed there would be a war until there was one; today if the world drifted into a conflict many would accept it as the coming of the inevitable. But whereas twenty years ago there were some who greeted the war as a relief from unbearable tensions, we doubt whether there are many today who would regard the fact as less to be dreaded than the dread of it.

What this means, if indeed it means anything, is a question which cannot be answered except by a skilled psychologist. It may be nothing more than the misinterpretation as a mass reaction of what are merely the effects of twenty years of aging on an individual. We all are apt to forget that, while we as persons grow old, the nation as a body politic may be just as young today as it was twenty years ago.

Twenty years ago. How strange those words read! Who, back in 1939, would have dreamed of today's world —so different in its political alliances, in its machines of war; so much the same in its peaceful occupations and in its fear that these may be interrupted.

Count Down

"Time, gentlemen, please!"

There may come a day when this call in the London pubs will not necessarily mean the premature end of a pleasant evening.

Darrell C. Romick of Goodyear Aircraft Corporation says company scientists have evolved plans for a three-stage rocket which would carry passengers from London to Los Angeles in forty minutes.

Allowing for the time difference, this means that even the wildest of the Mayfair set, after an evening at a favorite bottle club, would still be in lots of time for the height of the high jinks in Hollywood—if today's not the highway from the rocket-port novels.

On the other hand, sports enthusiasts with nerves frayed by watching the Dodgers land three men on third at the same time in a night game will be able to rocket away to the soothing atmosphere of a cricket test match down in Melbourne.

A MAIDEN'S WORRY

By EDGAR A. GUEST

She's writing to the papers,
She's worried through and through;
She seeks advice from any one
Who might know what to do.
The hot that stocks are falling,
That troubles her right now;
Her worry is greater one—
Her wrinkle in her brow.

The price of food has risen
And debts are piling high,
But these are petty trifles
That never cause a sigh.
A greater worry frets her;
She doesn't know just how
To go about removing
That wrinkle from her brow.

Oh, Father Time, deal lightly,
With all our maidens here;
Plow not a single furrow
In those that we hold dear.
Go wrinkle up my forehead,
Across my features plow
And mar my splendid visage,
But spare the maiden's brow.

Thinks Success A Term for Second-Raters

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

If they are so sure of their manhood, why are the beatniks and hipsters constantly need reassurance by their fellows to each other as "Man"? This is the language of little boys pretending to be grown up.

There is a world of difference between the false chastity of repressed and the genuine chastity of those sensuous personalities who have trained themselves to control their passions; and it is usually the repressed who are most concerned with the "lewdness" in others.

"Success", if you think about it, is a word we apply only to second-rate characters, not to those who are first-rate. Who would refer to Schweitzer as a "successful" doctor, or to Einstein as a "successful" scientist?

Every intellectual should know a way of combating that is not merely intellectual, to keep him from becoming sterile and over-concerned with "lewdness" in others.

This is why the Talmud commands every man to learn cobbling, or some other craft, apart from his studies.

A "successful" is a troubled boy whose parents are too poor to send him to a finishing school and who take away when he gets into trouble.

The worst result of a little learning is that we begin to think in "types", and to categorize persons according to some scheme we have read about, rather than regard each individual as a unique personality; nobody can be so inhumane as the Machine Worship of "morality".

A certain sense of inferiority is natural to adolescence. It is only the really weak minded who do not possess it, and are the most unpleasant people to deal with.

A husband soon learns that if he walks into a jewelry store to buy a last minute purchase, and finds himself short of cash, one chance out of a million that his wife has already opened a charge-account there.

The desire to be seen and admired is stronger, in some persons, than the desire for pleasure; as witness the boys who drive up and down the main street of a prosperous town in a new cream convertible, with nowhere to go and nothing to do, but patheticly eager that the populace observe their synthetic show of wealth.

I applaud the candor of the Belleville Rotarians who explained his frequent attachments by summons-servers with the cryptic slogan: "I've never learned to reconcile my gross habits with my nit-hood."

Why not wear matching cabana suits to the beach never look at the cabana boys in the cabana?

Reading a collection of real-life murder mysteries, "My Strangest Case", written by the police chiefs of a dozen world capitals, it becomes painfully evident that crime in life lacks all the qualities of crime in books so appealing — the puzzle is simple, the characters are ready, the motives are blunt and bestial, and the capture is a matter of dogged and persistence, rather than brilliant deduction. Truth may be stranger, but it is abashder, than fiction.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE BLENDING OF LOVE

Love doesn't stand by itself, although it were but a single unit. Love is a blending of kindness, courtesy, gentleness, unselfishness, understanding, and thoughtfulness. It should have room in it for all these and many others as examples by forgiveness and spiritual dignity.

Love should always come to the rescue when misrepresented and assailed. Its blend with the universe, even, should be a part of its life among men and women. I like those fine words from the Bible, startling: "For God so loved" — If we have a big heart, love covers wide space there would always be room for forgiveness, breadth of vision, and an influential personality.

The world needs a blended love to draw all nations into an organization as one, ever ready to defend the rights of all. Love is equipment enough to serve all people and all nations. Without it nothing but darkness and fear can reign, evil as well as social chaos.

Imagine what this world could be, bound together by a blending of love that would be like Christ's Good Relentless: Then your children would be safe from hunger in their schools, and Nations: Then quarrelling between your and others would have a glorious end! Must life upon this planet be forever one hidden in hope, "all mankind love a lover."

The greatest ingredient lacking in this tragic world is blended love! The love of mother, father, and children. No need for sentimentality! Just blended love!

Women Train To Fight Fires

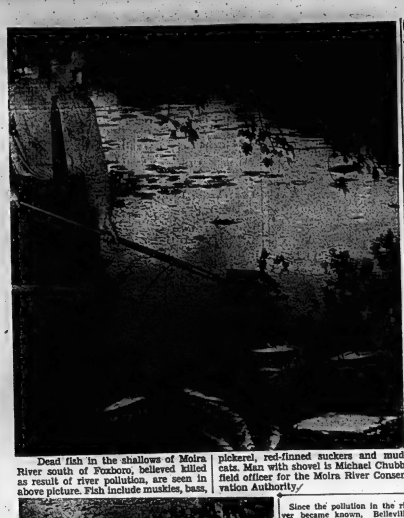
St. Thomas Times-Journal

The village of Cove, near Scattle, has a volunteer fire department, but the women were perturbed because if a fire broke out the men might be scattered about; some would be in their offices, around the community. So the women decided to help out.

They took a course of instruction from the Seattle Fire Department and are now competent to handle such equipment as they may have.

That's a good idea. But we're wondering what a husband would do when confronted with the dilemma of arriving to the fire hall and a roast had catched fire in the oven.

North Stars Are Reliable



Timmins Daily Express

Many an air travellers has damned the North Stars, because of their noise and tendency to vibrate. They are rather lumbering ships, without much beauty or line. But how many times have you heard of an air accident involving a North Star? Like the Dakotas, they are work horses, not sleek and trim but tough and dependable.

The RCAF bought North Stars 13 years ago and added to them in service. None has been involved in a fatal accident. They have logged some 350,000 hours of flying time. Last year they carried seven million pounds of freight and 35,000 passengers.

The aircraft has been used on the Berlin and Korean airlifts, to help supply the United Nations forces in Europe, in Egypt, and on round-the-world trips.

No. 426 Thunderbird Squadron based at Trenton has 13 of the North Stars. The Auxiliary 612 Transport Squadron at Ottawa and two more Transport Squadron at Ottawa and two more Transport Squadron at Ottawa and two more Dead fish in the shallows of Moira River south of Foxboro, believed killed as result of river pollution, are seen in above picture. Fish include muskies, bass, pickerel, red-finned suckers and mudcats. Man with shovel is Michael Chubb, field officer for the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Dead fish in this group are mostly bass which have been killed by lack of oxygen in the Moira River. Medical Officers of Health for Belleville and Thurlow townships have ruled out swimming in the river south of Foxboro.

Thousands of Fish in Moira South of Foxboro Are Dying As Result of Water Pollution

Thousands of fish in the Moira River south of Foxboro are dead and dying and the river smells of that village has been placed out of bounds for swimming as the result of pollution.

Taking prompt action on a request the Moira Conservation Authority for an investigation of river pollution, an engineer from the sanitary engineering division of the Ontario Water Resources Commission arrived in the city this morning.

During the morning the engineer, Mr. P. G. Cockburn, with Authority chairman Bruce Smith and Russell Whitfield of the Ontario Dept. of Lands and forests made a tour of the river to view conditions and take water samples for testing.

"Serious pollution of the Moira River below Foxboro as reported to you by the Lands and Forests officials. Thousands of fish are dead and decaying. Water itself is now smelling terrible. Health problems possible. Request immediate and complete investigation by your commission."

THE TELEGRAM, SENT WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, brought an immediate response.

FIRST REPORTED MONDAY

Michael Chubb, fieldman for the Moira Authority, said the condition of the river was first reported to him on Monday when complaints were received by residents along the river above Corbyville.

Since then Department of Lands and Forests officials from Tweed have inspected the river as has Mr. Chubb with Conservation Authority Chairman Bruce Smith, and George Wishart, chairman of the Authority water control committee.

Since the pollution in the river is south of Foxboro, Belleville medical officer of health Dr. McColl Metcalfe, has placed the river inside the city limits out of bounds for swimming.

Medical Officer of Health for Thurlow township, Dr. J. N. Hartt, has taken similar action and has ruled out swimming in the river from Foxboro to No. 401 highway at the city limits.

A trip along the river bank north of Corbyville yesterday afternoon revealed a large number of fish, including muskies, bass, pickerel, red-finned suckers and mudcats, lying dead in the reeds in the shallow parts of the river.

SMELL IS STRONG

The river water itself was foul smelling and the smell could easily be noticed by motorists in passing cars where No. 11 highway skirts the river a mile south of Foxboro.

Above Foxboro the river was clear, not odorous and normal in appearance. Small fish could be seen swimming in the shallows.

Lands and Forests officials from Tweed concluded that the turbidity in the river was reducing the available oxygen to such an extent that the fish in effect were suffocating. The combination of low water, abnormally high temperatures and the turbidity in the river added to the seriousness of the situation, it was stated.

It was noted that a minor case of similar pollution had been investigated in 1958 and that a district, plant had been warned to take steps to correct the situation.

The pollution now existing in the river is much more serious than that of last year, Mr. Chubb said.

Centres to Meet In City to Form Junior B Group

Jack Devine, OHA executive member, announced here this morning that an organization meeting for Junior hockey in this district will be held Tuesday, September 15.

The meeting will be held in the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle Street, at 7:45 p.m.

Invitations are being sent to a number of district centres, including Trenton, Belleville, Kingston, Peterborough, Lindsay, Port Hope and Picton, to attend the meeting.

Devine said this morning that Lorne Cook of Kingston, immediate past-president of the OHA, will be on hand to help with the September 15 meeting.

It was also felt that if enough centres are represented at the meeting, an attempt will be made to organize a Junior "B" grouping as well as Junior "B".

Dept. Ready For Opening of City Schools

The local Department of Public Works is just about ready for the forthcoming school year. The sign painting and erection crews have just about completed their final preparations with the erection of new signs in school zones.

The preparatory work for the installation of traffic signals at the intersection of Dundas and College streets has progressed as far as possible pending the ratification of the tender for installation by City Council.

The ditching program is continuing on the northwest side of the city and next week the crews will be on east side to carry on work in the Stanley Park Avenue area.

Road patching work has been progressing on Herchimer Avenue and at various places requiring attention throughout the town.

Sewer improvement work has been completed in the Chatham Street area and the sewer crew is now performing cleaning and maintenance work in the east section of the old city.

The weed control program has been progressing but due to lack of sufficient equipment it has been difficult to keep pace with weed growth. The new sprayer recently acquired by the department has been doing a very effective job and the proper mixture for weed control has now been determined.

Trench inspection work has been considerable with the extension of Lakeland Gas mains and the projects in the Lambert - Rollins and the Parrot subdivisions.

Work is continuing in preparing for a sanitary land fill area on the east side of the Bay Bridge Road, opposite the present land fill area. It is anticipated that the new area will be ready for use in about a year's time, when the area on the west side of the road is expected to have been fully utilized.

Senior Citizens Enjoy First Meeting of Term

The Senior Citizens held their first meeting of the 1959-60 season last evening at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. President Jim Brennan opened the meeting with everyone singing God Save The Queen. There were 68 members present.

Five games of euchre were played at 14 tables. Winners for the Gentlemen were 1st — Mr. Jones, 2nd — Mr. Cook; Ladies, 1st — Mrs. Thorn, 2nd — Mrs. Bowers. The lucky draw was won by Mr. Fred Cooke.

Miss Kay Homan showed pictures of her trip overseas. Many of the members saw the places where they used to live and they thanked Miss Homan.

Mr. McAvoy kindly donated the wieners and buns, and everyone enjoyed them. The members thanked him and the kitchen convener Mrs. J. Simpson and her helpers.

The meeting was brought to a close with everyone looking forward to a successful year.

Membership is open to anyone over 60 years.

Barbershoppers Enjoy Wiener, Corn Roast

Last night the Belleville Chapter of The Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America held its annual corn and wiener roast at the Sexsmith Farm on the shores of Hay Bay.

Most of the regular members were out to limber up their vocal chords and to refresh their memories of "The Old Songs", and other favorites in anticipation of another season of close harmony enjoyment and good companionship.

Among the guests were Tommie Sharp of RCAF Station, Trenton, Herb Grew, Claire Twiddy and Past President, Dick Brettingham of Belleville.

At this scenic setting on Hay Bay, into an old UEL iron pot we dumped eight dozens of water and seven dozen ears of corn. When you consider that most of this corn ended up shorn of its kernels and that several pounds of wieners and rolls went down the red lane also you must realize that these fellows can eat as well as sing.

By midnight the ringing chords were just beginning to come again and show promise of another great season of Barbershopping, starting Wednesday, September, 9 at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Church.

Thanks was extended to John Kipp who so capably organized the this outing and also Grant and Don Sexsmith, who provided the site and made the arrangements at Hay Bay.

School Safety Officer Places Special Posters

To further acquaint the motoring public with the fact that the re-opening next week of schools, will call for continued alertness and driving care, school safety officer Sgt. Denis Robson, has been placing special school safety signs in widedown in the downtown area and in the districts throughout the city.

"We want every motorist to be fully acquainted with the new signs with the fact that they mean additional care should be exercised to protect the lives of children," explained Sgt. Robson.

"It is hoped and expected that all motorists will be on the alert with the re-opening of schools," he said.

"I would particularly ask motorists to drive carefully and watch closely for children, particularly in all areas where there are schools."

More Wanted To Monitor TV, Radio Programs

Are you single . . . married . . . male? Do you listen to radio or watch television. Mayor Gerald B. Hyde would be interested in knowing if any Belleville residents meeting these qualifications would be interested in monitoring radio and television programs for the CBC Board of Broadcast Governors.

To date there have been several answers to a previous request for local residents who would assist in this work. There has been an adequate response from the ladies but Mayor Hyde indicates that not enough men have come forward. Inasmuch as the Board of Broadcast Governors wishes to obtain a representative cross-section of people in the Belleville area there is still a need for men of any age or occupation or marital status.

Any who may be interested are requested to advise the Mayor's office in city hall of their willingness to serve. Their names will then be forwarded to the CBC board for final consideration.

Jackie Legacey, Bob Cruickshank Tourney Winners

Bob Cruickshank and Jackie Legacey captured top honors at the Bay Breeze Open miniature golf tournament held yesterday, carting home trophies for their efforts.

Cruickshank won the men's division championship although he was forced to partake in a playoff to decide the issue. He shot a 49 in the first round and tied with Len Bumlesk. Rumlesk lost out in the playoff however and settled for second place.

Jack Canning took the third position, one stroke back of the leaders with 50. Par for the course is 43.

Jackie Legacey shot an even 36 to top the women's division. Second place went to Pat Raycroft with 37 while in third spot was Mary Yard with a 66.

The tournament, first to be held at the Bay Breeze since its recent opening, was considered a success, although it was felt that lower scores will likely decide the next tourney after the course has been open longer.

Hydro Will Need Twice the Power In Ten Years

LINDSAY (CP)—An official of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited said Wednesday there could be more nuclear power produced in Ontario for public use in 15 or 20 years than the total present electrical capacity of the province.

Company secretary Donald Watson told the Eastern Ontario Municipal Electric Association annual meeting here that by 1969 Ontario Hydro will require twice the generating capacity of all its plants now.

"In Canada the major hydroelectric power sites have already been developed and Ontario Hydro has now to turn mainly to thermal power," he said.

Mr. Watson said the Crown-owned company has four nuclear power projects under way. Two are for construction of power plants and two are studies.

Women's Missionary Society Plans Autumn Rallies

WELLINGTON — West Hinchinbrooke United Church was host to the Belleville Presbyterial executive and presidents on Monday when plans were made for Sectional Fall Rallies throughout the Presbyterial.

Mrs. Keith Bray of Pembroke, led a fine devotional period with the theme of "Aspirations", quoting passages from the Bible, wherein it states God's purpose in life for us.

Mrs. W. D. Grant of Haliburton, sang a lovely solo, "The Joy of the Master, We too May Share".

Mrs. Clarence Holmes, the president, welcomed the ladies and called on the various secretaries for their reports. There were 23 members and nine presidents present.

Mrs. F. McMullen of Stirling, introduced the new study book and book shelf on Africa. Mrs. A. E. Wagenbach, the new vice - president for Napanee South section, was also introduced.

Mrs. R. G. Coulter, Belleville, gave the half yearly report of finances stating that more than half the amount was still to be raised, not counting any extra funds for special projects. She urged all to be systematic envelope givers and said that if each member of the WMS put 37 cents per week in her envelope, the allocation would be met.

Mrs. Lincoln Elliott of Tweed, 1st vice - president Bay of Quinte Branch, closed the morning meeting with prayer. West Huntingdon ladies provided the delicious luncheon.

After the opening hymn, Mrs. George Carlisle, Stirling, reported for the nominating committee, that Mrs. T. F. Townsend will take Mrs. Bell's place as conveniner; friendship secretary for the remainder of the term, and Miss Ethel Horton for Mrs. C. Neeland as supply secretary. Vacancies have to be filled for several ladies this year as the present term of office is over for two vice - presidents, recording secretary, corresponding secretary, and executive.

RALLIES

Miss Frances Wallbridge, missionary on furlough from Africa, will be the guest speaker at the first three rallies, October 13th at Wellington, 14th at Mount Pleasant, and 15th at Odessa. The other three rallies for the sections are October 27th, at Cooper, 28th at Carmel, and 29th at Enterprise. The speaker has not yet been announced from Toronto.

Mrs. Holmes led a discussion on the new study organization and urged all the women of the church to pray and learn about the complete work of the church so that when the time comes for the women to take their place in the new organization, they will be willing and informed sufficiently to do so.

The January executive meeting has been invited to Hollowray Street, Belleville.

Mrs. Holmes closed the meeting with a meditation on Religious Living.

Odessa ladies given life membership in the WMS were: — E. H. Babcock, Mrs. Albert Hartman and Mrs. Robert Cairns, after each had served nearly 60 years as members. These ladies are still active in the Odessa WMS. Mrs. Cairns, incidentally, has been organist at the church for nearly as long.

Fashion Copies Will Be Sold In All Stores

By RENA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Women's fashions from the drawing boards of some of Canada's most exclusive designers will soon be available in Canadian ready-to-wear stores.

Members of the Association of Canadian Couturiers announced Wednesday negotiations are being completed which will introduce copies of their fashions in Canadian stores.

Thirteen members of the five-year - old association unveiled their fall and winter collections to the press Wednesday.

The new trend for skirts is to tunics and the tunic hemline. Overskirts, both wide and narrow, provided the double hemline effect. The tapered skirt of the past was replaced by a straighter model with the material gently rounded over the hipline.

BELOW-KNEE HEM

Daytime dresses were generally two inches below the knee, though Mario DiNardo of Montreal showed daytime dresses just to the knee.

Lowered waistlines showed the longer torso look. Some were lowered at the back and raised at the front.

Shoulders were wider. Several dropped shoulderlines were emphasized by overmounted sleeves.

The fabrics, all from Canadian collections, included man-made fur used as trim or by itself. Olivia of Hamilton lined a reversible wool coat with the fabric.

Brown and black dominated the color scheme.

PROMOTES CANADA

Girls Amazed At Vastness Of Canada

CALGARY (CP) — Two young women from the British Isles who are touring Canada are enthusiastic about the ranching country south of here.

"All that space!" exclaims Jean Elliott of Godalming, Surrey, England. "The people who live there must be the nearest to heaven."

"It's going to be difficult to tell anyone back home how big it really is out here," says Jeanette Murray of Glasgow, Scotland.

The two are members of a group of nine women who arrived in Canada early July for a dominion conference of the Anglican Church of Canada.

But what will the girls talk most about when they get home?

"Kitchens," says Miss Elliott. "I've never seen anything like them. There are so many wonderful appliances that Canadian women can't have much work to do."

Queen's Pregnancy Offers Contrasts to Olden Times

By BRIAN COREN

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth's pregnancy offers some revealing contrasts with what happened the last time the last child.

Her mother visited a reigning British monarch.

It was 128 years ago, in 1837, when Princess Beatrice was born to Queen Victoria, her ninth and last child.

In Victorian times—when even planes had "limbs" rather than "legs"—public mention of a pregnancy was in strenuously bad taste and, when a Queen was involved, unthinkable.

INTERESTING CONDITION

The first intimation the public had that Victoria was "in an interesting condition"—as it used to be called—was an announcement in the London Times of Jan. 27, 1857:

"The Queen has intimated her intention not to open Parliament in person. The speech from the throne will therefore be delivered by the lords commissioners on Feb. 5."

From that date onwards, the court circular regrodiced in The Times no longer mentioned the Queen's public engagements.

TOOK DAILY RIDES

But the Queen—then 48—continued to take her daily ride in open carriages until two days before the birth, which is highly likely that Londoners strolling in the vicinity of Buckingham Palace were aware of the royal secret.

The Times reported these rides in the following terms:

"Her Majesty and Prince Albert (the prince consort) took a drive in an open carriage and four yesterday afternoon."

Then on April 14, 1857, came this announcement from Buckingham Palace:

"The Queen was safely delivered of a princess this afternoon at 45 minutes past one o'clock. Her Majesty and the infant princess are well."

NO SMUGGLING

In a room nearby were members of the Privy Council, there to satisfy public opinion that the birth had been genuine—a tradition going back to 1688 when a baby was reputed to have been smuggled into a royal bed in a warming pan.

This tradition was abolished by King George VI.

The Times devoted a column to the story the next day. It had this to say:

"This great and important news was made known to the town by the firing of the (Hyde) Park and (Tower of London) guns, and the Privy Council being assembled as soon as possible thereupon in the council chamber, Whitehall, it was ordered that a form of thanksgiving for the Queen's safe delivery of a princess be prepared by His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.

"Her Majesty and the infant princess are, God be praised, both doing well."

PALACE BULLETIN

Next day, The Times reproduced a Buckingham Palace bulletin on the condition of the Queen and the princess:

"The Queen has passed an excellent night. Her Majesty and the infant princess are going on favorably."

That was all.

Princess Beatrice, known as Baby grew, grew up to become her mother's constant companion until at the age of 30 she married Prince Henry of Battenberg. She had four children and died in 1944 at the age of 87.

Court Sharron 1882 Holds Monthly Meet

The regular monthly assembly of Court Sharron No. 11683, Canadian Order of Foresters was held last Wednesday evening at the home of the presiding Marjory Pickering, who presided.

A report on the tag day for cancer held last June was given and a cheque for $300 was turned over to the local cancer fund. Wilma Reed had purchased the material for the degree capes and had it on display for the girls to see. A discussion was held on how they would be made up and who would help. Next item was a ball bazaar, to be held on October 31st. Dorothy Taylor was named the convener and plans commenced to take charge of the different tables. After business was brought to a close, lunch was served by the girls in charge.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Henry J. — My daughter should go to her grandparents.

Eloise J. — I promised to rear her. I won't concede defeat.

• • •

Henry J. — I was a widower with three children when I met and married my present wife, Eloise.

Eloise had no children and had not been married before. She took over the job like a real trouper and has been successful with the two younger boys. But no matter how hard she tries, there is trouble with my daughter, Helen, 14.

I feel Helen is quite spoiled. My first wife was an invalid for many years, and her family catered to all the children, especially Helen. Now Helen wants to go back to live with her grandparents or her aunt. I feel that it may be best all around. Helen is just a young woman and should not have any big problems foisted on her. It is wearing her down and we are expecting a child of our own soon.

• • •

Eloise J. — When I married Henry I told him that I would love and rear his children as my own and I don't intend to go back on that promise.

Henry calls me stubborn and I suppose I am. I have always stuck to anything I set out to do. I am disappointed that Henry has so little confidence in me that he is ready to give up for me so early in the game.

I have tried to win Helen over by being pally with her, but maybe I overplayed that "one of the girls" role. Now she has no respect for me. One word from me and she does exactly as she pleases.

Lately I have been firmer with her, and although she is rebelling now, I think that eventually she will come around. I won't concede defeat. I want to show Henry what I can do.

• • •

The Council: We think that Helen ought to stay in her own home for the simple reason that it is her own home.

The reasons Eloise gives for wanting to keep Helen are not wrong, but they are a bit childish and off the point and suggest what may be the sore spot in her relationship with Helen.

We don't blame Eloise for wanting to fulfill her promise to her husband, for wanting to display her capability and for wanting to see a problem through rather than concede defeat. But all of these are rather personal selfish reasons that don't really concern Helen at all.

As we see the picture, Eloise has placed herself on a rather childish level in relation to her husband. Probably he is quite a bit older in years and certainly much older in experience. Eloise seems to be fighting for his approval in much the same way a child does. She must remember that she is a helpmate and partner to him. When she speaks of Helen it should be in terms of the child's future and well-being, not in terms of how well or badly she is handling the problem.

It was a mistake, we agree, to be too-too pally with Helen. A certain special closeness and companionship should exist between the two females in the family, but it should never have gone so far as to give Helen the idea that Eloise is a buddy or sister, rather than a mother. Helen now sees this new member of the family as competing with her almost like another child for a parent's attention; it adds one more difficulty to this girl's problem of adjustment to her situation.

Helen belongs with her parents. Much as she may feel she now wants to go away, she will undoubtedly feel rejected by her father if he actually lets her leave his home. Eloise should have very definite

Wedding

MITZ — WATSON

Cosburn Avenue United Church, Toronto, was the setting on Saturday, August 15, for a very pretty, but quiet wedding when Lelaney Ruth Watson, of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Watson, became the bride of Charles Lawrence Mitz, of Ivanhoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitz. The Rev. E. A. Nichol officiated.

The bride was attractively attired in pink and white floor-length silk with dusty-pink hat, shoes and gloves. The fitted bodice featured a deep neckline with bow, and, the bouffant skirt was in waltz-length. She wore a white orchid corsage.

She was attended by Miss Joanne Thomas, who wore a grey and white flowered chiffon over taffeta with bouffant skirt in waltz-length, and orchid corsage.

The bride's mother chose a navy linen sheath, with orchid felt hat, matching gloves and orchid corsage, for her daughter's wedding, and the bridegroom's mother, a beige linen sheath, misted with an organza short jacket, beige accessories, feather turban hat, and orchid corsage.

After a honeymoon at Deer Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Mitz will reside at 7 Biggen Court, Toronto.

Applesauce Cake Deluxe

by Mary Moore

A little labor on the morning of Labor Day will produce a festival cake to serve with fresh fruit.

I have just made the cake on this our second to last morning in Muskoka, because we will have four big boys to feed by night, for dear ole Pete is coming for me. How he loves one of his mother's cakes!

We had the applesauce made last early morning for the spice, and then scraped up from bags, boxes, bowls and bottles barely enough brown and white sugar to make do.

mixmeg, 1-3 cup water, 1-3 cup chopped walnuts, 1-3 cup chopped Sultana raisins.

NOTE:

This makes a moist cake. If you prefer it less moist use 1 cups white sugar and no brown sugar. Cream shortening very well. Beat sugar into it until very light. Beat in the egg. Beat in applesauce. Sift together the sifted flour, soda, salt and nutmeg. Add flour mixture alternately with water. Gently stir in nuts and raisins. Turn into oblong cake pan 13 x 9" which has been buttered and lined on the bottom with buttered wax paper. (Or this cake may be baked in 2 8" layer cake pans buttered and paper-lined in bottoms.) Bake at 350 deg. F. 45 or 50 minutes for oblong; 35 to 40 minutes for layers. Cool on rack. Frost when cold with

BROWN SUGAR BOILED FROSTING:

Mix together well in a shallow saucepan 1 cup light brown sugar, 1-3 cup water and 1-2 teaspoon baking powder. Boil slowly without stirring until syrup is 243 deg. F. (thread). (See note below). Keep saucepan covered for first 3 minutes to prevent crystals forming on sides. While syrup is cooking beat until very stiff 2 large egg whites. When syrup is ready pour in fine stream into beaten whites while beating constantly until stiff enough to hold its shape when beater is lifted. Spread on top and sides of cake. Sprinkle with chopped walnuts or pecans.

NOTE:

We did not have a thermometer to test the syrup, so Wyn dipped the top of a common back door key in the syrup and blew through it. It blew out into a big bubble. That is her mother's foolproof test for "syrup that spins a thread".

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP: WINNING FRIENDS

It's a wise old saying: "To win friends, be friendly . . . and be friendly first."

FIANCE'S MOTHER'S SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The parents of our son's fiancee have just announced her engagement to our son. The young lady comes often to our home, but not her family. Now who is supposed to take the first step in entertaining? And what sort of entertaining should it be? In planning this, it should, I think, be considered that they have a full-time maid, and I have only a once-a-week maid. Please mention various ways I can cope with my problem. I thank you.

— Fiance's Mother

I hope I'm right in taking it for granted that, as soon as your son told you of the engagement, you got in touch at once with his fiance's parents, to tell them of your happiness about the engagement and to make the first so important gesture for the bringing together of the two families. This welcoming-into-the-family gesture, by prompt call or telephone or note, is the responsibility of the fiance's parents, and customarily should be done before the announcement of the engagement. After this families-contact has been made, either family may entertain the other.

If, for any reason, you have not made the significant welcoming-gesture to their family, it would naturally be even more important that you make plans at once to bring the families together. Telephone the mother of your son's fiancee, inviting her and her husband and daughter to come to your house at a time convenient to them. The simplest plan might be to invite them to come to tea on the first possible Saturday or Sunday. Or to a simple buffet supper or dinner, if you wish. Your welcoming them to your home is the important point . . . the occasion may be most simple, nothing "fancy." And no service necessary.

TIP TO PART-TIME MAID FOR WEEKEND VISIT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've been invited to spend a weekend soon with friends who rented a house in the country for the summer. They have a part-time maid, a local woman who comes at about 9 o'clock in the morning, and stays until after evening dinner. Should I give her a tip? If so, about how much, for the weekend? Should the tip be given directly to the maid, or should I give it to my hostess to give to the maid after I have left? — S. M.

Yes, you should give the maid a tip . . . two or three dollars would be about right for the weekend. And you should give the tip directly to the maid whenever she is, at a time when the hostess isn't near. And when you hand the tip to the maid, smile a gracious smile and say a gracious "Thank you, Margaret". (Note: Never give the tip to the hostess to pass on to the maid . . . that would certainly embarrass her.)

"MARY JANE BROWN" OR "MARY JONES BROWN"?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle an argument, will you please comment on the following: When Mary Jane Jones marries Thomas Brown, is she then correctly known as (a) Mary Jane Brown or (b) Mary Jones Brown? — H. H.

Either form is correct . . . and Mrs. Brown may use whichever form she prefers. If she is a stickler for abiding by tradition, she will doubtless consider the old-fashioned form . . . retaining her baptismal names (Mary Jane) and discarding her maiden surname (Jones) . . . technically correct, as indeed it actually is. So she chooses to be Mary Jane Brown.

Today, the generally-used form is Mary Jones Brown, discarding the second baptismal name and retaining the maiden surname. This form is considered more convenient and useful, since it includes both surnames, the maiden surname and the married surname.

Farewell Bid Ellis Families By Neighbors

POINT ANNE — On Saturday evening friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ellis gathered at the Orange Hall in Point Anne to bid them farewell before they left for their new homes, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellis to R. R. 4 Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ellis to the new section in Belleville.

The evening was enjoyed in playing euchre, favors going to ladies, Mrs. Doris Wilson; Mrs. Donne Carman, low — Mrs. Annie Akey. Men — William Juby, Atwood Carman; lone hand — A. Carman.

After euchre, the guests of honor were escorted to the table which was set with a dainty and fancy cloth with decorations for the occasion. Finds Ottawa Fertile Ground For Dramatics

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A petite brown-haired actress says she finds Ottawa a fertile ground for teaching dramatics.

Jill Tilsley, 21, bubbles with enthusiasm when she describes the interest and ingenuity of her school-age pupils.

British-born Jill, who came to Ottawa 10 months ago intending only a short visit, said in an interview that her drama classes during after-school hours in an elementary school here were "a tremendous success."

EAGER PUPILS

A pretty girl who stands five feet, one inch, Jill started at drama school when she was six. She finds her 24 pupils, ranging from six to 13, are full of refreshing ideas.

"I began them with mime," she said, in many of her youthful charges she has found "a real aptitude" for dramatic expression.

Drama is taught in elementary schools in England, she said, and in her opinion it is this youthful group from which a community's or a country's adult theatre audience grows.

"If you can teach elocution and drama in schools then you create an interest at an early age," she says. This way a generation grows up knowing and wanting theatre. Add it is one rap she has noticed in the Canadian education pattern.

BUSY ENTHUSIAST

In Ottawa, she opened her own studio, offered adult classes, kept up with her public school group and during the summer taught drama for the city's recreation department.

Now heading back to England with her mother, she says she will return to television acting — the work to which she graduated after drama school—and work at theatre stage hand and acting in repertory theatre.

Daughter of the late Frank Tilsley, popular British novelist and broadcaster, she is a thorough devotee of things theatrical. She says: "I might come back. I am feeling homesick even before I leave."

Guide Tints Hair Green to Match Room

TORONTO (CP)—Carolyn Purdee is as pretty an 18-year-old girl as they come — with one startling difference.

Carolyn has green hair.

It's been tinted to match the green living room where Carolyn is acting as a guide during the Canadian National Exhibition. She wears a green dress, green shoes, green nail polish and green eye shadow. Even her eyes are green.

She doesn't mind having her hair tinted but she doesn't like wearing the dress chosen for her. It's wool, which is terribly warm when the temperature soars into the 90s.

She finds her hair competing with the display behind her.

"Quite a few people just stand and stare at me. A few have asked very confidentially if I really have green hair," Carolyn said.

Her mother made only one comment: "suppose it rains?"

The Haverzel College graduate assures her friends her hair will be back to its light brown color in time for classes at the University of Toronto this fall.

DENIES U.S. INFLUENCE

WINDSOR (CP) — George Burt, UAW Canadian director said Tuesday that American-style labor racketeering has not been imported into Canada and that Canadian unions are conducted by the "average run of Canadian citizens." He told Windsor Optimists Club Canadian unions do not take orders from American union officials.

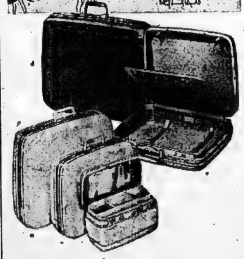
Toronto Singer Shows Clothes In London

By SYLVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Toronto blues singer Phyllis Marshall, in London for four television shows, is also acting as an unofficial ambassador of Canadian fashions during her six-week stay.

Husky - voiced Miss Marshall, who flew to Britain Aug. 5, came accompanied by a Canadian-designed wardrobe worth an estimated £40,000. Her luggage includes five evening gowns, four cocktail dresses, five day dresses, four coats and 13 pairs of shoes, as well as a full-length mink coat, mink jacket, chinchilla jacket, sable stole and white fox.

"I was a bit worried at first having such valuable clothes around," she says. "But I've got used to the idea now."



She doesn't plan to give a mannequin display; the idea of bringing the clothes "is to wear them around to show people what Canadian fashions are like."

Miss Marshall, 31, the mother of a 13-year-old daughter, Sharon, has sung with the Cab Calloway orchestra, her own trio, and for the last three seasons on the weekly CBC TV show, Cross-Canada Hit Parade.

'Mr. Chips' Is Dead

"Mr. Chips" is dead. No more will the soft padding feet of the little black field spaniel follow his sorrowing mistress, nor be near at hand in the long hours of the night to guard and protect the one he worshipped; the hand that reached out to touch her as he lay beside her bed, finds only empty air to fondle.

Never was friend more faithful, more understanding; he was a thoroughbred in more ways than one, and kindness personified; he not only took the love bestowed upon him, but returned it seven fold. Snarling and bickering were unknown to him; he met strangers with a dignified mien, and an aloofness which showed he was not everybody's dog.

For three months Mr. Chips had been under the doctor's care and treatment, but neither medicine nor extra loving care could work the miracle his mistress Mrs. Hazel Boa, hoped for; for his ailment was the same with which many humans have to meet their "Waterloo," cancer of the liver. After four days in the animal hospital he passed on to the happy hunting grounds of all pets, lovingly remembered by the one who was his heroine, his constant friend, and companion and whose arms held and comforted him to the end.

The home to which "Mr. Chips" came as a wee, two months' old puppy had another pet, a big 30 pounder, "Red Texas", Thomas cat, and the two became bosom friends. Whenever "Mr. Chips" heard his playmate in a brawl outside, he could not rest till his mistress let him out, and presently he would return with the erring Red Persian in tow. Another habit of the little spaniel was sitting up on his haunches waving his paws for attention. He dearly loved little children, and his touch upon their little hands was one of tenderness.

So "Mr. Chips" has gone, but his endearing ways will always remain in the memory of those who knew and loved him.

Once-Famous Shanghai Race Track Now People's Park Where Daily Exercises Held

By RONALD FARQUHAR

SHANGHAI (Reuters)—Scores of Chinese bend and stretch in rhythmic unison nowadays where Shanghai's European horse - racing set used to take morning gallops.

At 6 a.m. music blares from loudspeakers among the trees in People's Park, formerly a fashionable race track in the heart of the city.

A voice calls "one-two-three-four" and rows of men and women, some in athletic briefs and shorts and others in everyday clothes, begin the daily exercises which are a routine part of life in Communist China.

Nearby, older folk glide gracefully through the less - energetic movements of traditional Chinese exercises, called "tai chi chuan," which resemble a form of shadow-boxing in slow motion.

ONE OF MANY CHANGES

Since they took over China's largest city 10 years ago, the Chinese Communist authorities have so transformed the one-time race track that its former patrons from Shanghai's well-established international business and trading community would scarcely recognize it.

There are trees, paths, benches and rock gardens, and a boating lake where the track used to be.

A wide, paved roadway runs through the centre. This is called the People's Square and official Communist parades, processions and demonstrations are held there. A marquee for circus and acrobatic performances occupies one corner of the park.

A Chinese official explained these changes made by the Communists since they came to power in 1949. "We thought it was ridiculous to have such a big place in the centre of the city just as a place of amusement for foreigners," he told this correspondent.

REMINDERS OF PAST

The red-roofed grandstand and the clubhouse beside it with its tall clock tower still stand, reminders of what used to be.

On the terraced stands where members used to cheer their favorites home, a red-and-white slogan declares in Chinese characters: "Launch the technical and cultural revolutions to speed up the increase in labor productivity."

Inside, another slogan proclaims: "We shall advance far ahead in the shortest possible time and leave the capitalist countries far behind."

The top two storeys on the former clubhouse now house a museum. Gems of Chinese crafts manship and ancient relics of jade, bronze and pottery, some dating back to 2,000 B.C., are on view in glass cases in rooms where members used to hold tiffin (lunch or tea) parties on race days.

Downstairs, a white plaster bust of Mao Tse-tung the Chinese Communist leader, stands at the entrance to a ground floor hall housing an exhibition depicting "the struggle against the reactionary troops at Quemoy" and other offshore islands occupied by Chinese Nationalist forces.

In addition to photographs and a colored picture of Communist gunners shelling the islands, the exhibits include a captured American rubber aircraft dinghy and other trophies.

Another part of the clubhouse has been converted into a large reading library with Chinese and foreign books, including a large selection of Western technical works.

At one end of the library, a large, colored picture of Stalin hangs alongside other "prophets" of communism — Marx, Engels and Lenin. Similar portraits of Chinese Communist leaders, including Mao and Premier Chou En-lai, decorate a wall at the opposite end of the room.

Deer in New Zealand Become National Pest and Must Be Exported to West

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

GRETMOUTH, N.Z. (CP) — New Zealand has so many deer that they have become a national pest. The country is investigating ways of turning them into dollars.

Until now, most attention has been given to attracting overseas sportsmen to enjoy the unlimited shooting in the forest regions. But sportsmen account for only a proportion of the deer killed in New Zealand. Large numbers are destroyed every year by professional culters employed by the government.

Now a promising export trade in venison is being developed to dispose of some of these deer carcasses. Some culliers shoot several thousand deer in a season, a large proportion of which have been entirely wasted.

A few small firms have been sending venison to North American markets for a number of years, shipping the meat in frozen form with beef and other normal shipments.

LARGE-SCALE SHIPPING

Now firms on the west coast of the south island are preparing up venison shipping on a larger scale. Six deer culliers operating in the Haast district in the far southwest have been sending their kill by air to the port of Greymouth. Deer in this area are fine animals in prime condition.

Here, the meat is quick frozen and kept in cold storage awaiting shipment. A trial consignment of 10,000 pounds of venison launches wrapped in greaseproof paper and stockinette is being shipped for testing in North American markets.

Preliminary reports on this launches flown to the United States by air are that the meat is of high quality and which should meet with a ready sale.

The North American market apart, there is evidently wide demand since inquiries are already being received for quick-frozen venison from England, Germany and other European countries.

If the trade proves successful, it could help New Zealand in more than one way. It would assist in keeping down the menacing herds of deer and would provide a useful new source of overseas funds.

Clinton Airman Held for Murder Of London Nurse

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A charge of murder was laid Wednesday night against 25-year-old Arthur Lesgford Edward Cranston, a Clinton RCAF station airman, after the knife-slaying of pretty Ruth Buckley, 24, a nurse at Westminster Hospital here.

Cranston, a native of St. Kitts, British West Indies, is near death in hospital with a severe knife wound in the throat. He was remanded in custody to Sept. 10 by Magistrate F. G. McAllister.

The charge was read and the warrant executed in a third floor room at Westminster Hospital, a few hundred yards from the climb-lit, park-like exercise area where Miss Buckley was attacked Tuesday night and her throat savagely slashed.

FATHER COMMENTS

Earl Buckley, the girl's father, arrived here by plane from Fort William Wednesday to claim the body of his daughter. He said on arrival: "Up to now, I have been very fortunate. I've had a wonderful family. We've never had any trouble."

The last time he saw Ruth was in July when she returned to Fort William to attend the wedding of a friend.

Ruth Buckley was one of four children. One sister is a nurse, two brothers are school teachers. One of the brothers accompanied the body back to Fort William by train.

Mr. Buckley flew back to his home.

Dr. A. E. Ferguson, Westminster Hospital superintendent, described Miss Buckley as a "thoroughly nice person." She lived in the nurses' residence.

Police said Cranston, who joined the RCAF in Victoria last year and was taking a radar course at Clinton, became acquainted with Miss Buckley early this year when he was admitted to the DVA hospital for one month with a virus infection.

Recover Body

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Oates returned home Wednesday to Vancouver Wednesday and learned that their 16-year-old son Fred had drowned a week ago in the Welland River.

The youth's body was sent to Cornwall and funeral service will be held there today.

Police had been trying to locate the parents.

Last Drops Foreign Liquor Beginning to Run Low in Shanghai's Last Western Bar

By RONALD FARQUHAR

SHANGHAI (Reuters)—The last drops of foreign liquor are beginning to run low in Shanghai's last Western-style bar.

A row of bottles with faded, tattered labels proclaiming their Western origin still line the shelves of this haven of foreign sailors tucked away in the dingy dockland of China's biggest seaport city.

There is gin, rum, cognac, cherry brandy, creme de menthe, scotch and Canadian rye whisky to ease the thirst of seamen on shore leave.

"But I think we shall finish it all this year," said the small, chubby, pleasant, English-speaking Chinese who runs the bar.

It is all stock dating from before 1949, the year that brought Chinese rule to Shanghai and China and saw the beginning of the end of European influence in the city, including Western-style bars.

"When these supplies are finished, we shall just carry on with our own Chinese-made liquor and spirits," the barman said.

NO GLOOMY FACES

The bar huddles inconspicuously among rows of small, drab dwellings along a winding, dimly lit street behind the docks and wharves which line the Whangpoo River.

A faded sign in the unlit window announces, in English, that this is the Toby Sunshine Bar. Two steps lead down to a door where a printed notice adds "bar opens—push or knock."

It is a small, square room, with a short bar and a row of high stools. Customers' names are carved on the counter. On the wall above, a notice in English declares briefly and firmly: "Girls only."

Seven or eight small, square-topped tables with green-covered chairs stand around the room. Photographs of ships hang on the walls, on which the dark brown wallpaper is cracked and peeling in places.

NO JUKE BOX

The strains of La Paloma issue from a phonograph at one end of the bar. A samba, German hiking songs and an organ rendering of a tune entitled Heaven are also in the repertoire of records, most of which seem to have been made in Czechoslovakia or East Germany.

Groups of British, Swedish and Danish sailors dropped in for drinks the night this correspondent was there. Some of the British sailors came from cargo ships under charter to the Chinese authorities and plying along the China coast.

A shot of liquor cost them one yuan (about 40 cents). This is cheaper than in the official Seamen's Club where the same drinks cost twice, and sometimes three times, as much.

It is the opposite with beer. A bottle of Shanghai brew costs one yuan in the Sunshine Bar, but only about half as much in the club.

ELITE LONG GONE

The Seamen's Club is housed in what used to be the exclusive Shanghai Club, where the elite of the large British business and diplomatic community used to dine and wine before the Communist authorities changed all that.

In the old days the city's dockland was studded with drinking haunts. "Four or five years ago, there were still a few left," the barman said. "But one by one the owners sold out, or left, and now we are the last."

The Sunshine Bar's owner also has left Shanghai and now is in Singapore, the barman added. "If I draw my wages on the 30th," he explained.

Two years ago there were two white Russian girls who used to help serve the drinks. They went to Hong Kong.

Now, the liquor is running out. But there is still enough left yet for one or two for the road.

Task of Christianizing East Must Be Faced Says Bishop

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP)—Bishop Ivor Norris of Brandon, Man., yesterday turned the eyes of the Anglican Church of Canada towards the under - privileged masses of Southeast Asia.

"You must live up to the task of Christianizing the East," he told delegates to the church's 30th general synod.

Obviously affected by Bishop Norris' appeal and later descriptions by clergymen from Canada's frontier districts, the synod gave quick approval of the missionary society's report and a series of conferences was designed to strengthen overseas and home missions.

Bishop Norris, speaking after a tour of Anglican missions in the Orient, said all Christian Canadians must be concerned with developments there.

JOB SECURITY

"We are teaching children to read, but we are giving them no Christian literature and they are turning Communist because the Communists supply them with literature . . .

The proportion of church ordinations to missionary work is decreasing since "parishes often love to spend money on stained glass windows and red carpets and give what is left over to the missions."

Rev. Adam Cuthand, principal of an Indian school at Montreal Lake, Sask., said a feeling of "unbridled free initiative" has been the need of orienting white teachers to Indian social and spiritual conditions.

"You can't take a man from an Ontario parish and put him in an Indian school and expect him to do much about Indians," Mr. Cuthand said.

APPROVE BUDGET

The synod approved a 1960 budget of $1,230,000 introduced by Bishop R. H. Waterman of Toronto.

The delegates were told the budget is an increase of 12 percent over that in 1951.

And, Bishop Waterman said, "the actual increase over five years" has not yet matched Anglican membership gains.

He urged Anglican families to follow the "modern-tithe" system of giving 10 per cent of their every thousand dollars of annual income.

He also presented a budget forecast for 1961 and 1962 in which a goal would be set as an increase to $1119,500 for each year from the 1959 year for new and television broadcasting.

If the increase were approved it might be used partly to set up a weekly Anglican hour on television and a half - hour weekly radio broadcast, he said.

Hundreds of Thousands Spend Millions of Hours Feeding Chips Into Slot Machines

By HAROLD TILLEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Hundreds of thousands of men and women in New South Wales spend millions of hours every year saying good-bye to millions of pounds worth of chips they feed into rapacious slot machines owned by clubs.

They know from experience that the chances of breaking even are slight, that the odds in favor of their showing a profit just don't exist. Yet there's always the lure of the golden jackpot from the tug of a lever, so they go on with the uneven battle.

A government member of the state legislative council, Cyril J. Cahill says the machines destroy the moral fibre of men and women "as effectively as morphia or cocaine."

Many of the men and women who play the machines admit frankly that the "one - armed bandit" that takes great slabs of their earnings week after week holds a fascination for them they can't resist.

MACHINES LEGAL

The coin-in-the slot poker machine, with its many variations, has been a legal gambling medium in New South Wales for less than three years. In that time it has become a monster that demands to be fed—and is, in fact, fed more liberally with every added day of its operation.

The New South Wales government cut is not regulated by the amount of intake nor by the profit clubs owners rake off, but by the number of machines in operation. Profit to owners in the last financial year was estimated at the equivalent of around $50,000,000, from an intake of around $180,000,000. The government net, $2,250,000 from such licences that can be as high as $1,250. The Gaming and Betting (Poker Machine) Act requires that this money be paid to a special fund for hospitals.

Introduction of the poker machines to clubs, and the staggering growth in the number of clubs, has hit the hotel business severely.

From time to time churches and other bodies protest against the law permitting slot machines. And there are economists who say the slot machine is a menace to branches of the state economy. Bank managers say scores of people are in debt because of the machines.

Only one man seems to have made a satisfactory compromise with his addiction. For around $5 he bought two second-hand machines. He has them in his living room and plays them alone. Eventually he gets back all he puts in.

Start Producing Second of New 'Economy Cars'

DETROIT (AP)—The second of the Big Three's new economy cars went into production today as Ford started building Falcons at Lorain, Ohio.

Chevrolet has been assembling Corvairs at nearby Willow Run since mid-July. Chrysler's Valiant will roll off Detroit assembly lines within another month.

The Corvair will be the first of the new ones into the market place, starting its public pace about Oct. 2. The Falcon will go on sale Oct. 8. The Valiant probably will be along about Nov. 14.

Vital statistics have been released today on the Falcon. These came Wednesday in a 21-city closed-circuit telecast for reporters.

WEIGHS 2,30 pounds

The Falcon is 15 feet, one inch long, against 17-4 for a 1959 Ford; four feet 6½ inches high against 4-8 and five feet, 10 inches wide against 6-4. It weighs 2,300 pounds, compared with 3,370 pounds for the lightest 1959 Ford model.

Canadian Ford officials said the Falcon will average 32 miles per Imperial gallon of gasoline.

The Corvair will offer the first American rear-engined models, using a flat six-cylinder aluminum power plant. Restriction will put on tent cars in Michigan has been 2,400 pounds.

The six-cylinder Falcon engine, of cast iron, is rated at 90 horsepower. The Corvair produces the rated slightly more, as will the Valiant. The Valiant, like the Falcon, is using a cast iron six-cylinder engine mounted in front.

Paper-Makers Donate $10,000 To Two Unions

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking Steelworkers in the United States and lumbermen in British Columbia got an unexpected shot in the arm Wednesday.

At its convention in Montreal, the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphide and Paper Mill Workers (CLC), voted $10,000 to each labor section in its current strike.

John P. Bourque, 77, veteran president of the union said that if organized labor did not offer its support to the 50,000 striking steel workers in the United States and to the 37,000 striking wood workers in British Columbia, "industrial unionism and labor unions would become so powerful they might try to wipe out organized labor."

Arrest Argentine Generals, Garrisons Back Ousted Chief

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—War Secretary Elpio Anaya today ordered the arrest of 17 generals in a speedy counterattack against a military rebellion within Argentina's army.

At the same time, garrisons throughout the country pledged allegiance to Gen. Carlos Toranzo Montero, fired by Gen. Anaya Wednesday.

The rebellious stand in the army erupted into a fresh military crisis for President Arturo Frondizi's government, which has been rocked by a series of conflicts within the armed forces since it took power 16 months ago.

Anaya appointed Gen. Pedro Francisco Castinairas le the strategic post of Army commander-in-chief in the wake o fToranzo Montero's ouster.

ASKED FOR SUPPORT

The firing provoked a stern reaction among army commanders. The generals arrested today had cabled army garrisons asking them to back Toranzo Montero against Anaya.

The ousted army commander told reporters he favors "constitutional rule." But it is known that his partisans in the army were emblemized by the firing which was prompted by the general's effort to put men to his liking in several key army posts.

As in the earlier military crisis in July, there was no outward signs of a rebellious stand by many army units. The struggle unfolds behind the scenes in the

Six Women, Two of Crew Killed in Crash

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—A twin-engined plane crashed Tuesday night in a storm, killing six girls on an Alaska magazine subscription tour, their crew chief, and the pilot.

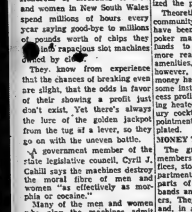
Dead are C. W. (Bud) Priest of Anchorage, the pilot; C. A. Bailey, 25, of Seattle, who had charge of the group; Rose Johnson, Bismarck, N.D.; Diane Nelson, Fargo, N.D.; Shirley Salazar, Hawaii; Cathy Clark, Cheyenne, Wyo.; Virginia Lee Ostrander, Seattle; and Alberta McKelop, Oklahoma.

The plane was nearing McGrath, 300 miles southwest of here, when the pilot reported at 10:12 p.m. that he was lost in a storm and running low on fuel. That was his last report.

Searchers sighted wreckage from the air Wednesday, five miles from the town of McGrath.

The group had been selling magazines in Alaska for several weeks.

army ministry and at key garrisons.



Toranzo Montero is believed to be one of the main figures among the so-called "guerrillas"—military men who have strongly opposed to followers and policies of former Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron.

'Down Payment' Of Million Made To Aid Strikers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter Reuther announced a donation of $1,000,000 to striking steelworkers Wednesday. He also charged that President Eisenhower is evading his public responsibility in dealing with the walkout, now in its eighth week.

The United Auto Workers chief said the $1,000,000 comes as "an initial down payment" from unions compassing the AFL-CIO industrial union department which he also heads.

He said Eisenhower is evading his leadership responsibilities by not appointing a public fact-finding board to sift steel dispute issues and recommend a solution. He said fact reports issued by Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell are "too little and too late."

"Ecss says not to worry. He's found someone else for your job."

Diller Hanover Easy Winner of Hambletonian

By BILL HUDSON

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP)—Diller Hanover, winner of harness racing's richest plum, is headed for a vacation.

"He's been racing awfully hard," trainer Ralph Baldwin of Lloydminster, Sask., explained today. "He deserves a rest. I don't think he'll start at Indiana polis."

The Hoosierman Futurity in Indianapolis Labor Day is the next-bigtime test for three-year-old trotters.

Diller Hanover is the colt to beat for this year's trotting triple crown after his impressive straight-heat victory Wednesday in the $125,264 Hambletonian, largest purse ever put up for a harness race.

The bay son of Star's Pride dashed the first mile in 2:01 1-5 and the second in 2:01 4-5, shaving the race record by 1 2-5 seconds.

On the last trip he threw a shoe a quarter of a mile from home, but it had no obvious effect.

Only big-leager among the three horses owned by Basil Stabler of Watertown, N.Y., Diller Hanover captured the second leg of trotting's triple crown in the Hambletonian.

John A. Hanover, who nipped Diller in taking the first gem—the Yonkers Futurity—is the big threat on the fast Du Quoin track. The colts are expected to tangle for the final leg, the Kentucky Futurity, at Lexington Oct. 8.

Diller Hanover, with 11 victories in 14 heats this season, has career earnings of $265,784, a gigantic return on the $6,500 he cost as a yearling. He earned $73.67 Wednesday. The Sille took second money of $30,694.

Yearling Sales May Produce Plate Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian racing stages its annual game of chance at Toronto's Old Woodbine racetrack Sept. 14 when 36 fillies and 94 colts will be auctioned in the yearling sales held under the auspices of the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society.

The sale represents one of the few opportunities for a U.S. horseman to obtain a candidate for the Queen's Plate classic, the Coronation Stakes, the Cup and Saucer Stakes or the Breeders' Stakes—events which are confined to horses foaled in Canada.

TWO GOOD BUYS

Performances on Canadian tracks this year of two horses brought at the 1957 yearling sales have done much to focus attention on this year's bidding.

Wonder Where, purchased for $7,500 by Larkin Mahoney and Conn Smythe, has established herself as Canada's outstanding three-year-old filly. Her winnings total more than $56,000.

Winning Shot, bought for $3,700 by John S. Evans, won four of his six starts this season before a minor leg injury sent the colt into retirement.

The two horses were bred by Frank J. Selke, managing director of Montreal Canadiens, National Hockey League champions.

Promises Purge

New NBA President Plans War Against Undesirables

By BILT MacPHAIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The National Boxing Association, fighting for internal unity, plans a go-slow war against underworld activity in the fight game.

That was the top-level thinking today as the organization moved into the final day of its annual convention.

Newly-installed NBA president Tony Macaroni of Providence, R.I., promised Wednesday a purge of undesirables, but said the NBA could proceed only through unified action and when the facts are available.

Macaroni and NBA commissioner Abe J. Greene of Paterson, N.J., rejected a plan by Irving J. Kahn, president of TelePrompTer Corporation, to organize an international agency to blacklist criminals from boxing.

Kahn offered to guarantee $50,000 from receipts of next year's fights between Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title rematch to help establish such an agency.

Macaroni said the NBA shouldn't "take any gifts and "Kahn's offer is being shelved."

NO ENTHUSIASM

The Johansson - Patterson rematch, scheduled for sometime between next March 1 and June 15, was cooly received by California and Pennsylvania—the two states being eyed by the promoting Rosenzuig Enterprises.

Jack Falk of the California State Athletic Commission and Paul Sullivan, head of the Pennsylvania commission, said they aren't interested.

Falk reviewed his commission's investigation into recklessering in California boxing. He said information received from the New York district-attorney's office satisfied California that a gangster element, headed by suspected undercover manager Frankie Carbo, was moving into boxing in California.

THE BOWDRY CASE

Falk's report triggered a stormy dispute over California's suspension of third-ranking lightheavyweight Jesse Bowdry for failing to go through with a fight against Sixto Rodriguez in San Francisco last month.

Bowdry withdrew from the bout on the night it was scheduled because the California commission refused Bowdry's manager, Bernie Glickman of Chicago, permission to work in his fighter's corner. The commission said it hadn't time to check out Glickman's application for a manager's license. Also, California said it had information Glickman knew Carbo.

Harry Gilmer, head of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, said (California was right in refusing to let managers without open hearings.

The NBA's grievance committee, however, upheld California's suspension of Bowdry after Abe Greene called for an "end to serious internal bickering."

Busher Curry Will Not Play This Season

MONTREAL (CP) — Floyd (Busher) Curry, playing coach of the Montreal Royals last year, has decided to hang up his skates and concentrate on coaching.

This means the end of 12 years of professional hockey for the 34-year - old former Montreal Canadiens right-winger.

Curry will meet with general manager Frank Carlin of the Royals, whom he led to the Quebec Hockey League championship last year, and Frank J. Selke, managing director of the Canadiens, to discuss a new contract to handle Royals from the bench.

Curry left the National Hockey League after the 1957-1958 season following 10 years with the Canadiens to become the first playing coach in the Royals' 36-year history.

The Chapleau native is optimistic about the new Eastern Professional Hockey League in which the Royals will play this year and he endorses the EPHL rule that each team must dress three rookies for each game.

Royals are to begin training Sept. 21.

Frick Challenges Figures Sent To Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The major leagues' top spokesman said Wednesday it is unreasonable to contend that baseball television agreements protecting minor leagues would knock out most big league telecasts.

Baseball commissioner Ford Frick sharply challenged an estimate sent congress by the National Association of Broadcasters. The association estimated that an agreement not to telecast a major league game within 75 miles of a minor league community on the day of a home game would affect 19,350,000 television-equipped homes, or 84.9 per cent of the total, at least half the time.

Frick told the House antitrust committee it would take weeks to analyze all the minor league schedules, but "I will be glad to undertake a study" to put the situation in what he called the proper light.

Frick supported pending legislation which would legalize 75-mile agreements between major and minor league ball clubs. Without such protection, he said, minor league baseball will die and major league ball cannot survive if by many years.

Ti-Cats Fear Ronnie Knox

HAMILTON (CP) — The man Hamilton Tiger-Cats most fear in the Toronto Argonaut lineup is quarterback Ronnie Knox, the coach of Tiger-Cats told a fan club Wednesday.

Jim Trimble, whose Big Four football champions have a playing date with Argos next Monday, said Knox is a "sensational type of ball player" who can most hurt Ticats.

Trimble told a Quarterback Club luncheon meeting that he rates Dick Shatto, Boyd Carter, Jimmy Roudtree and Gerry Philp of Argos, in that order, as the other big threats.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Banner Lou, owned by L. V. Mysiervie of Toronto and ridden by Avelino Gomez, won a thrilling victory in the $5,000 Yearling Sales Stakes at Old Woodbine Park Wednesday, defeating Burden Boy by a neck. Phantom Boy finished third.

The race was confined to two year olds purchased at last September's yearling sales, conducted by the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society.

Tiger Hands Ace Armstrong First Pro Defeat

CAMDEN, N.H. (AP) — Dick Tiger, the British Empire middleweight champion, handed Gene (Ace) Armstrong his first pro defeat Wednesday night [illegible] taking a 10-round decision.

The Nigerian fighter sent Armstrong to the floor for the first time in his career in the third round of the televised fight. He stayed down for a count of four.

The fifth - ranked Armstrong took the first two rounds, but from the third on it was mostly Tiger's fight.

It was Armstrong's first defeat in 18 fights. Tiger, who is 30, now has a 34-8-2 record.

Tiger was 161½ pounds at the weigh-in and the agreement had stipulated a 161-pound limit. But Armstrong, at 157, agreed to accept $300 to go through with the fight when Tiger sweated himself down to 162.

Columbus Jets Nailing Down Second Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Columbus Jets, with a playoff berth in the International League assured, are steadfastly going about nailing down second place and placing defiant signs that they are the ones the champion Buffalo Bisons are going to have to beat to get to the little world series.

Columbus made it six straight wins and 15 out of 20, with a doubleheader victory over Miami 5-2 and 3-2. Havana defeated Richmond 5-1, Buffalo defeated Montreal 8-6, and Rochester overwhelmed Toronto 12-4.

Al Jackson (15-5) won his seventh in a row for the Jets in the opener and Lynn Lovenguth (13-4) took the nightcap. Chuck Oertel and Billy Smith homered for the Marlins as Mickey Delli Bernoti (3-7) and Herb Moford (6-7) were charged with the losses.

Mike Cuellar (10-10) hung a seventh defeat in nine games on fourth-place Richmond and Bob Wiesler (12-12), Four of the Havana runs were unearned.

Frank Herrera's 26th homer, a triple and double and four runs batted in helped Max Surkont (2-2) beat Montreal, Bill Taylor, whose homer helped the Bisons clinch the flag Tuesday, hit another as did Mike Goliat for Montreal. Billy Harris (12-11) lost.

Dick Ricketts (6-9) won his third in a row for Rochester on a five-hitter. The Wings got six runs off loser Ron Negray (15-11) in the first two innings to sew it up.

Chuvalo May Get Shot at Yvon Durelle

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Chris Shaban, the grocery store owner who calls the shots for Yvon Durelle, says he is "interested" in a Canadian heavyweight title bout between Durelle and champion George Chuvalo of Toronto.

But Shaban said he doesn't want to make any decision at the moment, preferring to wait until Durelle undergoes further physical examinations.

The Bale Ste. Anne, N.B., belter has been complaining of poor balance since his knockout defeat by world light - heavyweight champion Archie Moore in Montreal Aug. 12.

Toronto fight promoter Jack (Cement) Allen said Wednesday he is "pretty sure" he can sign Durelle for a Canadian heavyweight title match with Chuvalo.

Durelle has held the Canadian middleweight title and now holds the light heavyweight title.

Durelle has received several offers since the title fight, one a $20,000 guarantee to defend his British Empire crown against Mike Holi in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Durelle is scheduled to meet an unidentified United States heavyweight at Chatham, N.B., Sept. 12.

Booth TV's Capture Eastern Title With Close 5-4 Win Over Oshawa

Booth's TV's rallied for four runs in the fifth inning here last night to edge Oshawa 5-4 and capture the Eastern Ontario OASA bantam "A" championship in two consecutive games.

Belleville will meet a Toronto entry in the next round, that series likely to get under way on September 12.

Oshawa took a 3-1 lead in the opening stanza last night on a three-run triple by Bob Pilkey, they made it 4-1 in the top of the fifth.

A one-out walk started Booth's on the comeback trail and an error kept their hopes alive. Jim Ross singled one run across the plate and another walk followed. Jim Rutherford won the game with a three-run homer to climax the thrilling battle.

Al Mott toiled on the Belleville hilltop allowing five hits over the seven-inning route. He slipped four on strikes and issued three walks.

Garry Leaming handled Oshawa's mound chore, giving up five hits also. He whiffed five and passed four.

Despite the fact that rain fell before and during part of the game, it was a close and exciting fixture from start to finish between the evenly - matched club.

Jim Rutherford's home run was the big blow for Booth's while Rick Denard's double was their only other extra-base hit. Singles were shared by Carl Boomhower, Bobby Boyle and Jim Ross.

Bob Pilkey had his three-run triple to lead the Oshawa hitters.

Patterson May Be On the Outs With D'Amato

NEW YORK (AP) — Has a rift developed between Floyd Patterson, former world heavyweight champion, and Cus D'Amato, his manager?

There were indications today that the two were not getting along as smoothly as they had in the past.

Patterson, now only 24 and winner of the crown in December 1956, told Milt Gross, sports columnist of the New York Post, that "I don't see Cus as frequently as I did before the fight. He's been away most of the time since these things started coming up. He's been out of town for about three weeks."

Prior to this disclosure Patterson said he resented that D'Amato had not said conferred with Anthony (Fat Tony) Salerno, Harlem gangland figure, regarding the promotion of the June 26 bout with Ingemar Johansson of Sweden. Johansson knocked Patterson out in the third round.

"To grab at Mr. Cus for an explanation," Patterson said.

The Patterson-Salerno meeting was revealed by District Attorney Frank Hogan, after an investigation of the promotional aspects of the bout.

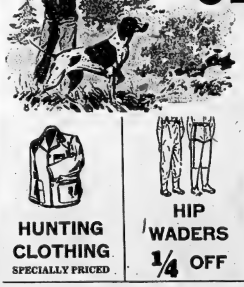
Soo Thunderbirds To Travel 27,763 Miles in Loop

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Sault Hockey Promotions Limited will require frugal operations this season to offset the longest travelling schedule for any team in the new Eastern Professional Hockey League.

According to figures compiled by the local group, Sault Thunderbirds will jaunt 27,763 miles on road trips during their 34-game out-of-town schedule. The team makes 22 trips in all, 13 for one game, six for two games, and three for three games.

Sudbury Wolves are close with prospects of 21,919 miles on the road. Outside the two Northern Ontario centres the rest of the league has it much easier. Trois-Rivieres Lions ride 18,690, Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 14,011 and Kingston Frontenacs and Montreal Royals about 14,000 miles.



All of the Sault travelling must be done by bus because train connections aren't possible on the return trip from Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston or Trois-Rivieres.

AMAZING MIDGETS

Those four amazing midgets of the wrestling world return to the Memorial Arena here Friday night to help complete what appears to be one of the season's top cards.

The Brown Panther will have as his partner that pistol-sized warrior, actually the youth of the midget class, Little Beaver. Beaver and Panther are terrific showmen, as are their opponents, Fuzzy Cupid and Ski Lo Lo.

They will put on a show guaranteed to keep you in stitches from beginning to end, yet sometimes wondering how the little fellows stay in one piece. Ski Lo Lo is as close to a rubber man as we have ever seen. Tossed by an opponent, he will bounce all the way across the ring or tumble end over end to his corner. It is next to impossible to knock him off his feet.

Beaver has an endless bag of tricks that seems to grow with every appearance. And he always winds up using them to drive the poor referee out of his mind.

The little fellows will keep you laughing but the main bout is a different story, Alaska's mighty Yukon Eric will tackle an even bigger man in Don Leo Jonathan in a real battle of the giants. They are two of the strongest men in the game and it will be a battle deluxe over two-of-three falls, one hour time limit.

There will only be a couple more bouts here before they start putting the ice in, so the faithful can't afford to miss this one.

Beaten Twice by Cincinnati While Dodgers, Giants Win; Sox Take Pair From Tigers

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Pittsburgh's Pirates finally have stumbled in that National League pennant race, stubbing their toes on a club they've walked all over this season.

The Cincinnati Reds, who have won only five of 16 from Pittsburgh, dropping six in a row and 10 of 11, jolted the fourth-place Pirates with a 6-3 and 2-1 sweep of a twi - night doubleheader Wednesday night.

A three-run homer by Willie Jones won the opener, ending the Pirates' latest winning string at five. And Don Newcombe, who hadn't beaten Pittsburgh in more than two years, out-duelled Bob Friend in the second game as the Reds dropped two in a row for the first time in a month.

That spilled them two games behind San Francisco's first-place Giants, who defeated Chicago Cubs 4-3 on Jackie Brandt's ninth-inning homer. Second-place Los Angeles stayed within 1½ games of the lead by beating St. Louis 9-8 after trailing by four runs. Philadelphia again downed Milwaukee, 11-5, dropping the third-place Braves four games behind with their third straight loss.

Jones rapped his tie - breaking homer in the eighth against unbeaten reliefer Elmo Face. Vada Pinson and Robinson also homered for the Reds. The Pirates scored their three in the first inning, two on Dick Stuart's homer. They blanked on three hits by rookie Jim O'Toole (5-7).

Brandt's 12th homer, off losing reliefer Don Elston (6-7) handed Sam Jones (11-9) the victory for the Giants, tying teammate Johnny Antonelli and Milwaukee's Lew Burdette for the major league lead.

Felipe Alou and rookie Willie McCovey also homered for the Giants.

The Dodgers blew a 1-0 lead when the Cardinals scored five unearned runs in the third inning, three on Curt Flood's homer. They finally put it away against reliefer Bob Duliba (6-1) with two runs in the sixth. Chuck Churn (1-0) was the winner in relief as the Dodgers set a major league pitching record with 899 strikeouts for the season. The old mark was 896, set by Detroit in 1946.

Carl Sawatski drove in four runs for the Phils, chasing Burdette (18-14) with a three - run homer for a 6-2 lead in the sixth inning. Gene Freese also homered for the Phils, while Hank Aaron hit his 37th for the Braves off Robin Roberts (12-15), a winner after losing three straight.

Red Schoendienst, batting back against TB, made his first appearance of the season for the Braves, bouncing out as a pinch-hitter.

Minor Baseball

The Indians edged the Dodgers 4-3 in the first game of the ban-tam-baseball finals. The contest was halted by darkness in the sixth inning.

The Indians scored single runs in each of the first four frames. Dodgers struck back for a pair in the fourth and one in the fifth.

Both pitchers, Boyle of the Indians and McBride of the Dodgers, hurled fine games.

Ryan led the winners at the plate with a triple while D. Robinson of the Dodgers hit a home run.

This final series is a two-of-three affair.

Canadian Riflemen Avert Skunk in Gold-Medal Dept.; Canada Third in Marathon

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP) — Canadians didn't worry about gold medals in international athletic competition as long as the riflemen were around. These marksmen have developed the fine knack of penning gold when other team members have been shut out.

This is a tradition started in the 1952 Olympic Games at Helsinki and maintained since.

With the third Pan-American Games rounding into the stretch, the riflemen have averted a skunk in the gold-medal department with reports, unconfirmed early this morning, of their biggest haul in any single competition—two gold, a second-place silver and a third-place bronze to go with a silver and two bronze won earlier in this Western hemisphere sports festival.

UNOFFICIAL REPORT

Unofficial word of the haul was given Wednesday night by shooting-team manager Frank McCormick of Montreal and verified by team captain Jim Zavitz of Nanaimo, B.C., competing at the Waukegan rangers, about 45 miles from here.

Garfield McMahon of Dartmouth, N.S., was officially announced the winner of a silver medal in the centrefire pistol event Wednesday—but the unofficial word was that Canada's take from her marksmen was much more.

In the unofficial version, Olympic gold medallist Gerry Ouellette of Deep River won the gold medal in the rifle prone position and his teammate, Clark White, Toronto, placed second for a silver medal.

These reports also said that Canada's four-man team had won a gold medal in mat division and that Ouellette had captured a third-place bronze medal in the rifle kneeling position.

Zavitz, meanwhile, confirmed that Canadian marksmen have received bronze medals for their earlier team performances in the free-pistol and English small-bore events.

"BLACK-FIELD CONCLUDES

Word of the haul came at a time when Canada's 30-member track and field team closed out their six-day, 32-event program with two silver and six bronze medals.

The only Canadian double-medal winners were 26-year-old Doug Kyle of Calgary with a second place in the 10,000 metres and a third in the 5,00 and Betty McCallum of Vernon, B.C., with 800 and by running the third leg in the women's 400-metre relay team that finished behind the United States and Panama.

A stray piece of dirt that lodged in Miss McCallum's eye during a pre-race warmup probably robbed her and teammates Heather Campbell, Vancouver, Maureen Rever, Regina, and Valarie Jerome, Vancouver, of a silver. The 18-year-old girl was forced to run with a patch covering her left eye, resulting in a messed-up baton change when the Canadians were running second, dropped back to third and remained there.

There were other Canadian casualties. Kyle, competing in what he later described as his last marathon, dropped out after 15 miles with badly blistered feet.

Gord Dickson of Hamilton, 21-year-old insurance clerk, hung on to a third-place finish—and a bronze medal—in the event won by Rodney Kelley of the United States who set a blistering pace. Jim Green of the U.S. was second.

Dave Dryborough of Winnipeg stumbled heavily in the west during the 1,500-metre final and gave up when he figured he didn't have a chance of catching up.

The West Indies won the men's 1,600-metre relay with anchorman George Kerr beating Dave Mills of Cleveland, formerly of Sudbury, by about four yards. Mills was running for the U.S. Rico, 53-46.

Has One-Hitter Green Sparks 'Cats' 11-0 Win Petes Forfeit Second Game

By GARRY ALEXANDER

"Lefty" Bob Green came up with his "game of the season" in Peterborough last night and when it was all over the Whitby board Marine club of that city decided to call it quits.

Green threw a masterful one-hitter, struck out 18 of the Petes and led his club in a 15-hit attack as the Bobcats whipped Peterborough 11-0 in the opening game of their OASA Intermediate "AA" playdowns.

Scant minutes after the slaughter the Peterborough club announced it was forfeiting the second game of the series, which was to be played here Saturday. Bobcats will now meet a Toronto club in the second round and arrangements are being made to have the initial game of that set here Saturday.

Green, who threw a one-hitter and fanned 31 in his last playdown performance in Peterborough a year ago, replayed the tune last night and added another curve with his bat.

FACED 30 MEN

He faced only 30 men over the distance last night and was robbed of a no-hitter in the eighth inning. First baseman Buck Cowie rapped a single into short left field to spoil the hall - of - fame effort. Green struck out the first four men he faced in the game to set the pattern and went on from there to claim 15 victims in all. He walked only two, leadoff man Gene Killen, in the fourth and sixth frames.

Meanwhile, Green's mates followed his lead at the plate to comb Reg. Gordon's slants for 15 assorted safeties. Green, Bert Faulkner and "Wiener" Brown were the leaders with the hickory. Green and Faulkner each slammed a home run, triple and single, while Brown had a double and two one-baggers.

Earl Cousins and Lou Smrke clubbed a double and single each with Floyd Crawford's triple and Denny Hayden's double rounding out the extra-base barrage.

A walk, Faulkner's three-ply shot and Cousin's single got the Belleville club a pair in the first. They picked it up again in the second with another pair on Smrke's single, Green's triple, a walk and Brown's safety.

Bobcats made it 5-0 in the third as Smrke doubled and rode home on Green's one-bagger. They broke loose in the sixth for three runs on Crawford's triple off the fence, the doubles by Brown, Hayden and Cousins and an error.

LONG HOMERS

Green drove a tremendous home run over the left field fence in the seventh for a 9-0 score; Bert Faulkner did exactly the same thing in the eighth to reach double figures while two walks and as many bobbles closed the scoring in the ninth.

Reg. Gordon stayed all the way on the Peterborough hill, fanning four and walking five, including Crawford three times.

Both home runs by Faulkner and Green were long, towering blasts that cleared the distant fence with room to spare. Only one of the winners' hits was off the infield variety, a bunt single by Brown.

Linups:

Umpires—Bailey and Woods. Time: 1.17.

Studios Like to Have Adults Stand-in for Child Actors

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Luz Potter is a mere 42 inches tall, but for 20 years she has been growing up with movie children.

Luz is a movie stand-in and has seen the stars come and go. Says she:

"When I start standing in for a child actor, I wear flat shoes, then I graduate to high heels. As the child keeps growing, I stand on blocks of wood, then a two-step floor. That's as high as I can go, and I start all over again with another actor."

She started all this in 1939. With vaudeville dead, she gave up a dancing career to try the movies. She found out the studios needed her.

"They like to have adults stand in for the children," she said. "We little people can take the hot lights better than children. And we can work an eight-hour day, while children have to go to school for three hours."

And so she has seen a parade of performing tots . . . Margaret O'Brien . . . Gigi Perreau, then her sister Jeanine . . . Natalie Wood . . . Sherry Jackson . . . her best break came with the Father Knows Best TV series. She had five years of standing in for Elinor Donahue and Lauren Chapin until both outgrew her.

Now she's starting what might be another long - range assignment. She's stand-in for Jay North, the cute tyke who plays Dennis The Menace in the New Screen Gems TV series.

What does she think of her young people she has worked with?

"I've always had good luck with them. I haven't seen any of the movie brats you hear about. They've been nice children, perhaps a bit brighter than most. I always amazes me how they come out of a big scene with lots of dialogue and go right to work studying their school work."

Luz is a dark-haired and nice-looking be wife of a missile calculator a head taller than she. When you're seated and talking with her, you scarcely notice her size. Only the doll - like voice gives her away.

She used to do stunts in films, but does little since an accident in The Rains of Ranchipur. She suffered serious leg injuries while doubling for a child who was supposed to be swept away in a dash break.

She has done occasional parts, her latest being The Incredible Shrinking Man.

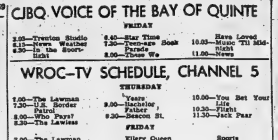
Walt Disney Finds New Delight in Filming of "Darby O'Gill and The Little People"

Walt Disney, who is part Irish, has never taken more delight in making a picture than he has "Darby O'Gill and the Little People," his real live-action feature, about love, laughter and Leprechauns in the Ireland of 50 years ago.

Hardly a day passed in the four months of complex production that Walt wasn't on one of the two immense sound stages he used.

With one of the busiest motion picture and television production schedules in Hollywood on his hands, there he would sit on an apple box, or stand chatting with Janet Munro, Sean Connery or Albert Sharpe.



Sharpe created the famous "Finian" role on Broadway. Walt brought him out of retirement in Belfast for the title role, the biggest assignment in the actor's 68 years of making people laugh.

Janet, pretty, petite Gaelic beauty, was making a name for herself both in English television and motion pictures last year when Disney heard of her, interviewed her in London, and not only hired her for "Darby" but for five years.

Connery, another fast-rising British star, in the romantic lead opposite Janet; Kieron Moore, a young man from County Cork who plays the heavy; well - known Irish character players like Denis O'Dea, Farrell Pelly, J. G. Devlin, Nora O'Mahoney, Jack MacGowan and two famous English names, Estelle Winwood and Walter Fitzgerald, traded stories with the producer between shots.

Perhaps Walt got his biggest kick out of Brian Connors, the 21-inch King of the Leprechauns. Walt's story of finding the king and bringing him to Hollywood along with 150 of his tiny subjects has been widely quoted. He sticks to it, and to his reports of the high esteem Little People are held in Ireland.

"Darby O'Gill" is the story of an Irish story-teller who tries to best King Brian at his own game and comes off a bad second, along with his comely daughter who is not at all to blame for the trouble the O'Gills get into.

This action-packed film, dealing with the forging of America's first trans-continental mail route. On the same program in Technicolor "Geisha Boy" starring Jerry Lewis

40 New TV Shows to Start Careers in Next 7 Weeks

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There will be some radical changes this fall in the well-established habits of television watching as the networks start fighting for viewer attention.

During the next seven weeks approximately 40 new shows will start their careers in prime evening network time—including the first trickle of what promises to be an exciting flood of big, expensive special productions.

During the same period, the sturdy, tried-and-true programs will be having so-called "season premieres," which in most cases just means they've stopped summer repeats and are putting on fresh material again.

But this gradual unfolding of the fall season doesn't mean a resumption of the comfortable viewing customs of last year.

NEW TIME

For instance, Jack Benny, whose CBS Sunday night TV spot has been as unchanging as his age, moves to a new hour and with George Gobel to help on alternate weeks, will fight a ratings battle with popular Loretta Young on NBC and a new ABC entry, The Alaskans, a western with five pioneers.

Ed Sullivan's old friend, Steve Allen, has moved over to a Les Monday evening spot where the competition will be different, even if formidable—Ed' new June Allyson Show and a comedy-drama series starring Jackie Cooper and James Michener's adventures in Paradise on ABC.

Sullivan on CBS will be worrying this year about NBC's dramatic Sunday Showcase, and ABC's popular Maverick plus another ABC western, The Lawman.

Perry Como will be missing from the Saturday night lineup, slipping into a new Wednesday night spot.

This means that I've Got a Secret fans—the program comes during the second half of the Como show—will have a big decision to make.

SWEDISH MINORITIES

The only racial minorities in Sweden are 10,000 Lapps who live in the north and 30,000 Finns along the common border.

Making Rubber Latex Models Of Dead Reptiles to Show At Royal Ontario Museum

By GENE McCARTH Y
anadian Press SCIaff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A friendly cobra, now dead, has become a symbol of international goodwill.

The 14-foot snake, of a type that is one of the deadliest in the world, was one of many prize specimens drowned last year when a flood afflicted the zoo at Cleveland, Ohio.

The preserved cobra and more than 40 other dead reptiles have been sent to the Royal Ontario Museum here as models for making plaster casts.

In its lifetime the cobra was a favorite of children visiting the Cleveland zoo. The zoo - keeper would wrap it around his neck and feed it by hand. After a model has been made here, the original will be shipped back to Cleveland to rejoin as an item of Canadian-U.S. goodwill.

SPECIAL REPTILE SHOW

Rubber latex models of this and the other reptiles, and of other snakes collected on a Trinidad expedition or "purchased from snake dealers throughout the world, now are being prepared for exhibition when the Ontario Museum's Reptiles of the World gallery is opened some time next year.

Terry Shortt, one of four men connected with organizing the gallery, said each reptile has been chosen to tell a story in each of the gallery's 26 exhibits.

"We've tried to select the most notable, the most bizarre and the most colorful specimens to tell that story," he said.

The reptiles are natives of Malaya, Indochina, Central and South America, but there is one particular snake the museum is anxious to obtain.

"The sea snake common to the South Pacific, and the most venomous of all reptiles, so far has eluded us," said Mr. Shortt.

While these snakes are fairly common—hundreds get tangled in fishermen's nets — they are extremely hard to keep alive in transportation.

35 CANADIAN SNAKES

The gallery will include all types of snakes found in Canada—rattlesnakes are the only poisonous ones among 35 varieties—and 108 foreign species.

Most will be displayed in their natural habitat. The most deadly of all snakes in the New World is the bushmaster, to be placed in surroundings similar to that of its native tropical rain forest in Trinidad.

The reptiles are transported alive to the museum, in most instances. They are first carefully photographed in color and in black and white, to determine their natural positions and body colors.

The pliable bodies then are put into plaster moulds and a plastic and latex rubber casting technique is employed to make the model. The models are painted by Mr. Shortt, Arrio Catti and Levi Sternberg, following transfer lines drawn on the bodies before casting.

Mr. Sternberg is the museum paleontologist who through his work in Western Canada developed the museum's dinosaur collection.

Noted Composer, Jack Norworth, Dies in N.Y.

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Norworth, 80, composer of Take Me Out to the Ball Game and Shine On, Harvest Moon, died Tuesday night of a heart attack.

Norworth, a native of Philadelphia, first appeared on the stage as a juvenile dancer-comedian, progressed to the Ziegfeld Follies and later turned to the legitimate stage and to movies.

Norworth wrote Take Me Out to the Ball Game in 1908. He liked to recall that he had yet to see a baseball game at that time and got his inspiration from an advertisement while riding the New York subway.

He was singing Shine on Harvest Moon in his dressing room in a New York theatre in 1907 when the musical comedy star, Nora Bayes, stuck her head in the doorway and said:

"I like that song. Will you let me use it in my act?"

"Yes," Norworth replied. "If you'll take me along with it. We'll sing it together."

Within a week they were married. They became the highest-priced show business team in the world. They were divorced in 1913.

TONGUE-TWISTING SONGS

Norworth was famous in vaudeville for singing such tongue-twisting songs as Sister Susie's Sewing Shirts for Soldiers and Which Switch is the Switch, Miss, for Ipswich.

After performing in London through the First World War, Norworth returned to New York and opened the Norworth Theatre where he played in musicals.

Note From China Accuses India Of Aggression

'We Are Looking Into It' Nehru Says of New Note

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru said today he has received a new note from Communist China accusing India of aggression on the Tibetan border.

"There is a big argument over it," Nehru told Parliament. He said the government is publishing a white paper on the tense border situation, including correspondence with China.

India has accused the Chinese Communists of aggression by attacking Indian border patrols and moving in to occupy Indian territory.

VERSIONS DIFFER

"The accusation is of aggression against their border," he said. "Obviously their version does not tally with ours. They have given names and some places where they said the aggression took place, and we are looking into it."

Relations between India and China have been strained since the Tibetan uprising against the Communist regime and the flight of refugee to Tibet's ruler, the Dalai Lama.

In accusing the Chinese Communists of aggression against India, Nehru said India has made plain its intention of going to war and hopes to resolve border differences by negotiation.

Nehru said Peking asked India to drop aggressive charging that one or two Indian patrols had entered Tibet.

REPLY IN FEW DAYS

The prime minister said the government hoped to reply within the next few days. He did not say when the white paper will be published. But members of parliament previously demanded publication of such a document to give maximum publicity to the situation on the India - Tibet border.

Nehru said he has had no intimation of any massing of Chinese Communist troops on the borders of Sikkim, a protectorate of India, nor have there been any fresh developments in the Ladakh area of Kashmir.

He reported last Friday that Chinese Communist troops presumably still were holding certain areas of Ladakh, which they first entered in 1957.

It is certainly true, he said, that large numbers of Chinese troops are in Tibet and there is no doubt some of them are all the borders trying to prevent refugees from escaping into India.

Nehru denied published reports that India is building up the three powers on the situation. He said the reports have been pure fabrications sent but that ambassadors of all countries were kept informed of the views of successive governments.

NEHRU RE-ACCEPTED

Nehru told Parliament he was prepared to have arbitration by a commission of three neutral nations of the McMahon Line which defines India's northeastern boundary with China but that the McMahon line has to be accepted.

The McMahon Line, named for the surveyor, was drawn up at conference involving India, China and Tibet which ended with the signing of the 1914 Simla Convention fixing Tibet's borders with China and India.

Nehru said the McMahon line as a whole is the frontier of India and "we have to live by it."

He said his country must protect its borders "always keep the door open to compromise."

Sleepy Juror Blames It All On Living Costs

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Judge Susie Sharp had just become her charge to the jury in civil case when she noticed a juror missing.

Searching officers found George W. Hardy at home, fast asleep. Hardy blamed the cost of living for oversleeping. He explained he couldn't support a wife and seven children on $6-a-day jury pay so his employer, a bakery company, permitted him to work nights.

Monday through Wednesday Hardy served on the jury from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., worked eight hours at the baker during the night, then grabbed about four hours sleep before hurrying back to the courthouse.

The wife and kids already had left Thursday when the alarm went off and ran down without waking him.

Judge Sharp, who had completed the jury with an alternate, excused the sleepy baker with further service and told him to go back to bed.

Laotian Leader Arms Civilians, Appeals for Aid

SAM NEUA, Laos (AP) — The royal army commander today armed civilians and sent out an appeal for reinforcements to stop Communists massing for an assault on this strategic town in Laos.

Brig.-Gen. Amkha Soukhavong, whose command post for northern Laos is in Sam Neua, predicted the assault would come within 10 days. He said the situation "is not pretty."

Sub-machine-guns and ammunition were handed out to government workers and school teachers enlisted in the defense forces. The town's 2,500 population remained calm.

The rebels were reported massing in jungle-covered mountains 7 miles north of Sam Neua, but sent patrols probing forward past government lines.

OUTNUMBERED

Amkha estimated the total Communist strength at 4,500. He said he had only one battalion in Sam Neua. A Laos battalion ranges from 400 to 800 men.

"We have more battalions elsewhere in the province," he said, "but I cannot get them here. The world knows our problem. Why don't they send us helicopters and planes which would bring troops in and take wounded out?"

Amkha is building his main defence line 5 miles out with the handful of paratroopers manning forward advance outposts.

The fighting so far has been mostly skirmishes. Amkha said about 60 of his men have been killed or are missing since dawn Sunday. He claimed taking 100 prisoners.

IKE WILL SPEND HOLIDAY AT HIS SCOTTISH CASTLE

He and de Gaulle Mainly in Agreement

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — President Eisenhower arrived in Scotland today for a short vacation before returning to the United States from diplomatic mission to Western Europe.

Eisenhower flew by jet from France, where he held two days of talks with President de Gaulle that rounded out a tour that him to Bonn, London and Paris.

Eisenhower plans to spend a long weekend at Culzean Castle, Scotland gave him a 16-room apartment in the castle as a token of respect for his leadership as wartime Allied commander.

HEITER NEGOTIATING

U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter remained in France to continue diplomatic meetings with French and NATO officials.

He will report to the North Atlantic council today on the coming exchange of visits between Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Eisenhower wound up his discussions with de Gaulle in a note of general agreement.

After two days of talks, the two leaders issued a communique saying they agreed on most of the questions discussed.

Whether there was agreement on the delicate question of the rebellion in Algeria was not readily apparent. The communique said only that "African problems in general and those which relate to North Africa in particular" were discussed in some length.

DE GAULLE PLAN

The New York Times said in a dispatch from Washington that de Gaulle has a plan which calls for creation of an Algerian-elected assembly and an Algerian executive.

According to the report, de Gaulle would be willing to negotiate the future of Algeria with an executive drawn from the elected legislature.

Eisenhower and de Gaulle reached complete agreement on the Berlin question, the communique said.

Civil Service Federation Votes Against 35-Hour Week in Big Cities

HALIFAX (CP)—The Civil Service Federation has quashed a resolution, which would have asked federal employees in cities where populations exceed 250,000.

The federation's executive council said the concession would compensate for time spent commuting in larger centres such as Vancouver, Montreal and Toronto.

The resolution was defeated on the grounds of discrimination.

"Why should people in Toronto or Montreal be treated differently than any of the rest of us?" asked one rural delegate as the federation's tri-annual convention here.

The federation approved establishment of a civil service housing co-operative and President F. W. Whitehouse of Ottawa cast the deciding vote.

The plan, modelled on the one in Ottawa, would allow council to guarantee loans which could serve as a down payment on a home would be interest-free and repayable on monthly terms.

Defiant Argentine General Reaches Truce With Premier

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Gen. Carlos Toranzo Montero today challenged the government's order ousting him as Argentina's army chief, declaring that 95 per cent of the army is behind him.

Toranzo Montero made the statement after a tense night during which President Arturo Frondizi announced that troops were marching on military barracks where the general set up rebel headquarters. Two tanks appeared near the barracks but held their fire.

Shortly before dawn, Toranzo Montero emerged from his stronghold in the Army Mechanical School in the heart of the capital and went to Government House for a two-hour conference with Frondizi.

He told reporters afterwards of the rebel officers are not seeking to overthrow the Frondizi government. Their dispute, the general said, is with War Secretary Emilio Ayala.

Toranzo Montero said he reached a truce with Frondizi, his friend from boyhood, and declared there now will be a "walking out" in the military crisis.

While the general headed back to the rebel headquarters, government sources said the resignation of Anaya appeared imminent.

The crisis erupted Wednesday when Anaya fired Toranzo Montero in an abrupt over reshuffling of key posts in the army.

Toranzo Montero said his defiant stand does not represent any danger to Frondizi's government because the trouble had no political origin.

Anaya declined comment after the meeting and said only the president would make an announcement.

Anaya had ordered the arrest of 17 army generals who refused to accept Toranzo Montero's ouster.

Francisco Villanli, one of 11 generals arrested, was reported to have disobeyed a detention order and assumed command of the 3rd Army Division.

Cooler Weather Is Easing Polio Problem in Some Areas

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Scattered outbreaks of polio continue to send new emergency cases to eastern Canada hospitals, but there was some indication Thursday that cooler September weather is easing the problem in hard-hit areas.

Montreal hospitals reported 16 new cases to bring the year's total for the area to 619, but according to Dr. Gustave Charest, city epidemiologist, the "situation seems to be at a standstill."

Quebec city reported three deaths Thursday, bringing the death toll for that area to eight. A total of 60 cases has been recorded this year.

In Ottawa, Suzanne Sauve, aged 17 months, from Cornwall died in hospital and another child remained critical. The Ottawa district is under observation as a suspected case.

London, Ont., reported its eighth suspected case when a four-year-old boy was admitted to hospital. Welland reported its first victim since 1955 as a two-month-old boy was taken to Hamilton General Hospital.

The new epidemic in Newfoundland appeared to be easing although two boys from St. John's were placed in iron lungs along with 11 earlier victims. The province's cases this year total 62. Six persons have died.

VACCINE SHORT

The vaccine shortage in Montreal continued to keep vaccination clinics operating at restricted levels, but Dr. Charest said the city has enough Salk vaccine to give second shots to persons under 20 until Sept. 9.

Quebec City's medical officer, Dr. Berchmans Paquet, urged parents to get their children to hospital as soon as polio symptoms are observed. Two of the latest victims were young girls who died a few hours after admission to hospital.

The death of Suzanne Sauve was the first from polio in Ontario this year. Seven cases have been reported among Ottawa residents.

Diefenbaker Says Canada's Needs Come First

CHICAGO (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has reminded United States businessmen that Canadians expect the business policies of U.S. subsidiaries to be based on Canadian considerations and to be in the best interests of the Canadian economy and people.

His outspoken reminder was given Thursday in an address to a joint luncheon meeting of the Canadian Rotary Clubs and Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

"Canadians welcome the investment of American dollars in industrial resources development in Canada," he said. "But it must be understood that Canadians ask that subsidiaries conduct themselves in the best interests of Canada first."

In an interview the prime minister reiterated Canadian opposition to Chicago's plan to divert additional water from Lake Michigan into its sewage system.

As an example of the "Canadian considerations" on which subsidiaries' decisions should be based he mentioned that "if the degree of processing of Canadian materials before export can be increased, this should be done." Canadian personnel should be encouraged and trained to take an increasing part in management and professional functions in subsidiary corporations. Location of investments should be giving greater autonomy in operating the subsidiary in Canada.

STOLEN VACCINE RECOVERED IN MONTREAL APT.

Will Be Tested Before Being Used

MONTREAL (CP)—Tip after tip reached detectives working around the clock to find $50,000 worth of salk vaccine stolen Monday from the University of Montreal.

Footslogging police checked 19. No result.

The 20th paid off.

In a raid Thursday on an empty three - roomed apartment a tenant-seeking Montreal they found the stolen shipment stored in a household refrigerator, a kitchen cupboard and cardboard boxes strewn around the living room.

The 10,000 vials of vaccine, enough for 75,000 doses, can't be used until tested and so will not help the shortage of vaccine in polio-stricken Quebec.

The drug will be tested on rhesus monkeys for six or eight weeks. Only after it passes the test can it be released for use.

The raid was led by provincial police Deputy-Director Leopold Trottier, who found the fourth floor apartment unlocked.

He began his grim information leading to the raid, it is believed, when he left his office Monday who saw the carriens of vaccine being carried into the flat by a tall man in a white coat.

Many were clearly marked "Connaught Laboratories", the Toronto plant where the vaccine is produced. Police refused to say what the person who gave the tip.

They said the flat had been rented Monday, six hours after four-masked men in white coats had overpowered a watchman storage room at the university, overpowered the watchman and made off with the vaccine in an empty monkey cage.

FOUR IN CUSTODY

Police Director Hilaire Beauregard said the recovered vaccine will be placed under heavy police guard until samples are tested.

The vaccine is thought to be still in good condition. Earlier doctors had warned that the cherry-red liquid vaccine would turn cloudy and go bad in 48 hours if left in temperatures higher than 40 degrees.

Unveils Plans To Hold 1968 Games in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto-born architect "has unveiled plans here for bringing the Olympic Games to Toronto by building a giant $10,000,000 stadium.

G. Ross Anderson, a part-time professor of architecture at the University of Kansas, revealed his dream of getting the 1968 Games for Toronto.

Speaking at the Royal Canadian Yacht Club on Toronto Island, he proposed that the huge stadium be built in front of the proposed new National Exhibition breakwater on an area in the harbor that would have to be filled in.

Also included in the dream-plans are proposals to build an Olympic village on Toronto Island, to seat about 4,000 athletes, which could also be used for low-rental housing.

"We hope through this project some action will be taken to provide the proper accommodation for the 19th Olympiad," he said.

'Tight Money' Causes Concern Says Premier

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost said Thursday the country's "tight money" situation is causing the Ontario government "immense concern."

He said in an interview the great expansion of the last three years has been accomplished because of a favorable credit situation.

"Nevertheless, in times of booming economic activity there has to be headed toward, you have to have curbs on the money supply because there is only so much money to go around."

He said further credit cutbacks will be necessary if the tight money policy continues.

Old Wolfe Isle Ferry Pirate Ship For Yankee Capture of Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Today forces from the United States will invade and capture Toronto for the second and probably the last time in history.

The time was during the War of 1812. Today the invaders are schoolchildren from Tampa, Fla., disguised as Gasparilla pirates.

The invasion, part of the Lakefair events at the Canadian National Exhibition, will end in a peace accord with the victors joining in a parade through the exhibition grounds with the mayor formally accepting the surrender of the city from Mayor Nathan Phillips.

More than 100 Americans have come from Tampa, where the invasion is an annual event, to take part in the festivities on Canada.

Their ship Jose Gaspar, is a converted Kingston-Wolfe Island ferry, Tasli II, and armed with pby and $425.

Cost Of Living At Record High Bureau Reports

Seasonal Rise in Food Costs Was Main Impetus

OTTAWA (CP) — A rise of nearly one-half of one per cent in Canadian living costs during July pushed the consumer price index to a record high of 126.4 on Aug. 1, the bureau fo statistics reported today.

A seasonal rise in food costs of 1.1 per cent was the main impetus as the index of living costs moved from its July 1 level of 125.9 to pass the previous peak of 126.3 reached last Nov. 1.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was more than one per cent above the mark of 123.2 a year earlier on Aug. 1, 1958.

Higher prices during July were reported for eggs, oranges, lettuce, beef and pork, offsetting price declines for most fresh vegetables, especially potatoes.

Other factors behind the index rise were gains in prices in rent and home-ownership costs, gasoline, taxi fares, hospital rates, pharmaceuticals, alcoholic beverages and personal care items.

WAGE FIGURE DOWN

The July rise in living costs followed a June decline in wage rates. The index of average industrial wages and salaries at July 1—latest date for which figures are available—was 171.6, based on 1949 equalling 100. This compared with 171.8 at June 1 and 164.6 on July 1 last year.

This was largely accounted for from a survey of firms employing more than 5 persons and covering a wide range of industries, represents an average of total wages paid.

In a breakdown of the consumers price index, the bureau said the sub-index for food rose to 120.5 on Aug. 1 from 119.2 on July 1. The sub-index was below the level of 122.6 on Aug. 1 last year and compares with the record of 123.4 last Oct. 1.

The sub-index of shelter costs reached a new peak of 141.9, rising from 141.7 on July 1.

Wholesale prices showed mixed trends in July. The index for 30 industrial raw materials, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, rose to 243.9 in the week ended July 28 from 240.9 in the week ended July 31. However, the Canadian farm products index, on the same 1935-39 base, declined to 218.9 from 223.7 during the same period.

Quebec Premier Seriously Ill In Ungava

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis is unconscious and in his extreme serious condition in hospital at Schefferville, Que., after being stricken while visiting the Ungava mining community.

Exact nature of the premier's illness was not disclosed, but a reliable informant said Mr. Duplessis is unconscious and his condition is extremely serious.

In Montreal, a Union Nationale party official said "we fear the premier suffered a cerebral attack."

A number of Quebec doctors were rushed by air to the bedside of the premier who was 80 last April 20. A sister of the bachelor premier was flown from Trois-Rivieres to his bedside.

The premier left Quebec City by air Wednesday with some supporters of his government to visit iron ore mining and shipping centres on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River. His first stop was Sept-Iles, 350 miles northeast of Quebec City, and he flew to Schefferville, 365 miles north of Sept-Iles.

He was to have returned to Quebec Saturday.

FIRST OFFICIAL WORD

In Quebec City, Hon. Antoine Ricard, Quebec solicitor-general and government leader, gave the first official news of the premier's attack. He described it as a "serious heart problem."

While rumors spread in Quebec City that the premier was seriously ill, Mr. Rivard handed this statement to the press:

"The premier of Quebec is at Schefferville where he suffers from a serious indisposition which will delay his return to Quebec City and holds the control of the many engagements for the coming week."

Later, Mr. Rivard disclosed that a number of Quebec City doctors had been flown to the premier's bedside.

One of the doctors flown to Schefferville was Dr. Lucien Larue, medical director of St. Michel Archange Hospital at Quebec. Dr. Larue is a longtime friend of the premier. St. Michael Specializes in cases of brain injury and disease and other forms of mental illness.

Sues Neighbor Whose Bees Steal Nectar

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) Farmer L. J. Allen complained in court Thursday that bees are stealing nectar from his clover patch.

For months, he alleges, the bees have been flying from Henry Forester's adjoining ranch, taking the nectar and converting it into honey.

Allen contends the bees damage his land and livestock and reduced the value of his property.

He asks $500 damages in county court of law and the court took the case under consideration.

POLICE CRACK DOWN ON CITY SPEEDERS

Complaints of speeding and other traffic violations on North Sidney Street have resulted in a crackdown by police in that area with result that a number of motorists have found themselves charged with exceeding the speed limit in that area.

"It is the intention of the police department to make continued checks for all traffic violations regardless of the area in the city," noted Police Chief Walter Probert, "and the cooperation of motorists in observing all traffic regulations is asked."

PAIR OF RACCOONS TAKEN FROM HOME

Unwelcome visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cody, Hastings Drive, were forcibly evicted by city police last night.

The visitors, however, were a pair of wild raccoons which had taken possession of the attic of the Cody garage and refused to vacate despite normal efforts at eviction.

Three members of the city's forest were called in last night and the raccoons were removed from the garage and turned over by Charles Thorn, former city dog catcher.

FIND RHINO REMAINS

LONDON (CP) — A bone found by a London building site has been identified as part of the leg of a rhinoceros which lived about 40,000 years ago. It was found 35 feet below street level. Bones of hippopotamus which lived about the same time has also been found on the site.

Skeletons of Team of Horses Said Mired in Marsh Dug Up

The unwitting grave of a team of horses which apparently died after being mired in a creek in a marsh north of Mountain View was recently uncovered during excavation for a new highway culvert.

The skeletons of the horses were dug up by a McFarland dragline shovel while doing culvert excavation, on the new location route for No. 14 highway about four miles south of the city.

Apparently the marsh mire-hole had been the grave for several horses in the period of several decades ago. Old time district residents recall at least two instances when horses were lost in the marsh.

One story is told by Mr. Jim Robinson who admits to being "several years over 80."

According to Mr. Robinson a team of horses and sleds with a load of cut stone was lost in the marsh. He recalled the horses were owned by a Belleville man named Slavin, who was drawing stone from Mountain View to Belleville.

He said Mr. Slavin was in the habit of leaving the horses and sleds travelling the marsh to the Bay which he would cross on the ice. The day he never went through the ice at the creek crossing and drowned before he could be rescued.

THE OTHER STORY

The other story is told by Mr. Jim Robinson recalls that a man named Murphy lost one or two horses in the same spot.

Mr. Robinson recalls that it was 37 years ago when the present road to highway was put through from Belleville to Picton.

"All the farmers along the road thought it was all at that time," he noted. "The work was all done with horses and scrapers. There was no big mechanized equipment like is being used today."

Highway construction techniques differed in those days.

"We had to fill in part of the marsh," he recalled. "But at that time the muck in the marsh was not dug out down to the hardpan."

"At that time fill was simply dumped into the marsh to raise the level of the roadbed," he said.

School Board Given Property For $20,000

TRENTON — The Trenton school board has been given a portion of the deed to the proposed site for the new public school to be built on Dufferin Street south. The board was awarded the property by an arbitration court for the sum of $20,000. A total of $17,500 less than the owners of the land had asked for it and $5,000 more than the board had first offered.

It is expected that the Board will undoubtedly hold a meeting with the contractor to discuss the new building but this meeting has not been arranged by the chairman of the board, Stan Ketcheson, as yet.

No date has been set as when work on the new school, to be known as the Trenton Central School, will begin, but is expected to be as soon as possible," it is felt as soon as possible. "No word has been given to the contractor, A. E. Ackerman Construction Company, to go ahead," Mr. Carswell, secretary of the school board, said this morning.

Mr. Carswell said all public schools are closed for the opening day, September 8, with the exception of the senior public school and the Dufferin Street. The desks have not arrived yet for the Dufferin Street school. The auditorium had been partitioned off to make two additional rooms to handle the increased number of students and the desks were ordered some time ago with the understanding they would be delivered in September.

The new location changes from one school to another in the public system number 19 and there have been six new teachers brought to the Trenton high school.

Motorists Urged To Have 'Care' In Driving

A magic formula, simple and effective, was devised today for Belleville Police Chief Walter Dunn to help reduce the toll of driving during the Labor Day holiday.

The prescription comes from Chief of Police R. W. Probert who has summed up in three simple word — care.

1. Courtesy while driving.
2. Alertness at the wheel.
3. Relaxation and coffee at regular intervals.
4. Eagerness for a safe arrival, by observing speed and traffic laws.

By keeping this magic word in mind, the Chief hopes, motorists and other road-users will help to make this Labor Day weekend a truly happy one, even for police officers on duty.

For policemen, he points out, a truly happy holiday period is one in which no serious and major accident reports are made. Both of these, he emphasizes, are far too often the result of lack of care.

Annoys Girl, Then Drives Car Into Building

TORONTO (CP)—Edward Trefler Morris, 27, who left a girl's uptown apartment Thursday night after she called the police to have him removed was driving later when his car smashed at high speed into the front of the apartment building.

Police said Norris had been visiting a girl in the apartment building when she called the police. When they arrived he had gone and the girl decided to leave in case he returned.

When he did return — at dawn today—it was at 80 miles an hour streaking across Eglington Avenue and he narrowly missed another car to crash into the apartment building doorway and two shop fronts.

Old 'Ferry House' at Rossmore Dismantled for New Highway

A link with the past and one closely associated with across the bay ferry service before the turn of the century, is rapidly disappearing at Rossmore as right-of-way clearing for the re-location of No. 14 highway continues.

A large brick structure at the southern entrance to the present bay bridge until recently used by the Ostrom family as a summer residence, is being torn down under the wrecker's hammer this little more than the four walls now remaining.

It is this building which had a link with Belleville's past in the days before the bay bridge was built.

Right alongside is the one time "ferry dock which served as the Prince Edward terminus for across the bay ferries linking Belleville and Rossmore. The building at that time was operated as a hotel and was popularly known as "The Ferry House."

At that time, old timers recall there were four hotels in Rossmore, one of them built on the appearance of a small metropolis with a population of more or close to 2,000 persons.

It was at that time also that Massassaga Point was in its heyday. There also was a large hotel and excursion boats ran from Belleville almost daily during the hot summer period.

Hope is being expressed that some day this popular spot may be turned into a provincial park.

WORK PROCEEDING

Work of the re-location of No. 14 highway from Rossmore to Crofton is proceeding rapidly with big dirt moving machinery already having partially completed a good deal of the new grade.

Speaking of the new bay-way route bears left on leaving the bay bridge and to provide right-of-way clearance the former Ostrom house, a service station and part of another residence and store had to be moved. The service station today has all but disappeared.

The new route of the highway by-passes through marsh land and bush until it emerges onto the present right-of-way at the edge of the marsh south of Wesse florist hothouses.

The present route is then followed generally until the Mountain View turn when it cuts the corner at the foot of the hill and goes over the escarpment by a cut through the rock.

At the Rossmore end of the highway re-location a spur connection is now being applied to the new grade to be followed by an eight-inch layer of gravel.

Bowling Notes

One of the most popular tournaments of the district will be held on the local greens on Labor Day when the mixed doubles for the John Shaw Memorial trophy and accompanying prizes will be competed for. The late John Shaw was one of the most popular and enthusiastic bowlers in the city and on the death of Mrs. Shaw a number of years ago, her husband sponsored this tournament. Although it has only been running for a year, the district bowlers have given it enthusiastic support as Mr. Shaw was also popular in other centres.

In observing the speed limits and other traffic regulations."

The inspector noted that the order for stepped-up highway patrol over the holiday had come directly from Attorney General Keiso Roberts, following a special meeting in Toronto this week attended by provincial police inspectors.

The stepped-up highway patrol was the policy decided upon in an effort to keep accidents to the lowest level possible, he said.

Last Labor Day weekend there were no fatalities in the No. 9 police district which includes the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac.

"We only hope that we can equal that record this year," Inspector McDougall said. "But even stepped-up highway patrol will not do it without the cooperation of motorists."

Mrs. C. Coleman, Mrs. M. Muir and Miss Winnie Smith did not win any games but were given a prize, when Miss Smith, despite a broken hand played through the tournery. Mrs. D. Hurst, Mrs. Hermon and Mrs. Elsie Humphreys went along but did not reach the prize list.

Wing Members Visit Station's Rescue Centre

418 (Belleville) Wing R.C.A.F., met at the Medical Centre, 8 R.D. Trenton Thursday evening, and went on to the Aerodrome Hangar for a Mess Dance Cutter.

A visit to the Rescue Coordination Centre followed. The scope of this operation, which utilizes the calling for the emergency search and rescue, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, R.C.M.P., Hudsons Bay Dept of Lands and Forest personnel and Observer Corps members, among others, was a revelation to the Wing.

The business session covered plans for the Fall Dance to be held October 13th and decided to delay the suit draw for a month as many returns have not been made because of vacations etc.

The magazine subscription sale which provided wheel chairs and other sick-room equipment last year, is under way again.

The equipment obtained in this manner is available to any resident, and has been of continual use. The Wing expects to add considerably to the stock available, through the current campaign.

Normal Business Life Resumes In Calcutta

CALCUTTA (AP) — Troops stood by today as Calcutta returned to normal after a day of violence that took 15 lives.

Apart from two clashes between police and hooligans in the early morning, the city and its industrial suburb of Howrah were quiet and normal business life resumed.

Three hundred Indian Army troops were called to Howrah, where police and mobs battled Thursday. The soldiers arrived when the situation began to calm down and were not needed to quell the rioting.

SHOPS WERE BURNED

Howrah police said their latest count showed 10 persons were killed by police rifle fire and two storekeepers fatally stabbed by the mob for not observing the call for a general strike. The shops were closed.

One person was killed and 2 injured.

Police and civil officials began screening 350 riot suspects arrested in Howrah.

In Calcutta itself, police bullets killed three persons Thursday night. Five persons and a number of hoodlums were injured.

NORMAL DAY AGAIN

This slum-ridden port city of 4,000,000 people was almost a normal day. Tens of thousands got up from their pavement beds — dozens of them slate-owned buses began operating and stores were open for business.

Thousands had to walk to work because trolley cars still were not running.

The troubles developed from Communists' fake accusations against the Bengal state government's handling of food supplies. They say the government policies are creating high rice prices. But the demonstrations were taken over by hoodlums who did not necessarily have political allegiances.

Bomarc Missile Successful in Interception

ELGIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — A Bomarc guided missile made a successful interception of a supersonic Regulus II missile over the Gulf of Mexico Thursday.

The air force said this was the first of a series of launchings of the IM-99A Bomarc against faster, more sound simulated enemy bombers.

The 47-foot Bomarc intercepted the target at scheduled rendezvous point, which can be recovered by radio-controlled Regulus was launched 300 nautical miles from the Bomarc launching site.

The interception was made at supersonic speed well above 30,000 feet, almost seven miles up.

The Bomarc was fired on command of a SAGE computer in the control centre of the Montgomery air defence sector at Gunter, Ala., about 150 miles north of the Bomarc launch site.

The Regulus II is an air-breathing missile of about the same size and shape as a fighter plane.

Two Kitchener Youths Given Stiff Sentences

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Two Kitchener youths who overpowered two provincial police constables and stole their cruiser Aug. 14 today received consecutive terms in penitentiary for a total of eight offences.

Robert Thomas, 18, was sentenced to two three-year concurrent terms for escape of one theft. Moses Shantz, 1, was given two years and six months for the same two offences.

Magistrate Alen S. Stewart said he gave Shantz a lighter sentence because he believed Thomas had led him. The youths pleaded guilty to all the charges against them in court here Aug. 24.

The pair had been arrested by police in Mount Forest, about 42 miles east of here, on theft charges and were being brought to Owen Sound when they used a ruse to overpower two provincial policemen and steal their cruiser.

They later abandoned the police car and stole another in which they were found sleeping the next day.

The two were handed concurrent sentences ranging from 18 months imprisonment are six months indeterminate to 20 days in jail for three charges of breaking, entering and theft in Normanby Township, truck theft, escaping custody and theft of gas.

Neither of the youths had previous convictions.

Seize Suspect, Fail to Find Missing Trooper

TAWAS CITY, Mich. (AP)—A flying search of dense woods crashed into a summer cottage in the northern Michigan wilderness today and seized on a young man wanted in the mysterious disappearance of a state police trooper.

The officers grabbed Alvin Knight without gunfire, but found no trace of Albert Souden, the missing trooper, or Knight's police service pistol which was found in the cabin.

Souden, assigned to the Brighton state police post, disappeared Wednesday after he began to question Knight about a break-in at a nearby tool plant.

Neighbors of Knight said they saw a state trooper arrive at the Knight home and leave within a few minutes, apparently following Knight who had entered a car registered in the name of Carl Woolmer of Detroit, Knight's stepfather. State police headquarters said the car apparently was the same one reported in the area of the tool plant at the time of the break-in.

No charges have been placed against anyone. The Woolmer car was found in the driveway of the cottage where Knight was captured. The state police car is still missing.

What Nickel Can Do

TORONTO (CP) — What can five cents do when a nickel cigar now costs a dime?

Director's luncheon guests at the Canadian National Exhibition today learned it can do quite a lot.

In terms of electricity, W. I. Turner, president of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers' Association, told them five cents can:

Pump 1,000 gallons of water; Lift 1,000 bushels of grain 60 feet;

Inflate about 50 automobile or trailer tires;

Run a television set for 17 hours,

Run a refrigerator for three days;

Toast 200 slices of bread,

Do 10 washes in an automatic machine, operate an electric fan for 60 hours and keep a radio blasting for nearly 48 hours.

Weather to Get Hotter, Humid Over Weekend

TORONTO (CP) — The main feature of the Labor Day weekend weather in southern Ontario will be a continued trend toward higher temperatures and increased humidities, the weather bureau reported today.

The weather will start out fine and sunny on Saturday. A weak disturbance moving eastward from the Dakotas is expected to cause cloudy skies and a few showers early Sunday slow, with clearing later in the day. The outlook for Labor Day Monday is for hot humid weather with mostly sunny skies but showers in the afternoon and evening.

Blames Tuna And Not Whisky For Impairment

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — He played golf, he had four or five beers, he ate a tuna fish sandwich — then police picked him up on a charge of impaired driving.

What was to blame? The tuna fish sandwich, said Arthur Tood, 34, of 130 Geneva Street, St. Catharines, before Magistrate H. R. Howitt in nearby Stamford Thursday.

"First I got cramps and then I got sick," he said. "That's the last I remember."

He was fined $100.

Jodoin Asserts Organized Labor Is Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — Organized labor is under attack from all sides as never before, President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress said today.

Congress said today in a Labor Day statement that labor had to gain from a weakened labor movement would impose restrictions "which would seriously interfere with the rights of workers to make a free choice of their organizations and to bargain collectively."

Organized labor had always been in the forefront of the struggle for better conditions and better wages.

"Recently we have been bitterly criticized for this," Mr. Jodoin said. "All sorts of dire predictions were made about the effects on the Canadian economy should labor continue to press for and win wage increases. . . .

"Those who were loudest in their criticism and most pessimistic in their predictions now are proclaiming the improvements in the economic situation since the recession."

SOCIAL LEGISLATION

Labor groups had been striving for better legislation in the social field.

"It is surely significant," he said, "that some employers' organizations which now would impose all sorts of restrictions to weaken labor have been missing from the leadership of these efforts in Ontario."

"Time and again, in fact, employer organizations have been among the bitterest opponents of such measures.

"Dealing with unemployment, Mr. Jodoin said government efforts to combat seasonal unemployment and layoffs caused through automation have been slow.

SEASONAL WASTAGE

"There was for too much reality been a scrapy seasonal unemployment as inevitable. Means could be found to combat this tremendous wastage and suffering that comes from idle hands during the winter months."

Dealing with labor's role in the political field, he said some are suggesting organized labor has no place in politics or public affairs."

"Surely this is the business of everybody. It is simply good citizenship to take an interest in the political issues that affect vitally what organized labor is doing."

Scouting activities

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

District Commissioner Phil Allcorn is very anxious that a good number of leaders attend the Basic "B" Troop Scouters course. This will be held at Camp Quinte September 18th, 19th and 20th. All Scouters and group committee men are welcome and particularly those who have already taken the Basic "B" Training. Provincial Reunion will be at Blue Springs Park September 11th. This weekend there is a Rover Moot at Presqu'ile, September 5th, 6th and 7th. Our Rover Scouts will be there.

Scouts and Cubs moved outdoors this summer and we hope to get reports of their camps as soon as the leaders have recovered.

D.C.S. ARE V.I.P.S.

We wonder if District Commissioners are appreciated for the amount of thanking and work for the advancement of Scouting in general. Belleville is fortunate in having an efficient ambitious D.C. in the person of Mr. Allcorn. With over 1100 Scouts and Cubs many problems and difficult situations are presented to the D.C. who is supposed to know all the answers. We respect and admire all D.Cs. for the services they render to the Movement, particularly our own District Commissioner who gives his time and energy freely and willingly at all times.

NEW LOCAL ASSOCIATION

The Moira Valley Rural Association will hold a nomination meeting September 24th at 8.00 p.m. in the cafeteria of the Canadian Canners at Foxboro. The annual meeting and election of officers will be at Tweed on October 7th.

ALGERIANS ATTACK

ALGIERS (AP)—French forces fought a day-long battle with attacking Algerian nationalist rebels near the Tunisian frontier Tuesday, military sources disclosed today. They said several hundred rebels made their attack from Tunisian territory near Muhet, about 60 miles southeast of Bone, and local French forces fought back with air support.

Plans to Dump Heavy Fill on East Side Made

Preparing for the time possibly 18 months away when the present city dump area will be filled, arrangements for the dumping of heavy fill on the east side of the Bay Bridge Road are now being made by the city public works department.

City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull noted that the present city dump where the sanitary land fill method of garbage disposal is being used, will be completely filled in by anywhere from 12 to 18 months and plans must now be made for opening a new area.

This will be on the east side of the Bay-Bridge Road directly opposite the area now being used for the dump.

Here it is planned to commence dumping heavy fill in a manner to form a low dam just inside the city boundary. Behind the low dam would be to prevent garbage getting out into the bay when the switch is made to the new dumping area.

Dumping of heavy earth fill will be directed into the area east of the Bay Bridge Road instead of in the present garbage disposal area.

A tremendous increase in the amount of garbage in the past year or so is resulting in the present garbage disposal area being filled in much more rapidly than was anticipated when the sanitary land fill method of disposal was commenced in the marsh adjacent to Zwicks Island some years ago, the city engineer stated.

Renting the Right to Tax

"No further word has been received on the possibilities of the town of Trenton turning over the parking meters to a private firm for a bulk sum each year."

So reports our Trenton correspondent, Alton Georgeson.

It is greatly to be hoped that this status quo continues.

It is evident that members of Trenton Council were toying with the possibility of employing one of the world's oldest, and most discredited, devices—the rental to a private individual or organization of the right to levy a tax.

No matter what may be said to the contrary, the pennies which are dropped into parking meters are a tax. Opponents of parking meters have always maintained this. In this extent they have been right in their argument. But our view has always been that the tax is so small, and the benefits in the form of orderly use and fair allotment of parking space have been so large that municipal councils are justified in using parking meters.

We can appreciate the fact that the supervision and maintenance of these meters can be troublesome. We can understand how tempting it could be for a municipal council when it appears that a company like E. A. Horton Sales, whose president has had long experience in municipal affairs, might take over this bothersome chore. We would not complain if the municipality proposed to pay the company a set fee for supervision of the meters, or even if remuneration was to be made by the company receiving a percentage of the "take." But when the town receives a fixed sum, with the company keeping all the proceeds of the meters, the municipality is, in effect, renting out to a private company the right to levy a tax on motorists who use the Trenton streets.

It may be argued that this is a difference in form only from the alternative methods we have mentioned, that the company would certainly not abuse the privilege. This is beside the point — a principle is involved. If a municipality can rent out the right to levy a tax on motorists parking their cars, there is no logical reason why it cannot rent out the right to levy taxes on property. This would be nothing new — slaves, peasants and serfs in civilizations long dead and forgotten knew this type of tax-collector. Let us not tolerate even the slightest resemblance to his return.

A Reasonable Decision

Hon. George Hees, Canada's Minister of Transport, chose Liverpool, a world-renowned port, as the locale for his announcement that henceforward ships caught in the St. Lawrence Seaway by the winter freeze-up will just have to sit there until spring.

This is giving fair warning and we think that few should quarrel with the government's decision.

Almost every kind of transportation is subsidized in some manner or another — the shipping industry has canals and harbors built for it, truckers have highways constructed for them, huge airports are built for air traffic and of the two great Canadian railway systems one received a rajah's fortune in land grants while the other has its deficits met out of the Federal treasury. It would be difficult, perhaps impossible and certainly beyond our ability, to balance off this government aid against the taxes and tolls which the various transportation systems pay and determine which method of moving goods, by water, road, air or rail, gets preferred treatment.

It would appear highly reasonable, though, that none of these methods of transportation should expect the government to bail it out of trouble every time it creates a problem for itself by disregarding the facts of life, which certainly include our winter weather.

THE ULTIMATE CONSUMER

The ultimate consumer,
Who is he?
He sits not in the senate—
No siree.
He argues not nor preaches,
And he's never making speeches;
He's the man the tariff reaches,
You'll agree.

He gets slight consideration,
It is all—
He's the flower that's used
To decorate the wall.
And election times they need him,
Go hey, wine him and they feed him,
him,
For his ballot then they bleed him,
Alas,
In the fall.

O, the ultimate consumer
Is a myth;
Just a form that politicians
Juggle with.
But when war breaks out you'll find him
Fighting hard where they've assigned him
Leaving wife and babes behind him—

Nehru Made Vital Test

Montreal Gazette

The world may owe a great debt to Prime Minister Nehru of India for having made the test of trying to get along with Communism. The failure of that policy today, when Indian troops have been forced into conflict with the Chibaas Communists, is tragically plain.

It might be said, that Mr. Nehru would have done far better, long ago, to have allied himself with the non-Communist bloc of nations—and taken his stand with them. Yet it may be that the very failure of his policy of detachment instructs the world more powerfully than any other policy could possibly have done.

So long as the policy gave some semblance of working, there was an inducement to other nations to seek detachment, or "neutralism," as a workable, and even an exalted, alternative to commitment and co-operation. Now that it has failed, the world is brought closer to the truth.

It was at the end of 1936 that Mr. Nehru made one of his clearest statements on the question of "blocs." "The question of blocs is out of date," he said, "perhaps also the whole of world politics as revolving around Communism and anti-Communism have gone astray . . . They are just a fad's personal."

It might only have been wishful that this statement was true. But a tragic problem had, even by that time, been revolving for some years around Communism and anti-Communism.

What Communism was systematically adding to its bloc by creating one nation after another, and then maintaining nations have shown a not unnatural inclination to close their ranks and organize a united front.

Yet Mr. Nehru's policy is not without its merits. India has had only recently gained her independence. Her problems are those of her own peoples above all things, peace in which to work them out.

More than this, if India were to remain somewhat apart from the Communist and anti-Communist blocs, she might exercise a powerful pooling influence upon the heated passions of the world. She would stand for an "area of the opportunity to pursue that ideal was largely created by the energies of the anti-Communist bloc in restraining Communism.

Yet Mr. Nehru's ideal has not been easily pursued. For it has made necessary the turning of a deaf ear to what Communism has been doing to other countries. To remain detached, when other nations are screaming for help, is never quite easy. Yet the policy of detachment has required that this be done.

The danger from Communism became terribly real when Tibet was yielded to Communist China in 1958. But even at that time Madame Pandit, Mr. Nehru's sister, declared that India would not be "anti-anything", even despite Tibet's call for help. We cannot align ourselves because we want to throw our weight," she explained. 'Each country that takes sides continues to build up the armaments."

Prime Minister Nehru himself has declared the annexation of Tibet as having raised only minor matters. As he put it: "In Tibet there are a number of relatively minor problems which arose after the annexation." Mostly our interests in Tibet are cultural trade pilgrim — traffic in the sacred and profane things that flow from them.

"All lines are petty matters. By petty, I mean that they can be easily resolved; and the China-sea Conference and the Russian Minister of China told us a year or more ago that all these matters, as soon as our countries have leisure to deal with them, we could sit with them and solve them easily".

These words make strange reading today. But when the Hungarian atrocities burst upon the world, Mr Nehru, was slow in saying any words of criticism. When the Communist regime in Hungary refused to admit United Nations observers, Mr. Nehru expressed his regret. For, he believed, the natural tendency of that refusal would be to create an impression in the mind of the world that there was "some truth" to the allegations of atrocity.

"Some truth!"

Now, however, Communism has attacked India, and India knows a her own. Detachment, or neutralism, is no longer possible.

But in this final shock to Mr. Nehru's ideal there is a certain real sadness. It would have been a happy thought that minding their own business would be enough to buy immunity from a Communist aggression. But that has, at last, become one of last year's ideas.

Columnist Likes Letters From Readers

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The time has come once again for my annual goodby column.

Before starting my vacation I feel it is thank each of the readers who took the trouble to write to me during the year. These letters — both pro and anti — have been most valuable to me, and I might add, entertaining.

Writing a column, I am well aware by the end of the years, is a two-way street. Its success depends nearly as much upon the readers as upon the writer.

It is largely the readers who keep him sharply aware of his errors, his excesses, and the inevitable blind spots in his nature and background.

One's own fallibility is hard for a writer to see, sitting by himself with a typewriter, while people daily what to think. Perhaps it is one secret relief of every column is "How to be More Human." It is natural, if deplorable, tendency to take one's self for God's official spokesman.

The dissenting letters — even the angry and abusive ones — help him to keep a sensible perspective about himself and his work. They act as a brake on his self-esteem, which can be a deadly enemy of honest writing.

This is not to say that the favorable letters are unwelcome, do not serve their purpose also. Praise is a very comfortable thing to seem worthwhile even on the most barren and dispiriting of days.

It is heart-warming to learn that so many other Americans in all parts of the world, from Java to southwest Florida — think and feel as you do. The comradeship of ideas can be a very real thing.

And it is more than heart-warming. It is inspiring to know that something you have said has prompted someone to re-examine his beliefs or to search his passion through the purifying net of reason.

And, let me add, it is enormously gratifying to have this daily chance to talk back to the public, to feel a sense of communion with minds which that are also struggling painfully or pleasantly, for the attainment of clarity and truth—truths man can attain in this world, however often often unsatisfactory world we live in.

It is the most rewarding job I can imagine for myself, and I am grateful that each year I have been fortunate enough to be able to address myself to a larger number of readers in a larger number of newspapers throughout this country and Canada.

And so, thanks again for being the kind of audience that insists on keeping me on my toes, even when I try to stand on my head; and many thanks, keep reminding me of the earthy truth that there is one person who is smarter than Anybody — and that is Everybody.

Goodby until next month.

Editors note: Mr. Harris will return his column on Monday, October 5 .

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

PLANTS RETAIN CARBON AND GIVE OFF OXYGEN

"Dear Dr. Molner: My earliest recollection of fundamental medicine was that human beings exhale carbon dioxide, while plant life absorbs it, returning oxygen to the atmosphere. It would seem, therefore, that plants in the home would be beneficial, but 'someone' said in hospitals they remove all plants at night from patients' rooms. They might do it, of course, to keep the flower pots or allow easier cleaning, but after talking to half a dozen men of fully good intelligence, I have not found a clear answer to my first stated opinion. — T. F. S., Jr."

I quite agree with you. Plants absorb carbon dioxide. The leaves retain the carbon (plant life is primarily carbon) and give off oxygen.

It used to be that plants were diligently removed from hospital or sick rooms. I can remember when this was done. Nurses who were brought up with this habit are still practicing it.

But why did this notion evolve? I do not know.

However, let me carry on with another thought. The fact that plants take the carbon out of the atmosphere and give off oxygen does not mean that plant life gives off any appreciable amount of oxygen — or picks up an enormous amount of carbon. A tree with thousands of leaves has absolutes quite a lot of carbon over a period of 50 or 60 years. How much is that per day? Not a great deal.

What I'm getting at is this: A geranium plant in the parlor or an African violet in a hospital room isn't going to make much difference. A forest of trees is something else!

In the sick room, an open window (so that there is no chance of direct draft on the patient) is going to admit a thoroughly adequate supply of fresh air and oxygen.

One of the hazards of health is ignoring the fundamental rules, such as good diet, adequate but not excessive exercise, plenty of sleep, and avoiding the various notable bad habits.

Another hazard, or at any rate another factor which is a cause of ill-health, is the fad followed by some fad or notion.

Believing that some particular food is "good fo you" and neces-say to health, is one of the commonest such notions, and is a reasonable sample of other such fads.

In general there is nothing wrong with eating the various foods that are claimed for these fads — but there's nothing especially good about them. They just don't matter one way or the other.

And so, too, for worrying about whether plants are, or are not in the sick room at night. The difference in no slight to matter.

For a final point, how about this: If as the fads and fancies say, it plants "rob the air of oxygen," which they don't, wouldn't it be just as bad to keep them doing it during the day as at night?

See how curious some of these beliefs become!

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have been constipated for some time. What do you recommend for that? I eat all bran. I enclose 20 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope for my booklet, "The Way To Stop C onstipation". — Mrs. F. C."

I am sending you my booklet and I am firmly convinced that understanding it is the first step for anyone with this problem. After that the various methods (outlined in the booklet) become relatively easy. Sometimes ridiculously easy!

Note to L.B.: One of the causes of "metallic" taste in the mouth is Vincent's disease, often in a large way. Called "trench mouth". Certain drugs also cause it, as well as occasionally do some things I've mentioned from time to time.

Cancer Cure Clue Found

Brockville Recorder and Times

Brockville's connection with the Atomic Energy Research Station at the Prince of Wales' hospital in Sydney, Australia, have claimed the discovery of a link between human cancer cells and the lack of calcium in the body.

As a result the International Atomic Energy Agency has offered to subsidize experiments of British-produced radioactive calcium isotopes to Australia. The experiments in Sydney use the isotope in the treatment of cancer.

Dr. A. B. Lilley, director of the Cavendish Walker cancer research council, says the experiments, regarded as bringing new quate cancer treatment, would be continued until the end of 1960.

The rare and expensive Calcium 47 radioactive isotope is currently available only from the Atomic Research Station at Harwell, England, but Dr. Lilley said it was hoped the Australian Atomic Energy Commission would produce it shortly. Supplies will arrive in a few months at the Lucas Heights nuclear laboratories and reactor near Sydney.

WYNFARD, SASK.

This village in Saskatchewan with the interesting name, apparently has no local historian for the only information that could be gleaned as to the origin of the name was supplied by the town clerk, who said it was named for an English count.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The irritation we all experience on coming to a large highway construction job is nothing to what we endure every day in the week. It is because we have planned our trip on the basis of motoring at 40 miles an hour, a mile after mile, hundred mile after hundred mile of smooth pavement, and suddenly, at seventy miles an hour. And all of a sudden we come to warning signs: "Construction ahead". And if we don't have to detour around the concessions of back road, at a meagre twenty miles an hour, with plenteous ruts, pitch holes and other shocks, we have to wiggle and wobble over five miles of rough gravel piled in heaps and lumps, and dust clouds engulf us from all sides.

But this irritation is secondary. It is capped by more irate frame of mind when we see a new highway whatever of work being done. It seems to me that in forty years of motoring I have never seen road construction gangs actually at work. There are the tools the great bulldozers, the graders, the trucks. But they are all standing idle, as if they had gone on strike.

What a curious sensation it is, then, to come back over a recently finished highway a month, a year or two years later, and find the most beautiful four lane highway curving gloriously across the countryside, as if it had been there forever, as if it had never been worked on at all, as if it just grew.

It is by stealth that our beautiful highways are built!

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NATURE'S COURAGE

We are born with a certain courage, but Nature steps in to give her aid and comfort. We are her children. There is a physical and a spiritual type of courage. Combined they make us and give their all!

I look upon the beautiful small spruce and hemlock trees — babies of the wood — and I find them perfect. Contrastingly I look out upon many giants of the forest, climbing, climbing, silent and full of purpose as they reach for the golden rays of the sun touching all in shadows and pure color.

I walk over and here thinking of the courage of all creeping roots that hollow these towering hemlocks, white birch, and the beautiful pines. All through nature you look upon courage and her contribution to mankind? march to the stars! At the feet of these emblems of God's power and planning, could thrill any green mosses which cling to rocks and roots, like a rare tapestry.

I walk on the mossy paths that help indicate to me the direction I let. It's like walking on a carpet that's been laid by a fairies people from the forest gives out. It lists my Soul, as well, with strokes of color that could thrill any genuine artist with brush and paint.

Yes, the forest is strong in courage. Passing by these lords of nature I gain personal strength and new courage for all my days. For in these I see experiences and thoughts, through memory, in both mind and heart.

Strength for The Day

FACE THE WHOLE TRUTH

How much can people be trusted?

Not much, you may reply. If you don't keep your doors locked people will probably somebody be robbed. You can't lay down your purse with any assurance that some of negotiable securities. I draw up strict legal papers with everybody I deal with. In my book there are few people who — when it comes right down to brass tacks — can be trusted.

I call brother, waill. For the sake of all that's high and holy, modify these statements a bit. Now there are some people in the world you trust implicitly, do you not? Your very dear loved ones, for instance? You know that among your fellow townsmen there are many whose word is as good as gold. Some have been unfortunate enough to have been victimized by one or more persons, think what a small percentage these have been of your entire acquaintanceship. It just is not true that most of the people you know or who met are crooks or even slightly unreliable.

Now there is a certain worthy of vastly more trust than we should get soft-headed or sentimental. It just means that we should get realistic.

Laotian Govt. Asks UN to Send Troops to Aid

LONDON (CP) — Laos has appealed to the United Nations to send troops to help repel Communist attacks, the Laos Embassy said today. Britain at once announced she favors UN action if aggression in Laos is proved.

In its appeal, Laos accused Communist North Viet Nam of intervening on the side of the rebels of Laos.

A foreign office spokesman said a daily press conference after the Laotian announcement was issued:

"If aggression is established, the British government would obviously be in favor of the United Nations taking action to deal with that aggression."

Laos Ambassador Prince Khammone said in a statement:

"Facing the characteristic aggression of the democratic republic of North Viet Nam, whose troops are attacking Muong Het and Xieng Khe, using artillery based on its territory, the royal government of Laos has asked the United Nations to send forces urgently."

The commander of Laotian forces fighting rebels in Northern Laos has charged that the insurgents are being supported by a battalion of regular North Viet Nam troops.

Fighting has been going on in the tiny Southeast Asian kingdom for six weeks between government troops and pro-Communist insurgents.

SPECIAL INTEREST

Britain has a special interest in the area because it was, with Russia, a co-chairman of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the war in Indochina.

British officials have suggested to Russia that the two countries should ask the United Nations to send an observer team to Laos. Final Soviet reaction to the proposal still is awaited.

Russia has been pressing for reconvening of the international armistice commission, a commission of India, Canada and Poland set up by the Geneva conference. It adjourned itself indefinitely in July, 1958, against the wishes of the Communists.

The Laotian government considers the commission has done its work and that its return to Laotian soil would be interference in the internal affairs of the country.

WON'T REVEAL STAND

The foreign office spokesman said Britain is not prepared now to discuss what attitude she will take when Laotian appeal is considered in the United Nations.

He said British officials on the basis of their own independent observations are not yet satisfied aggression has been committed.

The official expectation in London is that the Laotian appeal first will be considered by the Security Council. If Russia vetoes any proposal for UN military intervention, the issue then probably will be placed before the General Assembly.

Find Corn Crop Is Too Noisy

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal experimental farm may move its corn crop next year because of complaints about the noisiness it uses to scare away marauding blackbirds.

Dr. C. H. Goulden, the farm's director of administration, said in an interview Thursday that officials are studying the possibility of relocating the crop elsewhere in the 1,100-acre farm.

Residents in the area have complained about the noise makers ever since the city's population grew engulfed the farm. Once outside the city's southern limits, it now is in the south-central Ottawa.

The noisemakers are tanks in which acetylene gas is built up and exploded by a flint spark every 30 seconds. The result is a loud "bang."

NOTE FROM CHINA

Nehru again declared his opposition to debating the Tibetan situation in the United Nations. The Dalai Lama, the god - king who fled Tibet last March, has appealed to the UN to take up the subjugation of Tibetans by the Chinese Communists.

Nehru told parliament a UN debate on Tibet would excite war feelings and might cause Tibetans to suffer even more. The lower house then rejected a motion that India refer the Tibetan question to the UN.

On India's dispute with Red China, Nehru said India will try to retain friendship with its big neighbor "even though sometimes I find it hard to feel friendly when we see our people not being treated courteously and when we get communications singularly lacking in courtesy."

Will Start New Disarmament Talks Next Year

LONDON (Reuters) — East and West have agreed to start new general disarmament talks early next year, reliable sources said here today.

A new 10-power body with equal representation from East and West will be set up, probably in Geneva, to start work on the complex disarmament problem which has been stalled since a 1957 London conference failed. Canada will be among the Western members of the new group.

An announcement about the agreement, reached through diplomatic channels in Moscow, is expected in two or three days the sources said.

Ask Return To Later Closing For Lounges

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's 12,000 tavern and hotel workers have asked the Ontario government to change the 2 a.m. closing time for dining lounges.

In a series of representations made to the government, the Ontario Council of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union (CLC) also asked for the right to serve drinks with room service in hotels.

Income from conventions is more than $60,000,000 a year and Ontario stands to lose a big share of that money to Quebec, the submission said.

The present 1 a.m. closing time for lounges was ordered three years ago.

3 Businessmen Die in Crash

UPPER SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) — The bodies of three Ohio businessmen were recovered from their wrecked plane Thursday in a wooded area near Carey. What caused the crash was a matter of speculation.

Authorities said the pilot, Dr. G. B. Dishman, 61, probably was trying to make a night landing in a rain storm, on an unlighted farm field. William V. Stewart, 49, died with him in the crash.

The two men had left Brantford, Ont., about 4 p.m. Tuesday, bound for Marion, Ohio.

Dr. Robinson was a director of the Keuffel & Esser Company in Milwaukee, and former head of the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Company in Mount Gilead. Stewart was treasurer of the Mount Gilead firm.

Eisenhower Begins Weekend Of Quiet Relaxation at Castle

AYR, Scotland (CP)—President Eisenhower began a weekend of quiet relaxation and golf today after his tour of the capitals of Europe.

He flew from Paris this morning and rove to turreted, 18th-century Culzean Castle on the rocky Ayrshire coast in southern Scotland.

A suite of castle rooms given him for life after the Second World War as a mark of gratitude from the Scottish people will be his home until he flies back to Washington Sunday or Monday —the actual departure will depend on the weather.

The only time on his program is golf. He will not be seeing any British officials.

MET BY MARQUESS

At the entrance to the castle Eisenhower was greeted by a figure in a green tweed coat, kilt and gingerrie hat with a feather in it.

This was the Marquess of Ailsa, who once owned the castle, now operated by the National Trust for Scotland, a body which supervises parks and historic buildings and public amenities.

Showing weariness for the first time, Eisenhower turned to the marquess and said:

"I've been saying that I'd almost prefer not to play golf but just stay inside and sleep but I think I'll get out this afternoon—the weather is too good."

CHEERS OF CHILDREN

Hundreds of school children lined the 20-mile route from Prestwick to here, chanting We Li'e Ike.

The children's welcome was so enthusiastic that Eisenhower was on his feet almost the entire trip to the castle.

When the car reached the Seafield Children's Hospital he asked the driver to pull to the side of the road. There he was greeted by scores of youngsters in wheel chairs and on crutches. The car travelled slowly as Eisenhower called out his greetings to the children.

Numerous American flags lined the route and at one point a village band was gathered in a cow pasture playing The Stars and Stripes Forever.

Around the castle were 150 policemen and security officers who will maintain a 36-hour watch during the president's visit.

Four-Man Body To Hear Seaway Toll Complaints

OTTAWA (CP) — Establishment of a four-man joint tolls advisory board to deal with complaints against St. Lawrence Seaway tolls was announced today.

The two Canadian members are George A. Scott of Ottawa, director of economic policy in the transport department, who will be first chairman of the board, and George H. Schultz, chief of the trade department's transportation and trade services division.

The two Americans are E. Reece Hartill, assistant administrator of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, and Dr. Charles A. Taff, professor of transportation at the University of Maryland.

The chairmanship of the board will rotate between a Canadian and American member every six months. The board is designed to hear complaints against the interpretation of the tariff of seaway tolls. It will report its findings and recommendations to the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and the corporation for action.

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—Passages through the Welland Canal in August dropped 34 below the number recorded in July as the steel strike in the United States snarled in the diversion of ore carriers from the Lake Superior-Ontario run to the Sept-Iles, Que.-Hamilton run. August passages totalled 1,056.

'Parish Priest Of Arctic' Dies At Point Barrow

POINT BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Rev. Tom Cunningham, 53, known in Alaska as the parish priest of the Arctic, died of a heart attack Thursday in his cabin at this northernmost tip of the United States.

His death ended 25 years of missionary work in the largest Roman Catholic parish in the United States — 150,000 square miles of ice and tundra above the Arctic Circle.

In November of 1958 Father Cunningham and 70 others were rescued from a windswept Arctic ice island that had blown up in a polar storm. The Alaska priest, a recognized authority on ice conditions, had chosen the ice floe at the request of the Alaskan air command for use by scientists carrying out International Geophysical Year studies.

Father Cunningham, a native of New Zealand, came to Alaska in 1934.

Community Centre Manager Shot to Death, Wife Wounded

TIMMINS (CP) — Ted Lister, 43-year-old manager of the Mc. Intyre Community building in nearby Schumacher, was found shot to death Thursday in his Schumacher home.

His wife Anne, about 40, was brought to hospital here in serious condition with bullet wounds in the stomach.

Police Chief Hugh Douglas of Tisdale Township said Lister was shot three times, apparently with a 30-30 calibre rifle found near the body.

Lister, a widely-known hockey player in his younger days, had managed the McIntyre Mines' arena building since 1952.

NO THEORIES

The chief said he has asked the criminal investigation bureau of the provincial police to assist in the investigation. He declined to advance any theories about how the shooting occurred.

The Listers' only daughter, Doreen, 18, is a well-known figure skater. She won the 1957 Canadian ladies' championships and the 1957 Northern Ontario senior ladies' title.

Mrs. W. Helgeboet, who lives in the other section of the large two-storey frame duplex, said she heard a series of shots. One rifle slug came through her bedroom wall.

She told police she went into the Lister home and found Mrs. Lister lying in the basement. A doctor was called and after he arrived, Mrs. Helgeboet said, she was told by Mrs. Lister to call an ambulance for her husband.

Mr. Lister was found slumped on a landing at the top of a stairway leading to the second floor.

Neighbors said nothing unusual had been noticed at the Lister home in recent days and the couple went for a drive shortly before the shooting.

Mr. and Mrs. Lister had been scheduled to leave today to pick up their two children, Doreen and Ted, 12, who have been holidaying with relatives in the Toronto suburb of Willowdale. Then they had planned a holiday in the Novar area.

Girls Use Home Of Neighbor To 'Play House'

CLARKSON, Ont. (CP)—Two 11 - year - old girls playing "house" ran afoul of the law Thursday when they decided to add realism by using a neighbor's home.

While the occupants were away the girls sat around chalking and reading notices and managed to drink a pint of beer. They then "borrowed" 54 and went out shopping.

Police turned the girls over to their parents for disciplinary action.

Job to See Guests Have Good Time

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Miss ean Parks believes a job that would make many women envious.

She is social director at the Banff Springs Hotel in summer and in winter she does similar or less a West Indies cruise ship.

"It's my job to see that the guests have a good time," she said in an interview.

Miss Park, hostess at the hotel for the last seven seasons, took up the work when her sister became ill and asked her to take over her job.

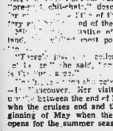
CHALLENGING JOB

Seeing that everyone is happy is quite a challenge. It requires a wide knowledge of the social graces, tact and an engaging disposition.

Mingling with guests, introducing them to each other and chatting with various groups are only a few of the activities that occupy her day. Often in the afternoon she plays golf with guests and in the evening is hostess in the hotel room.

"Mostly I try to seek out those persons who are alone and who do not know many of the other guests," she said.

Between the closing of the hotel this fall and the opening next summer, she will be working on a 14-day cruise and three 19-day cruises.



ARRANGES ACTIVITIES

In spite of the glamor and excitement attached to the job, Miss Park finds it a time-consuming one. On board ship she must plan a varied social program for the passengers making extra events for manoeuvres, parties "fun nights" and bridge, lake tours.

"Prior to the liner's arrival at a port she must also be calls her 'port of call-hostess' describing the city and the area. She also must learn about sports of the area.

"Every time I go to Europe I learn something new," she said. "I discover new attractions between the end of March when the cruises end and the beginning of May when the hotel opens for the summer season.

ACTING MAYOR — Alderman Evelyn Caldwell, better known as Penny Wise, a daily shopping columnist for the Vancouver Sun, smiles in robes and chain of office as acting mayor of Vancouver. She held the office during a European trip of Mayor Tom Alsbury. Miss Caldwell was newspaperwoman of the year in 1939, joining the Sun in 1945 where she began her column on new consumer products and shopping hints for housewives. She initiated a successful campaign to allow colored margarine in British Columbia and on her latest project, well underway, is a subdivision for the old. Elected alderman in 1957, she frankly admits she doesn't like the work. (CP Photo).

Evelyn Caldwell, Writer, Alderman Started Work in Store at $7 Weekly

By DUNCAN HOLMES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—"Why interview me," asked Alderman Evelyn Caldwell. "I'm not running for mayor."

But Miss Caldwell, who doubles as a five-times-a-week columnist for the Vancouver Sun under the byline "Penny Wise," is as busy as most mayors.

She had time aside an hour to tell her life story. The interview had hardly got started before it was interrupted by a couple who appeared in her office with a plan for a new Canadian flag.

LIVELY CAREER

Penny Wise, as she's known to the public, was born here and is her bouncing 50 years she has been a writer of verse, a stenographer, a reporter for several newspapers and the acting mayor of Vancouver.

Penny's first job was in a hardware store at $9 a week. Later she wrote children's stories for the Vancouver Province. Poetry efforts submitted to the same newspaper netted her 50 cents a verse.

In 1929 she was working for the Vancouver Star, which ceased publication three years later. She went to the News as society editor for six months before crossing town to the newly - born Province.

There she wrote a column called Source for the Goose. She said it was a daily collection of thoughts "on practically anything from politics to the current fad in brown sugar."

In 1937 she married a freighter and went to England.

CORONATION MAGNET

"It was on the pretense of covering the Coronation—of King George VI—for the Herald," she said. "I hated crowds so left London on the day of the Coronation, then came back later and saw the whole thing in a movie. I wrote my story from that.

"It was a page long in the Herald. They could never understand how I saw the Coronation from points as widely separated as the Mall, Buckingham Palace, and Westminster Abbey."

In 1944, after a spell of reporting at the B. C. Legislature, Evelyn Caldwell quit her Herald job, and in 1945 went on staff at the Sun.

Evelyn became "Penny Wise," a byline suggested by former Sun managing editor Hinde Rosbeyer.

She wrote a daily shopping column, expressing her views on new consumer products, new restaurants, why meat was expensive—and why it shouldn't be. Trade names were not mentioned: readers could telephone her for extra information.

GOOD CAMPAIGNER

Penny — dark - haired, with bright eyes in a pleasant face—has organized campaigns of letter-writing to help her causes.

More than 3,500 women wrote to federal government members at her urging after the Second World War, for instance, to state they wanted margarine introduced into B.C. The margarine came soon, and with it more letters to the provincial government so that it was colored yellow-like butter.

Her latest drive is for a housing subdivision here for the old. The plan is well underway.

Travel has played a big part in Penny's life. She has visited 30 countries as a reporter, often carrying her own camera. Sun readers got her view on the Korean War, and what she thought of the Soviet Union on a visit there in 1955.

She recalled at this point that she had used a weighty Speed Graphic camera while reporting at the Herald. "Picture payments were 50 cents a shot."

WINNER AT POLLS

Evelyn Caldwell became an alderman in the civic election of 1957. At the insistence of the Civic Voters' Association, she ran on a ticket with Tom Alsbury, a high school principal then, and now Vancouver's mayor.

Their victory at the polls broke the domination of the Non-Partisan Association in civic politics, and was the defeat of Mayor Fred Hume.

She frankly admits she doesn't like her job at city hall, describing the work as "muddling" and "a lot of beating around." She is often at loggerheads with her CVA partner, Mayor Alsbury. Recently she played a stunt as the city's acting mayor when Mr. Alsbury was abroad. Alderpersons take turns in the office when the mayor is out of town.

Penny's newspaper byline has sometimes been a disadvantage since she's been an alderman.

"No one seems to know there is anyone else on the council," she said.

Penny recalled that at 11 p.m. last Easter Sunday someone telephoned to ask: "What time is garbage picked up at your place?"

Miss Caldwell prefers to set her own standards of self-discipline, last winter, wearing an outlandish costume, she teamed up with other news and radio personalities against British Columbia's premier in the Canadian curling championship here, an exhibition affair that involved some slipping and sliding on the ice.

"Sometimes," said Alderman Caldwell, "I even drink in public, too. And if the band plays Five Foot Two I dance the Charleston."

Danny Kaye's Wife Woman Of Brilliant Wit, Talent

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "Everybody has a desire to know the future," said Sylvia Fine.

"Most people read their astrological charts in the morning. I wait and read mine in the evening—he find out what kind of day I had."

Sylvia, wife of Danny Kaye, is a woman of brilliant wit and talent and unconventional ways. She is a gifted composer who has written a hundred songs, and the music for 11 films, including The Five Pennies, starring her husband.

She isn't the kind of artist who finds her inspiration in an atmosphere of moonlight and roses.

"I write to order mostly," she said. "And I can write anywhere, anytime.

"Scenery does have an effect on me like music, but I like to work under pressure. I write best under a hair dryer.

"Maybe that's because I used to do my homework riding on a subway. A hair dryer makes the same kind of noise."

Sylvia, daughter of a dentist who founded son of an immigrant tailor, were both born in Brooklyn and grew up there only a few blocks apart. But they never met until 1939. They were married the next year, and climbed the heights of show business together.

"Danny and I are a team," she remarked. "I don't think there's another quite like it.

"A lot of people are under the impression that I handle the business, and do most of Danny's thinking for him.

"That's not true. He has one of the quickest, brightest, most instinctively intelligent minds I've ever met."

Sylvia, who is brown - eyed, slender and intense, writes most of her musical material for her husband.

"I believe in inspiration, of course," she said. "But inspiration is merely the difference between a creative and uncreative live mind.

"I can work for three weeks not turning out exactly what I want. Then some day it all falls into place—the words and lyrics fit.

"You can't just push a mental button. You can't do it by higher mathematics — or lower mathematics.

"Creation is as much a mystery to the artist as to anyone else."

One thing Sylvia doesn't share with her husband—his hobby.

"Danny has many doctor friends and on days off likes to watch them perform operations," she said.

"I'm interested in medicine—there were five doctors in our family—but I'm not an operating watcher."

Women's Activities

FRONT ROAD W.A.

The September meeting of the Front Road W.A. was held in the church, with six ladies and five children in attendance.

The president, Mrs. McMullen, opened the meeting.

Mrs. Clinton Brown took charge of the devotional which was prepared by Mrs. Thomas J. Brown.

A prayer, "Keeping Peace With Our Fellow Men" was said, Mrs. Clinton Brown read the Scripture, Matthew 5:43-48, followed by a paper on "Love Your Enemies." She reminded that loving our enemies is God's way. "Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, so that you may be sons of your Father, who is in Heaven, for He makes His sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the just and on the unjust."

Mrs. Clifford Reid gave a reading, "House of Dreams," followed by "Conversation," read by Mrs. Thomas Whittle.

During the devotional period, a contest was held on garden vegetables, the prize being Christmas wrapping paper, won by Mrs. C. Reid.

Mrs. McMullen opened the business portion of the meeting with a discussion on the church doors and it was decided to have them repaired as soon as possible.

The ladies decided to enter a booth at the Consecon Fair. It was also announced that the Sunday School is having their annual picnic on church lawn. The bazaar is to be held in October.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. E. Preston with Mrs. Gordon Ray in charge fo the devotional.

The next meeting on Sunday will be at 10.00 a.m., followed by Sunday School at 11.00 a.m. Summer visitors are over and like school, the W.A. is meeting again. Be in church this coming Sunday and receive a warm welcome and meet your friends and neighbors there.

The ladies retired to the church hall where they enjoyed a get-together over coffee and cake.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two lawyers. Each week in a summary of an actual case history, The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible counselors and counsellors.

Mr. J. H. — Al doesn't want to go to college.

Mr. J. H. — My wife and I are terribly upset about our 17-year-old son. Al was graduated from high school last term and was accepted in the college of his choice. But he doesn't want to go.

We have high hopes for Al. He was one of the top students at his school and we planned a medical career for him. He is exceptionally good in science. I had no college education myself and I have regretted it very much. Like-in the business world it has been a grim struggle for me and I feel I could have done a lot better if I had the education.

We have made many sacrifices to save for Al's education and now it looks as though he is afflicted by the beatnik philosophy of his generation. He wants to "hom around" for a couple of years.

Alfred H. — I haven't been able to explain to my parents that I'm no beatnik, only a guy who is fed up with the classroom. I want to get out among real people, do real work for a change. I have had a lot of summertime jobs on which I have really done nothing.

My plan is to travel all over the country for the next year or two and pick up any kind of jobs I can find. I always wanted to see different parts of the country. I would go into the service if I could, but I have a physical disability that lets me out. The time a lot of guys spend in military service I'll spend in this way.

I feel that my parents ought to keep the money they saved for themselves. I'll earn enough to support myself through college.

The Council: Al doesn't sound like a beatnik in the worst sense of the word. But what he is complaining about and rebelling about is something that may be upsetting many of our real best beatniks.

It seems to us that Al is saying things have been too pat and simple for him, that he is young and energetic and wants to attack life head-on. He wants real challenges. The classroom offers us little challenge.

Mr. H. does not seem to recognize that he himself has taken on all the emotional satisfaction and excitement that should be Al's in connection with his future. Mr. H. has worked and saved so the payment of Al's tuition cheque is in his achievement. It represents something he wasn't to do so it is his challenge. He has even mapped out the goal — a career in medicine.

Because Mr. J. H. has given Al so many advantages it is hard for him to see why his boy should be frustrated. But Al is pointing to that. He wants and needs to test his own powers, know his own strengths and weaknesses, test himself in the world, listen to his own stirrings, make some decisions of his own.

Apart from these considerations we think Al is a little young to be taking to the road for an extended period without a clear plan. An alternative might be for him to remain at home and get to work for a year or more. At the end of that time he may decide that he wishes to start college. His would then be able to pay his own first year's tuition or more. He could continue working and paying a large part of his expenses for the remainder of his education.

If Al decides to go in for medicine (and the decision should be his own) it can be a long, hard pull, offering plenty of challenge.

If he wants to travel a bit when he is a little older, he should first investigate the job possibilities and living conditions in the areas so he can make the most of his time and effort.

QUESTION:

Some time ago you had a recipe for Eggless Muffins and I had so much good luck with them but have lost the recipe. Would you in the near future put it in again as those muffins were the only ones I had success with — Mrs. Sy.

ANSWER:

You did not give me your name or address. Would you be kind enough to do this in the future please? I am in the north country without my files. However while I will give you a recipe for feelproof muffins that call for no egg. Follow the instructions to the letter. Write me again and give me some idea when the eggless muffin recipe appeared, will you.

(Cold Supper)

Salmon Mayonnaise (see Tuesday); Do Lune Potato Salad; Platter of Cottage Cheese with Sliced Tomato Border; Fruit Cup of Seedless Green Grapes, Watermelon Balls, Diced Pears, Orange Wedges; Crackers & Cheese; Coffee.

FOOLPROOF MUFFINS:

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup soft shortening, 1 egg, 1 cup milk.

Put the sifter over the mixing bowl and sift the sifted flour, sugar, baking powder and salt into it. Add the other ingredients in a depression made in the dry ingredients. Mix with a fork to break up the soft shortening, then stir just until the ingredients are blended. Do not overmix. Fill greased muffin tins 2-3 full and bake at 400 deg. for 30 to 35 minutes or until golden brown.

LETTER:

In a recent issue . . . you asked for a recipe for marzipan made without ground almonds. This recipe was used during the war years when almonds were unobtainable in Britain . . . Eve W. L. H.

MOCK MARZIPAN:

To achieve the best results it is most important that this recipe is followed without alteration.

4 oz. soy flour, 4 oz. granulated sugar, 3 teaspoons almond essence, 2 oz. margarine, 3 tablespoons water.

Melt margarine in a saucepan, make flour (it does not brown). Add the sugar, water and essence and stir over the lowest heat for one minute. Remove from the saucepan from the heat and add the soya flour. Knead all well together for at least ten minutes. If you want to use it for a layer or a covering on a cake, shape a small loaf, wrap it in a grease-proof paper, and keep in a cool but not cold place. If you want to use for sweets, shape them while it is still warm. Leave to cool. If you wish, turn in powdered chocolate or cocoa and then store as above. For "Strawberries" (to color with cochineal (or liquid red food coloring) and shape like strawberries. For "Mimosa" use small pieces of green citron peel. Should you prefer a different kind of sweet, flavor with what tastes like marzipan use other essences — such as vanilla, lemon, orange, pineapple, raspberry, etc. Eve W. L. H.

ANSWER:

Thank you very much. I hope the readers clip this for some of them will find it just the thing they want for their "almond paste" layer on top of their Christmas Cakes, besides "sweets".

The Experts Say

University Will Enrich Whole Life Says Dean

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Mary Quayle Innis, dean of women at University College, Toronto, is convinced that women should go to university to study and not for any other reason.

"But whether she works or marries, university is going to enrich her whole life," says the accountant and author who represented Canada at the recent Commonwealth Education Conference at Oxford, England.

The main causes of failure and unhappiness among first - year students is the adjustment to university studies and getting bogged down in too many extra-curricular activities, says Mrs. Innis. She advises the student to join a couple of groups — "it is wise to do something"—but not too many.

MUST CONCENTRATE

"It's a matter of their work not being supervised," she said of those who fall down in their studies. "Students often think they are studying when they are not."

She is the widow of Professor Harold Adams Innis, the political economist and historian, who died in 1952. Her husband enjoyed an international reputation as a scholar. He wrote 14 books, and Mrs. Innis herself is the author of seven, many dealing with Canadian economic history. She is working on a continuation of "Travellers West" which was published in 1956.

Their four children, two boys and two girls, are all graduates of University College, affiliated with the University of Toronto.

"What to take" is the query of too many girls at 21 levels says Mrs. Innis.

"I'm a business graduate and still don't know what to do." It might be caused by a general feeling of uncertainty in the world, and the fact that more courses are open to girls.

NO PLAIN SOLUTION

She has no simple solution to this problem, but says that during high school, girls "should be aware at least that they ought to be deciding."

Too many girls go on to university without proper consideration, says Mrs. Innis, "moving into it as on an escalator. There are many other ways to broaden experiences and get extra training. It's unfair to the taxpayer and to other students not to come to university to work."

The parents' responsibility lies in accepting their daughters' choice, says Mrs. Innis, who is still amazed at the number who decide the course for the girls. Parents should accept the fact that the college girl will come in contact with new and contradictory ideas.

For the girls themselves, she advises: "You are exploring yourself, as much as your studies at university. Find out what you are and be that."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

BRIDE TALKS OVER WITH GROOM HIS FLOWER-RESPONSIBILITY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother advises that I should make perfectly clear to bridegroom-to-be just what his responsibility is about supplying and paying for certain flowers in connection with our wedding. Is this the proper thing to do? If so, just how should I go about it? Real is a generous young man, but we're not sure that is one of his responsibility about the flowers.

— Bride-to-be

Your mother's advice is right and very wise, and it is an excellent plan for you to talk over very definitely with your bridegroom-to-be his responsibilities concerning the flowers of the wedding flowers. First you should tell him it is time he did not give you your bridal bouquet. Then there is your going-away corsage, always the groom's responsibility; the corsage for your mother, the corsage for his mother (and for any grandmothers); the boutonnieres for the best man, ushers, for your father and for his father.

When you and your mother get the estimate from your florist for the flowers you supply, you get estimates from him for what the groom is to supply, order them in his name, and give him the bill to pay him . . . all this by definite pre-arrangement with him. You know he knows who will will be, pass along this information to him, so that his budget will be "prepared."

Athenia's Loss Gave Canada First Shock of World War II

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Twenty years ago Sept. 3 a German torpedo tore through the liner Athenia, and Canada felt the first shock of the Second World War.

It was the German navy's first hostile act on the high seas, a few hours after war was officially declared. It has gone into history as one of the meanest.

The 13,500-ton Athenia, loaded with 1,417 passengers—300 more than normal capacity — had no weapon stronger than a flare gun. She had no escort, not even a strategic cargo. Her passengers included nearly 1,000 women and children, of whom 469 were Canadians.

The Montreal - bound Athenia was the last liner leaving Britain before the outbreak of war. It sailed down the Clyde from Glasgow Sept. 1 after stevedores in that port shouted "cowards" at the hundreds of Canadians and Americans who arrived late and unsuccessfully tried to board the ship. Within was already filled.

ACTS OF HEROISM

Within the next 48 hours the rocking decks of the Athenia were to become a stage for unparalleled acts of heroism.

Just before dark on Sunday, Sept. 3, the watch in the crow's nest screamed a warning. Scarcely one ran to the port side where a black, sinister submarine broke surface and loosed a torpedo at the Athenia.

From then on the ship was overrun by scurrying, screaming passengers trying to find room in the 26 lifeboats.

"It was terrible," recalled Mrs. Elizabeth Turner of Toronto after she was rescued. "Bodies were lying all around."

Crew members, fighting bravely to calm passengers, had a monumental ordeal. Women were separated from children, husbands from wives.

Judith Evelyn, then a student actress, was returning to Toronto with Andrew Allan, now a Canadian television producer. Both had finished two-year lourses at London colleges. They were pushed into a lifeboat and did so.

"But as we came close," said Miss Evelyn afterwards, "her propellers started to turn and our lifeboat was capsized.

"About 90 persons were aboard our boat — about seven were saved.

"I managed to grab the upturned keel. As my fingers struggled for a hold they came in contact with another hand — it was Andrew's."

The lifeboat accident must have been the worst single disaster on the sinking. The entire death toll was 128.

Sunday School Lesson

Nations Come to Judgment

By ROY L. SMITH

Some of the most harrowing bad news so many battles, they had builded their neighbors so long, and they had seemingly grown immune to punishment, that they were completely depressed because they faced was coming to their own pride. The not the swift-striking foe, but the undermining of their own conceits.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for September 6: "WORKING AGAINST GOD," Obadiah; Jonah 1 through 2.

There is a marked disposition on the part of the average American to think that we are, as a people, very superior to the rest of the world's population. Because we live in homes that are equipped with dispose-alls, electric ovens, air conditioning and television, we seem to think we have a right to instruct the rest of the world, and order the affairs of other men.

It is a fact, of course, that we have poured out our treasure in a veritable tide, in an effort to lift the living standards of "the backward races." And it is a little difficult for us to understand why we continue to be held in suspicion by those same "backward" people.

It is commonly said among us that "you cannot buy friends," and that, of course, is true. But friends can be made, and no nation is in greater need of friends today than is the United States of America.

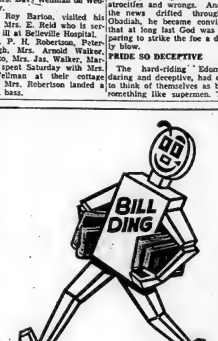
CALLOUS NEUTRALITY

During the months that Babylon was sacking and destroying Jerusalem, the Edomites had held aloof and allowed the city to fall under the hammer blows of the pagans. When refugees from Zion were fleeing to the desert in an effort to escape with their lives, the Edomites rounded them up and turned them over to their enemies.

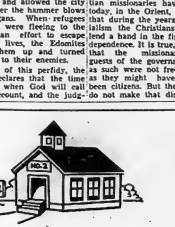
In view of this perfidy, the prophet declares that the time will come when God will call them to account, and the judgment that is to fall upon them is to be something very terrible.

One of the most difficult problems with which the Christian must have to deal today, in the Orient, is the fact that during the years of colonialism the Christians did not lend a hand in the fight for independence. It is true, of course, that the missionaries were guests of the governments, and as such were not free to speak as they might have had they been citizens. But the Orientals do not make that distinction.

Moabite Hatred



Perhaps it was the influence of the savage desert in the midst of which Edom made its home, or perhaps there was "something in the blood." No one knows, and it really makes little difference. For hundreds of years the little desert nation of Edom had lived as an outlaw among the nations.



From time to time it had struck out with savage cruelty against its neighbors. And in its ruthlessness it had betrayed no evidence of favorism. Any nation might feel the terrible effects of its rapacity, and as a consequence Edom was hated by all the world. Any man that dies r had befallen the Edomites was greeted with rejoicing everywhere throughout the past.

It this lesson word was getting about in the desert that a coalition of Arab tribes was forming for the purpose of avenging a long series of past atrocities and wrongs. And as the news drifted through to Obadiah, he became convinced that at long last God was preparing to strike the foe a deadly blow.

PRIDE SO DECEPTIVE

World Surplus in Uranium May Cause Severe Cutbacks Canada's Production by '63

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's uranium industry should be prepared for possible severe production cutbacks by 1963 because of world surplus, says an economist's report prepared for Monica Dickens of Canada.

"On grounds of mutual defence interest and economic stability, Canada must continue to press for an early decision by the United States on the possibility of post-1963 purchases of Canadian uranium," says the report prepared by S. W. Clarkson and just made public.

His findings tend to reinforce concern expressed in the Commons at the last session of Parliament. Trade Minister Churchill said then he is aware of the problems that may arise when Canada's uranium contracts expire at a time when a uranium surplus is envisaged.

"There is very little information of firm sales contracts for 1963 and subsequent years," says the report, although long term prospects are good.

CANADA'S PRESSURE

It advises Canada to "press for a decision and early agreement on the matter before it becomes too late." Mining and government officials could discuss the matter at sales pitches. Additionally, the industry should encourage development of new uses for uranium with natural uranium—as opposed to enriched uranium—that would offer the best civilian market for Canada's product.

Canada, which has turned out 13,-500 tons of uranium last year, has contracts for about 15,000 tons annually up to 1963. However, the Commons Clarkson report expects that U.S. supply will meet demand.

The United Kingdom, Euratom, Japan and various smaller buyers offer some hope. But the report says as of now the Canadian industry is assured of a market in 1963 for slightly more than half the current output.

Canada's industry will face readjustment in international sales first as Euratom and Australian contracts terminate later. Japan says a new uranium supply and demand, growing at an equal pace up to 1967, may produce a substantial surplus of about 9,000 tons in world trade in 1967 with estimated production of 43,300 tons against demand for 34,100 tons. Thereafter, production and demand start to level off at 43,000 tons while demand edges upward to 50,000 — perhaps by 1968.

By 1970, demand of 47,000 tons might exceed production, by as much as 4,000 tons.

Judgment Raises Legal Bar Against Six Nations Indians Re-establishing Tribal System

TORONTO (CP) — A written judgment in the Supreme Court of Ontario Thursday virtually placed a legal barrier against members of the Six Nations Indians fighting for re-establishment of the tribal system of government on their reserve near Brantford.

Ruling on a four-day trial here last April, Mr. Justice J. M. King said members of the reserve are under the authority of the federal Parliament, which has instituted a governing system of elected councillors for the reserve.

Earlier this year a group of Indians on the reserve took over the tribal lodge in an attempt to bring back the tribal system of rule by hereditary chiefs. The move was halted when RCMP raided a meeting at the lodge and restored the elected chief and council.

DENIES INJUNCTION

Mr. Justice King also ruled that Mrs. Verna Logan, wife of Clifford Logan, one of the Six Nations Indians, was not entitled to an injunction restraining the sale of 3.05 acres of land on the reserve to Cockshutt Farm Equipment Limited.

He dismissed the case against defendants Clifford E. Styres, chief of the elected council, and J. Stallwood, superintendent of the Six Nations Indian Agency at Brantford; and the attorney-general of Canada.

The trial became a test case for the hereditary chiefs' attempt to retain their power. Mrs. Logan testified she was nominated to head the council into court on behalf of the hereditary chiefs.

He also noted that it is still possible for the governor-in-council to order surrender of the land, which has to be turned over in the crown before the sale can be completed.

But under the terms of the National Housing Act and the Simcoe Deed of 1797, both of which were intended to establish rights at the trial, members of the Six Nations band accepted Crown protection, Mr. Justice King stated. The Indians thus have a legal allegiance to the Crown and became subjects of the Crown.

"I am of the opinion," the judge said, "that Six Nations Indians are subject to the jurisdiction of the laws of the land duly made by competent legislative authority, and at the same time they are subject to such laws."

National Code For Liquor Ads Being Drawn Up

MONTREAL (CP)—A national code of ethics for liquor advertising in Canada will likely be submitted to provincial governments later this year, it was reported today.

The code was discussed during a four-day meeting at Murray Bay, Que., of the Canadian Association of Provincial Liquor Commissioners.

The annual meeting ended Thursday and the delegates arrived in Montreal today aboard the passenger ship Empress Australasiac after a 350-mile voyage up the St. Lawrence River.

Good progress was made on a recommendation to be presented to the governments of the province on a national code of ethics for advertising by the alcoholic beverage trade," said Col. Charles E. Woodrow of Toronto, secretary of the association.

The Murray Bay meeting also discussed a variety of other problems concerning Canadian liquor administration.

William H. Collings, a Progressive-Conservative member of the Ontario legislature and chief liquor commissioner of Ontario, was re-elected president of the association.

George A. Clash of Edmonton was elected vice-president and Jack J. McNichol of Halifax was elected as a new vice-president.

The commissioners agreed that their next meeting would be in the first week of July, 1960, at Jasper Lodge, Alta.

Student and Two Young Women Freed of Charges

TORONTO (CP)—An engineering student and two young women arrested last month in a series of narcotics raids by RCMP were acquitted Thursday of charges of illegal possession of marijuana.

Magistrate W. F. R. Rogers dismissed a joint charge laid against William Harding, 20, his sister, Mary, 23, and Georgedyne Findlay, 24, a Toronto public school teacher.

Harding, a student at the University of New Brunswick, was acquitted after the magistrate ruled that evidence had not established he was an occupant of the midtown apartment where RCMP officers and morality police found marijuana in a small brown envelope.

The apartment occupied by Miss Harding and Miss FFindlay was next to one shared by Gail D'Arcy, 24, and Geraldine Coleman, 24, both of whom were committed for trial on illegal possession of marijuana charges at a hearing earlier this week.

Arguing football players Dave Mann, 21, and his roommate at a Hamilton boarding house, Jack Kane, Tuesday were committed for trial on the same charges.

Both Miss Harding, a former Queen's University student, and Miss Findlay told the court they didn't know there was marijuana in their home.

Toronto to Rent Right to Park On City Streets

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Parking Authority has approved the Minnesota plan of renting overnight parking space on residential streets to nearby residents.

General Manager Robert Bundy is preparing a report for works committee which will advocate a fee of up to $5 a month for the right to park on the street.

Bundy said these fees likely should go into a fund to establish neighborhood parking lots in residential areas which lack side drives, garages or lanes.

Must Treat Laos Conflict With the 'Utmost Gravity'

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The latest news from the lotus land of Laos suggests that a conflict with comic-opera overtones may have to be treated with the most gravity.

For some time there has been a tendency to look lightly upon the notion of fighting between Laotian government troops and Communist forces in the north.

Now the seriousness of the situation is emphasized by reports of a massive, involving clear troops from Communist North Viet Nam.

This increases the danger of Laos becoming the cockpit of a military struggle between East and West.

The United States strongly supports the present anti-Communist government, training the Royal Laotian Army and supplying extensive financial aid. It is even said that the army, police and parts of the civil service are subsidized From Washington.

Communist China and its satellite North Viet Nam claim Laos is being turned into a Western base in contravention of the Geneva agreements of 1954.

Laos, a kind of Asian Shangri-La, with mountainous terrain and an indolent opium-smoking people, is little smaller than the United Kingdom. But it is the battleground for countries—China Thailand, Burma, Cambodia and the two Viet Nams—with far greater economic importance.

The reported new Communist attack will be depressing news for external affairs department officials in Ottawa.

Under the Geneva agreements Canada is one of three countries and Poland to form a supervisory commission for Laos. Early this year Canadian officials decided that the job was finished.

The prayer book revisions must still be given formal confirmation at the 1962 general synod but any decision bishop now may give his parishes permission to use the revised edition.

The only sign of dissent among the House of Bishops came from Bishop G. N. Luxton of Huron, Ont., who voiced objection to the makeup of the new church calendar and brought to vote in favor of the book but did not cast a negative vote.

The church calendar of holy days—to which the Bishop of Huron objected—reflects a far more tolerant and appreciative attitude toward other religions including among those honored such men as John and Charles Wesley, the founders of Methodism.

The prayer book reflects changes in social conditions with the removal of the word "obey" from the bride's pledge to her husband in the marriage ceremony—already widely accepted in many Anglican churches.

The bride now promises only "to love and cherish" her husband.

Search Cancelled

BOWMANVILLE (CP) — An RCAF air-sea rescue search was cancelled Thursday when the 30-foot cruiser Bobru, missing since Wednesday was spotted on a beach on Lake Ontario at Bowmanville harbor.

The craft eventually worked its way home and docked.

William Foot, 34, of Toronto, his daughter, Sharon, 15, and a friend, Paul Martin, 12, of Peterborough, had left Stoney Lake Sunday night for Toronto.

Anglican Synod May Finish Session Early

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STE ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP) — The 20th general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada began operating under a revised schedule today in an effort to complete its sessions a day early.

The synod had been scheduled to run until next Wednesday, but Thursday's quick approval of the revised edition of the Book of Common Prayer opened an opportunity for finishing Tuesday.

The original agenda called for two full days debate on the revisions.

Clerical and lay delegates were given the afternoon off while the agenda was revised.

Many delegates seemed to feel the overwhelming approval of the revised prayer book was a heartening sign of unanimity of church-members' ideas and of a typically Anglican" willingness to compromise.

PM SENDS TELEGRAM

During a session devoted to explanation of changes in the revised prayer book, Archbishop Philip Carrington of Quebec, presiding primate, announced the synod had received a telegram from Prime Minister Diefenbaker congratulating the church on its accomplishment.

The prime minister is a Baptist.

Archbishop Carrington told the synod he had sent a reply thanking Mr. Diefenbaker and pointing out the revisions include a special prayer for "the prime minister of this Dominion."

The prayer book revisions must still be given formal confirmation at the 1962 general synod but any decision bishop now may give his parishes permission to use the revised edition.

Relations Between Pakistan And India, Strained for Past 12 Years, Undergoing Change

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Relations between India and Pakistan have been undergoing a change for the better in recent weeks.

Against a background of 12 long years of strife and bitterness, this is considered to be one of the remarkable political developments in this region in recent years. The recent meeting between Prime Minister Nehru of India and President General Mohammad Ayub Khan of Pakistan is indicative of the trend.

More meetings between the two and a return trip to Pakistan by Nehru are also considered possible.

Nehru plans to pay an official visit to Afghanistan late in September. It has been known for some time that Afghanistan's relations with Pakistan are less strained than before, though a dispute over the formation of an independent kingdom for the fierce Pathan tribesmen inhabiting the area between the two countries still persists.

There are hopes that President Ayub Khan's visit to New Delhi and Nehru's journey to Afghanistan will encourage the Western and political stability in one of Asia's most important regions.

Differences between India and Pakistan have been narrowing down. A canal water dispute is as good as settled, thanks to the World Bank's initiative and the financial help promised by Canada, the United States and Britain.

The two countries recently agreed on trade procedures and have set in motion machinery for solving many outstanding financial problems. This was considered a substantial achievement.

Indian and Pakistani diplomats and officials are, for the first time in years, on friendly terms. President Ayub Khan has impressed Indians by agreeing to attend a dinner at the residence of the Indian high commissioner in Karachi.

Since Gen. Ayub Khan assumed power in Pakistan, smuggling and other illegal activities across the India-Pakistan border have almost ceased due to close co-operation between border patrols of the two countries.

Observers believe the Chinese threat across the Himalayas is also partly responsible for the current desire of India and Pakistan to patch up their differences or at least not permit those differences to weaken their ability to resist any Communist-inspired military moves. Both Pakistan and India have common frontiers with Red China.

Canada Bank Interest Rate Bounces Upward

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada interest rate bounced upwards again Thursday as tight money problems continued to squeeze the booming economy.

The rate climbed by .31 per cent from last week to 5.88 per cent with the rate of less-than-normal $100,000,000 in 91 - day treasury bills.

In a move apparently aimed at avoiding fresh demands on the money market, Finance Minister Fleming announced that again next week the government will borrow a below - normal amount by means of the short-term bills whose selling price determines the central bank interest rate.

The bank rate is set at one-quarter of one per cent above the average yield on the weekly issue of bills and at today's rate week the rate dipped to 5.36 per cent following a two - week decline from the record high of 6.41 Aug. 13.

The central bank's interest rate —minimum charge made on the infrequent loans to chartered banks — generally reflects conditions in the short - term money market.

This week prices of short-term government bonds declined following last week's short - lived rise, bringing bond yields higher.

Eisenhower Entitled to Say Tour Mission Accomplished

By MARVIN ARROWSMITH

The climax and end of the mission came Thursday night with a joint statement by Eisenhower and President de Gaulle dealing with their talks during the two days of talks.

They reported complete agreement on the boundaries of the West Berlin problem and said that a summit conference "should take place only when there is some possibility of definite accomplishment."

ANNOUNCEMENT SOON

Perhaps the most significant development was the announcement that de Gaulle plans to make a public statement soon on the theory Algeria is a problem which the two leaders discussed at length. Solving this problem of rebellion would improve France's relations with her allies.

The implication of the announcement was that de Gaulle and Eisenhower may have reared a meeting of minds on United States role in the Algerian situation.

Before he left Washington Aug. 26, Eisenhower set forth as a general goal the strengthening and improving of East-West relation on such issues as a summit conference, disarmament, the Berlin situation and German reunification and the bolstering of NATO.

NEW HOPEFULNESS

There is no question that differences remain. But Eisenhower's camp as well as British and West German leaders all seem to feel that the visit created a new spirit of hopefulness and co-operation in Western Europe.

Since their Bonn meeting, Chancellor Adenauer has shown signs of being willing to follow a more flexible policy in dealing with the Russians.

But Eisenhower had no task of resolving any serious differences, There weren't any.

The unexpected depth of personal popularity Eisenhower's trip to Europe was a tremendous success. Everywhere he was cheered by huge crowds.

Former Liberal Prime Minister Not Talking

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some Liberals in Canadian politics don't please former Liberal prime minister Louis St. Laurent, but as a private citizen he isn't saying just what they are.

Mr. St. Laurent, here to attend the Canadian Bar Association convention, was interviewed briefly Saturday, was interviewed shortly after his arrival.

"Mrs. Fox said she was asked about his nine years as prime minister, Mrs. Fox?

"I was 36 years practising law before I had anything to do with practising politics, so when I went back to practice it was not uncommon country to me.

"But I don't ventire into court any more, of course.

He is a partner with Renault in a Quebec City law firm.

"I'm not talking now, TI, said he is "still interested in Canadian politics, of course.

"We're both electors, both interested in the affairs of the country. There are some things about the way Canada is run that I consider regrettable, but I wouldn't like to say, for publication, what they are.

"I feel that I am a private citizen now."

Says Restrictive Labor Laws Only Compound Difficulties

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — More local-area restrictive legislation of labor relations will only compound existing difficulties, a prominent Montreal labor lawyer told the Canadian Bar Association convention here today.

"We don't need more legislation, but rather a more effective application and application of existing laws by a more mature and enlightened notion of natural law to avoid injustice," Phil Cutler said in his address on labor relations section group meeting.

"Providing public opinion is adequately aware of needs and consequences of collective bargaining, we can trust to the judiciary, to give the proper effect and force to the existing individual liberties in labor-management relations."

HURTS SMALL UNIONS

Mr. Cutler, a member of the national legal advisory board of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the more restrictive legislation in labor relations, the fewer small, autonomous local unions there will be.

The small local unions were swallowed by larger locals and by international unions taken over by stand organization.

'Open Conflict' Between Bank, Govt. Is Seen

LONDON (CP)—"There's nothing wrong with monetary policy for producing eccentric passions and absurd situations," The Canada, for example."

The comment comes from The Statist weekly, which points to what it calls "open conflict" between the Canadian government and the Bank of Canada.

The British weekly magazine says the government is trying to accelerate Canada's relatively slow economy through the recent recession, while the Bank of Canada is more concerned with long-term inflation.

Commenting on the government-bank action that went during down a quarter of the bids offered for the weekly offering of treasury bills, The New Statesman says "open warfare of this kind between the government and the central government cannot be carried on without doing serious damage."

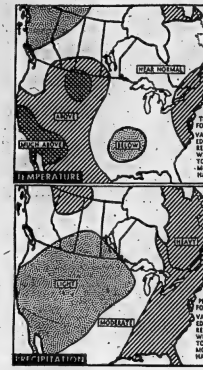
Canada Bank Interest Rate Bounces Upward

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada interest rate bounced upwards again Thursday as tight money problems continued to squeeze the booming economy.



The rate climbed by .31 per cent from last week to 5.88 per cent with the rate of less-than-normal $100,000,000 in 91 - day treasury bills.

In a move apparently aimed at avoiding fresh demands on the money market, Finance Minister Fleming announced that again next week the government will borrow a below - normal amount by means of the short-term bills whose selling price determines the central bank interest rate.

The bank rate is set at one-quarter of one per cent above the average yield on the weekly issue of bills and at today's rate week the rate dipped to 5.36 per cent following a two - week decline from the record high of 6.41 Aug. 13.

The central bank's interest rate —minimum charge made on the infrequent loans to chartered banks — generally reflects conditions in the short - term money market.

This week prices of short-term government bonds declined following last week's short - lived rise, bringing bond yields higher.

Near-normal seasonal temperatures are predicted for most parts of Canada for September. Above-normal temperatures are expected for the Maritimes, southern Alberta and Saskatchewan. Northern Alberta and most of British Columbia are expected to experience below-normal temperatures.

This map is based on the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau, also shows heavy rainfall is expected throughout Eastern Canada and parts of the Northwest Territories, Yukon and B.C.

Highest Mortality Rate Will Be Encountered by Westerns

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — With the drums beating furiously for the new shows of the new television season, no one except a few million viewers is giving much thought to the passing of some of our old friends with whom we have spent many an evening.

So, just before the fall season gets into full swing, let us pause for a hail and—in many cases—farewell.

Actually, there are several places an evening TV show can go after it dies. Good—and sometimes even not-so-good—shows go to TV heaven if they are fortunate enough to be on film or tape.

And TV heaven, as far as the owners are concerned, is in the re-run field where second and third showings bring lots of loot. L—ho is reserved for live shows of such as Studio One which disappeared without a trace.

MORE WESTERNS DIE

Highest mortality rate is encountered among the westerns, which is natural enough because there were more of them in the first place. Among those to be seen no more—except as repeats —and Buckskin, Northwest Passage, The Californians, Yancy Derringer, Tombstone Territory and Cimarron City. In the adventure category are Steve Canyon, Naked City and Zorro will be among the missing.

Joe Friday, alas, will never make captain. After all these years Dragnet is missing from the fall lineup. It is a sad time for Jack Webb, who created the sergeant (later lieutenant) and got rich but tired of playing him. A year after year because Pete Kelly's Blues (which he directed and believed in) also has been dropped after a modest run.

In the all-comedy field some old favorites will be missing. Bob Cummings' show is finished except for second runs and so is December Bride. One of the most popular shows that really will be missed is Phil Silvers' Sgt. Bilko series.

Some shows cancelled now may pop up again near the first of the year when there are bound to be casualties among the newcomers.

Tony Curtis, Janet Leigh Successful Married Team

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A husband making love to his own wife on the screen usually comprises with such thrills as striking out the pitcher in a baseball game or mowing the grass on Saturday afternoon.

The box office record of Hollywood husband - wife teams is mostly dismal. Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Mary Pickford, two of the movies' box office giants, once teamed in The Taming of the Shrew. Even Shakespeare and the fact that it was their debut in talking pictures couldn't add up to the success of their individual pictures.

The late Humphrey Bogart whirled at Lauren Becall in a movie that was a box office smash. Then they married and the resultant teamings never hit the peak of that first one.

Even Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds, at the height of their pre-Liz Taylor fame, laid a box office bomb in a picture called Bundle of Joy.

But there is one profitable exception—Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh. They currently are making "Who Was That Lady? their sixth teaming on the screen. All have been money makers from Houdini to The Vikings.

How do Tony and Janet account for their successful bucking of Hollywood tradition?

TYPICAL ANSWERS

Janet gives a typical woman's answer: "I think fans want to see husbands and wives make love."

Curtis gives a typical man's answer: "I don't understand it."

The studio, making Who Was That Lady? gives a typical studio answer: "Pirate don't remind the public that they are married."

Janet also believes that she and Tony enjoy a unique relationship with their fans.

"Tony was a big bobby-sox idol when I married him. I expected some resentment from his fans but I got none.

"They just sort of adopted me as Tony's wife. We hadn't been married a month when I met the president of one of his fan clubs —a cute teen-ager.

"She took one stride and whispered confidentially: "Well, now, when are we going to have our baby?"

Bombers in Tie

Winnipeg Defeats B.C. Lions 34-23, Capitalizing Fumbles

But his former boss, Bud Grant, is in a better frame of mind after his club won its first home game of the 1959 season. With Winnipeg players pouncing on fumbles and picking B.C. passes from the air, the Blue Bombers ground to a 34-23 Western Interprovincial Football Union victory over the Lions Thursday night.

Robinson played a hand in developing the Bombers' rugged line before leaving Winnipeg last year to take over as head coach of the Lions, in Vancouver earlier this season. Winnipeg won 42-20 and Robinson was hoping to even matters.

The victory moved the Bombers into a tie with Calgary Stampeders. Each club has eight points but Calgary has a game in hand with a 4-1 record while Winnipeg is 4-2. The loss was the Lions' third in six starts.

BUTTER FINGERS HURT

Winnipeg scored its first touchdown at the 50-second mark after Dave Burkholder recovered a Lion fumble. Carver Shannon got the TD.

Two other Bomber touchdowns came from a B.C. fumble and a pass interception, and on three occasions Lion marches were halted by interceptions.

League-leading scorer and Bernie Pitts had two touchdowns, both on passes from Jim Van Pelt. Leo Lewis, who played despite a leg injury, also took a Van Pelt pass for a touchdown.

Van Pelt scored one TD and booted four converts.

B.C. fullback Don Vicic plunged one and three yards for two touchdowns while By Bailey, former Import now a Canadian, ran 11 yards for the other. Vic Kristopaitis converted twice and added a 35-yard field goal.

The night's work left Pitts with a 19-point helper over Kristopaitis in the WIFU scoring race. The Bomber has 46 points to 36 for Kristopaitis.

The Lions had a 19-18 edge in first downs and a 225-118 margin in yards rushing.

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Bobby Allan came up with his third five-goal playoff performance Thursday night to lead Peterborough Mercurys to a 14-5 win over Brampton Excelsiors and a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven Eastern Canadian senior lacrosse finals.

Peterborough had only a 4-3 edge after the first period but going into the third had piled up a 10-4 lead.

The fourth game is scheduled for Brampton Saturday night.

TORONTO HERE TOMORROW

"Frosh from their decisive 11-4 victory over Peterborough on Wednesday night and anxious to get at the Toronto team, is the way Bob Temple described his Bobcats yesterday afternoon.

The Tabbies play host to a Toronto team at the CNRA Park Saturday afternoon at 5.15 in the opening tilt of their OASA Intermediate "AA" playdown series.

And if past performances mean anything, this is really the big stride on the way to the Ontario championship. Year after year it is the Toronto teams that come up with the "stoppers" for smaller city clubs in the playdowns.

They have a terrific number of players to choose from and there always seems to be a top chucker or two amongst them. The Bobcats realize this. They have captured one provincial title in the past coupel of years and they had to beat a cracker-jack Toronto team to do it. They have lost on other occasions and most of his time it was a Toronto club that accomplished that feat too.

* * *

Temple feels that he has one of the strongest teams ever to represent Belleville in the double "A" classification. And the club's record will back up his belief. It finished in schedule play first semi-half game west of first place and has proven a top playoff club against Cobourg, Trenton, Sports Centre and Peterborough.

Batting in particular is stronger this season than on past Bobcat teams. Right from leadoff man Floyd Crawford to the bottom of the batting order, the 'Cats have a good hitting club.,Guys like "Wiener" Brown, Bert Faulkney, Bobby Hull and Denny Hayden may hammer the long ball on any given occasion.

They have the speed in fellows like Jackie Hughes, Faulkner, Hull and Hayden. Their fielding is adequate in all positions and great in a couple of spots. You have to be a magician to get the ball by, over or through Faulkner in centre field.

* * *

In Bobby Green and Bobby Hull the Bobcats have a top, left-hand, right-hand pitching combo that runs hot and cold. When Green is right, as the other night in Peterborough, there is none better. But if he can't get the ball anywhere near the plate, it means trouble. Hull is steady, fast and has a good change of pace when it is working. He gets the ball across the plate and, like his southpaw partner, is tough to hit. They both pile up a lot of strikeouts.

* * *

Hull will get the starting assignment tomorrow in all probability, since Green worked the full nine Wednesday. And, in the last game, we mean we have never seen Green any better. His control was nearly perfect and he was overpowering a lot of the Peterborough hitters. On a couple of occasions he had a three and nothing count on a batter only to bear down and blaze three by him. Only three balls ever got past the infield and the one single the losers did manage was a wrong-field punch.

This may sound as if the 'Cats are unbeatable. Far from it. There are occasions when they look terrible, such is the case with any club, we believe. But if they play the ball they are capable of playing, this Toronto club will certainly know it has met a ball team before the sun sets tomorrow evening.

At the time of writing we do not know when the second game will be played in Toronto, possibly Monday or Tuesday, but likely not until next Saturday. In any case the 'Cats will go all out tomorrow to try and grab that all-important game lead. Don't forget the time, 5.15 p.m. It is early but darkness waits for no one.

* * *

CONGRATULATIONS!

Congratulations are in order to Lee Culhane and his starry young softball club, the Bootell TV bantams, for winning the Eastern Ontario OASA championship the other evening.

The team ousted Peterborough in its first round, two games to one, then took the Oshawa club to camp in consecutive games. It was down 4-1 in the fifth inning here Wednesday night but a four-run rally won the game and the Eastern title in a 5-4 score.

Culhane has a fine bunch of hustlers and their victories to date have been all the more preminent since they did not play in a league during the summer. They have taken part in only their five playdown games and have won four of them. At that rate the provincial championship seems like a not too distant goal.

They will meet.,a Toronto entry in the next series but will likely Lave a week's rest before that set gets under way, according to Culhane.

At any rate fellows, keep up the great work, give it all you've got and Belleville will be proud of you, win, lose or draw.

WRESTLING TONIGHT

The weekly wrestling matches hold forth there tonight, beginning at nine o'clock and an action-packed card has been arranged.

Headlining the show will be the main bout between those two giants, Yukon Eric and Don Leo Jonathan, in a two-of-three falls affair.

But the semi-final could very well steal the show... doing battle will e those four wild and wooly midgets in a tag-team bout, with Little Beaver and Brut Panther tackling Sky Lo Lo and Fuzzy Cupid.

The opening bout pits Joe Christie against Pat Flanagan.

FLUKE WIND HELPS

NORWICH, Conn. (AP) — A fluke wind that switched from southeast to northwest in a matter of minutes left the opposition sailes and gave the Hudson, Que., Yacht Club a clean sweep Thursday in the North American junior sailing championships.

Series Sweep With Injuns Could Win Flag For Sox

White Sox Now Have Bulge Of 5½ Games and Going Good; Giants Hike Lead in National

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cleveland either takes two of three in that last-chance series opening at Chicago tonight against the first place White Sox, or they're going to start a bunch of dead Injuns in the American League pennant race.

It's as simple—or as tough—as that.

You remember the Indians. They're the outfit who had won eight straight but a week ago and were within 1½ games of the White Sox, a weary club with pitching troubles piling into a four-game series at Cleveland.

DROP FOUR

The White Sox were so pooped they popped the Injuns four in a row and took a 5½-game lead—largest of the year in either league.

Chicago still has that bulging-winning two of three since floating out of Cleveland, while the Indians have won the only game they've played.

Another sweep would jump the White Sox to 7½ games out front—enough to virtually lock up their first pennant in 40 years with 18 games to play. At the moment their magic number is 16—found by combining a Chicago victory or cohesion and Cleveland losses totaling 18 given it by the White Sox.

Neither the White Sox, who named Early Wynn (17-8) to pitch Saturday's finale, or Indians, who picked rookie Jim Perry (10-5) playedy Friday, had a day off in AL games scheduled. Baltimore beat Boston 5-4 on Bob Nieman's two home runs and Kansas City whipped Washington 9-2 behind Art Ditmar, who got relief help until Roy Sievers homered with two out in the seventh. The Nats finished with four hits.

Wynn, the old man with the young arm, has beaten the Indians eight times out of nine they traded him to the White Sox two years ago. At 39, he has 266 victories in the majors, tying Bob Feller and Eppa Rixey for ninth place in the all-time list when he beat Cleveland 6-3 last Sunday.

Perry, a fast - balling right-hander, lost his only decision with Chicago but didn't won 2-0 by Dick Donovan last Saturday.

The Sox have built 13 of the 18 games played between the two contenders this season. After the Chicago series they'll meet for one more game—at Cleveland Sept. 22.

If somebody's second-guessing Don Drysdale these days, it isn't the hitters. They've nailed him, and no doubt about it.

It was Drysdale who paced Los Angeles' pitching into the National League pennant fight, winning 10 of 11 over two months and pitching the Dodgers within a half-games of first place when he won his seventh in a row Aug. 8.

But the big righthander hasn't won since—and he's been tagged for nine home runs in 29 innings through that losing span.

CARDS FREED

St. Louis Cardinals, clubbing back when big guy Joe Cunningham was plunked with a pitch after hitting a homer, belted Drysdale for his fifth straight defeat, 5-3, Thursday night and dropped the second - place Dodgers 2½ games behind first Francisco.

The Giants—losing only one game off their lead although winning but four of their last 10, three behind the Cards—had a victory over Chicago Cubs on home runs by Ed Bressoud and the Willie—McCovey and Mays, it was the only other game scheduled in the National.

Drysdale, who popped off recently about pitching greatest among Dodger coaches, almost touched off a brawl when he plunked Cunningham behind the ear for several days, with a, badly ruled pennants, a game batting .350 and challenging Milwaukee's Hank Aaron (.328) for batting title. In the losing home run off Drysdale, then took a bow from the Cards' dugout as he came up again in the third.

NEAR BRAWL

Then, when both benches stormed the mound as plate umpire Stan Landes advanced on Drysdale with a menacing look about close pitches. The brawl didn't develop, but it was chased by Card manager Solly Hemus as weighing "70 pounds less than Don Drysdale and a run-in this season, had to squeeze between the Dodgers' pitcher who thinks he is Drysdale to prevent a blast-off.

When things quieted down, Drysdale didn't. He walked Bill Mulchie, then was chased by Ken Boyer's three-run homer. Bob Miller (3-2) was the winner.

Both Bressoud and Mays drove in three runs for the Giants after the Cubs had chased Jim Brosnan with Johnny Antonelli with three runs in the third for a 4-0 lead. Stu Miller (8-7) won it.

World Series Slated to Start On September 30

CHICAGO (AP) — Unless a playoff is needed to select a league champion, the world series' will start Wednesday, Sept. 30, in the American League pennant winner's park.

This and other preliminary plans for the 1959 baseball championship were worked out at a meeting Thursday of highstanding clubs in both leagues. The meeting was called by commissioner Ford Frick.

Because of the tight race in the National League there were a lot of "ifs" in the early stage planning. These included:

If the series involves Chicago or Cleveland, or San Francisco or Los Angeles, the first two games will be played in the midwest. Oct. 2 would be a travel date. The next three games would be played Oct. 3, 4 and 5 in the National League park on the west coast.

If the best - of - seven series also 2d have to continue, the sixth and seventh games would be in the American League city Oct. 7 and 8.

If neither San Francisco nor Los Angeles take the pennant, no traveling days would be needed. The first game in a National League park, then, would be played Oct. 2.

If there should be ties for the pennant at the end of the regular season schedule, the contenders would play a best-of-three series to determine the league's entry in the world series.

If such a playoff should be needed, it would start Sept. 28. The world series would start Oct. 2 after the other completion of the playoff.

Havana Kings No Easy Marks In Playoffs

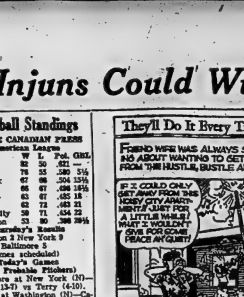
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Havana Sugar Kings have designs on the start of the International League's Shaughnessy playoffs this week and they promise to cause trouble for those who think they may be an easy mark on the way to the little world series.

The Cuban farmhand club completed a three-game sweep of the league season series Wednesday, winning 4-1 to stay within two games behind second-place Columbus. The Jets won their seventh straight, 3-0 over Miami.

Rochester, eliminated last to Montreal 10-7 and Toronto edged Buffalo 6-5 in 15 innings.

YEES IN BAD SLUMP



Ted Wieand (16-11) spun a six-hitter for the Jets as Lou Vees wound up their home season. The defeat was Richmond's eighth in 10 games. Tony Gonsales hit his 30th homer off loser Glen Cox (4-4). Frank Lary registered for Richmond.

Jo Jo Gibbon (16-9) tossed his second straight shutout, a three-hitter helped by Tony Burgess' 20th home run. Gibbon bested Jim Archer (13-9).

Mike Collet drove home five runs with a homer and three singles to aide Bob Bowman, 5-3. Short (12-9), Curt Roberts also had four hits for Montreal including a home run. Bobby Morgan hit his 31st homer for the Bisons, who rapped winner Ross Valdes (11-8) for 17 hits.

Toronto used five pitchers and an error to score three runs in the 15th and break a 3-3 tie. Rochester came close, scoring in its half of the inning. Frank Funk (6-9) won and Bill Smith (6-7) was the loser.

Tripucka on Spot

Ottawa Quarterback Given 'Produce or Else' Ultimatum

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Tripucka faces the toughest chore in his 10-year-old pro football career Saturday, He's against Montreal Alouettes on a "produce-or-else" ultimatum.

The big quarterback for Ottawa Rough Riders got the warning Thursday from coach Frank Clair who is still burning over last Saturday's game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in which the Ticats intercepted four Tripucka passes and turned them into four touchdowns.

At least Tripucka will have the advantage of his home park for the first game of a two-game holiday weekend for the Big Four Football Union.

Monday Toronto Argonauts visit the unbeaten Hamilton Tiger - Cats, defending Big Four champions.

NO COMPROMISE

Tripucka, who came to Ottawa in an off-season trade with Saskatchewan Roughriders, was left with little doubt about the strength of Clair's ultimatum.

"We can't afford to give up the ball on pass interceptions," Clair told a weekly Quarterback Club luncheon. "If Tripucka can't do the job then he'll have to go."

Rough Riders are winless in three starts. They lost 21-20 to Toronto, were clobbered 23-8 by Montreal and fell 34-10 to Hamilton last week.

Montreal is in second place with two wins and one loss. Toronto has lows with one victory. All four clubs have played three times.

JACKSON-TO START

Clair indicated he will give Tripucka a break Saturday by starting Canadian Russ Jackson in the quarter slot. Jackson tossed the two touchdown passes against Hamilton.

"With Jackson in there I think it will give Tripucka a chance to calm down and watch for openings in the Montreal defence," Clair explained.

Three injured players will be back: Canadian halfback Ron Stewart, import halfback Gerry Nesbitt and import guard Hardman Curzion.

Montreal will likely be without star end Hal Patterson who has injured knee.

Ed Hill, 22-year - old import guard cut by Montreal earlier in the season, reported back Thursday night and was re-signed to replace injured George Druderich.

NO INJURIES

Hamilton, without injuries, already owns a 16-7 decision over Toronto. There coach Jim Trimble makes no secret of the fact that beating Toronto is his greatest delight. Hamp Pool of Argos feels the same regarding the Trimble crew.

Ronnie Knox, the boyish-looking Argo quarterback, is expected to be shooting his usual jump-passes against Texas.

Earlier, Montreal quarter Sam Etcheverry said Knox was making a mistake using the jumppass. Sam called it most difficult.

But Knox has been working out with passes from the run and jump all week.

Canadian Pistol Packing Marksman Wins Medals in Inches, Swimmers Lose Out

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP) — Canada's sports spotlight at the third Pan-American Games focused tonight on a paradoxical marksman who wins medals in bunches and on a dedicated swimmer who can pan anything but gold.

Gerry Ouellette, quiet - spoken pistol shooter from Deep River, Ont., became Canada's only gold medal winner of the Games. For good measure, he added a second-place silver and a third-place bronze, singling him out as the only Canadian to accomplish the medal-winning feat in any single international competition.

While there were cheers and fame for the 25-year-old atomic energy commission designer at Chalk River, a sobbing and ashamed" Irene MacDonald termed her disappointing fourth place finish in the women's springboard final "the same old story."

SPOILED DIVE

That meant only one thing—a spoiled dive that washed out any chances she had of winning a gold medal.

She tried a backward 1½-somersault layout that ended with a spectacular-drenching splash. The auburn-haired bank clerk, a native of Hamilton and now living in Los Angeles, plopped into the water practically on the back of her knees and it was enough to send three mermaids from the all-conquering United States to the victory rostrum.

The Americans, who have been making 37-sport program an almost one-country monopoly, have won all eight finals so far on the swim program and in seven of them have finished 1-2-3.

"I can beat any of these girls in any national competition and I've proved it," said Miss MacDonald, the current U.S. outdoor and indoor three - metre title holder. "But when it comes to diving in international meets, I'm no good. I'm sorry for the team and I'm ashamed."

BEDARD LOSES FINAL

Bob Bedard, Davis Cup tennis player from Sherbrooke, Que., took a silver medal after a straight-set 6-4, 6-1, 6-2 beating from Luis Ayala in the final of the men's singles. Bedard, seeded No. 8, had been the giant-killer of the tournament until his match with Ayala.

Althea Gibson, former U.S. and Wimbledon titlist, defeated Yolanda Ramirez of Mexico 8-4, 7-5 to take the women's crown.

Canada's richest harvest of medals belong to the marksmen. They captured two silver and three bronze in addition to Ouellette's gold in the small-bore competition to give them an unprecedented eight medals since the event started last Sunday at rifles outside this sprawling city.

Ouellette took first place in the small bore shooting from prone position. He got the silver medal in the small bore over-all three-position competition and a bronze in the kneeling position.

Clark White, Toronto, picked up the bronze in the small bore test from the prone position and the Canadians also placed third in the three-position match.

SHOOTING SHOWERS BEST

The 19-man shooting team's eight-medal count equals the total won by 30-member track and field team, but with one great difference. The marksmen, who confines their six-day competition until Sunday, own a gold medal.

Canada's medal total, with the aquamen and scullers still to be heard from, is 18—one gold, five silver and 12 bronze.

Canada's modest success in swimming Thursday. Margaret Iwasaki and Susan Sangster, both of Vancouver, placed fifth and seventh in the women's 200-metre freestyle and Robert Wood of Victoria was fourth in the men's 100-metre backstroke.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, visiting the games, saw scrappy Bob Fiscorit of London, Ont., in a victorious fight with a Chilean opponent, a fight that finished fourth in the individual speed final. Diefenbaker also saw Jean Beard of Ayala match at the women's diving.

BROTHER BATTERY

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Redlegs will have a brother battery beginning today. General manager Gabe Paul announced Thursday the purchase of Jim Bailey, 24, lefthander, from Nashville of the Southern Association. He is a younger brother of Ed Bailey, first-string catcher for the Reds.

Concern Voiced for Physical Welfare of 'Over-Hill' Boxers

By MILT MacPHAIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The National Boxing Association wound up its annual convention Thursday considered in the form of crowning boxers towards financial security while they are fighting and some security when they retire.

Concern was also voiced for the physical welfare of "over the hill" fighters who continue their careers in such rock-rocker-tin is boxing and a plea from Commissioner Ben Cayo of Georgia, general strengthening of the NBA to meet increasing problems in the fight world were other highlights of the four-day meeting.

"We are concerned about fighters who try to look after themselves financially," Greene told the closing session.

He cited as the trouble Joe Louis and Bobo Olson are in with the Internal Revenue department, said Greene, who was returned for his 11th consecutive term as national president.

TO WARN BOXERS

Greene said the NBA would send out letters to athletic commissions in the United States and Canada to look after their fighters warning them of the need for saving funds for income tax payments.

The NBA planned a stepped-up campaign to have boxers who have finished physically.

"Some of these fighters—Ezzard Charles and Harricane Jackson for example—are over the hill and are getting physically injury if they continue," Greene said.

Charles and Jackson were suspended by the NBA last year for their "own physical well-being," but Greene said they are still boxing in non-NBA areas.

"We are going to write to the governors of all unaffiliated states warning them of the danger to themselves and their states," Greene said. "Maybe we can shame these people into cooperating."

Don Drysdale In Hot Water Over Beaning

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Fighting mad because his star hitter was struck and badly bruised by one of Don Drysdale's pitches, St. Louis manager Solly Hemus has issued this bold warning:

"Anytime they throw at us, we're going to retaliate."

Joe Cunningham, whose .330 batting average is the second best in the National League, suffered a severe contusion on his right forearm in Wednesday night when Drysdale conked him in the third inning—two innings after Drysdale hit a home run.

Then a five-minute row during which no blows were struck, the Cardinals knocked Drysdale out of the box and went on to defeat Los Angeles 9-3. Hemus also dropped Dodger 2½ games back of first place San Francisco.

X-rays revealed no fracture in Cunningham's arm but the injury made batting him inactive several days.

TOLD UMPIRES

Hemus told umpires that Drysdale was definitely throwing at Cunningham." Hemus said after the game. "He could have broken Cunningham's arm —and there'll be a lot of people looking for the batting championship."

Homeplate umpire Stan Landes said he told Drysdale: "You'd better watch out where you're throwing that ball."

He said Drysdale snapped back: "If you're afraid of getting hit of throwing at him, I'm going to get a lawyer and you can play in the National League."

Landes said he replied: "All I'm telling you is you'd better watch where you're throwing."

Drysdale, known as his young man who recently accused an unnamed party in his own dugout of not supporting him when he was in trouble once before this year by inciting a battle on May 8, he drew a warning from umpire Frank Secory after hit ting Willie Mays. The game in Chicago, Drysdale later was fined.

SHARE HONORS

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie McCovey, San Francisco Giants' sensational rookie, and veteran pitcher Vernon Law of Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday were named co-winners of the 40-man committee of baseball writers and broadcasters who made the selections.

McCovey, batting .311 is credited with sparking the Giants to their National League lead, hit .372 in 37 games during August after being brought up from Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League. He has eight home runs and drove in 32 tallies.

Law had a successful during the month and 51 innings of work in six games compiled a 2.36 earned run average.

Will Gordon Be Rehired As Manager?

CLEVELAND (AP)—There's a big guessing game going around baseball circles whether Joe Gordon will be rehired as manager of Cleveland Indians.

A report here Wednesday said Gordon probably will be fired but Detroit or Milwaukee and that Cleveland didn't appreciate the way he once had owned baseball dope for the Indians.

General manager Frank Lane the man who will make the decision, said Thursday:

"Joe's my man. I brought him here. If he looks good, and if the team looks good under his managership, it makes me look good.

"I guess nobody can deny that the team has looked good. If anybody had told me last spring that Herb Score couldn't pitch, Russ Nixon couldn't catch, Billy Martin would spend most of the season on the disabled list—and that we'd still finish second—I'd have known he was out of his mind . . . Whatever the decision is, Joe Gordon."

Approve Bill For Exemption in Anti-Trust Laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate judiciary subcommittee Thursday approved a bill to exempt baseball from the United States anti-trust laws to certain aspects of professional football, hockey and basketball.

Professional baseball is excluded from the bill, introduced by Chairman Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tenn.) of the anti - trust and monopoly subcommittee.

The subcommittee vote was not announced.

"There is an urgent need for this legislation, particularly by professional football," Kefauver said, "Without it every act of the National Football League is suspect under anti-trust laws."

The legislation grew out of Supreme Court rulings that professional baseball is exempt from the anti-trust laws but professional football is not.

BALL PROBLEMS DIFFER

Kefauver said the bill approved by the subcommittee Thursday excluded baseball "because the problem of baseball is different from that of the other three sports."

He added that the subcommittee went to great lengths to "baseball's complexities so that there will be no orderly transaction from its present status of almost complete exemption under the anti-trust laws to a status of limited exemption similar to that of the other sports as provided in this bill."

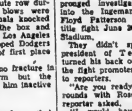
The anti-trust exemptions cover player drafts, contract agreements and assignment of players, as in existing franchise rights within a five-mile area in cities of less than 2,000,000 population.

They also permit agreements not to telecast games within 75 miles of the home community of another club playing the same day.

Former Fight Partners Had Chilly Meeting

NEW YORK (AP) — Irving Kahn and Bill Rosenkohn, former fight partners who have now bitter rivals, had a chilly meeting Thursday in the office of Attorney - General Louis Lefkowitz.

They met face to face for the first time since a three-year investigation started into the Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title fight June 20 at Yankee Stadium.



Kahn didn't speak. Kahn, president of TelePrompTer, turned his back on Rosenkohn, former TelePrompTer vice-president, and talked to reporters.

"Are you ready to go three rounds with Rosenkohn," one reporter asked.

"I would have him out-classed in weight and a few years," Kahn said. "It wouldn't be fair," Kahn replied.

Rosenkohn withdrew as president of Rosenkohn Enterprises Thursday and has made a director in the organization.

Rosenkohn promoted the title fight while TV and radio rights were handled by Kahn.

Olmedo Begins Long Road Back In U.S. Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Alex Olmedo begins the long road back today and the first hurdle he sees is another Australian.

The Peruvian from the University of Southern California, a dis-appointment in last week's Davis Cup competition, meets Don Russell, 13, of Sydney, in the first round of the United States tennis championships.

Australia's Neale Fraser, the Davis Cup hero, and Barry Mackay of Dayton, Ohio—seeded second and third, respectively, behind Olmedo — open their campaigns Saturday.

CHATHAM TOPS KITCHENER

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham defeated Kitchener Dodgers 6-3 Thursday night in the first game of their best-of - three Ontario Baseball Association junior semi-finals. Next game will be in Kitchener Saturday.

SETS WORLD MARK

TUBIN, Italy (AP) — Russia's Vassili Kuznetsov turned in Thursday what is regarded as the world's best performance in the pentathlon. Kuznetsov also holds the world's decathlon record. But Kuznetsov's score in the World University Games of 4,006 points was not an official record because the International Track and Field Federation does not keep records for the pentathlon.

MONTREAL (CP)—Are there many deliberate injuries in professional football?

It's a question that usually gets a workout every season and Toronto Argonauts coach Hamp Pool got things started early this year. He accused the rest of the teams in the Big Four of being out to "get" his quarterback Ronnie Knox after only one game of the schedule.

"The league is testing him," Pool said after Argos had bested Ottawa Rough Riders 21-20 and were preparing for their first game with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, the defending league champions.

"Others tried to rush him and really gave him a pounding. The Hamilton game won't affect him. It takes guts to play quarterback and take that rush but Ronnie has got them," Hamilton won that one by 18-7.

PERILS OF JOB

It wasn't a particularly inflammable statement for a man who must watch his most valuable property being buried under a half - ton of opposing linemen many times each season, but it brought Bob (Tiger) Dawson, Hamilton coach, to the defence of his colorful quarterback's defence.

Frewin wrote: "Knox is in for a physical beating, from the defensive halfback rush. . . he will be knocked down, pummelled and elbowed. . ." He added that a Hamilton player had told him: "Knox will be hit every chance we get."

Ronnie got less sympathy from some of the other writers around the league.

In Montreal where Alouettes quarterback Sam Etcheverry has become almost a civic institution both Vern (Gazette) DeGeer and Ed Rimer (Montreal Star) Ferguson took pushed the whole affair.

DeGeer wrote: ". . . If it's true what they're saying . . . Banding to Ronnie, how about shedding a tear for Montreal's Sam Etcheverry. . . Sam has played more football on the flat of his back than most of the Canadian ball. . ."

To protect him from this fearsome pounding, DeGeer continued with tongue in cheek, Etcheverry had been fitted with a foam rubber mattress "which stretches from the nape of his neck to the seat of his pants. As a result the man hasn't missed a game since he joined Als in 1952."

Argos could rig up a similar outfit for Knox so that he could bounce when he hit or, DeGeer suggested, "why don't our fullbacks pack bundle together their crying towels and stuff them up the back of their jerseys?"

Noting Pool's charges "with reserved hilarity" Elmer Ferguson put his finger on what is probably the crux of the situation.

"Teams and coaches have long since discovered that no quarterback can throw accurately when he is buried under a mess of humanity," Ferguson wrote.

OBVIOUS STRATEGY

"So they proceed to bury him as completely and expeditiously as possible. A quarterback's life is the part of the Gilbert and Sullivan policeman, not a happy one."

Knox himself has said that in his personal experience quarterbacks were seldom deliberately roughed up.

The key to the question may be the difference between deliberate roughing up with intent to injure and the normal pounding that is part and parcel of football.

As the man who handles the ball on almost every play the quarterback is the legitimate target of a lot of tacklers. As long as football is played this way and players are earning their living at it there'll be a lot of people out to make the quarterback a half-step slower running and a half-second faster getting rid of the ball.

LACK STAR

LONDON (AP) — The British track and field team left for Moscow Thursday without European 5,000-metre champion Derek Ibbotson. Rowe, the first Briton ever to put the shot more than 60 feet, stayed at home because of the illness of his mother. He may fly to Russia later.

Catholic Conference Appeals For Greater Understanding

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Catholic Conference today appealed in a Labor Day message for greater understanding and co-operation between labor and management groups.

The Conference, a voluntary association of Roman Catholic archbishops and bishops in Canada, said such groups must be strong, active, democratic and free from undue outside interference.

The statement said that Canada should appreciate the "good fortune" that it has no experience of open and systematic warfare between management and labor. FALLS SHORT

"Nevertheless," it added, "the situation in Canada still falls short of the Christian social ideal.

"If there is bitter struggle between the leaders of management and labor, neither is there any peaceful, effective, constructive collaboration, except during times of armed conflict.

"It is not sufficient for Christians to reject class warfare in theory. They must will and create class collaboration, in fact and in practice. Management and workers must try to meet on concrete common grounds of thought which are capable of becoming grounds of action."

The Conference urged that leaders of management and labor get together to exchange ideas on such problems as unemployment, development of natural resources and social legislation. Government also should encourage the establishment of "management-labor conventions" or "economic councils" to discuss the problems.

Quebec Premier Felled By Strokes, Lies Gravely Ill

Unconscious, Paralyzed, Last Rites Administered

SCHEFFERVILLE, Que. (CP) Premier Duplessis, victim of a series of strokes, remained in "grave condition" today in this remote northeastern Quebec mining community.

A 9:30 a.m. EDT medical bulletin issued by Dr. Lucien Larue and Dr. Yves Rouleau, both of Quebec's St. Michel Archange Hospital, said:

"The premier spent a quiet night but his condition remains grave. There can be no question of moving him at the present time. This would create complications. Every possible care that can be given him is being administered here."

Dr. Larue, a brain specialist and a long-time friend of the premier, said the premier, "regained consciousness from time to time" during the night.

SIDE PARALYZED

In the first 24 hours following the series of cerebral seizures Thursday, Mr. Duplessis was in a coma. His right side was paralyzed.

Last rites of the Roman Catholic Church have been administered.

Dr. Larue, one of a team of medical specialists keeping a round-the-clock vigil, said Friday night that it will take a day or two before there can be any talk of the premier's ailment. The specialists would not attempt to say how soon after the premier's first attack.

The premier was stricken by the brain hemorrhages while attending a meeting of government's supporters to visit the iron-rich town he is immensely proud of having helped develop.

The opening of the desolate north, the industrialization of a rural province were pet projects of Mr. Duplessis.

Throughout the colorful premier for once had no press conference planned for the day he was stricken.

STRICKEN AT WINDOW

He was stricken at 3 p.m. Thursday while talking to Maurice Custeau, Union Nationale member of the legislature for Montreal Jeanne - Nance. They were in an Iron Ore Company of Canada building when the premier walked over to a window.

Abruptly, the premier turned towards Mr. Custeau. Mr. Custeau looked at the premier and said a long rambling was wrong. Mr. Duplessis could not speak.

The premier was put to bed in the company's guest house and a doctor was summoned from the small hospital used here by miners and their families. Five hours later, a brain stroke specialists should be called in.

Mr. Duplessis' wife administered by Rev. Marcel Champagne, parish priest of Schefferville, 11 was the second time in his life the premier has received last rites.

In 1942, while severely sick with pneumonia, the priest was given him. He has also suffered from diabetes for years.

PREMIER'S CAREER

Mr. Duplessis, long one of Canada's most controversial premiers, is a man of many friends, many political accusations and a reputation for fierce foes as worship-ful followers.

Except for a spell in opposition from 1936 to 1944, the Union Nationale party he founded and led

Says 2 Churches Stumbling Blocks To Sane Law

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Anglican and Roman Catholic churches are the biggest stumbling blocks to a reasonable divorce law in Canada, says a Kingston, Ont., lawyer.

The two churches "both oppose divorce because it's against their dogma that marriage is indissoluble," Henry L. Cartwright, a specialist in family law, said in an interview here while attending the Canadian Bar Association convention.

"Even if they accept the extremely dubious claim that the early Christian church did uphold the indissolubility of marriage, it's still a religious dogma that the churches are shoving down everyone's throat, whether we accept it or not."

Mr. Cartwright now is preparing a book on divorce for laymen. He said Canadian divorce laws are based "purely on physical grounds—adultery for a divorce and impotence for annulment."

"We completely ignore the spiritual and mental aspects of marriage."

One solution, he said, would be to give jurisdiction over marriage and divorce laws to the provinces rather than the federal government.

"This would at least keep Quebec happy, because they could make divorce laws as tough as they liked," Mr. Cartwright said.

He Prefers Golf to Sleep

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) President Eisenhower turned his way to more relaxation at a seaside golf course as he continued to rest from a tour of Western Europe.

Eisenhower arrived Friday from Paris saying he was tempted to catch up on his sleep rather than play golf. But the lure of the game was too much and he got in 18 holes during the afternoon.

Later he made public two messages he had sent to President de Gaulle. They expressed thanks for France's hospitality and a conviction that "common understanding built over the years" was the result of the Eisenhower-de-Gaulle talks.

One of Eisenhower's principal objectives in visiting Europe was to bring France into closer cooperation with other members of the Atlantic alliance.

Sudden Illness Of Duplessis Brings Tributes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said "I am very sad" to learn of Premier Duplessis' illness in northern Quebec. "I can only express the hope that fears of the moment will be dissipated and he will be restored to good health."

In Ottawa, Liberal Leader Pearson said he had heard "with deep regret and a feeling of shock of the sudden, tragic illness of the premier of Quebec," and added the hope Mr. Duplessis will make a complete recovery.

External Affairs Minister Green, the acting prime minister, said Mr. Duplessis has had a long and distinguished career in public life and his illness will be regretted by all Canadians. "I hope he will soon be on the road to recovery."

Hazen Argue, parliamentary leader of the CCF, said he was "indeed sorry" to learn of the Quebec premier's illness.

ST. LAURENT SHOCKED

Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent of Quebec, former Canadian prime minister, said "news of the illness came as a terrible shock to me and I hope Mr. Duplessis' condition is not as critical as one might gather from the tone of Premier Frost asked prayers for the recovery of Mr. Duplessis and said he looked on news of the sudden illness of my friend, the Honorable Maurice Duplessis," Mr. Frost said.

"The strain and pressures of public life take their toll of those who are attracted to and serve in that field of endeavor. Knowing this, our people will, I am sure, join in a fervent prayer for the recovery of this distinguished Canadian who has always given his best to the country and province."

"I trust that he will be restored to good health for further service to his people."

Gasparilla Pirates Were Hungry But Not Dry as CNE Captured

TORONTO (CP) — The Gasparilla Pirates from Tampa, Fla., lived up to their traditional role of Capt. Morgan Friday night.

They sailed their ship, a former Wolfe Island ferry, went aground and another powerful vessel broke loose from its tow, delaying the show by more than an hour. Nevertheless viewers responded for more than 15 minutes with the entire Gasparilla crew of 111 aboard until a man inboard from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club took pity on him at less than two knots.

Their jolly invasion—in which they theoretically captured Toronto—was part of Canadian National Exhibition celebrations Friday.

Things began to cloud up when a vessel loaded with about 200 British and Canadian naval personnel, dressed as pirates, pulled up to a rendezvous point off the CNE waterfront and everything they had been without food since noon.

However, a non-commissioned officer and aboard the men had managed to smuggle aboard several cases of beer added to the 10 cases donated by a local brewery.

Only three men went overboard on the way to the rendezvous.

Beer lunches were put aboard and the crew went back to the invasion.

The pirates were reorganizing when Canadian and British sailors gave them a soaking with a fire hose on board the William Inglis, a ferry which had been converted to the showboat Princess for the day.

At this point, one of the pi-

74 Children of Doukhobors To Start to School Tuesday

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—An experiment in co-operation begins in British Columbia's West Kootenay district Tuesday.

Its success is vital to citizens, businessmen, police, court and government authorities and a 2,000-strong fanatical religious sect.

Seventy - four children of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect are due to register at about a dozen schools in the area.

The children, kept for up to six years in a provincial government dormitory because their parents refused to send them to school, were released by a magistrate and, 2 on the solemn promise of the parents that the children will attend school Tuesday—and that there until they are 15 years old.

Most officials are confident the promise will be kept. If it isn't it may mean a return to the violence which last marked the sect's 50-year history in Canada and to the "get tough" policy adopted by the government six years ago.

The promise by the Doukhobors marked a distinct about-face from their previous attitude towards public schools, which they claimed taught children "militarism."

An indication that the B.C. government will try to give the Doukhobors something extra in return for their promise was given Friday by Education Minister Leslie Peterson, who said his department hopes to provide an experimental course in Russian at certain high schools by the beginning of the 1960 - 61 school year.

Russian is the main language of the Doukhobors. Some have never learned to speak English.

Nelson Allan of Nelson, district school superintendent, said he anticipates a smooth integration of pupils and no demonstrations.

The children released from the government dormitory at New Denver, 60 miles north of here, will go to about a dozen schools in the Nelson, Castlegar and Grand Forks area.

Canada Fighting Crippling Polio Disease Over Wide Area

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's fight against poliothe killing and crippling disease which strikes mainly at the young continued today.

Montreal was the focal point.

Fourteen new cases were checked into Montreal hospitals Friday. Four were city residents bringing the total for Montreal province to 261 this year. Three new cases from the suburbs brought that total to 110. There were seven new cases from outlying points for a total of 25.

So far, 181 patients have been treated in Montreal hospitals for polio. Thirty-two have died.

The incidence of polio within the city itself seemed to be leveling but the epidemic continued at a steady rate in the province, health officials said.

The National Foundation flew emergency equipment from New York to help Montreal in the fight. The equipment was sent Friday in response to an appeal from Alex C. Solomon, executive director of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis and Rehabilitation.

The Canadian consulate in New York arranged to help speed through customs two rocking beds and 12 breathing machines. The equipment was rounded up in New York City and Buffalo.

Ottawa reported five cases brought to Civic Hospital from Cornwall in the last three days. All are of pre-school age.

Many of the new patients, taken to Ottawa because there are no iron lungs in Cornwall, is a two-year-old boy suffering from bulbar polio, the type which killed a 12-month-old girl Thursday.

Eighteen polio cases have been admitted to Ottawa hospitals, said Dr. Morris Rosnick, head of Civic Hospital isolation ward. Most of them have been young children. A 26-year-old man was admitted from Perth.

Five people in St. John's Nfld., reported two new cases admitted Friday, bringing the Newfoundland total so far this year to 61. Six have died since early July.

Quebec City had its first polio death Friday, bringing the total for the greater Quebec area to nine. The number of cases hit 65, with 56 in the city alone.

In Winnipeg, farthest west point reported severely hit, James Barnett, 57-year-old farmer from the Grandview district died, Manitoba's first polio death of 1959. The number of polio cases climbed to 11, nine more suspected cases listed.

Quebec Without Interim Premier

QUEBEC (CP)—The illness of Premier Duplessis has left the Quebec government without a leader, but hasn't paralyzed its functions.

Ministers and deputy ministers have continue to administer the normal business of their departments under the powers already granted by the cabinet, but they can't take on any new powers.

One awkward situation has arisen from the illness, however. Interim premiers have been appointed from time to time in the past when Mr. Duplessis was away for long periods, but none was appointed this time because of the expected shortness of the trip. Now none can be appointed.

HAMMARSKJOLD HURRIES HOME FOR UN SESSION

Emergency Meeting On Laos Expected

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold hurried home from South America today to deal with Laos' appeal for a United Nations task force to stop any aggression from Communist North Viet Nam.

Diplomats expected the 11-power Security Council to be called into an emergency session Monday but predicted the Soviet Union would veto any UN intervention into the fighting in the Southeast Asian kingdom.

In the event of a Soviet veto in the council any seven members of the council can call an emergency session of the 83-member General Assembly within 24 hours.

The feeling is that the assembly would approve help to the Buddhist Kingdom.

IN SEATO SPHERE

Meanwhile, diplomats representing the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization met in Washington Friday night. A statement issued afterward emphasized that Laos is "within the area of special interest to SEATO."

Laos is not a member of SEATO but the organization regards the Asian kingdom as under its protection.

It was understood that there was no question of SEATO military intervention by SEATO while the Laos appeal rests before the UN.

The United States is reliably said to strengthen Laos' military defenses if the international commission moved over Friday — the first of six aircraft promised under the American aid program.

Hammarskjold was due in New York from Santiago, Chile at 5:15 p.m. EDT. He cut short a two-week South American tour to set up a council meeting after a formal note from Laos charged that foreign troops reinforced and supplied from outside Laos have been fighting the royal Laotian army in the Laos-North Vietnam frontier since July 16.

ACCUSE NEIGHBOR

Laos says elements coming from North Viet Nam and charged that neither was tired from operations across the border.

The royal Laotian government has called for an emergency force as soon as possible.

Secretary of State Hammarskjold suggested the Security Council meet Sunday or Monday.

Meanwhile, the UN delegations sought instruction from their governments on the new fighting UN Emergency Force now guarding the Egyptian-Israeli border.

The Security Council is empowered to set up peace forces only for armed force to maintain international peace.

Even though most diplomats expect the Soviet Union to veto any UN action, they believe the Russians might agree to the council's order observers to Laos.

The more general view is that the Soviet delegation will propose the establishment of a revival of the dormant Canadian-Indian-Polish control commission for Laos.

This commission was set up at the 1954 Geneva conference to end the Indochina war and made Laos an independent state.

Diefenbaker Urges All Countries Accept International Court's Rule

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Bar Association ends its annual convention today with a raft of discussions and decisions behind it and several involved studies ahead.

Friday night, Prime Minister Diefenbaker urged all nations to back and bolster International Court of Justice decisions.

In a speech to the convention, he said compulsory arbitration of international disputes, agreement on the rule of law in relations and establishment of an international court of justice "are steps that must be achieved now."

He added that if statesmen in the next year or so are unable to bring about a reapprochement between Western nations and those behind the Iron Curtain "we will have lost in this generation the hope of mankind."

Four international panelists Friday emphasized the need for process of law.

Dana Melone, outgoing president of the American Bar Association, suggested that the legal profession is obligated to provide leadership toward international rule of law as a means of settling disputes through the courts.

Sir Percy C. Thurston, president of the Exchequer Court of Canada and a member of the International Court of Justice, said late, said that rule of law envisaged by the constitution "is the end result of the fundamental principles of the sacredness of human personality and the equal freedom of man". Such a rule of law "will win allegiance throughout the world".

Mr. Justice Thorson, in aside to his remarks, threw out a criticism of certain restrictive legislation in British Columbia, Quebec and Newfoundland, stating that the freedoms of speech, assembly and association were in gave danger in these provinces.

Khrushchev Will Report To Peking After U.S. Visit

Will Leave for China Day After Getting Home

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev is heading for Peking the day after he returns from his visit to the United States.

The Soviet leader said Friday he will go to the Chinese capital Sept. 29. He did not discuss the purpose for the trip but it was clear he intends to brief China's government on his talks with President Eisenhower.

Communist China has officially approved of the talks but Western diplomats have said they believed China felt left out when the exchange of visits was announced. The diplomats said the Chinese may feel any easing of U.S.-Soviet tensions could damage their own position with Moscow.

Khrushchev made the surprise announcement during conversations with Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz of Poland and other officials at a reception opening the Polish industrial exhibition here.

HIS SECOND VISIT

This will be the Soviet leader's second visit to China in little more than a year. He originally conferred with Chinese leaders for four days. Afterwards the Communist party changed their forward a summit meeting.

U.S. officials said in Washington it is understandable for Khrushchev to visit his allies in view of Eisenhower's diplomatic visits to the key capitals of Western Europe.

They also noted that Communist China is holding its 10th-anniversary celebration and it is customary to invite other foreign Communists to attend.

PEKING (Reuters) — Communist Chinese and Soviet officials here said today they had no comment on Premier Nikita Khrushchev's announcement that he will attend China's 10th revolution celebrations Sept. 29.

The announcement did not surprise foreign correspondents here, however. They had been expecting the Soviet premier to meet Chinese Communist leaders either before or after his trip to the United States.

Nothing has appeared in the Chinese Communist press about Khrushchev's proposed visit to Peking. Local newspapers have been reporting Khrushchev's Ex repean visit only briefly.

Meat Industry Strike Averted

CHICAGO (AP)—Threat of an immediate spread of a strike in the U.S. meat industry, was averted Friday night when negotiators for two meat packing unions and Wilson and Company agreed to extend the present contract until Sept. 15.

About 4,500 Wilson employees in seven cities had been scheduled to walk out at 8 a.m. today in a demand for higher wages and other benefits.

Operators of the largest U.S packer, Swift and Company, were working under a pact that workers walked out in 34 cities for similar demands.

Child of Six Entering School With 190 IQ

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — Toronto public school principals were told during a summer conference here about an Oakville genius age six.

They confused themselves flabbergasted by the problem of providing schooling for such a boy.

Roddie Cairns, son of veterinary surgeon Dr. George Cairns of Oakville, will enter Grade 1 this fall worrying about how to measure the sun's heat and how soon someone will reach the moon.

C. B. Routley, Ontario professional development superintendent, told the 200 principals that Roddie has already read most of Shakespeare's works and relaxes by making his own mathematical problems.

The youngster is interested in designing rocket ships and missiles and believes that there soon will be a way of measuring the heat of the sun that has been discovered.

Mr. Routley said the youngster has an IQ close to 190 or 200. He was born May 24, and is 5½ years. Six months later he was reading and writing became a proficient touch-typist.

Although no school would admit him until last year because of age, the boy is at a grade 8 level of comprehension and has a Grade 9 level of vocabulary, Dr. Routley said.

Principal Gordon Phillips suggested a private tutor would be best for the boy rather than trying to serve his needs in his a standard classroom.

Widow Cheated Out of $6,000 By Gypsies

TORONTO (CP) — A middle-aged Toronto widow told police Friday that gypsy fortune-tellers cheated her out of $6,000 earned this week.

The woman, whose name was withheld by police, said the two gypsy readers told her they could triple her savings.

She withdrew $10 from the woman and put it in a bag which it was blessed by the gypsies and then returned to her over a candle. She told police she was assured that the money would double—then triple—in another account.

She waited several days and, when nothing happened, went back to the gypsies' room and found them gone.

Nearly 700 School Pupils Will Be Attending in Brand New Buildings on Tuesday

Close to 700 secondary school students and public school pupils in Belleville add immediate area will be attending classes in brand new schools when the fall term opens on Tuesday.

Approximately 400 high school students have registered for classes at the new Moira Secondary School on Farley Ave., while just outside the city limits on Dundas Drive (Purdy Sidecrod) new Douglas R. Atkins School will open its doors for the first time with about 130 pupils registered.

The Douglas Atkins School, owned by the South Thurlow Township School Area, will take in pupils from three present township school S.S. No's 4, 5 and 1, and also township pupils who for the past year have been attending Bayside School taken into city last January with annexation.

The new Moira Secondary School will be the third high school in the city and its classroom section consisting of 19 classrooms will be utilized. The remainder of the 27 teaching areas and the gymnasium are at present completed with the hope for completion and use set for the last of October.

School Principal James Muirhead noted today that the 19 academic rooms and possibly the art room would be available for school opening on Tuesday. The first day assembly will see the entire student gathering with students to be called to order in the auditorium area at the rear of the school where paving has been recently completed.

Douglas McLean, chairman of the South Thurlow Township School Area Board, noted that all four rooms of the new Douglas Atkins Public School on Dundas Drive would be in use on Tuesday morning although finishing touches would need to be given the teachers' room, principal's room and certain other sections.

"We were very pleasantly surprised in being able to get into the new school by the beginning of the fall term", Mr. McLean said. "With no start having made on construction until late in June we doubted that the school would be ready".

Mr. McLean commended the contractor, Hugh Murray Ltd. for doing a good job in turning the school to completion as quickly as possible.

The new Douglas R. Atkins School constructed on the east side of Dundas Drive, formerly Purdy Sidecrod, is named after Douglas R. Atkins, local pioneer Thurlow, long time member of S. S. No. 4 school board, and still a valued aid to the present board.

Mr. McLean said that No. 4 and No. 3 school, both on the first concession would be permanently closed, while S. S. No. 5 on highway near the Pelsi Anne turn would be used for evening emergency use. The new school is planned so that additions may be made if needed.

Principal for the new four-room school is Harold Mountjoy Workman of Trenton with other staff members being Claude Hermiston, Miss Thelma Phillips, Miss Prest of Halloway and Miss Gayle Pitts of Madoc.

Wellington Consolidated School Given Renovation

WELLINGTON — Some 325 public school students will troop back to their village halls after a learning here next Tuesday, a slight increase over last year's figure.

Various changes will be noted by the youngsters. Two new teachers, Misses Robert Fawcett of South Trail and Ruth Bartlett of Belleville will replace those retiring but no additions will be made in the staff of sixteen.

The Consolidated School which now houses the elementary division only, upper classes being were diverted to the Prince Edward High School two years ago, has undergone extensive interior improvements, part of the school board plan for all-over redecoration.

Two class rooms and two offices housed on the main floor of the three-floor building and 3 upper-floor classrooms have been entirely redecorated while formerly "oil-and-varnish" floors have undergone a complete change through the magic of sanding and polishing.

Plans have been completed for the immediate installation of outdoor playgrounds equipment consisting of swing, slides, see-saws and other apparatus. These will be located directly north of the school between the building and the arena.

Playground supervision will be given by the teaching staff in rotating periods of duty.

The Board under chairman Norman Dalzard plans similar redecoration of the remaining six rooms next year.

Redecorative work completed last year was the painting of the basement walls, converting them from drab institution tints to two shades of white and grey.

MAKE NEW ROOM

The basement school is now attractively fresh classroom and the addition of the up-to-date playground equipment.

Camera Club Told of RCAF Photography

How many residents have been Belleville from the air? The members of the Belleville Camera Club did via pictures last Tuesday evening when Flight Lieut. Roddy of the public relations department at Trenton Air Station and Sgt. V. Bellefeuille of the photography section were the guest speakers at the club's first meeting of the fall season.

F/O Roddy gave an outline of a photographer's work in the air force, illustrated with several black and white slides. To recruit, after completing eight weeks of basic training, takes a twenty-six week trade adjustment course, then another twenty-six week trade photography course. Each year, for three years, he is eligible to write an examination to advance a grade higher. After nine to fifteen years he may write for his master photographer rating, having attended many extra courses in the interim on all phases of camera work.

The photographer in the air force is called upon to do a variety of jobs. In many, in day, take identification photos, pictures of a faulty motor part or of the current was desired diagrams and blueprints, make enlarged photographs to be sent to newspapers and magazines of a station parade or ceremony, along with developing and printing many negatives. He must also be able to photograph anything from nuts and bolts to the latest model of the latest jet plane and from an identification picture of a fellow airman to a photo of the Queen.

MANY USES

Sgt. Bellefeuille discussed the uses of air photography. Air-to-ground pictures are used to map water and land timber cuttings, to help in town planning and to determine scientific data, and was done at the Canso causeway where the speed of the current was determined by air photographs in fifteen minutes, whereas using boats, instruments and charts would have taken at least two days. With aerial pictures the St. Lawrence Seaway could not have been built, Sgt. Bellefeuille stated.

By attaching a magnetometer to a camera, underground mineral deposits can be discovered from the air. Archaeologists have found ancient roads and in uncovering Roman aqueducts and ancient towns. Surveying and mapping can be controlled and very precise work is done in this field. Reconnaissance photography is mainly a wartime job, but it has been used during peacetime in such disasters as the Winnipeg floods to advise rescue parties where they are needed. Aerial reconnaissance is also carried on to help keep shipping lanes safe.

Photo interpreting is another phase of a photographer's job. He must be able to "read a picture" and tell just what was on the ground as shown in the picture.

WELL EQUIPPED

A color movie showed an air force survey team at work mapping rivers and mountains. The RCAF has developed aerial survey and mapping to such a fine degree that these airmen are recognized as the best in this field. Air navigation officers, fighter and the club members made the most of their guest's wealth of training and experience, discussing cameras, filters and developing techniques.

Anglicans Meet To Name Primate Of All-Canada

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP)—Lay and clerical representatives of the Anglican Church of Canada today began to select a new primate of all-Canada.

The doors of St. George's-Anglican Church in this small community were locked at noon and closed at 10 a.m. EDT behind the members of the electoral college, and at 2 p.m. the senior member, Archbishop Philip Carrington of British Columbia, metropolitan-archbishop, emerges to announce to an expectant crowd the name of the new primate.

The electoral college is divided into an upper and lower house, with the upper house—33 bishops —presenting nominees to the lower house. Each house members entitled to cast a ballot.

The lower house itself consists of 40 clergy and 40 laymen elected by their diocesan representatives at the synod, and one ex-officio clerical secretary who presides at the house and lay members of the lower house vote separately.

The bishops choose three or more candidates from among their number and present them to the lower house.

If no one receives a simple majority on the first ballot the lower house can vote again on the same candidates or ask the bishops for more nominees.

Archbishop Carrington, with or without new names, does not produce a primate, the candidate receiving the fewest votes in any vote is dropped and so on after each ballot until only two are left.

Finally, in case of deadlock between two candidates, the upper house would vote to break the tie.

Bond Market Picks up After Slow Start

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The bond market picked up toward the end of the week after a slow start and gains were up to 15 cents. The Dominion of Canada of the week occurred in the Canada three-per-cent, Dec. 15, 1960 bonds which briefly reached a yield of 2.50 per cent.

Of the six Canada bonds in the money market category, bonds with a maturity of less than three years, the three longer issues took the heavier losses as the chartered banks continued their selling of these issues.

The treasury bill tender produced no surprises this week and the afternoon market was relatively quiet, with a slight sell-off at 3.70 per cent from the average award of 3.56 per cent. Six-month bills were reintroduced and $15,000,000 were awarded at an average of 8.53 per cent.

Most of the demand for treasury bills during the week had been for extremely short outstanding maturities, and although these were well below five per cent. there are day-to-day loans from chartered banks gradually rose to 5% per cent, although demand for the call loan did not appear be large.

Longer-term government bonds weakened through most of the week, but the central bank's discontinuation of sales of several 3¾-per-cent 1965 bonds and CNR four per cent of 1981 Friday caused a reversal of the downward trend and prices were improved on all the conversion loan issues. The 1965s were especially strong, moving to 88½ from 87⅝.

Among provincial issues, the Ontario Hydro 3½-per-cent bonds weakened slightly.

Now Labor Day Stress Is on Surviving It

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As holidays go, Labor Day is old hat in Canada—it's been celebrated almost 75 years.

But there's a marked difference between the observance of Labor Day by Canadians now and nobody died on the road in the 1870s.

Labor Day weekend, 1959, will record at least 42 traffic fatalities in Canada, the Canadian Highway Safety Conference predicts.

Stress on driving safety has gained greater prominence than the actual celebrations by labor.

Last year the accidental deaths totalled 64. Of these, 43 were traffic fatalities—one more than predicted for this year.

ONTARIO CAMPAIGN

In Ontario, which usually leads the provinces in traffic deaths, provincial police are going all-out to reduce the toll.

All police time off has been cancelled for the weekend. Motorists will receive summonses to court instead of warnings. Radar speed traps will be unmarked as will be a number of the 617 patrol cars.

Road travel is expected to be heavy all over Canada. Railways and bus lines have added free and fare reduction, but Trans-Canada Air Lines has increased the number of flights over routes to handle large population centres.

Plenties and sporting events will draw crowds over most of Canada from the country's labor force of 4,434,000.

LITTLE ONTARIO UNREST

Small strikes are scattered throughout Ontario but there is little unrest. Labor plans few specific celebrations, and most holidayers are expected to attend sporting events and the dozens of early fall fairs.

Football games are scheduled for Hamilton and Ottawa. Toronto has horse racing and the biggest drawing event of all—the Canadian National Exhibition.

Both the Canadian and Catholic Federation of Labor and the Canadian Labor Congress are holding Labor Day parades in Quebec City. The Montreal provincial exhibition is the biggest scheduled event.

Congress Delivers Body Blow Against Hoffa in Labor Bill

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States Congress has delivered a body blow against James Hoffa and the alleged underworld influence in the 1,500,000 - member Teamsters Union.

Whatever else the new labor reform legislation may accomplish, this session of Congress has it provides the U.S. government with a powerful new weapon designed deliberately to fight Hoffa and his crew.

It may lead to a bit more restriction for the labor movement generally, but it may also strengthen the moral fibre of the movement, helping to crush undue force and coercion and make democracy prevail for the average union member.

It is perhaps the greatest accomplishment of the current session of congress and the most significant American labor reform measure in a dozen years.

PROCEDURES

It is clear, too, that Congress, in shunting aside terrific pressure to get a watered-down bill today, was listening to a still stronger voice—the voice of reason, the voice of an aroused and angered public.

The two-year Senate labor-rackets committee investigation disclosed shocking evidence of collusion with the underworld, samples of fraud, corruption, violence and intimidation which would destroy the entire legitimate labor movement if allowed to keep their hold.

The public demanded. It flooded Congress with demands for action. When senators and congressmen began to emasculate the committee proposal, powerful AFL-CIO leaders stepped in to urge caution and caution lest the legitimate labor movement be weakened.

A modest man is the Senate baron John Kennedy (Dem. Mass.) but he proved himself a master tactician to terrific lobby pressure. But he wouldn't give way. President Eisenhower warned that a bill he wanted is the compromise bill. But he wouldn't compromise. The big anti-corruption job the bill assigns to the department.

It seems that Hoffa will seek to thwart the bill into a web of legal entanglements in the courts and slow down the efforts of federal agents. But Congress will be watching—and so will the president.

Model Changes, Holidays Cut Car Production

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian automobile production has been greatly reduced this week as model changeovers were being completed.

The Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce reports the total week's production was 532 vehicles, compared with 1,365 in the two-day week and 124 cars and 428 trucks, compared with 1,365 cars and 758 trucks in the previous week.

Production to date this year is estimated at 282,997 vehicles compared with 251,445 in the like period last year. This was made up of 231,100 cars, compared with 220,000 and 51,897 trucks compared with 40,749.

NEW BUILDING BOOM

TORONTO (CP) — A Metropolitan Toronto planning board report Friday predicted a second post-war and perhaps record-breaking residential building boom here in 1960. Applications for 15,178 residential building lots were received in the first six months of this year, nearly four times the number filed for the corresponding period in 1958.

Bowling Notes

The women's section of the Lawn Bowling Club held their tournament on the rear party part of the week with 15 rinks from the district being entered. Mrs. Otto Smith and Mrs. Charles Hyde conducted the draw and the games were run off in good time. The women enjoyed a social hour between the second and third games with a delightful luncheon. Mrs. J. Cullen, Mrs. M. McMillan and Mrs. C. Renaud as skip from Peterborough won the tourney with the best three-game high score. A local rink of Mrs. C. Bowman, Mrs. H. MacKay and Mrs. Bram Hubphreys as skip with the two-game high along with Mrs. H. Hepburn and her rink from Peterborough, while Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Vince Hyde of Trenton with her rink won the one-game high. The greens were lightning fast and the competition exceptionally keen.

QUEBEC Ppremier

has held office since 1936, when he broke a 39-year Liberal party hold.

A lawyer and originally a Conservative, Mr. Duplessis was first elected to the Legislative Assembly in 1927 from Trois-Rivieres riding and has never been defeated.

In 1933 he was chosen Quebec leader of the Conservative party. In 1936 he formed the Union Nationale, made up of discontented Conservatives, U.F.O. and Labor members.

His party holds 71 seats in the 93-member Legislative Assembly. The Liberal opposition has 17 seats and independents number three. Two vacancies are to be filled in byelections set for Sept. 16.

The names of Hon. Paul Sauve, Public Works and Labor minister, and Hon. Antoine Rivard, solicitor - general and transport minister, are mentioned most often in speculation about Mr. Duplessis' successor.

Outside Quebec, Mr. Duplessis' politics are often cited as federal government interference in provincial matters leaded to his being quite unpopular. The same policies tended to make him a hero to his electors.

He kept Quebec province out of the national hospital-insurance plan and the trans-Canada highway plan, but rejected federal aid to universities.

Girl, 10, Revives Baby Sister by Mouth Method

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—"After all, Joyce is only baby sister I've got. I simply had to do something."

Linda Kay Gibson, 10, had only this simple explanation for the mouth-to-mouth respiration that police and family doctors credited with saving the life of a tot under the body of her two-year-old sister.

Joyce, ill with a high fever, suddenly went limp and stopped breathing as she was alone in the family's suburban home Thursday afternoon.

MOTHER FRANTIC

"Right away mother was frantic, so I telephone trying to get the doctor and the police — and, finally, I had to do something," Linda Kay said.

What she did was to start forcing her own breath into the baby's mouth. She kept on for about 20 or 30 minutes.

"Once in a while Joyce would start crying a little and stop breathing again—I was half crying but I kept at it," said Linda Kay.

When police and the doctor did arrive, Joyce was breathing regularly again.

SAID I DID GOOD

"They said I did good," Linda Kay reported.

"I remember reading in the paper where one kid saved another kid's life by breathing in his mouth," she said. "So I thought it might work with Joyce.

"It's got more air I ran outside with her in my arms and then stood and breathed in her mouth. I shook a little and called to her—and it worked."

Mother, Mrs. Eugene Gibson, 33, said that even after the baby's breath was normal Linda Kay insisted on staying up most of the night watching Joyce.

Dr. Ralph Hall, the lung congestion and high fever resulted from bronchial pneumonia. He decided that Joyce did not require hospital treatment and prescribed medication and baths.

Mayor Phillips All Shook up Over Names

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Nathan Phillips, who once had trouble pronouncing the name of the Soviet ambassador to Canada, had another session Friday with a group of five visiting parliamentarians from Bonn.

In a city hall welcome routine, the mayor:

Confused the parliament's Bundestag with the old Reichstag.

Referred to consul Gottfried von Nostitz as "Consul General von Waldheim Gottfried".

Called the German Federal Republic "Germany despite scorrection from the visitors and wrote it that way in their autographed civic handbookw ith the comment "everybody calls it West Germany and any way it's done that way".

Described Mayor Luise Albertz of Oberhausen as "a little city father".

Tilted with Controller and Deputy Mayor Allan Lamport who described herself to the visitors as "almost a burgomeister."

"You've got a long way to go yet," commented Mayor Phillips.

At another reception last year the mayor stumbled over the name of Soviet ambassador Anatoly Arkadyevich Dobrynin and said "His Excellency Roolin' Tootin'."

Sidney Street Now Ready To Get Surface Treatment

TRENTON — The final touches are now being put on Sidney Street, Town Engineer Eric Aldersey announced yesterday.

The street has been torn up and rebuilt from North Murray Street to the town limits, almost one-half mile in distance, and during the past week the town's road gang have put yards of fresh gravel on it, as well as grading it. Next week, Mr. Aldersey said, it will be surface treated.

Asphalt from the Hinde and Dauch Company has been used to keep the dust down in the meantime. The town engineer said this liquid has been used almost every day all year. In some cases the town has done some private work in spraying it, but in all cases the individual concerned has paid the cost himself.

Mr. Aldersey estimated that 10,000 gallons of the liquid have been used this year for dust control.

On other town streets, the shoulders of some have been built up with crushed stone (limescone). This has been done chiefly to streets that are on hillsides where the running water has continually washed away the surface treatment. During these places has been found to have stopped this and will, in years to come, assist in the town's policy to save on maintenance work. Alexander Lorne and Wilkins streets have been completed in this work and those of Byron Street.

SWEEPER PRAISED

"As far as I'm concerned," Mr. Alderseay said, "we are getting terrific service from the street sweeper bought by the town. He explained that the sweeper goes to work about 5.30 a.m. in the residential area every morning and, after this area has been completed, works on the sections of the town until noon.

Sunday and holidays are taking their toll of the town workers Mr. Alderseay reported when Gordon Bellamy and Ed Holland are both on their holidays. Gordon Bellamy is replacing Mr. McGraw on the street sweeper, was taken home yesterday when he took sick at work. William Stacey underwent surgery for a hernia in the Trenton Memorial Hospital yesterday morning and is reported to be resting as well as expected after the successful operation.

COMMUNITY CENTRE

A. Hoornwey, of the engineer's office, has spent the past two days holidaying in Toronto where he also attended the Canadian National Exhibition. Ray Dunbar is also the engineer's office during his summer holidays, will be returning soon to the University of New Brunswick where he will continue his studies in engineering, commencing year will be his third.

Mr. Alderseay also reported that the Adams Well Drilling Company is steadily installing two 18-inch sewer pipes on Mill Gill Street. One of these pipes will be used to carry waste from the Dye and Finishing plant and the other's for town sewage. Total cost for the installation of these pipes will be in the vicinity of $21,000 but when the work is completed it will see the street widened and new sidewalks put in. The latter work is also included in the $21,000.

It is not expected that work will be started on the next stage of sewing of Division Street Mr. Alderesy said. This is due chiefly to the lack of money left for extra work this year on Sidney Street. However, it is expected Division Street work will get underway next spring.

NO-PARKING SIGNS

Stop signs, which also come under the office of the engineer, are steadily being replaced according to regulations set by the Department of Highways. All old stop signs are being replaced with red signs with white lettering. The deadline to have this work completed has been set for 1961 and after that time all old stop signs will be illegal.

A representative of the J. D. Lee Metal Company Limited, consulting engineers from Kingston, was in town recently looking over the town bridge. The new Memorial Park Street signs will soon be erected. Albert Street runs from Dundas Street west at the Post Office and south to the river above. Quinte Hall runs from Division Street to the Quinte Sanatorium Hall and across to join onto Albert Street.

The newly named Fraser Park Drive will run from Quinte Street to the Quinte Sanatorium and the Library, across Albert Street and on down to the Government Docks.

TORONTO (CP) — Eric McNeil, 25, has been charged with murder in connection with the stabbing death Friday night of 36-year-old Hugh Cullen following an all-night drinking party.

Kingston Man Fatally Hurt

A Kingston man was fatally injured and a second man is in Kingston hospital in critical condition as result of a one car accident on Highway 15 Friday afternoon which saw the vehicle leave the highway and sideswipe a tree.

Dead is Norman Caird, 36, of R. R. 4 Kingston, while in hospital with a broken back and severe concussion is John William Burnside.

One of the other invasion vessels went aground as well as a CNE tug which was supposed to be used for emergencies.

Despite the hitches, the public, which thronged the waterfront loved the frantic show.

The battle ended with exploding pistols and miniature cannon.

CRITICIZES CNE

Joseph Shea, private pirate executive officer, complained that the men handling the cannon were burning their powder too fast. "The lack of gloves which he traced to the CNE management.

"We spent $50,000 in transportation, costumes and ammunition and we are a little disappointed at the arrangements made by the CNE, which only had to supply the boats," he said.

The CNE had to round up boats to send out to rescue pirates stranded on the islands of the vessels, but once ashore the pirates fell into formation were led headed the keys to the city by Mayor Nathan Phillips and accompanied the governor of the CNE.

Ed Nelson, the pirate "king," called for music and singing from the pirates and the spectators. Bands were also present and cheered and the pirates completed their invasion with a parade.

Wallace Nesbitt Vice Chairman Of Delegation

OTTAWA (CP)—Wallace Nesbitt, recently-appointed parliamentary assistant to External Affairs Minister Green, will be vice-chairman of the Canadian delegation to the fall session of the United Nations general assembly, the external affairs department announced Friday.

Balanced Budget Aims of Ads By Companies

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association has launched a one - year publicity campaign to promote a "balanced budget and a sound dollar."

Five-column, page-deep newspaper advertisements have started to appear. They will be published every day by the association, which represents all life insurance companies.

One of the series says:

"The government has been spending more than you have been paying in taxes. To narrow the gap between income and expenditures, new taxes have been imposed.

"The next step should be to reduce expenditures, or at least hold the line. . . .

"You also can help when you save more by means of life insurance, saving dollars and the purchase of government bonds."

The advertisement advises the public to "tell your MP in Ottawa that since you are trying to save, he should expect the government to do the same."

President E. G. Gill of the Canada Life Assurance Company said the advertisement is not criticism of the government "but an effort to support the government by developing a sound public opinion."

Farm Surplus Plan Extended For Three Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ignoring administration requests, the Senate Friday approved by voice vote a three-year extension of the program of selling farm surpluses overseas for foreign currencies.

It was a personal victory for Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) who wants about $1,000,000,000 worth of U.S. farm surpluses used in a global "food for peace" program. Humphrey was aided by a group of Republican Senators from the farm and dairy areas.

President Eisenhower and Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson had urged a simple one-year extension of the present program and a $1,500,000,000 increase in authorization.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem. La.), chairman of the Senate agriculture committee, pleaded in vain for the one-year extension. He said Humphrey and the state department were trying to convert the farm surplus disposal program into an arm of our foreign policy.

"You're exactly right," Humphrey replied, adding that the billions of farm surpluses should be used to help feed the less fortunate persons in the United States and overseas.

Children's Tasks Grow Heavier

Are we over-working our children?

Before the rising tide of indignant denials or wild guffaws drowns us out, let us quickly make a case for the possibility.

A child's business is to learn.

The horizons of man's knowledge are not only continually expanding, but are expanding at an ever-increasing rate.

That clearly means that every generation has much more to learn than the one preceding it.

For the child there is not the faintest ray of this dawn of the day of leisure which, it is freely predicted will present him with new problems when he reaches manhood.

These thoughts were prompted by the August issue of "Ontario Traffic Safety," a pamphlet issued by the Ontario Department of Transport. This reported that "later this month the Department of Transport is sending every principal in the elementary school system a kit of safety materials for teachers" and that "thirty-five thousand school rooms in Ontario will be able to make use of specially prepared safety teaching aids to make safety lessons interesting and easy for children to understand."

This is just another example of the way in which added burdens are being placed on the child at school. There was a day when there was no need of teaching highway safety lessons.

But it is not only the child that is being burdened but the teacher, too. Besides being forced to impart a host of new facts, the teacher is now held responsible for instruction in fields in which, in the past, the home or the church gave whatever guidance was necessary. Highway traffic safety, driving instruction, religion, personal health, guidance in choosing a life-work — all these are fields in which the modern teacher is expected to operate, as well as giving instruction in the three R's and their multiplying ramifications.

Today's child is less likely to have chores at home, but is it not possible that this relief is more than offset by the extension of the number of things he should learn about in school?

And is the school the place for some of this instruction? Are we not perhaps asking too much of teachers, that they should be both dreamers opening the doors of the storehouse of the race's accumulated knowledge and practical people ready to fit their charges for life in a world made complex by a host of factors which have no close connection with the pursuit of knowledge?

Can these duties be combined to produce a successfully mixed, taught by the same people?

Could today's children profit by a longer school day or a longer school year, the burden of this extension perhaps relieved by the already achieved reduction in home chores and by a divorcing of some instruction from the normal school atmosphere? Is the ever increasing volume of facts to be learned mean that the years of schooling will have to be lengthened, again and again and again? And if the latter course is chosen, what changes must society make to meet the unchanged pressures of nature, which insistently demand that young men and women turn their attention to earning long before they are through with their schooling?

Perhaps that threat of too much leisure time is not so real, after all. It may well be that automation will increase our productivity just in time to permit the state to pay the young for the work they do in preparing themselves, through studies, for their own productive years that acquiring an education and starting a family will be tasks undertaken before the maturing man or woman of tomorrow begins his or her life work.

Misnamed Month

Latin being one of those things which it is easy to forget, it is probable that not one person in a hundred thousand will lift his head in astonishment when told the number arrived. Yet, as most people will recognize when it is pointed out, September is derived from the Latin word for seven, and October, which follows, comes from the Latin word for eight. Why are these months, which should be the seventh and eighth in the year, now the ninth and tenth?

The Cornwall Standard-Freeholder has supplied us with an answer — in addition to calling our attention to this question. Julius Caesar added a month to the calendar and had it called July in his honor. When his nephew Augustus became emperor of Rome he decided that he, too, should be commemorated forever in the calendar. So he ordered another month added and called August.

That's how September and October got shoved two months out of their appointed places.

PRIDE

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Let me remember who I am,
Whose name it is I bear.
Amid the greed of life and shame
My father's toil was fair.

He never stooped to deeds of shame,
His never tricked a friend,
He gave to me a spotless name
That name I must defend.

When sorely tempted, let me stand
To truth with courage grim,
Remembering to guard my hand
Lest ill dishonor him.

Letter To The Editor

Ald. Elhs Explains Views on Sidney St.

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

In answer to the letter recently published in your columns and also to many personal letters I have received, I trust you will allow me to make use of my fastings regarding this item by publishing this letter.

I feel that I must explain more thoroughly the reasoning behind my statement re Sidney Street as a through traffic artery.

First of all, this is not just a rash idea of one person. When I first brought forward the suggestion approximately one year ago, it was directed to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board. This Board is made of elected and appointed delegates from the Township of Sidney, Township of Thurlow and the City of Belleville. They approved the idea and forwarded their motion to the Planning Committee of the City Council. Here it was decided that a preliminary study should be made and this study, completed by a local surveyor, is now in the hands of the chairman of that committee.

This study looks at the multitude of traffic problems in Belleville and realizes that with the growth of the city these district population these are bound to increase and that a solution must soon be considered.

Now look at a map of Belleville and you will find that traffic from No. 2 highway from Toronto, No. 14 highway from Picton, No. 2 highway from Montreal and Montreal; No. 37 highway from Marmora all funnels directly into downtown Belleville, and I cannot believe that any of the people on these arteries want to go to downtown Belleville.

My suggestion was that connecting links between No. 2 and No. 14 highways, with a by-pass and on the west of Belleville would eliminate the need for any through traffic to pass the already congested streets.

Following that thought further, it would seem that the only through traffic south street on the west of Belleville would be Sidney Street and it seems to me unnecessary to consider that a connection might be made at the south end with No. 14 highway.

To accomplish all this a lot of work is needed. First a causeway across the bay at Zwick's Island for the connection to Trenton and also a well-lit intersection at No. 2 highway for better bridge across the C.N.R. tracks and a new bridge across the C.P.R. tracks and finally a widening of the highway to No. 401 highway. This will at cost a lot of money and money in Belleville right now is very precious, but I submit that if the Ontario Government can be sufficiently be induced to re-route No. 14 highway, its share of the cost would be considerable and with the help of the other government bodies, the local percentage cost becomes reasonable.

Now is the time to plan for future development. The cost of pulling roads which are urgently needed through built-up areas such as Metro-Toronto can be very high. Perhaps by planning ahead we can save ourselves the heavier costs later on. I feel that this matter is to quote instances where better planning in the past would mean a better Belleville today.

To the people of Sidney St. who are afraid that the construction of a highway passing their doors I can only say that a lot of people have for years passed No. 2 highway east and west of Belleville and their values have not deteriorated in value due to the highway. By the same token I feel that the Bell Trail, largest educational institutions, Albert College and the Bay of Quinte Inn with a large playground, are situated on No. 2 highway. Usually, land values in commercial routes has increased in value over land in residential or mixed residential-industrial areas.

I can see now, on the surface, some persons will be upset by the actions I have outlined, but I feel that on thinking it through thoroughly, with the thought in mind of a better Belleville resulting, few will condemn my actions.

We must remember that this is still in the discussion stage. The Ontario Department of Highways and others interested have not yet been approached. Perhaps they will suggest suitable alternates. Planning takes time and the cost of a plan for a better Belleville is now.

I will say only one word on the referendum made by my association with my employers, Wilson Concrete Products Limited. Any decision I make during working hours will be with the company in mind. Before any decision or vote on a question I will look at it from the point of view of all will agree.

In defence of my company, I can state that during seven years of manufacturing in the Belleville area, Wilson's are being enticed into building in other municipalities. For the good of Belleville, they were located next to two schools and no accidents occurred. The company will be happy to use any specialized facilities the city desires keeping in mind that it has daily deliveries to practically all parts of the city. For ship ments leaving Belleville on the various highways, the shortest or any route designated by city officials will be used.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE RADIANCE OF LIGHT

Termites cannot live in light. They bore and eat wood so that they are among the most destructive of anything small that seeks to destroy. They do their damage in the dark. Darkness is a bigger scale, do most of their work in the dark, too.

There is a radiance to light that gives hope and assurance. Once it was a jaailor of the church my father preached in. Those were the days when we used kerosene lamps but later, when Edison succeeded with his electric light, the whole world took on light, and merely by pushing a button! How beautiful are lamps and lights now.

Amazingly are the later methods being used to increase lighting. Great cities look like a parade of street lights, or a parade at night, and when the great towering skyscrapers are lighted you feel as though you were looking at a miracle, which you are! Great highways are lighted now and lives made safe by their lighting. Many of the largest factories have installed new lights so as to make them safer.

There is a radiance to light that give cheer and comfort. Many hours I would read and study by kerosene lamps, they were a help in making it easier to type these talks, and to send them on their mission over America!

There is radiance to the human eye. When it looks out on the world and sends messages of hope and cheer. They, too, help men's holidays spent in the world and inspire.

REVELATION CONTINUOUS

His God's revelation to mankind is in Himself is in us in the natural, world around about us. Furthermore, the very spirit of God seeks to be active in our hearts, directing us, providential-ly, and revealing to us more and more of His character.

By no means. God is continually revealing Himself to us in the world of His children. To prevent new car lights so as to make them safer.

There is a radiance to light that gives cheer and comfort. Many hours I would read and study by kerosene lamps, they were a help in making it easier to type these talks, and to send them on their mission over America!

Avoid War By Bluffing?

Kansas City Star

The birds might show us a way to avoid war, a naturalist suggested recently. Their method: Bluffing.

Men know about bluffing, of course. They use the technique sometimes successfully. A heavily devised and executed bluff may be the key move in a TV western.

But on the whole we decry bluffing and deride the bluffer. We suggest that he be "put his money where his mouth is," that he fight or back down, have a bout of wind, or a tub of lard, and he is advised to put up or shut up.

A man will take only so much of that; then he will fight. How soon he will react depends in part on how serious he takes himself. A sense of humor forestalls many conflicts. "When you say that, pardner, I reckon I must, even in the quick-shooting old West," inevitably, nations are notably lacking in that sense of humor.

Bluffing, like other manoeuvers, requires skill if it is to be successful. The bluff must be convincing. It is to be used after advantage of the adversary may be uncovered. The squirrel that approaches too near a wrens' house may be driven through the trees, and across the yard by the diving threats of a furious little bundle of feathers.

Even bird break out repeatedly. Robins are known to fight for their own use, and drive away trespassers. Blue jays and young birds are zealously guarded. But there are seldom casualties.

Bluff and bluster do not balance for the loss of life. Some of the methods of bluff could accomplish in international relations if, or when, they get to operation. There are times when Mr. Khrushchev ought to be trying to find out. Certainly it is safe to say that the method is not entirely for the birds.

TV Is Blamed For Gibberish

Toronto Star

Television in the United States is allegedly responsible for a startling new debasing of English words and their meanings that can be truly astounding — almost hysterically funny — if it were not truly sad. We have no idea whether our blighting effect of TV is noticed in Canada, but colleagues, but the following examples of new meanings of words were quoted by the New York Herald Tribune's critic:

"Now of days it is quite difficult to find a student who does not have a good deal of respect and attitude and take his educational opportunity for granite. The student does not like to be upbraid in his studies, nor does he possess the proper attitude necessary for him to face the complexing problems of college with confidence. The reason for this appalling state is de gaso seeded . . ."

And idle to name further shining examples: "He was wearing a foriginal tie" . . . "When the hatchet fell" . . . "He indulge some of his choice bits of information, he is usually arrested by a friend from the fan aside of him" . . . "The lavas from the volcano flowed down the mountainside".

One professor explains that students who never read, and are attuned to sloppy American diction, are now "educated" by television to use words and phrases to which they are accustomed in their conversational speech.

In an age proud of its free press, television has examples — and remember, some are from college graduates — far more higher than gibberish of the monkey house in any park. After all, the language communicated with one soother also. But their misuse manages has no plaint for such meaningful concepts as freedom, beauty, morality, truth.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

OPERATION FOR BUNIONS IS USUALLY SUCCESSFUL

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can a person inherit bunions? Or are bunions caused from wearing the wrong shoes? I am having an operation for bunions, is this always successful or do they come back? — Mrs. C. D."

No, you don't "inherit bunions". It is possible (but not very common) to inherit some physical characteristic which makes one more likely to develop them. A bunion means that the structure of the foot has been thrown out of place, and improperly fitting shoes are the only cause of which I have any knowledge. An operation always is second best to not needing one. But the operation is usually successful. I suggest you arrange to have the doctor examine your feet at reasonably close intervals for some time afterward, to make sure that no new trouble is developing. Don't "have an operation" and then take a chance that some trouble when very moderate cars later will assure permanent success.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any truth in the assertion that asparagus cleans the kidneys? The peculiar odor after eating asparagus . . . is this common or should we have a checkup? — N. R."

To H. H. and N.B. and others who have asked (and to still others who haven't but have a like interest): It is not a matter of "cleaning the kidneys". It is not only common, it is normal. There is a chemical in asparagus which passes in the urine, gives it odor and produces the peculiar odor.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I don't have too much to spend, but I've been wondering. Not always but at times it does a host of the stock there is blood in me sometimes a lot of blood. Should I be worried? And is there anything I can do for it? — Mrs. J. B."

Yes, you should be worried until you find out the contrary, and you've done it, so you're not worried. Nosebleeds, or at least nosebleeds, are usually minor. The only safe rule is to be worried, and stay worried, until you have a doctor to stop worrying. By the law of averages, he can at a time find you need more care than you can pay for right now. Just be frank with him.

Please understand this: Medical care is a necessity, not a luxury. I cannot say that there aren't a few money-grubbing doctors, but if you will only look about you, you'll find that most M.D.'s are real public servants, co-operate in finding a way to help you.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My blackhead beads out in blots every so often, with great big blotches all over his head and body. He's just three years old and mingle to a couple of hours. All his doctor can find in him is that it must be something he eats. What causes them? What can we do? — Mrs. J. P. B."

This condition has all the earmarks (well, in this case marks all over your poor husband) of an allergy — which is just what your doctor said, a hypersensitivity to something he eats or touches. The best course is to try some private detective work of your own: What is it that your husband eats (or touches) before these hives break out.

If you can spot the food or material, avoiding hives is a matter of avoiding that food or material.

If you can't find out, after your best prosecut is to have an allergist conduct some tests.

Crop of Wood Grown Fast

Financial Post

In the Po Valley of northern Italy, farmers are growing a crop of pulpwood in a way that's five times faster than it can show forth in most of Canada.

The Italians are using a new, fast-growing, high quality hybrid lombardy poplar. Under much like the narrow, elliptical variety we use for ornamental and shade planting in Canada. These trees will grow 50 feet in 12 years, can be harvested then — and the stand replanted.

Some Canadian pulp companies and provincial forestry departments are now experimenting with these fast growing hybrids. If successful this could mean a big addition to the pulp and paper industry and equally important, a new cash and industrial crop for the Canadin fraser.

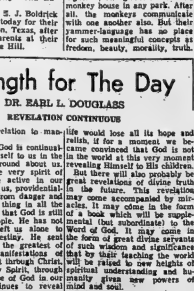
THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



Since the millions of dollars lost each summer out of the public treasury through needless and personal losses to each and every one of us, just as if a crook had got into the provincial government and embezzled that number of million dollars of our money, the foresters responsible for trying to prevent and for fighting forest fires should be under constant review lest some of the source of fires each year. So far, careless campers and careless smokers are not treated quite as criminals. But the time will be when those found guilty responsible for forest fires will be regarded not as the parties to an accident, but as criminals of public money.

Already our most beautiful tourist regions there were recently two fires that destroyed par-ticularly favorite camp sites. Picnic points. In one, on a pine clad point on Nepawzai Lake, the foresters, after quelling a fire that destroyed three acres of magnificent pine, came on the evidence of a lunch having been just eaten. Scattered about it was a cigaret butt tossed into the duff and bracken, ten feet from the fire, that set the forest alight.

In neither case was the guilty smoker identified. They had been the foresters planned to invite them back to view their handiwork.

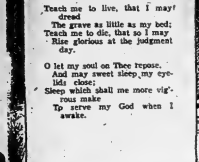
Stories of Famous Hymns



by HORACE B. POWELL

GLORY TO THEE, MY GOD, THIS NIGHT

Glory to Thee, my God, this night
For all the blessings of the light:
Keep me, O keep me, King of Kings,
Beneath the shadow of Thy wings.

Teach me to live, that I may dread
The grave as little as my bed;
Teach me to die, that so I may
Rise glorious at the judgment day.

O let my soul on Thee repose,
And may sweet sleep my eyelids close;
Sleep which shall me more vigorous make
To serve my God when I awake.

Everyone who has done much "going to church" has sung the following:

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow.
Praise Him, all creatures here below:
Praise Him above ye heavenly host,
Praise Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

It was written by Bishop Thomas Ken, distinguished seventeenth century English churchman. He turned out three famous hymns — one for morning use, the others for evening and midnight — and he loaded each of them with the lines which have become our present-day Doxology. The verses quoted here are those of his evening hymn.

All of his hymns have been popular through two centuries and are still in wide use. His Doxology probably has been sung oftener and by more people than any other religious song in any language.

Thomas Ken penned his hymns for the use of students at Winchester College. In 1674 he published a manual of prayers for student use and in later editions of this manual he published his hymns. When he did so, he introduced them with this word of counsel: "Be sure to sing the Morning and Evening Hymns in your chamber, devoutly remembering that the Psalmist upon his happy experience assures you that it is a good thing to tell of the loving kindness of the Lord in the morning, and of His truth in the night season".

When he died, in 1711, Bishop Ken was buried at sunrise as he had requested and his morning hymn was sung at his graveside.

A Lift for Living

Service Determines Our Worth, Not Dollars

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Would I be correct in saying that this question most likely starts our thinking toward our possessions? "He is worth $50 thousand" or, "He is worth a million." Such expressions, so frequently heard, reveal our tendency to measure a man's worth by what he owns.

"What are we worth?" may set us thinking about our earning power. We may be young and not yet possessed of abundant goods, but what can we sell our services for in the market? Am I a three-thousand-a-year man, or a ten-thousand-dollar man? In our modern world a person can can sell almost any quality he has. If he has a pleasing personality, he can capitalize. If he has ideas, he can sell them and be has patent laws and copyright laws to protect him in the sale. If he is prominent, he can sell his name and picture in a commercial advertisement.

But what about that which we cannot sell? In the florist shop is a lovely flower. Its price is high. But there may be equally beautiful flowers in the same family which are left to "blush unseen and waste their sweetness on the desert air." What makes the worth of the flower — its beauty or its nearness to the market?

And how is it with human beings? We boast that life is worth more than free society like America or Canada or Britain than in the totalitarian states. We mean thereby that the government has more respect for the individual's welfare and more regard for his rights.

We Americans and British were taught to call the last global conflict a war of survival because we were led to believe that our way of life was imperiled. We saw the Nazi philosophy regiment a proud Nordic people into goose-stepping robots and kill millions of Jews as victims.

And now we are in conflict with a communistic ideology which treats men as pawns of an economic system. If we are to survive, we must convince ourselves that our free society gives man a higher value. And we must demonstrate this higher worth that other people of the earth wil kiscover it. Nor is it enough to say that Canadian and American wages and standards of living are higher. These may only be due to marketability. We cannot depend on our modern market to make the worth of a man. We must make the man sufficient worth to support the market.

Hence this question, "What are we worth?" is no idle speculation. It is a question we must face if freedom is to survive.

The Bible tells us what we are worth to God. President Eliot of Harvard often said that the strongest argument he could use to bring a wayward student to his senses was to remind him of how great a sacrifice his parents had made to rend him from college. Holy Scripture makes the same appeal. It tells us that God so loved us that He gave His Only Begotten Son to redeem us. Hence when the Apostle Paul wanted to lift his Corinthian readers from their low state of morals he reminded them: "You are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's."

The Gospel not only shows you what you are worth to God, but tells what you are worth to yourself. If God paid such a price for you, what value are you putting on yourself? Jesus pressed that question home. He said, "What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

Then would you sell your honor or your virtue for? Perhaps we would not sell our souls outright. But some of us gradually lose possession of our souls by mortgaging them. We do something shady. We make a compromise. Somebody "gets something on us" which gives him a hold over us. It is like a mortgage plastered on our personalities. In the presence of some people we cannot call our souls our own, because we are afraid of the hold they have on us. Insofar as we have mortgaged our souls by wrongdoing, we have that much less worth to ourselves.

Question, "What are we worth to others?" We are ever emphasizing our rights and privileges, but we cannot go on enjoying these unless we do our duties. A free society cannot continue giving free rides to irresponsible people. For a time people may measure our worth by the number of servants we keep. But eventually we are respected and remembered in proportion to the number we serve.

What was Washington or Lincoln worth? The answer is in service not dollars.

SEEK MERCY TEAM

SEATTLE (AP) — A two-man mercy team which vanished on night flight to the summit of 14,410-foot Mount Rainier was being sought on the flanks of the snow-clad peak today. Harold L. Horn, 40, and Charles R. Carman, 29, left Thursday night to drop medical supplies to a critically ill scientist atop the mountain. The scientist, Dr. C. T. Brasier, 45, died during the night.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

Summer is over; but the birders' fun is by no means finished for the year. Only lack of song keeps autumn migration from equalling spring migration — though, it must be admitted, this is an important factor. Song not only pleases the ear, but brings our attention to the singer which might otherwise be unnoticed.

Now birds that nested near us are gathering in flocks preparatory to their fall flight. Others that we had not seen all summer long are once again appearing; most just to nod to us and continue south, a few to stay near our neighborhood for the winter.

In September our open woods are invaded by olive-backed thrushes, on their way from their summer home in the spruce forests of our northland to their winter holiday resort in South America. No wonder they need to start early, as some go all the way to Argentina. Flying by night they keep together by calling to one another in sweet whistled notes which on still nights carry to our ears. Some morning soon we may find a flock resting and feeding. Their cousins, the grey-cheeked thrushes, most northerly of the family, have summered among tamarack and black spruce, often on the very edge of the tree line. Here we find them eating wild fruit near raspberry.

PASSING THROUGH

Soon tiny kinglets will look in upon us. Some nested near civilization, but the majority went farther north in our evergreen forests. A few golden-crowned may remain in southern Ontario or about at the southern border of our other provinces; many will gradually drop off at various points on the journey through the United States; and quite a crowd (both golden-crowned and ruby-crowned) will continue right on to Guatemala.

Before the end of September the little blackpoll warblers may be passing through settled Canada. Their migration route is exceptionally long, from the spruce belt down through Florida and across the West Indies to South America. The males have been known to establish headquarters by now, and all birds are yellow green with dark streaks. Slower moving than their relatives, they are easier to see, yet difficult to name because they now closely resemble bay-breasted warblers. White-crowned sparrows and fox sparrows have been spending months about as far north as trees will be found. Late September finds them on their trip back to parts of the United States where winters are not severe like ours. But some bunkings and redpolls on their arrival from the Arctic somewhat later are inclined to stay right here.

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming said Thursday he is giving his personal attention to the Civil Service Commission's recommendation to pay increases for civil servants. He declined to comment on when an announcement may be expected.

Winner Likes Wood Stove For Baking

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. J. C. Plans dreams of what she could do with a wood stove. But with an electric one, she still wins top baking prizes.

The former rural resident of Ottawa took nine first prizes, a second and a third at the Central Canada Exhibition baking contest.

Despite this, she still staunchly supports the old wood stove, the kind she used in her days on a farm in the Ottawa district.

"I can tell the temperature of the wood stove just by sticking my hand in (the oven) — it's easier that way," she told a reporter.

She began baking when she was 10.

"My father was always my greatest supporter," she said.

Polio Victim Wins Medal For Singing

CALGARY (CP) — Caroline Dunsmore wanted to sing when she was a child, and she later sang at the Ottawa festival, of a career in music.

Then she was stricken with polio and paralyzed from the neck down. At 19, she could still sing. Now, at 25, she is learning to walk again.

The pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Dunsmore sang at a music festival two years ago, and received this week from the attention of a Calgary singer, Jean Chapman, who has coached her since.

Now she has won the silver medal of the Royal Conservatory of Music.

C.W.L. Fetes Departing P.S. Teacher

FRANKFORD — The Catholic Women's League held a farewell party for Mrs. Catherine Hopkins at the home of Mrs. E. Kelly, recently.

Miss Kathleen Macaulley read the address and Mrs. Kelly, on behalf of the C.W.L., presented Mrs. Hopkins with a number of gifts.

Mrs. Hopkins, a valued member of the local public school teaching staff for the past several years, has accepted a position on the staff of St. Joseph's School in Oshawa.

The Grace of Gratitude

By Alma Mason

STH IN A SERIES

What an uplift for the spirit when Nature puts on her summer gown! The hills are anointed with green and cold black rivers asunder; turbulent activity. Winged beauty here and there and we awaken to the high sweet treble of bird voices in full chorus. Heady, poignant fragrance blends with bewildering and bewitching color and wraps us in an Arcadia of loveliness beyond description.

To walk barefoot in the cool grass after sundown is an exquisite experience. To lie prone on a green feathery couch and count the starts is a pleasure profound and exhilarating. To stand a-top a flower-sprinkled hill and stain along with the hurrying clouds refreshes the lagging mind and the weary body.

Often these restorative gifts of God are accepted as a necessary and commonplace part of every day living. Seldom do we send a single spark of gratitude Heavenward to let the loving Father know of our appreciation.

How banal a warning when someone exults over a violet found shyly hiding its purple face when someone becomes enthusiastic when a nest of cardinals is found under the protection of the eaves; when someone exhibits intense excitement when a golden butterfly unfolds its wings on the large green of a blue hydrangea.

Such folks have kept alive the deep strong root of gratitude. They have constantly watered and sunned it by being aware of and thankful for the small bounties accorded them daily.

With them appreciation of God's lovely little gifts has become habitual — a part of the very air they breathe — a part of the inner-most core of their personal universe.

Some of us are prone to pass over our privileges and comforts without any thanksgiving emanating from the heart to the Giver of all good gifts. We assume that all mercies rightfully belong to us. When some of the gratitudes of life are withheld from us we feel defrauded. We suffer from a shadowed and deceptive impression that all of our successes and opportunities are completely of our own manufacture. To us they are the due reward of certain conduct.

A CHRISTIAN VIRTUE

Dr. J. G. H. Barry said, "Let us recall what thankfulness is. It is not an impulsive emotion called out by an exceptional occurrence or a passing event. Thankfulness is a Christian virtue, a permanent attitude of soul founded on due consideration of facts. It is the answer by man to God's dealing with his whole life. There is a decided difference between the vivid emotion we feel at the gratification of some wish, or the escape from some danger, and the steady, perpetual gratification we feel towards God for all His goodness and loving kindness."

The nine lepers went their way. The tenth who returned to praise God for his healing had been, probably, a man continually grateful for small gems of mercy — for trivial deeds of kindness — for beauties that might have seemed unimportant to some.

Because he had always fervently given thanks for small things, the joyous bells of gratitude widely rang in his soul when Jesus cured him of his hideous dreariness. The loathsome scales of leprosy fell from his body, his heart which had always been conditioned to gratitude and the expression of it, hastened over the mountain tops of awe and wonder and compelled him to return and glorify God and give thanks.

May God alert us to be always grateful for the perpetual golden hoard of daily mercies that are showered on us; for the countless marvels that gladden the eyes and delight the senses. A heart plucked thrummed by the tender fingers of small blessings will resound and swell into a jubilant aria of thanksgiving from the day's dawn until the last rosy rays of the sun fade in the west.

Grateful for every little thing;
A purple flower, a bird on wing;
A brilliant moth dipped in the sun;
The veil of night; the day begun.

Grateful for vivid perfumed flowers;
For shadows and for crystal showers;
For childish laughter clear and sweet;
For all that patterns life complete.

Grateful enough am I for these—
For blue of sky, for cloud and breeze?
If so, dear God, I pray impart
To my poor humble, contrite heart

A song of love on bended knee;
A hymn of praise to rise to Thee;
Like silver merging into gold
Through gratitude may faith unfold.

PETHERICK — HARRY

Baskets of pastel colored glad-ioli and ferns adorned the altar in Foxboro United Church on Saturday, August 15th, for the wedding of Miss Barbara Joan Harry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Harry, Foxboro, Ont., to Mr. Gerald Eldon Petherick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer Petherick, Campbellford, Ont. Rev. Darke, of Foxboro, and Rev. Whitehorn of Campbellford, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The organist was Miss Marie Hollinger of Foxboro, and soloist was Miss Shirley Fisher, Foxboro, who sang "The Wedding Prayer", prior to the wedding, and "I Love You Truly", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a gown of white lace over satin, fashioned with portrait neckline, and fitted bodice with back panel falling away from the waist into a billowing net multi-bench skirt. She wore a matching bolero with long sleeves coming to lily points over the hands. Her heart-shaped tiara headdress embellished with sequins and round beads, was caught to an embroidered linen-drop veil. A single strand of pearls with matching earrings completed the ensemble. She carried a white Bible crested with red roses and rosebud decorated streamers of white satin and ribbon.

She was attended by Miss Enid Petherick, Campbellford, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, Mrs. W. Beaudrie as bridesmaid, and Miss Faye Petherick, Campbellford, sister of the groom, as flower girl.

All three attendants wore identical sleeveless dresses of white lace over mint green taffeta, with fitted bodice accented by three tiers of white eyelet lace with matching green ribbon, and full street-length skirt. They wore white accessories and headdresses of bands of dainty rosebuds and leaves. The maid-of-honor and bridesmaid carried spray bouquets of yellow and green, while the flower girl carried a basket of yellow daisies and fern.

Ring bearer was Master Douglas Sharpe, a cousin of the bride.

The groomsman was Mr. Alex Harry, Tyendinaga, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Mr. Raymond Harry, Camp Borden, brother of the bride, and Mr. William Petherick, Campbellford, brother of the groom.

A reception followed in Foxboro United Church parlors where the bride's table was centred with a white linen cloth decorated with pink carnations and white bells, and centred by a three-tiered wedding cake adorned with red roses and topped by a miniature bride and groom. Bridal bouquets and white tapers in silver holders completed the decorations.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a sheath gown of pale blue embroidered silk organza with white accessories and a corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a dress of powder blue taffeta, with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For a wedding trip to the Adirondacks and New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, the bride chose a two piece style dress of powder blue crystalette with matching full-length coat, white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Guests were present from Toronto, Nobleton, Belleville, Stirling, Foxboro, Hillier, Campbellford, Brantford, Belleden, Oshawa, Acton and Hilton.

Upon their return they will reside on the groom's farm, R.R. 2, Campbellford.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored on miscellaneous showers by Foxboro Young People's Union at the home of Mrs. W. Beaudrie, Foxboro. She was also presented with a piece of cornflower china from the girls at the Royal Bank where she was employed.

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Vatican City newspaper l'Osservatore Romano says communism's attitude to religion is unchanged and no "reformist wind" is blowing in Russia. This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Many thoughts come back to one after the holidays are over. Why the thought of all the chairs we sat on in restaurants, coffee shops, small roadside food dispensaries and the like should keep coming back is difficult to explain; it is probably because the very first stop we made for a cup of coffee on a holiday trip was the most comfortable chair of all. It was just this side of Peterborough. A small, new, clean, clean room with a counter and about six tables. But the chairs — they were made of wood, with arms, the upholstered parts of soft dull orange leather (imitation plastic) but were of just the proper height in relation to the level of the table, and were shaped and proportioned in such a way as to make one right and simple in comfort on sitting down.

Now this was our first stop so it could not have been that we were very tired, but every chair thereafter had the comparison. We wondered why all proprietors did not provide such chairs and speculated as to the kind of seating comfort as we went into each new place.

We decided that the first fault in most restaurant chairs is height. Sitting up straight as we should on a too high chair is uncomfortable and awkward and usually upsets the pleasure of food. The second fault was the chairs or rather the lack of shape—and of that, we will say no more.

Very likely uncomfortable chairs serve their purpose in not inviting guests to linger, though so that more can be accommodated.

If you will note, these observations were made in restaurants along the highways and in motel restaurants. Letting our imagination run on, we dreamed of another type of chair that customers could be made more comfortable. This dream came from watching people, singly or in groups, get out of cars, come in to eat and return to cars, looking not so hungry but no less tired. With fine summer weather and the space many places have, it is a wonder some proprietor has not thought of letting out a "comfort chair" concession. How much better the motorist would feel for having a fifteen minute break and rest after eating.

Or can't you see rows of hammocks on our wild-kept roadside inns? That's going too far, you say. Well, maybe.

A surprising number we had today. A young lad of high school age came by and asked for a glass of water. It was a bit embarrassing as we knew he expected a cold drink of well water, but all we had was some brought from the city. However, he was thirsty and thankful. In a short conversation, we regretted that in his short holidays,

"Sport would be as tedious as to work." — Shakespeare

"The maid-servant, the sailor, and the scholar," with these three beings that enjoy a holiday beyond all the rest of the world." — Leigh Hunt

"Holidays should be like this. Free from responsibility, time for soul to stretch and rest

Before the world comes back on it." — Louis Macneice.

The first of all holidays are those between ourselves in silence and apart;

The secret anniversaries of the heart." — Longfellow

Autos Come Into Their Own On Western U.S. Highways

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Cruising along the Kansas Turnpike at a safe and sane 70 miles an hour — the speed limit is 70 — we reflected that here at last, is what the automobile was invented for.

At a steady 70 miles an hour, pass stoplights, predatory policemen, dangerous curves and squeeze-by passing lanes, our automobile made far more sense than it usually did. Between the crowded old two-lane roads of the eastern third of the continent we'd be lucky to average 35 miles an hour, here 80 miles an hour means just what it promises: when you pass Emporia, you know it's only about an hour to Wichita.

Everywhere we've been the one-horse road is catching up with the demands of an age when 30 to 300 horses ride inside the average vehicle. Last year's construction season was this year's superhighways, as this year's mudtracks will be next year's. Seeing the results, we don't mind them nearly so much as we used to.

The western third of the United States, with its great distances between its population centers, can claim the most creditable start in the world on automobile age.

The freeway — toll roads are anathema — almost exactly duplicates the function of yesteryear's railroad, linking mind to the public conveyance. Four, six and eight lane highways cut through the hearts of suburban communities precisely where the city fathers want them to go, to add go a generation past.

DAN TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Few major cities any longer require stop-light-and-go traffic through the heart of town, and most of those that do are busy constructing bypasses. Is already possible to roll across most of San Francisco from the southern part of the peninsula to the Golden Gate Bridge on a breakneck-speed highway and to start Denver on a bypass from Interstate 70.

Expanding metropolitan Los Angeles, an area of more than 4,000 square miles, public transportation is almost nonexistent. It takes more than an hour to go from Pasadena to Los Angeles to Hollywood by city bus.

But an elaborate system of freeways branches out to every surrounding area, with more under construction, daily, and added to speed traffic along. They are still not adequate and may never be, but they offer the best solution at hand.

The four lane highway is doubtless the greatest safety invention since horseless carriage. They eliminate most of the hazards of passing and thereby providing balm to the nerves of in-law for the card sent her when she sprained her ankle. Plans were discussed for a reception for the fair. Mrs. Ross gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Wood closed the devotional period.

Mrs. Ross and her assistants served a delicious lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

the tired tourist. Throughout the land today virtually all highways carrying substantial traffic are being converted this way. Wherever they can't convert, they divert it to the built-from-scratch toll turnpikes, expressways, parkways, throughways, and freeways.

Speed limits are also being brought up to realistic levels, compensate with the capabilities of the cars. From the midwest onward 60, 65, and 70 are legal, with occasionally higher limits — such as the Kansas Turnpike — on the most modern throughways.

Unfortunately, this new philosophy takes some bizarre turns. In some states the maximum is the legal maximum on that road, go right ahead.

Speed limit signs throughout the western, as well as other road directions, are enough to cause many sensitive drivers nervous breakdown in some areas. Minute-by-minute variations in the maximum mingle with mandates to watch for trucks entering intersections ahead, livestock crossing, rocks falling and Indians ambushing.

Add to these the usual run of outdoor advertising signs and the usual roadside forest with checklists as long as an airline pilot's when he's making an instrument landing with two engines out.

Part of this nonsense will go by the billboards once the line of interstate highways of roads is completed — if Congress continues to appropriate money for it. The bright red-and-blue shields of this network already are springing up on new roads, turnpikes, and reconstructed old roads throughout the United States.

Like New York, it will be dreary if we've got it finished. Then we'll have to worry only about whether we can read that motel billboard erected so far off the right-of-way.

C. A.'s MEET

FRANKFORD — The regular meeting of Frankford Full Gospel C.A.'s was held on Thursday evening.

Vice-president, Miss Sandra Purvis, was in charge of the meeting opening with the singing of the C.A.' chorus and Mrs. Gerald Curry led in prayer. Miss Mery Ella Grant was song leader for the meeting singing the hymns "Deeper, Deeper", "Moment By Moment" and "Friends Walk With Jesus". Miss Carolyn Reichert led in prayer.

Casual Charm

By ALICE ALDEN

Parisian tweed in tones of gold is used for a handsome daytime costume that should see plenty of service. The cuffed, three-quarter-length sleeves are made in one with the yoke. The full bodice is caught in at the waist with a self-belt. Five matching bone buttons close the front up to the high, pointed collar. Made in Paris and photographed there, it was designed for the American woman.

Readers' Saturday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

We have quite a large cookbook now containing different recipes we have clipped out of your column and pasted in . . . I am unable to find a recipe called "Copper Pickle" among my recipes. Could you help me out? Mrs. George S.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

SATURDAY

Heart Goulash (see Wednesday) on Noodles; Broccoli Parmesan; Lettuce Wedges with Russian Dressing; Chilled Watermelon; Cookies; Tea or Coffee.

MONDAY

(Labor Day — Picnic!)
Barbecued Chicken Legs; Summer Succotash Casserole; Crisp Cole Slaw with Cress; French Bread; Apple sauce Cake with Brown Sugar Frosting (see Thurs.) Sept. 3); Iced Fresh Fruit Juice Drink.

ANSWER:

I do not have a recipe called "Copper Pickle". I am wondering though if it might not be "Bread and Butter Pickle" because that is sliced in rounds that look like a large copper. I will give you that recipe. If some of our readers who use this recognize the pickle you are seeking and have it I would appreciate it very much if they would mail it to me through this newspaper.

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES:

6 quarts small cucumbers, 1" to 1 1-2" in diameter, 1 quart small white onions, 4 green peppers, 1 sweet red pepper, 1 cup table (bag) salt or 2 1-2 cups coarse salt, 9 cups water, 8 cups sugar, 4 cups vinegar, 4 tablespoon turmeric, 1 teaspoon mustard seed, 1 teaspoon celery seed.

Wash all vegetables. Slice cucumbers and onions very thinly. Remove seeds and dice peppers. Make a brine of the salt and water. Cool and pour over the vegetables. Let stand overnight. Drain thoroughly. Combine vinegar, sugar and spices. Bring to a boil and add vegetables. When heated through but not quite boiling, pack in hot sterilized jars and seal. Six quarts.

QUESTION:

. . . I notice by your column you are back home . . . my present employer is a Hungarian and only enjoys their cakes and cookies, also the cheese cakes and poppy seed rolls that are made with yeast. Do you have any of these recipes? . . . Alice K.

ANSWER:

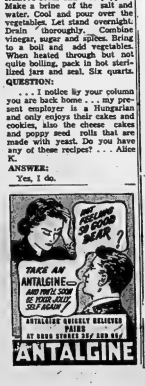
Yes, I do.

HUNGARIAN POPPY SEED ROLLS:

1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 package granular yeast, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup cold butter, 3 egg yolks.

FILLING:

2 cups poppy seeds (or finely ground nuts), 1 cup sugar, 1 egg beaten slightly.



Scald milk, add sugar and cool to lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast over top and let stand 10 minutes. Stir and measure the flour and sift again into large mixing bowl. Add salt and butter and cut the butter into the flour with a pastry blender. Beat egg yolks, and when it is ready, stir the yolks into the yeast-milk mixture, then add gradually to the flour, mixing well to a stiff dough. Divide into 3 equal parts and allow to rest for 10 minutes. Roll out each portion to a 10" square on lightly floured board. Mix together the poppy seeds and 1 cup sugar. Sprinkle each portion of dough with 1-3 of this filling. Roll each up like a jelly roll, pinch edges together to seal. Place on buttered baking sheet seam side down. Let rise, covered 1 hour. Brush tops with beaten egg. Bake at 350 deg. F. 20 minutes. Cool on cake rack.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

WHO CARES FOR GUEST BOOK AT WEDDING RECEPTION?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Sometimes this responsibility is given to the best man, and he may be asked to stand at the end of the receiving-line (not, however, as a member of it), equipped with Guest Book and pen so as to be sure that every guest signs directly after having gone down the line. Or sometimes the maid of honor is given this responsibility. And quite often a woman relative or intimate friend of the bride's family is asked to take care of the book — many people consider this the wisest arrangement, since it releases any member of the wedding party, who will, of course, have other responsibilities.

LARGE WHITE STRAW PICTURE HAT" FOR JANUARY WEDDING?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Do you think it would be proper for me to wear a large white straw hat at my wedding on January 30th? I am having a small wedding, with only the members of the immediate families present. My dress, street-length, will be of either brocade or peau de soie or faille. With this I would like to wear a large white straw "picture hat." If straw would be proper at this time of year, I've seen some pretty ones now on sale! — M.

In the place where you live, and in the winter, I should certainly think that a large white straw "picture hat" would look definitely out-of-season, a refugee from the summer. There never was a time when a bride had so many inspired designs for headdresses of all types. I most enthusiastically suggest that you study the fashion pages of newspapers and magazines for a headdress that would be appropriate for the season, and most becoming to you.

WIFE, NOT A WEDDING ATTENDANT, SHOULD BE GRACIOUS AND CO-OPERATIVE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am coming to you with a rather perplexing problem. A friend of ours is to be married soon, and has asked my husband to be the usher at the wedding. Wedding at 2 o'clock, reception, 3 to 7 o'clock. The bride is to have a maid of honor who is a single girl, and two married couples will constitute the rest of the wedding party. Naturally my husband will walk with the single girl in the wedding itself.

But at the reception, after the photographs have been taken and the first bride-and-bridegroom dance is over and there is general dancing, is it then permissible for my husband to spend the remaining two hours or so with me, or does he still remain with his partner?

What arrangements, if any, should the bride and groom make at the reception for me as far as seating-arrangements are concerned, since the others of the wedding party will have their "mates" and I will be the only one "left over"? Also, should I be invited to the dinner the night before the wedding? — Reader

This occasion is a challenge to you to do everything you can to be gracious and to have the grace to cooperate with all plans, whether or not these plans include you. Your husband has been given the honor of being an important member of the wedding party, and your social duty, as his wife, is to be proud to help him carry out this honored and responsible duty. When you are invited to an occasion with him . . . as you may very well be to the dinner ("bridal" or "rehearsal") the evening before the wedding . . . it will be easy for you to be gracious guest. But if you are not invited to sit at the bridal table at the reception (and it isn't at all likely you be invited), accept this arrangement with understanding, and join some friends for the refreshments.

When the general dancing begins at the reception, your husband would, of course, ask you to dance, but wouldn't, or at least shouldn't, expect him to spend the rest of the time with you. As at any dance, there will be other partners for you, other partners for him.

Make up your mind to be making a gracious bow to your co-operation with everything that happens. Then it will be unnecessary, in self-consciousness, Think of your social responsibility for being a constant help to your husband in his fulfilling his responsibility — then you'll be a perfect helpmate.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been duly with its reasonable answers and counsellors.

Cynthia Y. — I'm sorry I was wrong.

Jack Y. — How can I trust her again?

* * *

Cynthia Y. — I am 27, have been married ten years and have four children. My husband is 13 years older than I am.

At the time of our marriage, my family did everything possible to talk me out of it because of the age difference, but I wouldn't listen to anyone. Now I see how right they were. A short time ago I found myself very much attracted to one of the younger men in the community and I finally had relations with him.

Afterwards I felt sorry. I realized how wrong it was, told my husband and begged his forgiveness. He told me to get out and stay out. He wants a divorce. He called me the worst names and said he'll never let me have the children. I feel that he'll ruin all our lives.

* * *

Jack Y. — I'll ruin all our lives? That's typical of Cynthia. She can go ahead and do whatever she pleases, but if there are consequences it's all my fault.

Could any husband feel differently? How can I trust her again? For years she has been flirting with men and I feared just this. She keeps throwing her age up at me. Even older men are married to women her age. I'm healthy and energetic and I'm taken for years younger than I am. I'm not ready for the graveyard yet, though Cynthia seems to think I am.

Things can never be the same between us. I want a wife who is also to be the mother of children. If I forgive her now, Cynthia will take me for a bigger ass than I am. Then she'll feel free to go her own way. I want no call it quits now.

* * *

The Council: We are entirely sympathetic with Jack, but we would question the wisdom of his taking action now — in the full heat of his fury. Time could prove Cynthia right on one score at least. The complete break-up of this home may have disastrous effects on the children.

Cynthia appears to have developed very little in the ten years of her marriage. She evidently looks upon her husband as a kind of father who can be wheedled out of dispensing punishment. She does not realize that it is not up to her husband to forgive or punish. She has to settle the moral score with her own conscience, to accord with whatever religious faith she has.

Cynthia likes to think of her infidelity as one caused by sexual passion, but we believe that more careful consideration of motives might lead her to a somewhat different conclusion. Sexual passion may flare up between any two individuals, yet most people hold back for other considerations. Letting go the restraints is always a deliberate act, an accident.

Is Cynthia's case there is much to suggest that behind everything was a desire to hurt and spite her husband. She is terribly cruel in her expressions of dissatisfaction with her marriage and unfeeling is the worst blow of all.

We think Cynthia needs to do a lot of growing up before she is capable of being a real wife and mother. She should try to get some professional help from a family case worker. Jack should also see this worker for he will have many problems to cope with — whatever decision he finally makes.

YOU CAN prevent that "itch behind" feeling from overcoming your pre-shower by a few plain an informal phrases for him. Join with three or four (at most) other imaginative mothers with the same problem. Take turns having the group, on a regular schedule. Call it a "club," just for fun—with a name as cool and casual as "Mothers Mother's Helpers" or "Mothers Helpers" or "Mothers Helpers" or "Mothers

AT THE BELLE — Silver Swapping — Walt Disney and Brian Connors, king of the Leprechauns, exchange tales of Irish lore during the filming of Disney's Technicolor production, "Darby O'Gill and the Little People," which stars Albert Sharpe, Janet Munro, Sean Connery and Jimmy O'Dea. Darby O'Gill is a happy film for all the family to enjoy and is playing three more days at the Belle Theatre.

Efrem Zimbalist Replaces Rock Hudson as Heart Throb

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A cross-country vacation trip can be a real eye-opener to a Hollywood reporter—very educational.

Hundreds of people asked hundreds of questions but rarely about the movies. Everybody west of Sunset and Vine appears only stays home every night and watches television.

Surprisingly, there were few questions about movie stars—except for the "real lowdown" on Eddie, Debbie and Liz.

The impact of television on the hinterlands is amazing—more so than the industry or its stars out here can comprehend.

One small town visited used to be a bowling, wild Saturday night town. Saturday night, on the latest trip, was like visiting a day at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

A merchant explained: "You can't get the farmers to leave Lawrence Welk for town anymore. We used to keep our stores open until 11 p.m. Now every body shops Saturday afternoon and watches Welk at night."

If breathless comments of women — especially from the young housewife set—mean anything, then Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., has replaced Rock Hudson as the No. 1 Beart throb.

One young matron summed up the star of 77 Sunset Strip thusly:

"He's suave, polished, debonair, witty, handsome and above all manly.

"I can see now why my mother used to flip over Ronald Colman because Zimbalist is an American version."

AT THE PARK—Stewart Granger, rumored to have died, proves to be very much alive as he embraces Robert Taylor's young wife, Ann Blyth, after coming aboard Taylor's whaling ship in the tropics. The scene is from MGM's spectacular Technicolor drama, "All the Brothers Were Valiant," filmization of Ben Ames Williams' adventure story of two seafaring feuding brothers who prove their valor in a thrilling ship's mutiny. The picture, filmed largely in Jamaica in British West Indies, will start Monday at the air conditioned Park Theatre. On the same program in Technicolor "The Blazing Forest", starring John Payne, William Demarest and Agnes Moorehead. A special matinee Monday starting at 2.00 p.m.

T-V TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

A chain is only as strong as its weakest link, and a TV antenna is no safer than its weakest guy wire. You should check them periodically for rusting and also that they have equal tension. Examine the points where the wires are anchored to the roof — failure of one guy wire could mean the collapse of the entire antenna.

It takes very little time for you to examine your TV aerial, but it can be time well spent. Locating small faults now could save you the cost of a new antenna as well as preventing possible damage to your roof and other property.

Although some faulty conditions are easily detected they require special knowledge and equipment to correct. CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St. are experts at antenna repairs and will be glad to give you an estimate. Phone WO 8-6791 (in Trenton EX 2-7669.)

Maverick Looms As Choice in Niagara Sprints

BUFFALO (AP) — Maverick, with Nevada cattle rancher Bill Stead at the wheel, looms as the choice in Sunday's unlimited-class hydroplane sprints on the Niagara River.

The Buffalo Launch Club's international regatta opens today with races for limited-size hydroplanes. But interest centres on Sunday's battle between six of the country's giants in the unlimited class.

Maverick, owned by Bill Wagoner of Phoenix, won the Silver Cup at Detroit last week to forge to an impressive lead in U.S. national point standings.

The sleek gold, red, and white speedster was beaten, however, by Canada's Miss Supertest III in the Harmsworth Trophy run-off at Detroit two weeks ago.

Speedboat fans had hoped for a showdown duel between the two craft but Supertest III isn't entered here—it is on display at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

Canadians Fail To Qualify in Four-Oar Race

CHICAGO (CP) — Canadian oarsmen failed Friday to qualify for the four-oar with coxswain event in the Pan - American Games — but they get another chance today.

The British Columbia crew placed third in an elimination heat—not good enough for automatic qualification for the finals Sunday—but they have another opportunity in repeats today when two positions in the finals will be filled.

Harry L. Parker of the U.S. and South American champion Paulo Carvalho of Uruguay qualified for the single sculls finals to be held Sunday.

Parker was timed in 7:57.8 and finished four lengths ahead of Argentina's Oscar Vdovsky in the first heat.

BIECKACKI EDGED

Carvalho edged Anthony Bieckacki of Ottawa by less than half a shell in the second heat. The Uruguayan's time was 7:39.7. The Canadian was clocked in 7:40.2.

The Uruguayan took an early lead. The Canadian began challenging about half way. The two shells were side by side, their oars nearly touching at one point. Carvalho pulled ahead about 100 metres from the finish.

Canada qualified for final competition in rowing in only one event, when Jim Roche and Con Andreychuk, both of Hamilton, placed first in heat in the double sculls competition.

Their time was 7:21.6 after a duel with Argentina most of the way. Argentina was second in [illegible]

Now that Yvon Durelle has gone back to his boots and the salty life of a fisherman, Canada's flittic cupboard is practically bare.

The likable French - speaking Canadian with the booming right hand was virtually the only Canuck of big-time pro calibre in the current crop.

He left a handful of eager but green hopefuls. And with them a ring following well aware it will probably be some time before a homebred appears with enough class to provide Canada's seventh world crown.

SLIM CHANCES

What chance has Yvon for a comeback?

Practically none.

His day as a lucrative gate attraction is obviously gone, for one thing, in Durelle's second fruitless bid at Archie Moore's light-heavyweight crown, the crafty champ left little doubt about who was the better man.

Moreover when Yvon climbed from the ring in Montreal's steaming Forum Aug. 12 after the return bout he vowed in a voice choked with sobs that he would never fight again. In a big promotion.

The despodent New Brunswicker apparently meant it. But he has indicated he would like to fight two or three more times in the Maritimes in small-time shows, perhaps against local opponents.

Yvon's cut for the August go with Moore was $15,000 plus $5,000 for expenses piled up by two postponements, a sum that can only be considered paltry when stacked against Archie's $173,000 guarantee.

"I barely broke even on the whole affair," Durelle told reporters later. "I can make more money with two or three good fights in the Maritimes and then hang up the gloves. I want to devote more time to my family and my boats."

The boats for Yvon can no doubt be arranged. But, for some of the lesser - name Canadian boxers, getting a fight is sometimes a trial. Ring promotions at home are at best infrequent.

For good, promising homebrews finding a suitable opponent calls for more than a scan of the ratings of the Canadian Boxing Federation, riddles with inactive and woefully inexperienced fighters.

It's a poor way to develop champions in a game where experience is not just the best but the only teacher.

Because he was unable to get fights in Canada regularly, Montreal's Pat Supple, 21, vacated the bantamweight title last year and took a job as a sporting goods salesman with a department store.

Gale Kerwin, 23, of Ottawa—still listed as the Canadian welterweight champ although a blood condition pushed him into inactivity two years ago—plans to give up the crown for the same reason. Kerwin is making a comeback in the U.S. as a lightweight.

Now let's take a brief look at some of the leading active young sters.

George Chuvalo, the young heavyweight tillist from Toronto, is described as a strong prospect by some ring observers. But he's still far from ranked international class.

Chuvalo fought world - ranked Alex Miteff of Argentina to a 10-round draw at New York's Madison Square Garden in his best showing. But he later dropped a decision to rising Pat McMurtry, muffing a good chance to move up quickly.

The No. 1 contender for Chuvalo's crown, Montreal's Bob Cleroux, has been impressive in some of his outings. But with only 13 fights behind him (his record is 12-1) he still has a lot to learn. His best performance, in fact, was a loss, an eight - rounder against highly-touted Buddy Turman of Tyler, Tex.

In the lighter divisions, featherweight champ Dave Hilton of Quebec City stands out. The blonde, handsome 18 - year - old won the title from Gerry Simpson of Montreal earlier this year in his third pro fight. A scientific fighter with a polished left jab, Hilton's career is too young to predict a future.

Edmonton - born Wilf Greaves, the middleweight titlist now fighting out of Detroit, has met some of the top men in his division, including Gene Fullmer, Spider Webb and Joey Giardello.

But he lost the big ones. Some say he was brought along too fast.

"Why spend good money for a new creel? Can't you use one of my old purses?"

Sharp Putting Gives Goetz Early Lead

KANSAS CITY (CP) — Sharp putting and sound iron play gave Bobby Goetz of Tulsa, Okla., a seven-under-par 65 and the first round lead in the $30,000 Kansas City Open golf tournament Friday.

A stroke behind Goetz were Jerry Pitman and Mason Rudolph.

Toronto's Al Balding was in the traffic jam at the 70 mark with 13 other players. Balding was out in 36 and home in 34 for his two-under-par round.

Jerry Magee of Toronto had a 36-36—72.

STUDIES UNION CELLS

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Jean Lafontaine of the Montreal Cancer Institute studies microscopic cells from the tip of onion root hairs as part of a research project on normal and malignant growth.

MONTREAL (CP) — Wellington Grubb, 36, truck-driver for a brewery, was honored by a service club for 32,000 hours of accident - free driving in Montreal traffic. The driver of a five-ton vehicle, he credits his record to "lots of sleep and luck."

DODGERS BUY TWO

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers have purchased the contracts of outfielder Sandy Amoros and pitcher Billy Harris from Montreal Royals of the International League, the National League club announced Friday. General manager Buzzie Bavasi said both players will report to the Dodgers Tuesday. Amoros, 27, has a lifetime major league average of .262, at Montreal and has an ERA of 79 runs, Harris, 28 and a right-hander, had a brief trial with the Dodgers late in 1957. He is 12-9 was batting .311 with Montreal, 4.07.

WILL THEY GO?

Apparently Wren Blair is thinking twice before committing his Whitby Dunlops to the overseas hockey tour this winter. At least that is the impression left by Gerry Blair, Wren's brother, who is filling in on the sports beat while "The Man" is holidaying and tracking down hockey players.

Here then, is what Gerry Blair has to say on the subject:

"Some real problems are cropping up regarding the Dunlops' overseas trip this November and it appears that the whole thing may now be shelved. Hockey fans in the area will probably be happy if this does come about, because people were a bit unhappy about the team having for some four or five weeks in the middle of the schedule. What with the new league in operation this year, hockey fans were looking forward to an interesting and very competitive season, and a month is a long time to be without hockey."

This department for one would be only too happy to see the Dunlops turn down the proposed trip. It has been too long since there has been a completed, balanced schedule in Senior "A" hockey here. Two years ago the Dunlops were away and last year it was the Macs. Kitchener will be away to the Olympics this winter for a few weeks.

We feel that with all the new faces from Windsor, Kitchener and Chatham this year, and what should be a close race for all positions, the fans will get the best hockey they have ever watched. But no matter how you look at it, Whitby will still be the big drawing card in most of the centres, and none of the teams can afford to have the Dunlops away, even for a month.

Whitby will not only be doing themselves and their fans a favor if they refuse the trip, but also the other clubs all around the circuit.

"GRUDGE GAME"

With all the tense playoff ball here lately, fans who would like a little more fun and a few laughs out of the game will have an opportunity for exactly that tomorrow evening.

It seems that Clark' Driver-In of the Commercial Softball League has challenged the Belleville Umpires to a "grudge" game. And what's more, the umps have accepted the challenge. What we want to know is who will do the officiating?

We would like to offer the suggestion that a few local fans who specialize in umpire baiting be given the job. There are plenty of them and who would have a better right in this respect to handle the behind-the-plate chore than one Bernard "Lefty" Bennett?

Anyway the "blind-men" will be out in full force, as one of them put it, "to show these ball players we can beat them at their own game too." It should be interesting to watch "Big Al" Kelleher, "Short" Elsley, Hilly Whales and Joe Bowen "Joe . . . gimme me, the Hurst boys, in action with bats and gloves. 'Tis said they will wear their umpiring uniforms.

Game time is six o'clock and the place is CNRA Park.

SOUTH HASTINGS FINALS

After being rained out twice already this week, the men of Read and Latta are hoping for clear sailing over the holiday weekend as they continue their four-of-seven final series.

At the present time Read holds a two-games-to-one lead but Latta is determined to even matters up tomorrow.

This fourth game is slated to get under way on the Read diamond at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon and a large crowd is expected. They go back at it Monday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. in Latta.

South Hastings league supporters feel that the series will likely go the full seven games before a winner is decided.

THE DEER SEASON

William W. Billie, writing for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests bulletin, Tweed District, passes along some information that should interest deer hunters.

November 9 will be the big day for those dedicated many who wait all year for that week or two in the bush. That is the opening date of this 1956 season.

In the Tweed district the northern season opens on the 9th and runs through to November 21. Hunting will be allowed in the area north of Highway 7 from the western beltliday of Hastings County to where it intersects with Highway 28 and east of Highway 28 and north of County Road 8 from the village of Godfrey to the eastern boundary of Frontenac County and on to Wesport.

In the southern region of the Tweed forest district the season will run from November 9 to November 14. This includes the area south of the above-described line (Highway 7 and County Road 8) to Highway 2.

Information on other districts can be obtained from any officer of the Department of Lands and Forests or by writing to the district forester in any particular area in which you are interested.

Remember, too, a licence to hunt does not give the holder the right to trespass on private lands. Consult the land owner for permission before entering his land. A good hunter-farmer relationship will mean more game, more recreation and a freer country for us and you.

All right fellows, go out and plan your holidays.

Branch Rickey Names Kirksey As Loop Aide

HOUSTON (AP) — Branch Rickey, president of the new Continental Baseball League, has named George Kirksey of Houston as an administrative aide.

Kirksey, executive secretary of the Houston Sports Association, will work with Rickey from Pittsburgh, Pa., headquarters the next month. Three more franchises are expected to be added to the league during that time. Kirksey is to return here about Oct. 1.

Craig Cullinan, head of the Houston sports syndicate, said Kirksey also will assist Rickey during conferences this month with Warren Giles, president of the National League, and Joe Cronin, president of the American.

Flag-Seekers In NL Losing More Than They Win

Giants Blow ½ Game of Lead Being Beaten by Chicago 2-1; Injuns Lose 5 Straight to Sox

By ED WILKES
Associated Press Staff Writer

Yes, sir, boy, that's a real hot race for the National League pennant. The three clubs have lost three more games than they've won in the past two weeks at the stretch drive.

Pittsburgh's caught the fever, too. After sunzling into the race, the fourth-place Bucs now have lost three in a row.

San Francisco Giants have managed to lose seven of their last 11 games. Yet they still lead by two.

Second-place Los Angeles is the only winner among the top three clubs over the past two weeks. And the Dodgers are only 5-3 for that span.

Milwaukee's third - place Braves, counting on a treadmill in pursuit of their third straight flag, have lost six of their last seven.

CUBS DOWN LEADERS

The Giants blew a half-game of their lead over the Los Angeles Friday night, losing 2-1 to Chicago Cubs on a pair of unearned runs. Stubborn Sad Sam Jones' losing skid at three, beating Cincinnati 4-3 on Stanley Spahn Mantle's 18th with a three-hitter. The Bucs were spanked on six hits by Philadelphia's Jim Owens, 7-0.

The Giants, bobbled by infield injuries, kissed this one goodbye when Jackie Brandt, an outfielder playing third base, booted Ernie Banks' ninth inning and Al Dark followed with a two-run double. Ask Jones about last year.

Glen Hobbie (14-11) gave up seven hits, but blanked the Giants on five over the last eight frames. Daryl Spencer scored in the first on a triple by Willie Mcovey, who has hit safely in 17 consecutive games, and an infield single by Orlando Cepeda.

Astros Win

Spahn notwithstanding the 364th victory of his career while Hank Aaron had three hits in four trips, drove in three of the Braves' runs and increased the National League - leading batting average three points to .361. Singles by Del Crandall and Aaron brought Milwaukee from behind in a two-run ninth against Bob Purkey (9-10), who lost his sixth in a row.

An error, Ed Bouchee's RBI double and a run-scoring single by Gene Freese gave the Pirates and Harvey Haddix (11-10), who had won four in a row. Don Hoak had four of Pittsburgh's six hits as Owens (11-11) gained his first major league shutout.

Seek Vengeance

Ottawa Roughies and Argos Must Win Weekend Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two vengeance - seeking Big Four football clubs will tangle on the field this Labor Day weekend against the league's first- and second-place teams.

Ottawa Roughriders will take on Montreal Alouettes in Montreal today and local oddsmakers have established the Riders as three-point favorites. The Als are in second place with two wins and one loss.

Fans figure the Riders will be fired up after losing three straight games, and Montreal will be playing without brilliant end Hal Patterson, injured against Toronto last week.

Toronto Argonauts, who play the league-leading Tiger-Cats in Hamilton Monday, want to redeem themselves for the disgraceful 36-6 drubbing they took from Montreal last week.

The Argos are hoping Hamilton, which has won all three starts this season, will be overconfident.

TRIPUCKA ON SPOT

Several football jobs hang in the balance in Ottawa. Coach Frank Clair publically tongue-lashed ex-Ti-Cats quarterback Frank Tripucka this week for losing passes that were interpreted by local other-NFL reports as very under pressure to impress the league.

Ottawa will have two backfield changes. Import half Dick Thornton, from North Carolina, an early season castoff, has been recalled to replace ailing Bob Pepe, out with a broken leg. Halfback Ron Stewart will be back after recovering from bruised ribs.

Coach Clair says he will start with Canadian quarterback Russ Jackson, also expected to see some action as a defensive halfback.

Patterson will be replaced by Ray Siminski, a freshman import from Furman College. Also dressing for Alouettes will be hard-hitting defensive back Dave King, who injured his knee in pre-season training.

Tiout coach Jim Trimble declares the game against Argos is as "our most important game of the season."

Toronto will be coming to here wilder than a March hare after almost losing it to happen," he says.

Trimble has declared two quarterbacks, Veteran Bernie Faloney and Tom Dublinski. To do it he had to sidetrack halfback Dave Eddie Mason, a great crowd pleaser.

Argo coach Hamp Pool will play the same imports he used in the season opener.

Argos released Eddie Simms and Jim Bunning last week and will replace them with Eddie Ochiena and Sant Martini.

H.J. McFarland Gets Race for Picton Course

TORONTO (CP)—Canada will defend the Harrowworth Trophy, emblem of world speedboat supremacy, next August on sheltered waters of the Bay of Quinte on Lake Ontario at Picton.

The locale was decided Friday at a meeting between Bob Finlayson, commodore of the Canadian Boating Federation, and Mayor Harvey J. McFarland of Picton.

McFarland promised full cooperation in setting up race facilities and estimated that the crowd of 75,000 to 100,000 expected to attend.

Canada won the trophy for the first time when Miss Supertest III, owned by J. Gordon Thompson of London, Ont., and driven by Bob Hayward of Emlyn, captan the United States defender, Maverick, on the Detroit River last year.

The defending country has the right to decide the challenge site.

Windsor Girl Shows Way In Gymnastics

CHICAGO (CP) — Canada picked up a small flock of medals in gymnastics at the Pan-American Games Friday night, with comely Ernestine Russell of Windsor showing the way.

Miss Russell, current Canadian champion and United States titlist of 1953, won a first-place gold medal—plus a bronze for balance—in that point—while her team placed behind the United States in the team competition.

Marie-Claire Larsen of Montreal grabbed a bronze by placing third in individual competition. Canada's male gymnastics meanwhile were limited to a second-place silver in their division.

In the all-round final points for women following the two - day events, Miss Russell had 38.46 in first place, followed by Betty Haycock of the U.S. with 37.630 and Miss Larsen with 36.434.

The Canadian women's team had a total of 175.967 points compared with 179.933 for the United States.

EARLIER RULING CHANGED

Pan-American sport chiefs first said that Canada's male competition would not be eligible for for medal-winning since only two teams were involved, but they changed their minds in time for Canada to score officially.

Canada's men had no such doubts in their minds as they placed second in team all-round scoring with 331.80 to 564.70 for the U.S. But they didn't place any individual medal winners.

Team members were Richard Lentelli, Verdun, Que.; Bill Garard, Toronto, Hans Gerbit, Vancouver, and Nino Marion, Windsor.

Following the Canadian trio were Argentina, Cuba and Mexico.

Olmedo Breezes To Easy Win Over Sophomore

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Top-seeded Alex 'The Chief' Olmedo fidgeted through nearly an hour's delay and then breezed to a 48-minute victory Friday in the opening round of the national tennis championships.

The University of Southern California student from Peru, seeking to add the United States title to his Australian and Wimbledon crowns, eliminated a last-minute substitute, Ramon Rubio of Hamtramck, Mich., 6-0, 6-1, 6-1.

Other winners included Rod Laver and Roy Emerson of Australia, Dick Savitt of New York, Mexico's Antonio Palafox, England's Tony Pickard, Spain's Manuel Santana and Guatemala's Adolfo Gomez.

Britain's 24-year-old Christine Truman and Sally Ann Moore of Bakersfield, Calif., led the women's first round parade.

TWO CANUCKS WIN

Val Harit of Montreal and Francois Godbout of Waterloo, Que., both had first-round victories. Eleanor Dodge, also of Montreal, lost her match.

Olmedo was supposed to play Don Russell, a 19-year-old Australian, but at match time the latter couldn't be found.

After a long wait, it was discovered that Russell had probably back in Texas where he attends college.

Olmedo, 21-year-old University of Michigan sophomore, was next against Olmedo.

CANADIAN MARKSMEN WIN

CAMP BORDEN (CP)—Royal Canadian School of Infantry rifle men narrowly defeated the U.S. Marksmanship Training Unit from Fort Benning, Ga., to retain a championship held by the U.S. Army since 1957. After trailing 13 points near the end of the three-day match, the Canadians ended with 5,988 against the visitors' 5,932.

Canada Booms Into Second Spot Behind U.S. in Games Due to Excellent Shooting

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP)—A sudden, unexpected rash of medal-winning by boomed-Canada into second place behind the dominating United States in the sometimes-comic, protest - punctured Pan-American Games. But no one is definite about the count today.

The tabulation shows Canada has won two gold medals, nine second-place silver and 15 third-place bronze for a total of 26. But the marksmen say there's a discrepancy somewhere, that two medals due them aren't in the tally and if things aren't rectified they'll take dead aim at the people running things.

The shooters, with one gold, two silver and six bronze, say they should be awarded another gold and one more bronze. The gold is for a first place in the small-bore rifle prone and the bronze for a third in the small-bore kneeling team.

THREATEN PROTEST

"If we don't get them we'll file an official protest," shooting team manager Frank McCormick of Montreal said today.

"And we'll burn their ears off."

Shooting results listed from the range at Waukegan, 65 miles north of here, showed the Canadian prone team with a total of 1,548 hits, 13 more than the second - place United States. The kneeling team, with 1,403 on the mark, trailed the U.S. and Argentina.

In the over-all games standings, the United States has an almost ridiculous lead over the 34-country field, with 74 first-place gold medals, 41 silver and 36 bronze. Brazil has seven gold, four silver and nine bronze while Argentina has six gold, 12 silver and four bronze.

MANY SCRAMBLES

Activity by the athletics in the games' second segment was almost as hectic as the committee-room squabbles and protests. It had its men governing the various sports. Canada benefited from extraordinary goings - on, particularly the women gymnasts.

Ernestine Russell, a cute five-footer from Windsor, Ont., won a gold medal in the women's all-round competition and 18-year-old teammate Marilyn Larsen of Montreal, a third - place bronze. The women's team in the uneven parallel bars won a second-place silver.

Earlier in the week, gymnast officials announced no medals would be awarded in the Canadian competition because only Russia and the U.S. had entries. They would be an exhibition only, they said, but a quick change of mind resulted in the awarding of medals.

The Canadian yachtsmen took two silver and one bronze Friday. The silver came in the 5.5-metre and flying Dutchman classes and the bronze in the dragon class. Melville Gould of Montreal was skipper of the 5.5 metre, Angus MacDonald of Montreal the flying Dutchman and Arnold (Massey the dragon.

Canada's male gymnastics team picked up a silver medal.

PISTOL-SHOOT MUDDLE

Meanwhile, the protest over the deprive the marksmen of a silver medal won earlier by Gunther Mekasser of Dartmouth, N.S., in the centre-fire pistol class. Argentina protested that a Canadian, Aubrey E. Smith, didn't legally win the gold medal.

Games-beflogged officials decided the Argentine and the Canadians should fire another shoot-off today and Canada is assured of more medals.

The latest shooters start today and they are almost certain of a medal from Canada's strongest event, one of the best in the world.

WRESTLERS ADVANCE

The wrestlers are assured of four medals after today's matches. All are in the last three in the weights.

Ron Gray of Scarboroughweight Rod Carrow of Toronto, featherweight Bill Hall of Vancouver, lightweight Keith Maltman of Kelowna, B.C., and welterweight Ron Gingras of Ottawa.

Maltman, Canadian welterweight champion, pinned Antonio Rosado, Mexico, 2:30 into the second round from the start in rolling to a 14-31 victory over Rosado in the men's basketball tournament.

Peter Fowler, Woodstock, Ont., middleweight boxer, was the only Canadian placed seventh in the men's 200-metre butterfly.

Ron Morrison of Hamilton was fourth in the women's platform diving event. She lost out by a fraction of a point for a third-place bronze medal.

The Golden Years

Paradise After Retirement, Let the Gulls Have It

By THOMAS COLLINS

Carmel, Calif. — If there were such a thing in America as the perfect retirement spot, this probably would be it.

I am writing this column on a terrace that looks out over the Pacific on what is known here as "17 Mile Drive." It's a scenic stretch of road between Carmel and Monterey, dotted with beautiful homes. It is regarded as some of the most striking ocean scenery on earth. It's so unusual that they charge you $1 just to drive through in your car.

I came here not because it's fashionable to come, or because Carmel is a romantic postmark on a letter, but because I wanted to see if I — and you — would like it here. Retirement.

My best opinion is that we would be a bit happier in Topeka, Kas.

But that is not intended to minimize the charms of this area. The charms are bountiful. In fact, I have found them to be everything people have been telling me all these years. You ought to spend a vacation here sometime.

But for retirement, no.

NOT FOR RETIREMENT

The reason is that it wasn't made for retirement. And few of the other glamour places you've heard of — except perhaps for St. Petersburg, Fla. — were. They were made for all sorts of other reasons, mainly tourists, and retired people sit at the second table.

A few facts: The temperature it never extreme, and will vary from 50 degrees in January (the coldest month) to 62 in September (the hottest). There are two seasons, the dry season from May to October, and the wet season from November to April. The natives seem to like it all right. There's a fog in the early summer, but not enough to bother you.

The major industry is tourists and the U.S. Army (Fort Ord is nearby). If you wanted to supplement your income with a job it probably would have to be a job serving tourists. And the wives of Army men stand in line for these. When the tourists fade out after Labor Day, and the rains start, jobs grow scarce.

These facts are incidental to you. Of course, because you have learned by now that it takes a winter to make a spring, and you wouldn't be coming to Carmel (pronounce it Car-mell) anyway unless you had folding money. So, what's in it for you and your $300 a month?

Carmel is an upper-class, well-to-do, sophisticated town. It's a village of doll houses, nestled coy tiny lots, with flowers all over. Most of the houses seem to have cute sign out front saying "Will's End" or "The Jonesery" or "Smith's Cough — Drop In". The littler the house, apparently, the cleverer the occupant.

COULD MANAGE BUT —

You could manage on your $300 a month — some people here are doing it on $200. But you would need $10,000 to $12,000 to buy the house first. Coffee is the same price it is in Philadelphia and Charlotte. But fish are much cheaper. So are artichokes and avocados. Other stuff they manufacture in Detroit and Jersey City has the shipping cost added.

What you should consider, in cogitating over a retirement paradise, is what it will get you. If you want to paint pictures to exhibit in Chicago, or write a song or a book to sell to New York publishers, the Carmel postmark will help you. If your ambition is to impress folks back home, it will.

But if you want to find peace and inspiration in your freedom, and want to harvest a few friends, look to the less-publicized towns of California — or Florida or Kansas.

Out here I see wealthy men in luxury homes on "17 Mile Drive" who are nothing but "rich old men." With their backgrounds and their money, in a small town in Virginia, they could be the biggest things since Robert E. Lee.

I don't understand why this theory-of-relativity doesn't sink in for more people who retire.

Car's Condensers Important to Ignition Points

By EUGENE B. MILSOM

Although most car owners know the distributor breaker points play a vital role in good ignition, few give the condenser a second thought.

Basically, the condenser is needed to prevent arcing at the points when they open. The higher of driving you normally do can influence the condenser and, in turn, shorten ignition point life.

When a car is always used for slow speed, short trips more than other extreme, high speed long distance driving, one point may quickly develop a high spot, the other a depression. In many cases, a change in the condenser capacity is the remedy.

• • •

From: R. B.: "My 1955 car has developed noisy valves when the motor is running at idle speed. Could this be due to worn cams? What happens? (A) It might be the valve lifters, or it may be a weak oil pump.

• • •

T. I. writes: "For approximately $25, a local auto supply shop sells an ignition interlock booked up to the ignition coil to provide a better spark. I'd suggest you consult with your service dealer before experimenting with this or other ignition boosters.

• • •

J. W. asks: "Our 1959 car has no throttle by power steering oil. How do I know when the oil runs low?"

(A) Take the filler cap and look. With a cold engine, the level should be at the base of the filler neck, and with a warm engine, halfway up.

• • •

From S. J.: "Hope you can solve my overheating problem. In the city, there's no real trouble, but on weekends, driving to and from the country, engine temperature soars and I have to add water."

(A) A high pressure headgasket leak will force combustion gases into the cooling system and cause water loss through the radiator overflow. This occurs at higher road speeds rather than at slow or idle.

'Jest a Second'

"We have a very simple system — I spend every penny I can get."

Portable TV Size of Camera Said Year Away

KINGSTON (CP) — Portable television about the size of a large camera is one of the newest developments in electronics, says Dr. James Tolmie.

One of the Canadian scientists attending sessions of the Royal Society at Queen's University this week, he said "Miniaturized transistorized TV is about one year away in the United States and Britain."

"Run on a dry battery, this TV can be carried in a car, on picnics, or to the summer cottage just as small transistor radios are today," he said.

MILK-SPILLER CAUGHT

WEMBLEY, England (CP)— The early-morning thief who has been knocking over milk bottles on doorsteps in this Middlesex town was exposed as a hedgehog. Residents watched closely for cats, dogs and birds before spotting the hedgehog.

Garden Notes

Garden Chores for Fall Months

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The arrival of the fall bulb catalogues reminds us that there are several chores that need attention at this time. The lawn needs feeding and repair. It is now time to decide on where and how the bulbs are to be planted. Taking cuttings for house plants and to save over for next year's bedding. Some unsatisfactory plants should be replaced by new ones and old depleted plants should be divided and reset. The cooler damp weather makes this an ideal time to deal with these items.

Take a slow walk around the boundaries of your property note a book in hand and decide what is wanted and the approximate time, cost and material needed for change. If your shrubbery is too heavy and rank in growth cut out some plants and allow a more open arrangement. Where the heights are too much the same replace some with tall others with dwarf specimens. Where the shade is too dense or flowering lilies which must be planted in the full. Mark spots in the border where a clump of spring bulbs would give it a lift. Look out of doors for ideas and decide where a planting of spring bulbs would be most effective. Remember at her kitchen work and others to make a pleasant picture from the dining room.

Pin the list up near the calendar. Lay in a supply of needed items so there will be no delay when the bulbs arrive. Visit your local nurseryman to see what he has to offer in the way of seeds and prepare the ground for the new plants and bulbs well ahead of the planting time. If you have garden problems talk them over with your nurseryman, he will be able to make suggestions to solve them.

Slips or cuttings should be taken at this time of geraniums, coleus, begonias and other bedding plants. I find that begonias, and coleus root readily in water. They also root more quickly in a dark jar rather than clear glass. Geraniums prefer soil. You can use bi-organic and soil or vermiculite. Rooting hormone powder hastens rooting. Keep them a little on the dry side.

The cutting should be four to six inches long and from tip growth which has not flowered. Geraniums cutting may be started in the ground if you are short of pots for the present time. Take them up before the weather gets really cold, but they will withstand quite low temperatures.

Coleus that are to be saved for house plant or bedding should be taken before mid-September. After that the colors begin to fade as the plants are shedded. Cuttings takes late seldom regain the brilliant color of the parent plant in its prime. The cuttings should be kept in a sunny window all winter to bring out their best color. As they grow pinch out the tips to keep the plants compact. Never allow the plants to flower. New cuttings can be taken and potted up for bedding in March.

Give the dahlias and chrysanthemums extra water as they come into bloom and feeding with liquid fertilizer will increase the size of the blooms.

Cut back straggling annuals which have partly gone to seed. They will send up new growth and a new round of bloom. Look for seedlings around the perennial plants many may be worth saving. Cut back lily and glad stocks. Developing seed robs rock garden.

—assistance wit hthe normal routine of the home.
—help with the supervision of younger children.
—$35.00 per month maintenance — the Society is responsible for clothing, health and dental care, hospitalization, spending allowances, and the like.

—the satisfaction that comes from knowing you are sharing with someone less fortunate than yourself.
If you are married, in good health, between the age of 25 and 55, and would like to know more about what is involved in foster parenthood, telephone WO 8-5704 between the hours of 8.30 and 4.30 Monday to Friday and ask for Miss Payne. Security Council Votes To Inquire Into Laos Crisis

Russian Delegate Says Action Illegal, Indecisive

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The United Nations security Council ended one of its toughest word struggles early today by voting 10 to 1 to study the Laotian war through a four-power subcommittee.

Russian delegate Arkady Sobolev waged a tenacious, legalistic battle that lasted more than eight hours in two sittings, but he couldn't block the council's 10 to 0 endorsement of a move he supported the move.

The non-Communist ambassadors—the subcommittee proposal was co-sponsored by the United States, British and French—said Canada among the supporters—were determined to skirt a Soviet veto.

SAYS ACTION ILLEGAL

They succeeded, although Sobolev declared at the end that the council's resolution was "nonexistent, illegal and therefore binding on anyone."

Sobolev held that the Western Big Three were on illegal ground when they stated that the creation of the subcommittee was merely a "procedural" matter—not subject to the veto as a "substantive" question would be.

Sobolev said the council went too far, but the special session gave the Laotian government considerable help. It was there that Premier Souvanna Phouma asked by the Southeast Asian Treaty Organ to three countries that made up old Indo-China, Laos, here to help armed rebellion for several months, had issued a plea for a UN emergency session, charging that the rebels were being assisted by Communist Viet Nam.

FOUR NEUTRALS

The resolution said:

"The security council decides to appoint a subcommittee consisting of Argentina, Italy, Japan and Tunisia, and instructs this subcommittee to examine the statements made before the Security Council concerning Laos, to receive further statements and documents and to conduct such inquiries as it may determine to be necessary to assist the Security Council as soon as possible."

The resolution did not mention Laos's accusations that Communist North Viet Nam is guilty of aggression and is providing Communist guerrillas with weapons to subvert to Laotian-rebels. Nor did it mention Laos's formal request for a UN emergency force.

CANADA CONCERNED

All the countries named to the subcommittee are members of the Security Council, and Canada, also a member of the council, has a particular interest in Laos because it was a member of the international commission that supervised the truce in that country in 1954 and continued to do so ending in 1954.

The council meeting adjourned at 1:13 a.m. EDT.

Canada's ambassador Charles S. A. Ritchie said afterwards he feels sure the work of the subcommittee will go as a step-ahead and the Russian opposition will not block it. He said a similar viewpoint was expressed by U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge.

ACCIDENT TOLL OVER HOLIDAY EXCEEDS FIFTY

Ontario Highest Of All Provinces

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's Labor Day weekend, a period of vacation fun for millions, was a time of sorrow for some holiday-goers as 53 persons died in accidents, more than half of them on the highways.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Monday showed that traffic accidents accounted for 32 deaths, 11 less than the number killed on the roads during last year's Labor Day weekend. Thirteen persons were drowned.

The accidental death toll includes only fatalities in traffic, boating and swimming activities and other violent deaths connected with holiday activities. Industrial accidents are not counted.

12 PREDICTED

The Canadian Highway Safety Conference had predicted that 42 persons would die as a result of accidents throughout the long weekend.

Ontario had the highest toll of all the provinces with 21 deaths —nine traffic, nine drowning, two in a plane crash and one man killed when hit by a train.

Quebec was next with 10 deaths, five of them on the roads.

Defiant Ex-Convict Leads Police To Shallow Grave, Body of Officer

EST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—A defiant ex-convict, whose three-week crime spree included the slaying of a missing state policeman built up the biggest search in Michigan's history and led a police sergeant murderer today.

Nearly 300 state policemen and hundreds of volunteers searched the day had searched an area where Souden's squad car was found.

Trooper Lawrence E. Knight's home in the village of Argentine Township, Wednesday, gave him in connection with a burglary, state police said.

Officers quoted Knight as saying he picked up a gun, ordered Soudden into the trooper's car and forced him to drive away. Soudden suddenly bolted and ran after they had stopped and climbed out of the car in some woods Knight admitted that he then shot the officer with his own gun.

Knight was seized in a cottage elsewhere.

Police checked cars and homes of virtually all public officials and others who have been prominent in the integration squabble.

Nally's firemen helped police turn back some 200 segregationists in a march on Central High School on the opening of school last month.

Police Chief Gene Smith, who was in personal charge when his police stopped the mob demonstration at Central, was visibly angry.

The FBI was called in.

The most damage was at the office of Mayor Ernie Knoop in a construction company which he owns. A stick set on fire was hurled and was knocked into the street. One room of the school board building was wrecked and windows were shattered.

Little Rock School Board Offices Wrecked by Bombs

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Three night bombings threw Little Rock into a new case of integration jitters today.

The blasts Monday night echoed through town in rapid-fire succession.

The first bomb demolished a station wagon of Fire Chief Gerald Nally in front of his home. The second hit the school board building and the third the mayor's office.

Police poured out in force with riot guns, patrolling and barricading streets around the four public schools.

Two of the schools were integrated Aug. 12.

No one was injured but police took no chances. They suggested to school board members that they and their families leave their homes and spend the night elsewhere.

Canada One of Ten Nations To Hold Disarmament Talks

WASHINGTON (CP) — East-West disarmament talks, which broke down two years ago, are scheduled again.

A new round of talks was signalled Monday in a joint statement by the United States, Britain, France and Russia. Canada and Italy, the five Communist nations will be the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria.

The disarmament talks on a proposed agreement to suspend atomic tests will have an important bearing on the disarmament discussions. The atomic test ban talks now in recess but scheduled to resume Oct. 12, have made considerable progress during the last year but still face difficult obstacles.

The atomic powers have all agreed to continue to suspend atomic testings voluntarily at least until Jan. 1.

Ottawa Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Monday that Canada welcomes the agreement to set up the committee.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his government would do all possible to ensure that the forthcoming discussions have "positive and practical" results.

Anglicans Will Try to Raise $100,000 for World Year

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP)—The Anglican Church of Canada will try to raise at least $100,000 for World Refugee Year.

The church's 20th General Synod voted unanimously to support the campaign Monday night after hearing an appeal from Dr. Leslie Cooke, associate general secretary of Geneva-church aid service to refugees.

More than 15,000,000 people of the world are homeless or stateless, Dr. Cooke said, and churches must show that the only adequate motive for helping them is compassion.

He also urged that the United States and Canada match the record of some European countries who admit the aged and chronically sick refugees as well as those who are "young, robust, healthy and skilled."

The resolution included a clause asking the government to provide the money in Canada for immigration of "some of these with handicaps and disabilities" which would normally bar them from entering.

The resolutions were part of the report of the Council for Social Service, which dealt with all types of social problems both at home and abroad.

The quick disposal of some items on the agenda has given the synod a chance to spend part of its work tonight—a day earlier than had been scheduled.

The synod authorized a primate's world relief fund, which would be a continuing appeal to be used to meet emergencies in Canada and other parts of the world.

It then turned to two major domestic problems — the Canadian Indian and the church in urban industrial areas.

The need to change its methods and approach in cities has compelled the church during the postwar years and the synod set up a committee to help urban ministers meet their special problems.

The report on the Indian centered around the inroads a large number of Indians are moving away from reservations and into cities where they are suddenly exposed to a much different way of life, and the synod voted to extend work to study the problem, but it also "urgently requested" that dioceses containing Indian and Metis communities try to prepare their inhabitants for the transition. It asked urban parishes to do their part by setting up educational programs and friendship centres which would give other Canadians a chance to meet and appreciate the new city-dwellers.

Fatal Beating Of Woman Being Probed

SIMCOE (CP)—John Nagy 37 of nearby Vanessa was in hospital under police guard as provincial police continued their investigation into the fatal beating of Mrs. Annette Le Compe, 43.

Emile and Gerald La Fontaine, brothers of the victim, discovered her body Sunday night in her home on a double garage converted to living quarters.

When police arrived they found Nagy, who lived with Mrs. Le Compe, badly beaten.

Mrs. Le Compe died from a skull fracture, inflicted by a blunt instrument. A Canadian Press police found a wooden bar they believe was used in the attack.

The La Fontaine brothers found Mrs. Le Compe's body after they saw a Vanessa Township farm worker, Pat O'Callaghan, 52, standing in the driveway, his face covered with blood.

Police said O'Callaghan told the brothers their sister was inside injured.

Racial Tensions Turn Celebration Into Mob Scene

BALTIMORE (AP) — An outbreak of racial tension turned an All Nations Day celebration into a mob scene at a nearby amusement park Sunday.

Pickets protesting the exclusion of Negroes from publicity operated Gwynn Oak Park were set upon by an angry crowd shouting "Get a rope! Knock them over the head!...Back to Russia!"

They were among 40 protesting members from the Committee on Racial Equality, an interracial group which has picketed the park five annual All Nations Day observances at the park.

Two, one of them a Negro, were injured, struck with fists and by mob leaders after they refused to leave the park and were being dragged toward the exit by police.

Canadians Flock to Beaches, Roads Jammed as Holiday Celebrated

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most Canadians flocked to lakes and beaches Monday to celebrate a peaceful Labor Day holiday as summer's last long weekend finished in a blaze of hot, outdoors-type weather.

It rained in sections of British Columbia and was fairly cool in Alberta and Saskatchewan. But elsewhere the weather was perfect for sports events, picnics, parades and lakeside pleasures.

Youngsters made the most of their last day of the summer vacation. In most places they trooped back to school today.

For their parents, the holiday meant closing outdoings in the cooler provinces, listening to speeches by labor leaders and trying to be patient in long strings of traffic.

The highways were packed with cars, some including Canadian States tourists winding up Canadian vacations. Police crackdowns on motorists kept the holiday weekend traffic death toll relatively low from last year.

Big labor parades were held in Montreal and Toronto. In Montreal Mahoney, vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress and Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec drive to create a more effective political instrument will be successful. He said a new labor-backed party would fulfil the need for a wider political democracy.

Thousands of homebound motorists jammed Ontario's Highway 11 for 25 miles near Orillia north of Toronto, late Monday when a traffic accident blocked the artery for half an hour.

Phone Threat To Bomb Quinte Clears School

Students Quit Building While Police Search

A telephoned message that the Quinte Secondary School would be "blown sky-high in just six minutes" cleared the auditorium during the course of assembly as school classes reopened for the fall term this morning.

Principal Leslie Reid was addressing over 800 students at the initial assembly when the school secretary handed him a note warning of the bomb threat.

"I immediately dismissed the students and told them to go outside the building to the school yard for 20 minutes. Then I called police," said Mr. Reid.

NOTHING FOUND

With police officers a detailed search of the auditorium was made. The search revealed nothing and it was decided it was only a scare.

The school secretary told Mr. Reid the telephoned message was given in a voice of a boy about 18 or 19 years of age.

"I had the feeling that the threat was only a scare, but we just couldn't take any chances so we cleared the school as quickly as possible," noted the school principal.

STUDENTS CALM

Mr. Reid said he told the students that they were being dismissed.

They filled out in an orderly manner without panic or any sort," he said. "A few minutes later they were waiting to come back in again."

Teen-Ager Stabs Man to Death In Gang Violence

NEW YORK (AP)—A teen-ager chased a 28-year-old man for three blocks on New York's lower east side Monday night, pulling him down and stabbing him to death, a man died minutes later.

It was the latest outburst in a wave of youth violence that has aroused the city. A crackdown on juvenile delinquency has resulted in more than 300 arrests of persons under the age of 21 in a month.

An unidentified taxicab driver told police he saw the chase and attack. Then, he said, he saw a youth rushed the victim. Thomas Jordan, to a hospital where he died.

The cab driver returned to the scene of the slaying and helped detectives look for the killer.

About five blocks away they picked up 17-year-old Angelo Roman, a delivery boy.

Through an interpreter, Roman said he had come to New York a few months ago from Puerto Rico and that he knew nothing about any stabbing. He was taken to a police station and later was charged with homicide.

The stabbing came a short time after Mayor Robert F. Wagner, in a television speech, said juvenile crime will not be allowed to "sap the city police can muster.

He called Monday's attack by a racial group which has picketed the last five annual All Nations Day observances at the park.

Two, one of them a Negro, were injured, struck with fists and by mob leaders after they refused to leave the park and were being dragged toward the exit by police.

Macmillan Sets October 8th as Election Date

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Macmillan today fixed Oct. 8 as the date for Britain's national election.

Macmillan announced the date after consultations with the Queen at Balmoral Castle in Scotland. There were last minute consultations with his cabinet colleagues during the afternoon at 10 Downing Street.

The present Parliament will be dissolved Sept. 18. The newly elected Parliament will open Oct. 27.

Macmillan returned to London today from Balmoral.

Macmillan said he decided on an autumn election in the light of the world situation in which "important international negotiations lie ahead." He added:

"It is clear that the people should have the opportunity to express their views on the issues which are to represent them in these negotiations.

"From the point of view of home affairs there is no reason why a general election should not be held this autumn."

Choice of the date was up to Macmillan. There is a year he could have served out its term and remained in office until May, 1960.

Paralytic Polio Heavier This Year Than Last

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada now has more than seven times as many cases of paralytic polio as it had at this time last year, the health department reported Monday.

A total of 110 new cases—76 of them in Quebec — were reported for the week ending Aug. 29, bringing the 1959 toll to 2,021 cases with 41 deaths. On a comparably date in 1958 there were only 287 cases and nine deaths.

Quebec, hard-hit in the Montreal area, accounted for 464 of the 571 cases but there were indications the Montreal outbreak may have passed its peak.

Only one case was reported in Ontario. Here are the totals for the province without polio so far this year:

All but 14 of the 48 polio deaths up to Aug. 29 occurred in Quebec.

Ontario has had 38 paralytic polio cases this year compared with six up to Aug. 29 last year

GRASS FIRES KEEP FIREMEN BUSY

Grass fires have kept the Belleville Fire Department very busy over the weekend. Monday there were four brush fires and another grass fire occurred this morning.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance advises that anyone setting a grass fire which gets out of control and damages any property will be liable for such damage. No open fires should be set or allowed to burn between sunset and sunrise and any person wishing to set any type of open fire should first obtain permission for the fire department, Chief Vance stated.

EMERGENCY UNIT CALLED OUT

The Fire Department's Emergency Unit was called out at 11:18 p.m. yesterday evening to administer oxygen to Mr. H. W. Thompson of 13 Lingham Street, who was suffering from asthma. Mr. Thompson was then taken to Belleville General Hospital by ambulance for further treatment.

With the exception of an alarm to extinguish a burning truck at the corner of Charles and East Bridge Streets at 2.47 p.m. yesterday afternoon, all other alarms were for grass fires in the city. At 11:41 p.m. there was a brush fire behind the Queen's Hotel on Dundas Street East. Another grass fire alarm at 3.32 p.m. near the drive-in theatre was answered. In the evening there were two grass fires: at 7:08 near the American Optical plant, and at 8:26 in Hillcrest on Herman Street. The remaining fire this day of the week for grass flgrs occurred at 10:38 o'clock when a fire got out of control near Point Ann Lane.

THE "MISPLACED" UTERUS
Q. Please discuss trigonitis and urethritis. Could pressure from the uterus cause frequent urge to urinate? Would surgery help?—Mrs. A. T.
A. Trigonitis is inflammation of the trigone, a smooth triangular area on the inner surface of the bladder. It serves as a sort of "funh button." Urethritis is inflammation of the urethra—the passage leading from the bladder to the exterior. Infection and inflammation of almost any part of the urinary apparatus can cause urgency and frequency. Various medicines are used to promote healing and, at times, to make the "funh button" less sensitive to bladder filling. The role of the "misplaced" uterus in causing urinary symptoms isn't too clear in many cases. Some women may have a strong and efficient retaining mechanism that is hard to upset. Others may have weaker and more sensitive systems which might be disturbed by some stressful condition such as uterine pressure. The examining physician would be the only one qualified to express an opinion regarding the possible benefits of surgery.

TRENTON — Mr. and Mrs. George Rooney of Byron Street, Niagara-on-the-Lake, were kidnapped from their home Sunday evening and driven under gunpoint to the Doug Hill Road near Trenton, where they were abandoned about 4.15 a.m. Monday.

Two young men, both carrying revolvers, forced their way into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rooney Sunday evening and, after ransacking the house, forced the couple into the back seat of their car and drove to this area where both the car and the occupants were abandoned.

It is reported that the men seemed to be familiar with roads in this district.

Mr. Rooney told police the two gunmen entered his home about 10.30 p.m. Sunday night while he and his wife were watching television. The pair confiscated from the refrigerator, took $35 and some jewelry.

"They gave us the choice of being tied or going with them," said Mr. Rooney, "I said we would go with them."

Niagara-on-the-Lake Couple Kidnapped by 2 Young Men And Released Near Trenton

TRENTON — Mr. and Mrs. George Rooney of Byron Street, Niagara-on-the-Lake, were kidnapped from their home Sunday evening and driven under gunpoint to the Doug Hill Road near Trenton, where they were abandoned about 4.15 a.m. Monday.

Two young men, both carrying revolvers, forced their way into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rooney Sunday evening and, after ransacking the house, forced the couple into the back seat of their car and drove to this area where both the car and the occupants were abandoned.

The couple came out of their five and a half hour ordeal without injury and were not free in their car. Upon the departure of the gunmen, the case was reported to the Brighton detachment of the OPP who immediately started a search of the district for the men.

It is reported that the men seemed to be familiar with roads in this district.

Mr. Rooney told police the two gunmen entered his home about 10.30 p.m. Sunday night while he and his wife were watching television. The pair confiscated from the refrigerator, took $35 and some jewelry.

"They gave us the choice of being tied or going with them," said Mr. Rooney, "I said we would go with them."

Highway Patrol Kept Accidents Down in Area

The decision of Attorney General Kelso Roberts to order a stepped up highway patrol throughout Ontario for the Labor Day weekend apparently had its effect in the Quinte area which escaped any highway fatalities.

Inspector A. McDougall noted today that not only did the immediate Quinte area escape highway fatalities, but there was not a reportable accident in the entire area.

Friday afternoon there was one fatality north of Kingston, while Saturday there was one traffic death in Belleville when a boy was struck by an oil truck.

"I think the appearance of so many patrol cars and the publicity given the stepped up campaign certainly had its effect and slowed down traffic in this area" the inspector said, "I am certain it made a difference and I am very grateful for the cooperation shown by district motorists."

The inspector went on to note that highway traffic through the area was very heavy over the weekend, especially on Friday night, and again on Monday night as motorists commenced their long trek homeward after the holiday.

Bowling Notes

The John Shaw Memorial tournament was a smashing success due to the energy put into it by the general chairman, Orio Smith. Mr. Smith with members of the family sponsored this tourney for one of the most popular members of the club and for the two years it has been running the district bowlers have given it unlimited support. This was true on Monday when 46 mixed doubles rinks, from Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville, Brighton, Madoc, Campellford and the Rideau Club of Kingston took part.

During the past summer the attendance at tournaments has not been as high as in former years but when real work is put into one and suitable prizes offered, the bowlers will come out to enjoy their favorite sport. The Belleville club is fortunate in having such workers as the past president to take a hold and make it successful and this also goes for other members of the club who conduct their tournaments, such as the Hyde, the Sports Centre and the Corbin Gold Cup.

Mr. Smith was up against it to have an even number of rinks in the draw and recruited Mr. and Mrs. Bob Holland, former bowlers of the club, to fill in and he made a wise choice for Bob and Reta nearly made the prize list. They won their first two games although they have not bowled for two years and were only beaten in the last end of the last game.

POPULAR WIN

The winner of the trophy and first prize were Mr. and Mrs. Bill VanHazarl, comparatively new bowlers and this was greeted with genuine approval by all. The couple won their three games by comfortable margins and had a score of 54 plus 20. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stringer of Kingston were second with 52 points followed by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott with 50 plus 17. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Smith were right behind with 50 points, while Wally Lavergne and Mrs. Thomas Mackey were next with 49 plus 9 and followed by Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Lockwood of Brighton with 45 plus 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wathin had the highest single high with a score of 30 plus 11, while Mayor Mitchell and Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. C. L. Hyde won the one-game high. The weather was ideal, the green fast as lights and the competition exceptionally keen in every game. As usual the breaks decided many of the games and as usual the eventual winners made their own breaks. It was an enjoyable day.

The members of the women's section held their regular afternoon games on Thursday with Mrs. W. Hunter, Mrs. Trudeau and Mrs. C. L. Hyde as first winners. Another treble rink of Mrs. Avery, Mrs. Al Warnaugh and Mrs. C. Mott as skip was third, while Mrs. Edgar and Miss Winnie Smith was second with a doubles rink and Mrs. L. Hermon and Mrs. Bram Humphreys in fourth place. The bridge winner was Mrs. George Lee, while the hostesses were Mrs. D. Hurst, Mrs. J. Avery, Mrs. A. Warnaugh and Mrs. M. Trudeau.

8-Year-Old Boy Thrown off Bike, Instantly Killed

The Labor Day holiday weekend claimed one death in Belleville on Saturday as an eight-year-old boy died when he was knocked from his bicycle as he was riding on Herchimer at Bridge Street.

Instantly killed when he swerved his bike into the path of an oil truck which was attempting to pass the bicycle was David Gordon Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Thompson of 22 Stanley Park Drive.

City police said that the boy was riding south on Herchimer Ave. when an oil truck driven by Joseph J. Gilhooly of R. R. 4 Belleville turned out to pass. As he did so the Thompson boy suddenly swung left into the path of the truck and the heavy vehicle struck him. Police said he died almost instantly from severe head injuries.

No blame was said attached to the driver of the truck.

David attended at St. Margaret's-On-The-Hill Anglican Church and Sunday School and went to Sir Winston Churchill Public School. He was also a member of the 17th Cub Pack.

Besides his parents he is survived by an older sister Diane, and two younger brothers Stephen and Paul.

The funeral is being held this afternoon from St. Margaret's-On-The-Hill with the Rev. Arthur Page conducting the service.

New Bill Deline Store Opens Offering More Merchandise In Large, Modern Building

Today the doors of the new Bill Deline store opened to open the doors to residents of this area. The new store, built on the location of the previous store at 253 Coleman Street, following the fire which gutted the old building in November of last year, was built to provide every convenience for the customers of this firm.

There is an adequate parking area in front of this new long low building. Inside all of the many furniture, appliance, floor and floor covering items for sale may be viewed on one floor at the leisure of the customer. Attractive displays greet the eye of the prospective buyers and several furniture displays are arranged so that he may see how a certain item would fit in the decor of a living room, dining room or bedroom.

With the opening of the new store the Deline firm will be handling several new lines, particularly in the furniture and carpeting fields. The products of the firms of Andrew Malcolm, Fry and Blackhall, Sperber, Lansair, Gibbard, and Pepplers may be seen in the furniture lines. Bigelow McCleary, Kelvinator and Firestone are represented in the appliance lines. Wilson carpets and rugs are also carried, and, last but not least, Firestone tires are available to Belleville buyers.

STARTED IN 1918

The development of the Deline firm is very closely tied to the handling of Firestone tires. Mr. Deline first set up business in need in the city as a dealer in Firestone tire and rubber products. In 1934 he opened a branch in Madoc. In 1944 the Belleville enterprise was opened at the present location. Other stores were also opened in this area, including Trenton (1948), and Kingston and Brockville (1952). These were all tied in with the distribution of Firestone tires, which the local business handles for the area from Oshawa to Kingston and from Prince Edward county to Renfrew. Recently these branches were sold to independent operators and the local store is now the only outlet in the Deline firm.

As the local business grew, so did the staff and the operations. Originally employing four persons in 1944, there are now 35 people on the staff.

Tire retreading has shown a fast growing sideline of the firm. Started in 1957 with a location at 118 Front Street, this phase of the business is now equipped to service the largest tire made for heavy construction equipment as well as truck tires. Propane gas has also become an important sideline for the local firm. Over 500 customers are now serviced by the Deline firm, which runs its own propane gas service independent of any other such organization.

STARTED IN DECEMBER

The new building, built on a site formerly occupied by the Tice horse stables and woodworking shop, was started in December of last year. The staff were responsible to the overall design of the building, which was constructed under the supervision of the Belleville Builders' firm. During this interim period the Deline business maintained operation from a building across the street from its location. This building will be maintained as an annex for used furniture and appliances.

Nearly all of the facilities of the new store have been completed with the exception of the service and parts department for the appliances being sold. The showroom and the tire service department are now in operation.

'World's Fair' At Shannonville Ready to Open

It is 103 years old but like the conventional turkey it has improved with age.

This weekend the Shannonville "Little World's Fair" blooms forth in all its exhibitional glory. Two days of fun, shows, sports, contests, harness races and other attractions.

Both classes in the harness racing are filled. There will be seven and running races too.

You can catch a greasy pig, drive nails, saw logs, play a fiddle, step-dance and enter a dozen other contests if you are prize-minded.

The perennial Tommy Mason will again be the master — of — ceremonies for the various attractions. Tops in this field is Nadine Smith and her dancing troupe. The Happiland Shows will offer the usual high — class midway attractions.

The exhibits in livestock, horses and other phases of the fair rate higher than previous years and directors say this year's "World's Fair" is the best in the history of the exhibition.

And for the proud mammas there will be a baby show with four classes. There are classes for girls and for boys for both boys and girls, and from six to twelve months, two years, girls.

Judging of all exhibits except livestock and poultry takes place Friday. Saturday afternoon the fun begins with a school parade with bands.

What Is Classic Warfare?

Defence Secretary Phoumi Nosavan of Laos says that the Communist Pathet Lao has abandoned guerilla tactics and is now threatening Sam Neua with "classic warfare."

Classic warfare? What's that?

A query like that is begging a sharp retort from some military expert. The retort might prove that we know nothing about military strategy, which we freely admit, but it might also prove that many an expert does not know much about history.

What, we repeat, did Defence Secretary Nosavan mean by "classic warfare?"

Has he in mind Field Marshal Montgomery's theory of forcing the enemy to commit his forces on a wide front, while concentrating one's own on a narrow front?

Or does "classicism" go back further, before the days of blitzkrieg, to the trench warfare of Foch and Ludendorff?

Alexander's phalanx was once the classic way to wage war.

And even the guerilla tactics which the Reds employ today might have been considered classic if somebody else had written our history books. When Darius ventured across the Danube, and centuries later when in 55 B.C. Crassus led an army on Rome's furthest push eastward, across the Euphrates, and met the Parthians, the barbarians demonstrated the superiority of mobility over mass.

Weapons may change, but for every new tactic they force upon the generals there is something similar to be discovered in the annals of long ago. Even the famous 'Long March' of the Chinese 8th Route Army from Shangsi into the Mongolian hinterland, there to build up the power which later made all China Communist, was as a day's hike to some of the wanderings of the men of Attila the Hun and Genghis Khan.

Of only one thing can we be sure—none of these great conquerors of history would have thought it possible to conduct classic warfare with a force of only 3,500 men — which is said to be the full extent of the Communist forces threatening Laos.

Diplomatic—But Nonsense

"The United States," President Eisenhower told the NATO permanent council, "seeks no position in NATO except that of equal position."

This statement is the height of diplomacy. It is also nonsense.

Because of its wealth and military power, the United States has much more responsibility in the task of preserving the peace of the world than has a small country such as Belgium.

If this additional responsibility were not matched by additional power, it would be an intolerable situation for the United States, and for the world. Responsibility without authority is the fate of dictators.

Yet that every nation should have an equal voice with every other nation in international councils is demonstrably absurd. Should Bhutan speak with the same voice as India? Are Brazil and Costa Rica to count equally in deciding South American affairs? Does anybody really believe that in Europe the influence of Luxembourg ought to be as large as that of Russia, or of Germany, divided though she be? Must Britain and Ethiopia carry equal weight when consideration is being given to such problems as space laws or commerce on the high seas?

That on many occasions the small nations do have the same voting power as great powers does not mean that this system is right, but only that it is extremely difficult to devise and reach agreement on a better one. The absurdity probably springs from the democrat's conviction that every man should have an equal voice in government —and its effect is precisely the opposite, giving the almost 200 million residents of the U.S. the same voice as those of Luxembourg.

This kind of nonsense may be tolerated in the United Nations, but no real military alliance could survive the operation of such a system. When the United States speaks in NATO, it speaks in a very loud voice indeed, and it would be a sorry day for the other members of the alliance when this is not true, for that day would see the beginning of U.S. disengagement with the arrangement, and it would be only a matter of time before it would withdraw from an intolerable position in which it was expected to pay most of the piper's salary without being able to call the tune.

Texas Autos Flood Mexico

Providenza, R.I. Bulletin

The Mexican government still is trying to figure out whether it gained or lost from its unusual experiment last spring.

Mexico imposes a stiff tariff on imported automobiles. An American-made car, with the tariff added, retails in Mexico at about twice the United States price. The result is that auto smuggling is rampant, black market sales are common, and three out of four automobiles in Mexico are said to have been brought in illegally.

In an effort to clear up a messy situation and retrieve a considerable sum of lost revenue the government announced that owners of illegally imported automobiles could legalize their vehicles if they would step up during the month of April and pay 10 per cent of the legal tariff.

The owners would be required only to show that they had made the purchase prior to last Dec. 1. No other questions would be asked.

What followed was wholly unexpected. Mexicans descended on the U.S. border in Texas and snapped up everything that could roll. With each purchase they asked for, and obtained without difficulty, sales receipts that showed a date prior to Dec. 1.

Then the flood ceased. Almost near-new, multi-powered cars, galopins, antiques and wheezing trucks by the thousands rolled southward. Not a car is left across the border.

Mexico, however, has made a gallant effort to regulate the flood," a Mexican customs official explained. "But it has happened less."

Finally, the government threw up its hands and sent out the word to let them all in.

Some of the results now can be assessed. The used car lots in South Texas are bare as cupboards.

A swarm of vehicles has been added to the Mexican traffic problem.

For a brief spell, the illegal auto smuggling racket was displaced by an ingenious racket that bore a slight semblance of legality.

And the government, with its gain of millions of pesos, has picked up a nice piece of revenue.

Whether the net of all this is a gain or loss is a question, however, is something the government still is trying to figure out.

Food Faddists Always Here

Ottawa Journal

The food faddists are always with us. They have no sympathy for measured course. One of the latest is that to be found in a glass of apple cider and honey in equal proportions. This is held by its proponents to cure almost all ills and to keep one permanently healthy.

A fad that flared into popularity some time ago was yoghurt. It was a pleasant stuff and really not the real thing because yogurt should properly be made from asses' milk and asses are in short supply in this country. Another fad is the seemingly dying away in raw molasses with all the dirt left in it. The idea that a spoon a person has to eat a "peck of dirt" in his lifetime still has its disciples.

In the U.S. middle west some years ago, a fad existed that there was nothing like raw turnips or rutabagas for vitamins, minerals and good health. Eventually the turnip-eaters got tired of their diet and gave it back to the cows.

One man's meat is another man's poison and eating habits and tastes are not things to be criticized lightly. Indeed, we suspect that at the base of many of these fads is the old belief that "if it's nasty, it's medicine tastes, the better it is for you.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 8th, 1938.

All detachments of this Military District at Kingston, including the new Service Corps, Royal Canadian Medical Corps, Royal Canadian Engineers, Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps as well as the Royal and Light Infantry, Royal Canadian Artillery of the permanent forces stationed there, have announced recruiting and military authorities say that so far, response has been encouraging. Three medical boards are functioning daily and a military training camp is being erected at Barriefield where recruits will receive army training.

The Riverside Circle of Bellville went on record at its weekly luncheon as intending to devote its energies to such activities from the usual charities, to work of a patriotic nature should the need arise, Secretary George H. Griffin announced yesterday.

Miss Nancy Hunter has returned home after holidaying at Point aux Barques, Lake Huron, and New York City.

Mr. W. H. Campbell, of Detroit, Mich., is in the city on a visit to his father, Mr. W. A. Campbell, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Campbell, Victoria Street.

Vocal selections were rendered by Miss Doucette, Charles E. Ballard and Grant Jones, and they "all" made much to enjoyment of the evening. The caterer, Mrs. Kennedy, is highly complimented upon the excellent spread prepared and served to the guests. W. E. International Co-operation

Montreal Gazette

It is possible today, to go to the office of any of 80 airlines, in 50 countries, and buy a ticket to anywhere. The single ticket may include connecting flights on all kinds of airlines, and it can be paid for in the currency of the country where it is bought. It can take the buyer around the world.

Today's simplicity of organization is vital to airline services and to air travel growth. In the old days travellers were subject to all the restrictions of currency and language, of licences and visas and quotas which were sufficient to keep the average man saving speed of the new method would be cancelled.

The simplified system of transport method is due to the work of the International Air Transport Association, to the network of its members, studying, consulting, debating and recommending to their governments during the 40 years of the association's growth.

A unique and rather amazing example of international co-operation in being, IATA today has 90 member airlines in 50 countries. Each pays dues, rather how small, has a vote and, most important of all, its membership can be passed for recommendation to governments (IATA has no power to legislate) and without the unanimous vote of all members. Despite this idealist vote structure IATA manages to produce hundreds of recommendations each year. These standardize ticketing, labelling, accounting, airbase maintenance, navigation techniques, prices, meals in flight.

It is this last, no doubt, but IATA's work is far from finished. The beginning is the hardest. Once it gets the machinery necessary that any suitable red tape can be overcome, it will move quickly. And the next chapter will be the most exciting one when a trans-Atlantic flight will take 90 minutes.

August 25th was IATA's fortieth birthday. IATA can look back with pride on its achievements. It can look forward hopefully, looking forward to new problems to be met and conquered.

What Kipling Really Said

Brantford Expositor

Romancers and many other folk are fond of parroting phrases about the "mystery" and "wickedness" of the East, actually, in the main the mystery exaggerated and the wickedness explored adequately. As to the "wisdom," is that to be found in equally poverty, famine and backwardness or in golden palaces and pearly temples to mystical gods?

A favorite quotation — or misquotation — is the one used by those who evidently have never read Kipling's poem. It is Oh, East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet —

Till Earth and Sky stand presently at God's great Judgment seat —

Usually the quoters get no further than the second line and think to live really said something, whereas the first two lines said nothing that makes sense. Even carrying the lines to Judgment seat" does not help Kipling's message quite out of the picture.

This can be borne in mind now that Eisenhower and Khrushchev are conferring — East and East — are to meet, not once but twice, and in the East as well as in the West.

For what Kipling had in mind is shown only by the rest of the quotation:

But there is neither East nor West, Border, nor Breed, nor Birth,

When two strong men stand face to face, though they come from the ends of the earth!

Here are two strong men, chiefs of state of the world's mightiest nations. Will they surmount the obstacles of borders, breed and birth?

TEENAGERS SMOKING IS PART OF A FUMBLING EFFORT TO GROW UP

"Dear Dr. Molner: What effect does smoking have on a teen-ager, now 17, who started two years ago?

"Does it affect growth? If so, to what extent?

"I am now extremely worried because of articles that claim lung cancer has been traced directly to smoking.

"If he were to stop now, would the effects wear off, that is, any minor effects?— Mrs. G. T."

There are some very reliable authorities — and I don't use the term lightly — who say that cigaret smoking and lung cancer are related.

There are other qualified scientists who disagree, but contend that the increase in the case of lung cancer must be attributed to other factors — of which smoking may or may not be one — such as, for example, fumes and smog.

As for me, I have a hunch that other factors are involved, but since smokers and non-smokers alike are subject to these other factors, I am inclined to the conclusion that tobacco smoke in the lungs must be the factor — not the sole cause, but one part of it.

The American Cancer Society recently launched a campaign against cancer, and I agree with you that lung cancer has been traced directly to smoking, but I do think it is one of several causes. Heredity, for example, may be a cause, but we don't know for sure. Still, it looks that way, and we certainly know that we are under constant irritations of mine that are considered contributory to one form of cancer or another.

As to other effects of smoking: Your boy may or may not be as serious as the threat of lung cancer. They are undoubtedly things like cough, chronic irritation of the air passages, fatigue, Smoking is a definite factor in stomach ulcers, and I think that some cases are caused rather have an ulcer patient take an occasional drink than to smoke.

There are some who believe that heavy smoking is a factor in heart trouble in later life. In any event, nicotine certainly has an effect on the circulation.

But of the next point, I feel quite sure. I feel quite strongly on it. Smoking is for the most part of youngsters fumbling efforts to "grow up," to mimic adult behaviour.

Even though childhood is supposed to be a relatively happy time of life, it isn't always. Adolescence certainly isn't. The young people are often mixed up, confused, over-anxious.

Smoking is just one of many ways they use to try to look grown up — it's like wanting a car. Or like (in my day) wearing long pants.

What's my final opinion? I think it's best that youngsters wait with the smoking, and if, they never smoke, it would be better. I ought to know from experience — I smoke.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My children are quite small for their age. I school teacher once told me that slow — growers were also slow mental growers. Is this true?—E.D."

All I can say is halet

All I can say is that I hope the teacher isn't teaching any more, because, to cite a few outstanding examples of why she is wrong, I need only mention Napoleon Bonaparte, Toulouse — Lautrec, Gary Moore, and a few million others. The teacher's statement has no more sense than to say that all geniuses grow very fast — or that all bright people have brown eyes, or big ears, or large noses.

Note to Mrs. M. M.: Certainly I answer questions from your girls' Club. Address your first question as I don't know of anything that will make me seem deeply more slow-ly. Personally, if I had cataracts, I'd hope that someone would have them removed sooner.

Has Good Word For Laziness

Victoria, Times

Sir Heneage Ogilve, 72-year-old outstanding person of Britain, has presented a defence for laziness.

"Laziness implies a lot of intelligence", he says, "and it is the normal, healthy attitude a man has with nothing to do. We should study its technique. Its great enemy is conscience—the fear of disapproval".

Three cheers for Sir Heneage. But can the Indian loafing on his Northwest trading post venture to provide all the same needed without a study of technique?

"Why don't you get a job to stand of just lying around?" the busy U.S. tourist asked the native.

"Why?" quierled the Indian.

"So you can make a little money and save it up for your old age. Then you won't have to work," the visitor explained.

"Why?" repeated the Indian. "I'm not working now".

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There seems to be widespread agreement amongst our heavy thinkers that we are becoming terribly standardized, stereotyped, conformist. How to preserve our individuality in the face of the overwhelming forces of mass production and mass communication is the subject of concern from our university presidents and intellectuals.

It is probably the Communists who are pointing out the true dangers. The basic process of Communism is to persuade you that you are terribly standardized, stereotyped and conformist in order that you will then painlessly slip into the awful standardization of Communism.

As a matter of fact, there have probably never been so many individualists in our race as there is now. You know you. No two persons are alike in any particular. No two hold the same opinions on any subject. Back in the sixteenth, twelfth, tenth centuries, our numbers were more standardized in their poverty and subjection to their masters.

It is true we are all conformists insofar as we all have refrigerators. But open the refrigerators, and I bet the contents of no two are the same. Not the slightest resemblance. The heavy thinkers deplore the standardization of our educational system, declaring that our schools are like laidhen units turning out pupils as stereotyped as laths. But what they are turning out are these teenagers who pose a problem that did not exist at all only one generation ago.

Individuality is increasing at a rate in excess of that of the forces designed by our masters to make us easily manageable.

Strength for The Day

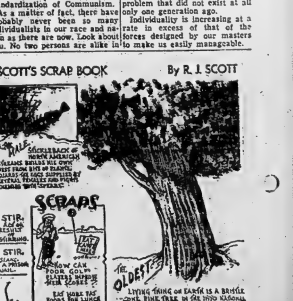
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CURE OF ILLNESS

Yesterday we spoke about the emotionally diseased and ended by saying that they need cure. What is cure for the emotionally ill?

The emotionally diseased person is suffering primarily from two things. In the first place, he lives with the original Indian spirituality reverb to himself and to his comforts. Anything that threatens those comforts is wrong. Or the diseased person may be a neurotic. If so, she may brood over the fact that she is not beautiful, or that she is not a social sensation. Other people with more money than she and her husband find it easy to get ahead, and make everybody else feel cheap. Many people are fortune but she has never

The first step toward cure for such a person emotionally diseased is for him or her to get out into the sunshine and to the door out self. The worst place in the world for anyone to live is in the center of his own morbid thoughts. When you begin to pity yourself, do anything necessary to get yourself out of that horrible and decimating state of mind.



The second thing an emotionally diseased person needs if he would step toward cure is the realization that there is a God in heaven who is also on earth and in the heart of every human being who wants Him to be there.

Get out and find what God has a destiny for you, and this destiny very decidedly does not involve whining.

Get cured.

OPEN AIR ASSEMBLY — It was education under difficulty for staff members and students at the new Moira Secondary School as classes in the new 27-roomed school opened for the first time this morning. Seen above is the open air assembly, with over 500 students listening to school principal James Musgrove. After assembly students retired to their rooms, were given book lists and then discharged for the remainder of the day.

MAKESHIFT STAGE — Moira Secondary School Principal James Musgrove and members of his staff were forced to use a makeshift stage of tiered concrete curbstones at their open air assembly today. Mr. Musgrove is seen introducing staff members as the 1959-60 school year got underway at the new school. Only one wing of the school is finished, with a completion date of October 15th now set.

New Anglican Primate Great Lover of Football

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP) — If the Edmonton Eskimos get to the Grey Cup this fall they'll have the primate of the Anglican Church of Canada cheering for them.

"Yes, I love those Esks," says Archbishop Howard Hewett Clark of Edmonton, elected ninth primate of the church by the 20th General Synod here Saturday.

His love of football, and the Eskimos in particular, is just one side of the warm and witty 56-year-old archbishop who is one of the youngest primates in church history, but it points up the qualities which may make him one of the most popular and most successful.

Chief among these are a near-genius for human relationships, a graciousness and a self-deprecating sense of humor which runs through all his remarks.

A DIPLOMAT

It was his special ability to reconcile opposite points of view and contrasting personalities which led to his appointment as chairman of the committee revising the Anglican prayer book.

It was the same qualities which won the synod's quick and overwhelming approval of the prayer book and made him, instead of a relative outsider, an overwhelming favorite for election to the primacy.

He made wry and typically modest acknowledgement of the part the prayer book had played in his election when he said shortly after "in some way I feel the prayer book is the new primate."

His humor is frequently turned upon himself and even extends to the arthritic attack he suffered 19 years ago.

For 10 years it kept him in intense pain, before leaving him with a spine so rigid he cannot turn his head without moving the whole of his upper-body.

"I have been referred to as 'old poker back'" he says.

FASCINATED BY PINBALL

In addition to football, the new primate also confesses he is fascinated by pinball machines—"the non-gambling variety."

"I just love to watch those colored lights" he explains.

A tall, slim, noticeably stooped figure with grey-sprinkled black hair and brown eyes sparkling behind his glasses, Archbishop Clark was born in the old Northwest Mounted Police barracks at Fort Macleod Alta., where his father was a constable in the force which later became the RCMP.

His family moved to Toronto less than two years later and after education in Toronto and St. Catharines schools he entered the insurance business.

Five years later he began studying for the ministry at Trinity College in the University of Toronto.

He was ordained a deacon at Christ Church Cathedral in Ottawa in 1930 and it was there he spent most of his career until he was consecrated Bishop of Edmonton in 1954.

He is married to the former Anna Wilson of Ottawa and they have four children—a boy and three girls.

HOPES FOR UNION

Archbishop Clark describes himself as "a middle-of-the-road churchman with a leaning towards the liturgical."

He has expressed himself forcibly on several questions which are prominent in Anglican discussions at the moment—possibility of union with the United Church and establishment of a fixed Primatial See.

"We should explore every avenue towards agreement with the United Church," he says.

He also came out for a fixed see and "sentimentally I like the idea of Ottawa."

Large Number Attend Rally At Kingston

Mr. Ralph E. Wickerson, representing the 75 Jehovah's Witnesses, who returned to Belleville from a three-day convention held in Kingston last weekend, reported that it was the most successful gathering Jehovah's Witnesses have ever held in this area. Peak attendance was 895 and ten new Witnesses were baptized.

The main public discourse on Sunday afternoon was given by Arnold MacNamara of Toronto, district supervisor and special minister representing the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society. The title of this discourse was "When is God's Will to be Done on Earth".

Opening his talk, Mr. MacNamara said: "One way we can determine God's will is by considering what his Son Christ Jesus called the two greatest commandments, the sum of all the Law. Remember Matthew 22: 37-39 where Jesus states: 'You must love Jehovah your God . . . and . . . your neighbor as yourself.'

The Saturday evening program featured a movie showing a quarter of a million people gathered at the largest convention ever held — "The Divine Will International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses" in New York City last summer. Following the film, Mr. MacNamara conducted a program entitled "How Jehovah's Witnesses Do the Divine Will Locally".

Mr. Wickerson along with three other local men, William Neave, William Allen and Robert Joy, spoke on various aspects of the convention theme.

What's in the bag? A loaf of bread — broken up to last longer. Father is the photographer — with mother and baby brother well back behind him. For this is a highlight of a "camping out" holiday, so carefully planned that expenditures didn't exceed the sum of money set aside for it.

The budget of the Minister of Northern Affairs and National Resources at Ottawa covers a number of departmental branches. Among these are National Parks, Water Resources, Forestry, and Northern Administration and Lands. His expenditures involve millions of dollars.

Money for all departments of government comes through the Minister of Finance who gets it largely in taxes from Canadians such as you. When more money is spent than is collected in taxes, government must borrow from you . . . or else create new money. The creation of new money is one factor that leads to inflation . . . which means your dollar buys less and less.

The government has been spending more than you have been paying in taxes. To narrow the gap between income and expenditures, new taxes have been imposed.

The next step should be to reduce expenditures, or at least hold the line. Undertaking new commitments — adding new welfare or other services — will only make it that much more difficult to pay our way. Tell your M.P. at Ottawa that since you are trying to save, you expect government to do the same.

You also help when you save more by means of life insurance, savings deposits, and the purchase of government bonds. Your savings help to create a SOUND dollar; and this, in turn, helps to create job security for you and more jobs for other Canadians.

Women Want Works When Eating Out

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP) — When a woman takes a holiday from her own kitchen to eat out, she wants the works in luxury and service, says William Pahlmann, a man who has made a thorough study of feminine psychology in his work as an interior designer.

"A woman who has to cook three meals a day at home and then wash the dishes wants the greatest possible contrast when she goes out to dine," says Pahlmann. "She wants social food perfectly served in an atmosphere of elegance. What's more, she deserves it. Few women have domestic servants any more, so they make up for it by seeking out the ultimate in service when they go out."

That's why Pahlmann has concentrated on creating a lush rich and luxurious atmosphere in two of Manhattan's newest and most expensive restaurants—The Forum, with the decor of the 12 Caesars, and The Four Seasons, latest and most lavish addition to the cafe circuit.

The latter, recently opened, features a marble swimming pool with bubbling chartreuse colored water in the middle of the main dining room. Diners don't swim in it, but they may reserve poolside tables and imagine they are luxuriating at some gilded salon on the French Riviera as they nibble on truffles and pate de foie gras while attentive waiters hover near.

The decor, menus and waiters' uniforms are changed four times a year, with the change of the seasons. In summer the room sets with red geraniums. In fall there will be chrysanthemums, in winter poinsettias and in spring tulips and daffodils. Pahlmann at present is browsing on how to change the 25-foot tubbed trees around the pool in order to have flaming maples in fall, evergreens in winter and blossoming dogwood in spring.

The over-all effect of the dining rooms is bronze, in keeping with the bronze Park Avenue skyscraper in which the restaurant is located. The two-story windows are not curtained with anything so ordinary as fabric. Instead, millions of tiny multi-color gold anodized aluminum chain are used, giving an iridescent, gauzy effect.

On Friday the members of the Albert College Women's Guild were guests at the seventh annual complimentary luncheon in Ackerman Hall, Albert College. The appetizing meal was pleasingly served by sons and daughters of members of the Faculty.

After lunch Dr. MacKenzie, principal of the college, welcomed the guests and introduced the staff.

At this meeting the speaker will be Mrs. Aitken of Tweed, who has been a recent visitor in the Holy land.

After mentioning some improvements that have been made at the college, Dr. Mackenzie invited all present to inspect the new Girls' Common Room which is being prepared for their use.

The members of the Guild voted this meeting a happy beginning for the coming year's work.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each week it discusses one personal case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

MRS. T. M. — She won't let us question Jack.

Phyllis M. — I don't want to hear about the past.

* * *

MRS. T. M. — My husband and I are terribly upset about our 26-year-old daughter, Phyllis. She made an unhappy marriage five years ago and has a four-year-old son. She was divorced two years ago and hasn't gone out much until recently. Now she is going out with a man of unsavory reputation.

This man, Jack, moved into our community about a year ago. Soon rumors started cropping up about his having deserted his family and gotten involved in shady business dealings. Some people even said he had served time in jail.

He wants to marry Phyllis and we feel that he is really after getting into my husband's business. He has asked Phyllis many questions about it. We are not millionaires, but there is enough there to serve as an incentive. We want to question him about his background but Phyllis won't allow it.

* * *

Phyllis M. — I believe in Jack no matter what anyone says! If he ever got into any trouble I'm sure it wasn't his fault. He hasn't got it in him to be a criminal.

If there is anything I ought to know about his background Jack will tell me himself. I just know it. He isn't the type to trick anyone. He has a heart of gold. People are gossips and they viciously attack anyone new in our community. My parents make me ashamed when they listen to this kind of thing.

I have never been as happy in all my life as I have been since I've known Jack. I don't even want to talk about the past with him because I don't feel like discussing my own. I want to live in the present and future. I'm sure Jack would marry me if my family didn't have a case. They have no right to trouble him with suspicions.

* * *

The Council: Phyllis appears to be living in desperate fear that her bubble will burst.

According to police records, women who get tricked by scoundrels left themselves open to just such situations by getting involved with men about whom they know little or nothing. The average woman using her common sense and instinct will be able to detect a fraud — if she wants to.

Underneath, Phyllis must have some fears aroused by the talk she has heard and by her parents' suspicions. Even if there had not been such talk, common sense would tell her to ask questions concerning a man about whom she knows nothing. But Phyllis will not allow her natural normal fears to assert themselves.

Phyllis could be perfectly right about Jack. Or it is possible that he is a basically good man who has gotten into trouble. He may sincerely want to build a better life for himself and put the past behind him.

But whatever the case, it is vital to know the real facts about the past. Phyllis should face these now before venturing any further. The truth has never destroyed true love, but true love may easily be destroyed by lies.

USUAL PROCEDURE ABOUT PAYING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There is to be an important late-Summer performance of our local Stock Company, in which I am very much interested. I am planning to invite a dear friend of mine and her husband, together with my fiance, to the theatre and to dinner at a most attractive nearby inn. I have already ordered the theatre tickets, but I'm puzzled as to how to arrange to pay for the dinner without embarrassing either man. Any suggestions, Mrs. Beeckman? — G. B.

Yes. Give the money to your fiance beforehand (not, of course, in the presence of other couple) and ask him to be "banker" for you. This is the proper and usual procedure . . . nothing embarrassing about it.

School Lunches Made Easy

by Mary Moore

From the evidence I receive through the mails you are tolerant with me and do not lament my preaching. Some of you go so far as to commend me, especially when I sound off on training children through work in the kitchen.

Just finishing up two weeks in the North with my brother and his family of two boys and their pals, I am filled with renewed fervor for "Training by Doing."

Just because boys are boys does not mean that they cannot do the dishes well — and enjoy it. Paul and Bob can do the dishes and leave all of the counters and the sink clear and clean. They can make their beds, and if starved, prepare their own lunches.

Let me urge you to train your school-age children to pack their own lunches for school this year — if you live in a community where they have to carry lunches.

You have to keep the lunch supplies on hand and make them attractive and streamlined so that the young people do not have to think too much. My suggestion is to have them make up jars full of sandwich fillings — if necessary five of them. Thus they will have a different one for each day of the school week. Variety in breads will make it more interesting still — but the bulk of this should be whole wheat.

Make up — or encourage them to make — one batch of pan cookies and one batch of refrigerator cookies per week and they will sail through. All you have to add then is one fresh fruit and one fresh salad vegetable and the school will supply the milk.

SANDWICH FILLINGS:

(Double these amounts if you have more than one lunch to pack.) 1) Egg and Bacon: 3 hard-cooked eggs, 3 slices chopped crisp bacon, 2 1-2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon finely chopped chives or green onions.

2) Salmon or Tuna: (new and good): 1 tablespoon butter, 1-4 cup condensed tomato soup, 1-4 lb. grated Canadian Cheddar cheese, 1 small egg, 1-2 cup canned salmon (including crushed bones), 1 1-2 tablespoons chopped olives (buy broken "salad" pack), 1-4 teaspoon salt. Heat butter, add tomato soup, cheese and stir until well blended. Remove from heat and beat in egg, then return to low heat and stir for 1 minute. Cool and add salmon, olives and salt.

3) Bologna: 3 oz. bologna (generous 1-3 cup ground), 10 stuffed olives, 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 1-2 tablespoons salad dressing, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley. Put bologna and olives through food chopper. To them add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Chill.

4) Corned Beef: Put through medium knife of food chopper together 1-2 cup (3 oz.) chilled corned beef, 1-2 small onion, 1-2 dill pickle. Moisten with 2 tablespoons tomato juice.

5) Cream Cheese — Peanut Butter: This keeps well. Combine 1 3-oz. package white cream cheese with 1-3 cup peanut butter, 1 tablespoon orange juice, 1-4 teaspoon grated orange rind.

(Watch tomorrow for lunch box cookies.)

Eskimos Upset Stampeders, Lions Wallop Sasky Riders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Eskimos have scored an average of 2.17 points for every point counted against them—but are in next - to - last place in the five team Western Interprovincial Football Union.

The Eskimos grabbed their third win in six games Monday in an upset 16-10 victory over the second-place Stampeders in Calgary. British Columbia Lions woke up in time to wallop the winless Saskatchewan Rough Riders 35-17 at Regina.

In Saturday's only game, Winnipeg Blue Bombers beat the Eskimos 16-8 in Winnipeg.

The Blue Bombers, who have five wins in seven starts, have outscored their opposition only 1.63 to 1. Second-place Calgary has a margin of 1.47 to 1 and B.C.'s margin is 1.16 to 1.

ESKIES GET BREAKS

Eskimos, with ace quarterback Jackie Parker on the sidelines with an injured knee and fullback John Bright hobbling on an injured leg, took advantage of first half breaks to build up a 16-3 lead and then hung on for the win. Canadian quarterback Don Getty starred.

Eskimos' first break was guard Al Kouzer's recovery of Earl Leonford's fumble on the Calgary 14-yard line. This led to a touchdown.

The next came on guard Mike Kmech's recovery of Don Stone's fumble on Calgary's 11-yard line. This led to a field goal.

Fullbacks Bright and Norm Kwong scored touchdowns for Edmonton. End Tommy - Joe Coffe from Texas State kicked a field goal and a convert.

Calgary's touchdown was scored on a five-yard plunge by quarterback Joe Kapp. Doug Brown booted a field goal and a convert for Stampeders' other points.

At Regina, Riders ran up a 10-0 lead before Lions exploded for three touchdowns in the second quarter.

Saskatchewan fumbles led to three of the Lions touchdowns and B.C. added another on an intercepted pass.

The British Columbia touchdowns were spread among fullback Don Vicic, tackle Urban Henry and halfbacks Willie Fleming, Ed Vereb and Don Vasvari. Guard Vic Kristopaitis converted all five.

Scorers for Saskatchewan were ends Doug Killoh and Ron Dundas, with touchdowns, and guard Reg Whitehouse, with two converts and a field goal.

Herrera Wins International Batting Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank (Pancho) Herrera and Buffalo Bisons wound up taking all the International League's prestige marbles this year as the regular schedule ended Monday.

Herrera took the triple batting crown, leading in batting (.327), home runs (37) and runs batted in (129). A steady final - week pace helped him edge Bob Wilson, the batting crown.

son of Toronto by two points for the Tom Burgess and Bob Lennon of Montreal each had 28 home runs for runner-up spot in that department while Toronto's Archie Wilson drove home 100 runs to rank second.

Herrera clinched the batting title on the final day as he had one hit in three trips in Buffalo's 2-0 victory over Toronto. Bob Wilson went 2-for-4 as the latter finished in the cellar.

Second - place Columbus beat fourth-place Richmond 6-4 on Bob Thorpe's grand-slam home run in the third inning. Third - place Havana won over Miami 4-2 and Rochester clinched fifth place with a 7-4 victory over Montreal, which finished sixth.

Warren Hacker (10-8) pitched a four-hitter for Buffalo with one of the Bisons' runs coming on Bob DeGreco's 21st homer. Pat Scantlebury (12-5) lost.

Thorpe's big smash came off loser Bill Stafford (1-4) as the Jets won their 11th in the last 12 games. Paul Giel (5-5) won, giving up Jim Pisoni's home run.

Norm Zauchin's two-run ninth-inning homer gave Miami and Bob Moorhead (4-0) the victory Jim Archer (13-10) lost.

Rochester's Bob Keegan won his 18th game — highest in the league—with three pitchers of relief, Marty Stabiner (3-2) lost.

Juniors Lose 1-0 Heartbreaker To Oshawa in Playdown Thriller

Oshawa, blanked without a run or a hit for eight innings by ace Larry Soden, collected a single run and ruined the no-hit bid in the bottom of the ninth last Saturday afternoon to edge Belleville 1-0 in a thrilling OHA Junior "B" playdown fixture.

No definite date has been set for the second game but it is expected it will be at the Fairgrounds here on Saturday afternoon.

The defeat was a heart-breaker for Soden who pitched brilliant ball throughout the fixture. J Piper on the Oshawa hill scattered seven hits over the route in sufficient manner to prevent the Belleville club from getting Soden a run or two, thus bringing about the narrow defeat.

Soden had not been in any difficulty since the first inning when he walked three batters but left all stranded on the paths. Then in the ninth Bill opened the frame with a double off the wall to map batter Westfall on a pop to first base by Hitter. Soden got Cleanup Dick Dalgleish on a fly to centre and Darcy drew a base-on-balls. First baseman Campbell followed with a solid single to end the game with a 1-0 score.

Soden struck out nine of the Oshawa crew while walking half a dozen. He received errorless support from his mates as did Pipher on the winners' hilltop.

Pipher kept the Belleville safeties well spread, only once allowing more than one per inning. This was in the fifth when Soden and Kellar hit singles but two were out at the time and Elliott popped to third to kill the threat. Back in the third frame Kellar's first hit and a walk gave the visitors a chance but once again there were two out at the time and Pipher pulled out unharmed. Noakes' nine had at least one base runner in all but two frames but could not come up with a base hit or two at the right time.

Pipher nipped seven on third strikes and displayed good control with just two free passes.

Larry Mavety, who led Belleville with the victory, made a determined bid to snap the double shutout in the seventh inning. He popped a double and stole third base with only one out. But again Pipher bore down to slip the next two batters.

Mavety had a single and double in four trips and, along with "Red" Kellar who had a brace of singles, topped the game's hitters. Billy Moxon also had a two-bagger while Jackie Elliott and Larry Soden singled.

Althea, Gals May Form Pro Tennis Group

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) —The worst kept secret around the national tennis championships is that Althea Gibson will turn pro within the next couple of weeks and take a handful of prominent women players with her.

One she won't get is Wimbledon champion Maria Bueno of Brazil, who said firmly today, "I'm not interested—not for six or seven years."

The new pro tour, with no Jack Kramer connection, is to be an all-female cast with the world as a stage. It's hoped there will be at least six girls playing on a bonus basis for prize money.

Althea isn't talking yet "I can only say that there is something in the wind. I am sworn to secrecy."

Among the players considered for the tour are Britain's Christine Truman, Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., runner-up for the Wimbledon title the last two years; Karol Fageros of Miami, Fla., glamor girl of gold pantles fame; Sandra Reynolds and Renee Schuurman, the tennis twins of South Africa.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Back from the sea-washed rock-bound coast of Maine to the humid heat of the Canadian hinterland; the various playdowns and another winter of following he puck-chasers.

The heat seemed to follow the vacation safari along the New England Coast. It was ninety-one degrees in Montreal's brand new Central Station the evening we entrained for various spots in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

But after twenty-four hours in Portland where we bedded down at the Columbia Hotel for the first night, the weather reverted to typical Maritime style. The fog swept in from the sea and dampened the tangy air with a salty flavour. For two days it rained and misted driving in the vacationers from the many beaches and seaside resorts that spot the coastline.

However the ill wind from the sea blew good financial breezes into the city. The vacationers brought along their purses, travellers' cheques and the shops did a land-office business.

Shopping was quite an experience in this part of Maine. You can buy anything from a silver-clawed lobster to a mink-covered mackerel. If you care for such souvenirs, while the many gourmetial delights are priced much lower than their Canadian counterparts.

Canadian travellers are very popular in this state of the union. Everywhere you will see notices inviting Canadians to shop at the "current rate of exchange." Portland is an old seaboard city, dirty for the most part, with not too many modern pieces of business.

However to a hungry Canadian with a yen for seafood, it is a veritable paradise. The lobster and clam population of the city was lowered considerable during our brief stay, and credit must go to the Maine men who can serve seafood dishes that would keep a gourmet in a constant state of "mouth-watering."

For the price of a good Canadian steak You can get a lobster (but or cold). But, the chef tosses in a bowl of lobster stew and a dozen or so fried Casco clams as an appetizer.

The "live-broiled" big boys cost a little more but are worth it. In our favorite restaurant the comely Maine waitress escorted us to a large tank where a couple dozen of the awkward denizens were placidly surveying the local atmosphere and waiting their turn for the boiling pot or the broiling apparatus.

"Which one, sir?" she asked in that broad New England dialect.

There was one lavish chap swimming there who turned a leering pair of eye-mouth his feeters at us, then turned away in disdain. He didn't know it then, but that was his last move — alive. We put the finger of death on him and within a few minutes he was being beautifully broiled, his "innards" coated with butter-soaked bread-crumbs and whatnots.

He weighed approximately one and three-quarter pounds. He "cracked up" beautifully and provided a meal fit for the gods. You can buy the lobsters hard or cold, eat 'em on the spot or have them "cracked" and take them to your hotel room for a supper snack.

If you are not too worried about caloric intake, you enjoy the fried clams and the lobster stew. The word "stew" is a misnomer since it is little short of nectar and ambrosia — large pieces of succulent lobster floating on the golden-buttered surface of creamy milk.

The clams are fried a golden brown and resemble yellow-crusted pretzels. They are not so filling as fattening, and if you have a man-size appetite there's plenty of room for the lobster. But just try a feast like this once a day.

But for diversion try the steamed clams. These come heaped on a large platter rounded up like an old-fashioned bee-hive. If you're wise you will assume the air of a veteran steamed-clam eater and allow the waiter to tie the neat lobster-embroidered bib around your neck.

If you are a greenhorn from the hinterland, you will take a sly peek at a neighboring table and watch the calisthenics of a veteran clam absorber.

First you locate the large bowl of clam water in which the things were steamed. Nearby you will find a bowl of golden melted butter sizzling hot. Some of the clams are open; some play peekaboo. You pry the shells apart, take the sharp knife and cut the clam from the shell at the neck. A veteran does not cut the necks. A greenhorn will. If you're real hungry they're good. If you want to be up-stage and fussy, bite off the necks and discard them.

After the first two or three dozen, it comes easy. And the price is reasonable. Your fingers are a trifle wet and perhaps a bit greasy, you may have a butter-smeared face, but it is worth it.

Or if you prefer snowy-white cod steaks, flaky halibut and haddock or a half dozen other kinds of salt-water finny fare, they all there for the asking.

But it is all over for another year, and the cold grind of the job lies ahead. In closing this column we express sincere appreciation and thanks to Garry Alexander for doing such a splendid job in a pinch-hitting role while we were shodding the heat and adding the calories.

Tribe, Braves Hit Hard In Frantec Flag Flurry

Indians Cut Into Sox Lead As Milwaukee Closes Gap; Red Sox Clobber Yanks 12-4

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cleveland Indians remembered how to beat Chicago White Sox and Wham! The second - place Indians suddenly have put together four frantic comebacks to stay alive in the American League race.

With 18 games to play, Cleveland is 4½ games behind the first-place White Sox, who are six ahead in the lost column. This is how the Indians got into Chicago's lead:

They unloaded three home runs and beat the Sox 6-5 Saturday, then took Sunday's game 2-1 on Vic Power's two-run double in the ninth.

Monday, they were still at it, pulling off two three-run, ninth-inning comebacks for a 15-14 and 6-3 sweep over Detroit Tigers while the White Sox beat Kansas City Athletics 4-3 and 5-4.

The White Sox, getting a lift with the return of southpaw Billy Pierce in the latter game against the Athletics, now have 17 games to play and their magic number is two. 14. Any combination of Chicago victories and Cleveland defeats totalling 14 gives the Sox their first flag in 40 years.

New York Yankees blew a chance to regain third place from Detroit as Boston Red Sox walloped the Yanks 12-4 with Don Buddin, winning pitcher Jerry Casale and Pumpsie Green each ling leather for a record-tying three consecutive home runs.

Baltimore Orioles split with Washington Senators, winning 7-0 as southpaw Billy O'Dell gave up just four hits for his second consecutive shutout, then losing 8-1 when Jim Gentile's grand slam triple got the Senators rollin for seven runs with two out in the 10th.

New York split weekend games with Baltimore, winning Saturday's 5-2 but losing another close one 5-4 Sunday. All the Saturday-Sunday games were close except for the 14-2 shellacking Washington gave Boston Saturday.

Boston came back to edge the Senators, 2-1 Sunday; Cleveland defeat Chicago 6-5 Saturday and 2-1 Sunday; Kansas City lost 5-4 to the Tigers Saturday and 7-6 Sunday.

The Indians, down 5-2, 6-4, 12-4 and then 14-12 when Eddie Yost hit his second home run of the opener in the seventh inning for the Tigers, finally put it away on Jim Bunning's run - single in the 11th. Bunning (15-11), last of four Detroit pitchers, was the loser after winning 14 in a row, while Larry Locke (3-2) won it as the last of eight Tribe hurlers. The 12 pitchers tied the league record for two teams.

Yost's homers, giving him a total of 21, were just two of seven in the game. The Tigers hit four of them, with Frank Bolling (12) and Lew Berberet (13) getting the other pair. The Indians hammered three — Rocky Colavito's 40th, giving him the league lead again; Tito Francona's 19th and Woody Held's 28th.

Ted Lepcio's three-run homer sent the Tigers into a 5-2 lead in the 11th of the seventh. Mike-Garcia (5-5), who started the first game, was the winner, with Pete Burnside (3-3) the loser, also in relief.

Ted Kluszewski did the big job for the White Sox. His single led to two first-game runs in the third inning against Ned Garver (9-12) and then he belted in five runs in the second game with two homers, his first in the league, and a sacrifice fly in.

Have Milwaukee Braves finally blasted off?

With three weeks left and each of the three contenders down by their last 17 games, any kind of a streak could crack the National League race wide open.

The Braves, defending league champions, have won three in a row. They put the string together with complete-game performances from their pitching staff.

The Braves did it with Juan Pizarro beating Cincinnati Redlegs 8-2 Sunday and Lew Burdette (13-14) and Bob Buhl (12-9) collecting 5-1 and 4 - 1 victories over Pittsburgh Pirates in the League's only Labor Day doubleheader.

TIE WITH DODGERS

That moved Milwaukee into a second-place tie with Los Angeles Dodgers but left them both three games behind the first-place San Francisco Giants. The Giants, backing righthander Sam Jones to his 19th victory, beat St. Louis Cardinals 4-2, while the Dodgers whipped Chicago Cubs 7-1. Philadelphia Phillies defeated Cincinnati 6-4 on Dave Philley's two-run homer in the ninth.

Pittsburgh managed to edge Philadelphia 1-0 Saturday before losing 2-1 to the Phillies Sunday. San Francisco beat the Cardinals 5-2 Saturday but lost 1-0 to the Cards Sunday. Milwaukee suffered a 5-1 loss to Cincinnati Saturday, Pittsburgh Pirates split in a doubleheader Sunday with the Dodgers—a 5-4 win followed by a 5-3 triumph.

FOUR OF FIVE

Vern Stevens, winning four of their last five games in a run for a third straight pennant, hit two Bucs and Bob Friend (8-17) Monday on Hank Aaron's two-run 39th homer in the first inning. Rookie Lee Maye and Del Crandall added solo homers.

Burdette gave up six hits, but blanked the fourth-place Pirates after the first inning.

The second game also was decided in the first inning. The Pirates jagged Buhl for their run, then were handed their sixth setback in seven games when the Braves scored three off Benni Daniels (1-3).

The Giants won their 15th from the Cards in 19 games after Curt Flood's first inning error gave St. Louis a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning. Two outs in the sixth put Willie Mays' counter across with Bob Gibson (15-5).

Southpaw Johnny Podres (13-8) gave the Dodgers a share of second place with a six-hitter. He struck out 14, knocking off six more in a row after the Cubs had loaded the bases with one out in the first inning.

The Dodgers broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning when Maury Wills walked, stole second and scored on Junior Gilliam's single. Gil Hodges rapped his 22rd homer in the eighth.

Three Are Named to Hall of Fame

TORONTO (CP)—Harry Price, president of the Canadian National Exhibition, announced Saturday that Jack Adams, Cecil (Tiny) Thompson and Cyril Dennenay, have been elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Adams is general manager of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League; Thompson is a former goalie with Boston Bruins of the NHL, and Dennenay played with the old Ottawa Senators, formerly of the NHL.

Selection was made by a committee which included Lester Patrick, former New York Ranger coach, and Marvyn Redl Dutton of Calgary. Both are members of the Hall of Fame.

Adams, Dennenay and Thompson were picked unanimously, receiving the full seven votes required for election to the hall.

Adams, 64, born in Fort William, Ont., has played professional hockey both in the east and the west. He had two seasons with Portland and then moved to Vancouver for three years.

A rugged, centre ice performer, he finished his playing career with Ottawa Senators of the NHL and on retirement moved to Detroit as manager, where he guided eight Stanley Cup teams.

Dennenay, another Ottawa Senators player, led the league in 1923-4 with 22 goals and one assist. With his hard accurate shot he was once described as the man who "could keep off five shots on goal and make two of them count."

One of the league's great goaltenders, Thompson played only one season with a Stanley Cup team—the Bruins in 1928-29.

He started in organized hockey as an amateur with Duluth in 1924, was traded to Minneapolis, Boston and remained for three seasons. He went to the Bruins in 1928 and ended his career with Detroit.

Canada Needs

Fewer But Better Athletes For Olympics Competition

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP) — Canadian sports officials are likely to take a long, hard look at the country's prospects in world competition before final makeup of the 1960 Olympic Games team in Rome is decided. Representation probably will be considerably reduced from the top-heavy 175-athlete team sent to the just-concluded Pan - American Games here.

Canadian Olympic Association officials were elated at the unusually large haul of medals here — seven gold, 21 second - place silver and 28 third-place bronze— the most taken by any Canadian team in international competition in modern times.

But Bob Osborne of Vancouver, general manager of the Canadian Pan-Am Games team, observed a few hours after the show ended that "we'll have to take a more critical approach to the athletes selected for international competition such as 'Olympic Games.'

FEWER RATE TRIPS

"I am making recommendations to the Canadian Olympic Association and for the 1960 Olympics I think we'll have to cut back on the number of athletes sent."

"Any Canadian athlete who hopes to go to Rome has to start basic training by next month and keep at it," Osborne added. "An even intelligently devised program that requires a great deal of self-sacrifice and strong will is necessary for anyone intending to compete in the Olympic Games."

He added that on the basis of the showing here by the Canadian track and field athletes "I couldn't recommend that we send the same-sized team (30 members) to Rome." These athletes picked up two silver and bronze medals, but the competition was limited to North and South America and the Caribbean islands.

Against the world in Olympic competition since the Second World War Canadian track and field athletes and others, with the exception of the University of British Columbia oarsmen and the shooting team, have accomplished little. Three gold medals have been won by Canada in the last two Olympics—by rifleman George Genereux of Saskatoon in 1952 and by another rifleman, Gerry Ouellette of Deep River, and the UB four-oared crew in 1956.

Ouellette starred in the games just completed with a gold medal in the rifle shooting division. Ernestine Russell of Windsor won the greatest collection—four gold medals and a silver. But this was in gymnastic competition with only the U.S. and Canada participating.

The University of British Columbia oarsmen, who had hoped to win the eight - oared Olympic-type event in the rowing competition — were disappointed with their second-placing behind the Syracuse University crew but they added the silver medal to the Canadian collection Sunday.

GOOD SWIMMING EFFORT

Barry Hatcher of Brantford made an impressive weekend showing in the swim competition. She won a silver medal in the 100-metre backstroke just one - tenth of a second behind Carin Cone of the U.S. The Canadian team also placed second in the 400-metre medley relay Sunday.

Canada got another gold medal in the equestrian team competition which wound up Sunday. Brian Herbison of King, Thomas Gayford of Toronto, Norman Elder of Toronto and Gerry brother James from Aurora, Ont., took the title, and Norman Elder won a bronze medal in the jumping competition.

Pan-American Gymnastics Poorly Run by Americans

By MEVILLE NAKIVELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian Pan - American Games official complained today that the gymnastics competition at Chicago was run poorly and Canadian gymnastics officials were given a raw deal.

"The American gymnasts are excellent, but they don't have the necessary knowledge or ability to run an international competition properly," said Capt. J. A. Gillanders, chairman of the Canadian Gymnastics Association, in an interview.

"They didn't even have a set of international rules," he added.

The Canadians loaned them a copy and also gave them a scoring guide."

Capt. Gillanders, who went to the games as a Pan-Am judge, official and gymnastics observer, said it was only Canadian insistence that led to official recognition of the women's gymnastic competition.

TWO-COUNTRY AFFAIR

The women's contest developed into a two-country affair between Canada and the U.S. when other nations failed to show.

Faced by comely Ernestine Russell of Windsor, Canada's women picked up four gold, two silver and four bronze medals. The men's team added three silver and one bronze.

Capt. Gillanders said one Canadian official "was given a job as 15-year-old high school boy could do," while another didn't get a job for two days.

"None of the Canadian technical officials were issued with badges, passes or shirts. Officials from other countries and sports either received or bought a shirt, but the Canadian gymnastic officials didn't get any — they were all sold, none reserved."

He said one Canadian judge spent 10 minutes trying to gain entrance to the women's competition one day and the next day paid his way in.

The seven technical officials were not part of the Canadian team, but paid their own way to the games. Team members had to buy their own competition clothing, which ran to about $50 each.

"The U.S. dominated the games," said Capt. Gillanders, "but they have nothing to teach us about organizing and judging. The next games we go to—Brazil in 1963—we intend to win and we will."

J.P. Lamirande Named Coach Windsor 'Dogs'

JEAN PAUL LAMIRANDE

Jean Paul Lamirande, defence star of two Canadian world tournament championship hockey teams, has been named playing coach of the Windsor Bulldogs of the OHA senior "A" League.

Manager Keith MacDonald announced yesterday that Lamirande had been given his release. Bill Butcher of the Bulldogs said he had purchased Lamirande's contract from the Belleville McFarlands for an undisclosed sum.

"Lammy" left the city last night for Windsor to take over his new duties. His family will follow later.

He succeeds Andy Bathgate as coach of the Bulldogs. Bellemore, it is understood, did not wish to continue because of health difficulties.

Cats Clobber Toronto East York In Semi-Finals Playdowns Opener

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Bobcats could do nothing wrong and Toronto nothing right before a large crowd at CNBA Park Saturday evening as the 'Cats handed the East York club a large 12-2 whipping in the opening game of their OASA Intermediate "AA" semi-final series.

The second game is slated for a Toronto's Dieppe Park next Saturday night, under the lights at T.C.

Bobcats opened with three runs in the first inning and went on from there, scoring in every inning except the second, to hand the visitors one of the worst defeats administered to a Toronto club here in many years.

The winners combed a trio of East York pitchers for 19 hits and with the aid of ten Toronto bobbles had little trouble reaching up (19 runs. In the meantime Bobby Hull let the visitors down with four safeties and got perfect support from his mates afield, their second errorless game in a row.

Hull struck out half a dozen but gave up eight walks over the route. He lost his shutout bid in the sixth when clean-up batter Jerry Whattam lined home a run to left field following a walk. A tremendous play by Bert Faulkner prevented at least one more Toronto run in the sixth. Hull walked two with one man out and Dave Spears lined a single to centre with Cousins and Lamirande included doubles in their attack. Denny Hayden had two singles with one each for Bobby Hull and Bert Faulkner.

Hits by Brown, and Cousins, an error and a walk led to the opening runs. Three errors and a base knocks by Hull and Hayden got another pair in the third. Goegan's safety, a walk and error made it 7-0 while Lammy's single a walk, Goegan's triple on a relased shoestring catch and a couple more hits by Crawford and Brown upped the score to 10-0.

Hull gave up the losers initial hit in the fifth but after Toronto got their two on the homer, the 'Cats went back to work. Three hits and as many hits by Cousins, Lamirande and Crawford plated four. Cousins doubled home one in the seventh after Hayden singled. Two errors, a walk and hits by Goegan, Crawford and Brown closed the scoring at 19-2 in the eighth.

Frankie Davis started on the East York mound, relieved by Ernie Todd in the fifth who in turn gave way to Grigg in the eighth. They had a total of seven strikeouts and four walks. They were unable to curb the hitchingry Bobcats although errors made their task that much more difficult.

The winners of this series will meet either Niagara Falls or Owen Sound in the provincial finals.

Chippewa Defeats Wellington 7-2 In First Game Peewee Playdowns

By AYLMER GUERNSEY

WELLINGTON — Wellington's pee wee ball club travelled to Chippewa Saturday and were defeated seven to two in an OBA playdown seven-inning game. Don Ogilvy started on the mound for Wellington but was replaced by Allen Channell in the fourth as Ogilvy ran into trouble. Ogilvy gave up two hits and walked one man while Channell let up three hits and walked four men. Wellington made four errors which was one of the reasons for their defeat.

Gohm fired the entire game for Chippewa, giving up four hits, walking three and whiffing four. Wellington scored their only runs in the fourth of two hits, a walk and one error.

Chippewa scored their first run in the second inning on two Wellington errors. Newman reached first on an error and moved to second on a fielder's choice which saw Borrows thrown out at first by Jaird baseman Bob Bailey. Newman then scored on Ruther's fly to right field. Borrough then grounded out to pitcher Don Ogilvy to end the inning. Chippewa scored another run off Ogilvy in the third on one hit and one error. West led off the last of the third with a sharpe single to centre field. Gohm sacrificed West to second. Rose grounded to first but advanced West to third and on home to score as the ball was thrown wild by a Wellington player. Rose grounded out to second and Ogilvy popped out to catcher Bill Gallagher to end the inning.

Wellington came back to score two runs and tie the game in the fourth. Gallagher walked and was moved to second on Lavender's single. Channell singled to centre and Gallagher and Zachariah singled to drive in Lavender. Bailey grounded to third and Holmes and Burley struck out to end the inning.

Chippewa also had a big inning as they scored four runs with off three hits and one Wellington error. Simpson reached first on an error. Newman then singled into centre field to move Simpson to second base. Ogilvy then walked Borrowes to load the bases. Allen Channell came in to relieve Ogilvy. Channell fanned Rutherford before letting up hits to Burborough and West which scored four runs for Chippewa. Gohm struck out and Rose grounded to Ogilvy who was now at shortstop for the third out.

The second game will be in Wellington next Saturday afternoon and if a third game is necessary it will be played in the evening.

Women Losing Femininity? Question Answered in Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Last May CBS made a startling discovery which may prove to be television-shaking: The thinking woman.

TV had already invented the thinking man, or at least a sponsor had. The initial discovery came about when somebody had the idea of putting together a show called Woman! as a sort of taped daytime special dedicated to a thoughtful, literate exploration of the pros and cons of teenage courtship.

It was presented, with considerable fanfare, on a weekday afternoon spot ordinarily devoted to soap operas and audience participation games. When it turned up with fine reviews and even better audience ratings, the folks at CBS were as excited as if they'd discovered the wheel.

DISLODGES LINKLETTER

While the question itself has been thoroughly explored in book, magazine and newspaper form, it remains stimulating and controversial. CBS has brought in Esther Williams to preside over the discussion—a rather inspired selection. The slim, pretty film star is a dramatic example of this particular Woman! question. Miss Williams' career as a champion swimmer, moved on to become a big boxoffice film star and, while still keeping up with a theatrical career, is the working president of a successful swimming pool manufacturing company.

She is also the mother of three children—and informs you gracefully but firmly: "I am one of the most feminine women in the world."

In town to wrap up the final details of the show, Miss Williams insists that while there can be no definitive answer to the question raised by the show, it surely will produce interesting dinner-table conversation in a lot of homes that night.

Anyway, it will be a change from worrying about whether Bill will ever walk again and Claudia's amnesia.

Louis Blames Ref., Manager For Title Loss

BUFFALO (AP)—Joe Louis, former world heavyweight boxing champion, blames poor refereeing and faulty management for Floyd Patterson's decision victory in the heavyweight ring.

"Patterson has all the toots to be a great champion," Louis said Sunday. "But he hasn't learned anything since he turned pro, and it's all (Cus) D'Amato's fault."

Louis said Patterson suffered as a result of his manager's bitterness against the International Boxing Club. He said Patterson could not afford the services of a better fight manager did not fight enough experienced and rated heavyweights.

"Floyd had no style to begin with and still hasn't any," Louis said.

The brown bomber said Patterson's loss to hard-hitting Ingemar Johansson of Sweden was no disgrace.

But he said Ruby Goldstein's officiating of the match last June was one of the worst refereeing jobs I've ever seen in a title match."

"Patterson was down seven times and only twice did Goldstein make motion go to the farthest neutral corner.

Edmund Gwenn, Academy Award Winner, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Edmund Gwenn, a veteran of 60 years on stage and screen, died Sunday at the age of 84.

He won the Academy Award for the best actor in a supporting role for his part in the 1947 film Miracle on 34th Street. He played the elderly counterfeiter in Mr. 880 and his other films included Lassie Come Home, Keys to the Kingdom, Pride and Prejudice and Foreign Correspondent.

Death came at the Motion Picture Country Home in suburban Woodland Hills, where he had been in ill health for 18 months. "He had arthritis and then a stroke," said a close friend, director George Seaton. "Then he had pneumonia, and his heart couldn't take it.

"He was a wonderful actor and was loved by everybody."

PLAYED SANTA CLAUS

In his recent Hollywood roles the British-born actor was nearly always cast as a benevolent old gentleman — in his academy award-winning role he played a department store Santa Claus.

But he started out as a juvenile lead on the London stage of the late 1890s. He was cast opposite Gerald Du Maurier in "Peter Pan" and was in 1903 in Shaw's Man and Superman.

"Later — in 1910 and 11 — he played Eliza Doolittle's father in Shaw's Pygmalion."

Gwenn served in the First World War, rising from private to captain in the British army. He appeared in a New York stage production in 1922, returned to London, and later came to Hollywood in the 1930s to start a long series of character and supporting roles which lasted until he retired in 1956.

Survivors include two sisters and a brother in London, his birthplace.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — It would be a bad time to shirk your responsibilities in search of something new that seems desirable. It is nothing more than tinsel. P.M. you have a fine inspiration for having a truly wonderful time at amusements.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Concentrate on the good ideas being given you by an authority who has your interest at heart instead of dreaming about insignificant things. Pay full attention. P.M. spend it at shoes with closest kin. Fine for relaxation.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Blunt associate could now criticize you or family ties if you permit. Be kind to those who are afflicted. P.M. get together with dearest friends and good partners for a happy and carefree time. Be generous.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Matters of own work require more speed than you had anticipated today. Plan labors wisely first and then all will be O.K. P.M. be sure to get wardrobe in order, look into affairs of health, particularly with regard to your throat.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You have an opportunity to attend some especially swanky social affair, but jealous associate endeavors to dissuade you. Pay no attention and go out. Have a marvelous time, but be sure you are not too extravagant.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — While matters at home displease you considerably, A.M. is not the time to try to straighten them out. Await the evening when you can gently adjust all after a good meal and others are in expansive mood. Be wise — not forceful.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Private anxiety has you hiding away instead of going after those fine opportunities right around the corner. Get control of yourself, then full speed ahead. P.M. study, write, etc.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — During A.M. you find yourself torn between going after some large enterprise or listening to much talk from persons who only detain you. Get away as soon as you can and go align your objectives with real enthusiasm. Be firm.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) —Refrain from getting into that stubborn mood that could cause you to go against authority, or you are apt to lose much of value. P.M. is fine time to start an upturn in your affairs, whether business or emotional.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Too much worry and extra planning now could find you with nothing accomplished by the end of the day. Jump right into your duties with zest and all will turn out fine. Evening is fine for romance and entertainments.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Don't lose out on opportunity to advance right now because you are worried over bills, etc., facing you, especially in connection with loved one. P.M. you have opportunity to be with a very good friend.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — By exercising self-control you can rise above seeming difficult problems and associate who is being very picky. Use much tact during day hours. Tonight is then fine for being with outsiders, getting affairs in order.

If your child is born today ... The fine child born today has every chance for success if you first teach to handle policy affairs, good ethics, etc. Then there is great ability to whittle large enterprises down to practical size. If this is not done, your most clever youngster may simply start building without first having made any intelligent plans. Excellent horoscope for Jhere is perseverence and loyalty here, too.

QUEBEC PREMIER

Maurice Roy of Quebec finally before the bar in the Legislative Assembly and prayed.

The premier's foes as well as his admirers all noted his remarkable record: 32 consecutive years a legislative member for Trois-Rivieres; seven years the Quebec Opposition leader at different times; 18 years premier.

Under Mr. Duplessis, French Canada was transformed from an agricultural domain into a province bursting with industry.

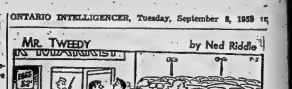
APPEASED PROMOTERS

In the public mind, the premier became a solid political point of reference. Other younger elements had become restive under his rule. But in the past year or so he had made promotions and nominations to his cabinet to give them, the chance to direct the Union Nationale party he founded.

SAUVE FAVORED

Most reports favored Joseph-Paul Sauve, 52, as Mr. Duplessis' successor. The minister of youth and welfare was treated as premier-designate at Quebec airport Monday when the body of Mr. Duplessis arrived from Schefferville.

Mr. Sauve, a veteran of 29 years in provincial politics, was reported to have clashed with other cabinet ministers on Lieutenant-Governor Gaston Cote's lagnoe, who will ask some minister to form a new Union Nationale party government.



Mr. Sauve, a lawyer, war veteran and son of a former Quebec opposition leader, in recent months all at Mr. Duplessis' right in the legislature—traditionally regarded as the No. 2 man.

Mr. Sauve would bring to the party Federalist-leaning views and long experience in election campaigning. He was first elected to the Quebec House in 1930 as a 21-year-old Conservative member for Two Mountains riding.

He held his seat during the Second World War when he commanded his Fusiliers Mont Royal with distinction that won him the French Croix de Guerre.

Seven-Month Trade Deficit Is Double That of Year Ago

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada rolled up a $459,800,000 trade deficit in the first seven months of the year—more than double the level a year earlier—as imports trade expanded at a 10-per-cent rate.

The bureau of statistics said today that commodity imports were an estimated $3,310,200,000 in the January-July period, compared with $3,000,700,000 a year earlier.

Nearly two-thirds of the rise resulted from purchases from the United States.

Exports in the seven-month period rose more slowly, to $2,-850,400,000, from $2,802,000,000.

The trade deficit—excess of imports over exports—jumped to $459,800,000 from $198,700,000.

The rapid expansion in Canada's purchases abroad, powered by the current boom conditions, was especially marked in July when imports rose 14.6 per cent to an estimated $431,700,000 from $431,700,000 in July, 1958.

July exports increased by only 1 per cent to an estimated $421,600,000, and the trade deficit for the month rose to $42,200,000 compared with $10,100,000 a year earlier.

In trade with the United States, the trade deficit in January-July was $507,600,000—larger than the overall deficit in trade with all countries.

The customary surplus in Canada's trade with the United Kingdom was sharply reduced during January-June and was almost wiped out in July—as shipments to the U.K. declined in the face of rising Canadian imports from that source.

Exports from the United States in the seven-month period rose to $2,299,800,000 from $2,102,500,000. Canada's exports there increased to $1,792,200,000 from $1,-818,500,000. The trading deficit thus increased to $507,600,000 in January-July from $485,000,000.

In July alone the trade deficit with the U.S. jumped to $49,400,000 from $21,300,000. Imports during the month were $334,700,000 compared with $285,800,000 a year earlier, while exports advanced to $285,300,000 from $249,800,000.

Trade with the United Kingdom, however, exports declined in January-July to $418,600,000 from $443,800,000. British shipments to Canada climbed to $336,-000,000 from $314,800,000. Canada's surplus in U.K. trading was narrowed to $82,000,000 from $129,000,000.

Duplessis' Body Lies in State In Courthouse of Home Town

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—All night long the people of Trois-Rivieres filed past the bier of Premier Maurice Duplessis to pay last respects to their most famous fellow townsman.

The premier's body lies in state in the Trois-Rivieres courthouse, and the doors of the big stone building will not close until after the funeral at 11 a.m. EDT Thursday.

About 1,000 people an hour moved past the bier during the day in the evening. Matrons in furs, businessmen in neat suits, teenagers in jeans, even in sportshirts and women in house dresses. Some were old.

Several priests moved with the line and stopped beside the bier to recite prayers.

The line filed past the coffin on one side of the main entrance of the courthouse, where half a dozen booths are set up around the clock for the viewers to sign before leaving the building.

Flowers were carried in a steady stream through a side door at the courthouse.

Four secretaries compiled lists of donors with the type of flowers they sent. The list filled a provincial-sized and permanent record book.

The 69-year-old premier was stricken Thursday with a cerebral hemorrhage while visiting the Shawinigan Falls power development at Scheffertville, in northeastern Quebec. He died there at 12:01 a.m. Monday.

His body was brought to Quebec City, where it lay in state at the Legislative Building and was viewed by an estimated 50,000 people.

A cortege which included 25 cars of floral tributes brought the body to Trois-Rivieres, the home town of Duplessis, a symbol of the province he was like a god," said a policeman standing guard outside the courthouse.

Eighth Trois - Rivieres policemen in white uniforms helmets and gloves with the bulky bronze coffin and had difficulty getting it through the courthouse door.

A white floral cross was flooded behind the coffin, and below it was a pillow of blue and white flowers arranged in the official colors of Quebec, a symbol the premier gave the people of the province when he was ill. At either end of the coffin were enormous bouquets of red roses.

Eli Jan Dambrouin, controversial political career Premier Duplessis made enemies as well as friends, but the enemies were mostly among politicians — a bi-election that returned him in every election since 1927.

Believed Man Killed Carried Bomb Aboard Mexican Plane

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Crew members expressed belief today that a passenger who lunged to his death in the cockpit apparently rocked Mexican airliner carried aboard a bomb that caused the blast.

The explosion blew out a door of the DC-3 Tuesday while it was flying over the valley about Muzuzo in Mexico. Jhong Feu, near the Viet Nam border, and that the plane then began attacking Communist guerrillas south of Muongson near Myong Hiem, where the Muongson Valley meets the province of Luong Prabang.

Red Tape Makes Gigantic Headache Of Task of Arranging Nikita's Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — Much of what Nikita Khrushchev will see on his visit to the United States is still an official mystery, even though his arrival is only ten days away.

So far only a bare-bones outline of the Soviet Premier's itinerary has been issued here, although the announcement of his coming was given out by President Eisenhower more than five weeks ago.

An apparent reason for the delay lies in red tape in Moscow—even thicker than the Washington variety — which makes still more difficult the already arduous task of preparing for an historic visit of top importance.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, has named the hall-dozen U.S. cities Khrushchev will visit and the dates.

U.S. - Soviet negotiations over nuts-and-bolts details of the visit have been conducted here through State Undersecretary Robert Murphy and Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov.

Menshikov isn't taking chances on approving something Khrushchev might not like. He sends all proposals to Moscow and then awaits for a reply. After an answer does come back, he sees Murphy again for more details.

On top of this, Khrushchev is noted for springing on impulse and ignoring his itinerary.

The headaches to planners from an unsettled schedule are compounded on a mammoth scale in the case of the Soviet leader's visit. They make this summer's royal tour of Canada simple by comparison.

About 100 Russians are expected to accompany the premier. They will have to be received, fed and housed wherever they go.

About 250 reporters and photographers have applied to cover the tour. More than 1,000 want accreditation at local stops.

In the matter of hotel reservations alone, advance checks show that during the Sept. 20-21 period allotted for Khrushchev's stop at San Francisco seven conventions will be in town.

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—The Laotian Army has recaptured the key military post of Muongsing in the heart of the Communist-infiltrated Muongson Valley, it was officially announced today.

This is the fourth time the post has changed hands since the jungle war flared up in mid-July.

Muongson, standing in an inaccessible valley in Sam Neua province about 30 miles from the border with Communist North Viet Nam, was the scene of a heroic defence during the first rebel attacks on July 26.

The garrison lost 13 of its 40 men but was reported to have killed or wounded 80 attackers.

The army announced that the post had been retaken on Aug. 30 by two battalions which moved in from the south after the aim of sweeping the rebels back up the valley.

Army sources said this counter-attack was broken up by a concerted rebel offensive against the forts along the River Ma in northern Sam Neua on Aug. 31. Muongson later fell into rebel hands again.

The communique said guerrilla groups were once again moving down the valley from Muong Mo to Muongsing. Muong Feu, near the Viet Nam border, and that the Laotian Army was attacking south of Muongson near Myong Hiem, where the Muongson Valley meets the province of Luong Prabang.

Italy, Argentina, Japan and Tunisia Agree To Speed Their Fact-Finding Task in Laos

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The United Nations' new fact-finding group may get a team off to Laos by the weekend to investigate reported invasions from Communist North Viet Nam.

The subcommittee, set up by the Security Council over bitter Soviet protests, met Tuesday with council President Egidio Ortona of Italy to make plans for its mission.

Ortona said the four members—Italy, Argentina, Japan and Tunisia — agreed it was vital to carry out their task as quickly as possible.

The West proposed the inquiry group as a compromise the Russians might not oppose too strongly. Laos had called for UN troops to meet the alleged Red aggression in the same way that the Western powers rallied to the defence of South Korea against Communist North Korea in 1950.

RED ACCUSATION

The Western plan ran into immediate opposition from North Viet Nam, which declared the setting up the fact - finding group was illegal.

The Hanoi government also charged in a statement that the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), headed by the United States, plans direct intervention in Laos.

The Red regime said the only way to ease tension in the Southeast Asia trouble would be to enforce the Geneva agreement of 1954 that ended the Indochinese war and to restore the Canada-Poland-India international control commission it provided.

Canada has gone along with Laos' contention that the commission should not be re-established at this time.

A spokesman in Hanoi denied again that North Vietnamese troops are fighting in Laos.

Khamphan Panya, Laotian foreign minister, en route to the General Assembly, told reporters in New Delhi that if the UN fails to stop troops from entering his country from North Viet Nam, Laos may turn to SEATO or some other regional organization for help.

News of the fact-finding mission was hailed in the Laotian capital of Vientiane, but officials there were disappointed that there was no provision for an international military force.

The Laos delegate here, Thephathay Vilsibongs, said the presence of the fact-finding group in Laos would give the government moral support. He predicted there would be no further aggravation of the situation while the mission is there.

Vilsibongs said he had word from his government denying that all North Viet Nam troops had been pulled back. He said fighting was still going on in many places and that some North Viet Nam forces are still in Laos.

SPACE CAPSULE FALLS FAR SHORT ON FIRST FLIGHT

Test Model Designed For Trip Into Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) A mechanical failure marred the first rocket launching of an unmanned space capsule model today, but the capsule itself was quickly located afloat on the ocean.

Less than four hours after the blast-off from this missile test station, a plane flying over the Atlantic reported it had sighted the vehicle. It was several hundred miles short of its goal.

Rear - Admiral Harry Smith, commander of the recovery operation, told a dockside press conference of the sighting, by a navy plane. He did not pinpoint the location but said two destroyers were rushing to the spot.

At first it was believed that the test of the capsule designed to carry the Mercury astronaut into space had been a complete failure.

BOOSTER FAULTY

The booster stage of the powerful Atlas rocket failed to drop off after burning out on schedule and 40 seconds after the blast-off. That stage boosts the capsule to the engines which help generate 360,000 pounds of thrust at launch.

The extra weight prevented the main body of the rocket from travelling its full distance under the power of its sustainer engine.

The Atlas booster, Mercury director, reported that the missile flew too high and failed to obtain the desired velocity. For that reason it fell several hundred miles short of its intended target area 2,000 miles down the Atlantic missile range.

The Atlas was supposed to boost the one-man capsule to a height of 100 miles. Gilruth said he did not know how far up the Atlas actually soared, but it was considerably below the 100-mile level.

GOOD SIGNALS

Gilruth said good telementry signals were received from the capsule when it was about 12 minutes after launching. He said the signals ceased when it entered the earth's flight of the capsule.

He said it was hoped the capsule would have covered the intended 2,000 miles in 20 minutes.

Gilruth said that there is still a good possibility that some valuable data may be obtained from the capsule even though it fell short.

The shot was the first of its kind and was a vital test of many things that will go on the manned Project Mercury capsule.

RECOVER TEST

The experimental capsule, dubbed Big Joe, contained instruments to record its performance.

Ships and planes had been stationed in the area to aid in the Atlantic 2,000 miles away.

The launching appeared smooth as the Atlas rocket was fired from its pad and streaked into the dark sky.

The test was made amid some speculation that Russia might attempt to launch a man in space.

LIKE TV TUBE

The metal capsule looks much like television picture tube before it is inserted in its cabinet. It was perched atop the rocket where the nose cone usually fits

China Pledges Not To Invade Bhutan, Sikkim

Chou Writes to Nehru Offering to Negotiate

TOKYO (AP) — Red China pledged today that she will respect the territories of Bhutan and Sikkim as Indian protectorates, and offered to settle the border disputes with India through friendly negotiations.

At the same time the Peking regime declared all the border trouble was "caused by treasonous and provocations by Indian troops."

The pledge and the offer were made by Premier Chou En-lai to India's Prime Minister Nehru in a letter dated Sept. 8. It was broadcast today by the New China News Agency, which said the letter was in reply to a letter from Nehru of March 22. That letter was published in England as before the border incidents began.

Chou offered to settle all India's border disputes with China "through friendly negotiations conducted in a well-prepared way, step by step."

Nehru and the Chinese Communists have traded charges of aggression in the border disputes concerning land in the Himalayas between Tibet and India. China claims large sections of Indian frontier areas and the little states between India and Tibet.

TRADE LAST MONTH

Nehru made his first public charge last month—more than a year after it had formed into the first recorded fight between Indian and Chinese troops—when a clash "It took place at Migyitun, in the eastern border region" Aug. 25.

Nehru has pledged to protect both India's "frontiers and lists" and Bhutan and Sikkim, but the pressing hope that differences with Peking could be settled by negotiations.

Monday the Indian government published a 125-page white paper with notes and other documents detailing the long and progressively acrimonious exchanges between New Delhi and Peiping.

EXPRESSES DISPLEASURE

Chou's letter expressed displeasure at the way some Indians are reporting the border dispute between India and Red China.

"Some people in India are creating a big uproar about the maps published in 'Communist' China, saying that they are encroachments upon Indian territory," Chou said. "This is entirely unworthy.

At the same time Chou blamed India for starting the trouble.

"The tense situation recently arising on the Chinese - Indian border was all provoked by treacherous and provocations by Indian troops," he wrote.

The Chinese premier Kongju, an outpost in the northeast frontier agency, as one that was occupied by the Indians. This is the same outpost the Indians accuse the Chinese of occupying illegally.

Snow Falls at Calgary But Hot, Humid Weather Persists in East

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Southern Ontario sweltered in humid 90-plus temperatures while Calgary got a dusting of snow.

Hamilton had a blistering 96 degrees Tuesday to wilt city officials' hopes for the hottest point in Canada. Malton Airport near Toronto was next with the high in downtown Toronto was 92. Humidex readings were also high.

But Calgary's high of 44 with frost due overnight, was almost the same as the Arctic outpost point, Eanadal Lake in the Northwest Territories. The high there was 34.

Temperatures around the 80-degree mark prevailed in the Prairie Provinces, and Montreal was hot and humid with a high of 86 and a half-degree off the 1945 record for that date; Ottawa had a high of 85.

Manitoba was the starting point for the cool trend general in the West. Winnipeg temperatures rose to 70 after an overnight low of 46. A high of 60 was on tap today.

Edmonton was sweeping down from the Arctic numbed Alberta.

In British Columbia, maximum temperatures were around 60.

The cool B.C. weather was blamed largely for a drop in attendances at the Pacific National Exhibition. The PNE ended Tuesday night with attendance totalling 492,000 down 492 from last year's total and 116,878 short of the objective of 1,000,000.

The Prairie weather was affected by a vigorous storm centre that swept through the Dakotas. Forecasters said the centre, with the storm's progress across Manitoba and northwestern Ontario, would be the most well be the means of breaking the Eastern heat wave. It was to move this week but in the meantime it is merely expected to bring thundershowery winds which are roasting Southern Ontario and Quebec.

Forecast highs today for Southern Ontario range from 90 at Windsor to 85 at Hamilton and St. Catharines and 92 at Toronto. In Northern Ontario the highs were expected to range between 65 and 75.

Montreal and Ottawa will get highs of about 85, with 75 at Quebec City.

TRADING STAMPS DECLARED LEGAL BY MINISTERS

Only One Province Made at Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Trading stamps are legal as long as they don't intrude on the government's field of authority, the money, Justice Minister Fulton and Attorney-General Kelso Roberts of Ontario agreed here Tuesday.

More information may be produced later this year by the report of the royal commission on price spreads with regard to the current use of the stamps as sales promotion gimmicks, Mr. Fulton added.

But the two ministers said after a three-hour conference that they have formed no opinion about whether legislation is needed for trading stamps when used to promote retail sales.

Mr. Fulton was scheduled today to hear the opinion of the Retail Merchants Association. He has criticized the stamps on grounds they put the smaller businessman at a serious disadvantage.

Mr. Roberts opposed to the stamps?

"From what we know at present, I would say that Mr. Public shouldn't be interfered with unless there is good reason to do so," he replied. "After all, he pays the bills and he has to do with his dollar better than I do."

The existing curbs on use of retailing stamps are included in the Criminal Code as framed before the 1930 depression. These curbs, Mr. Fulton said, protect the government's revenue from indirect currency. If it was found that there fire loopholes in this part of the code, the law would be amended.

Mr. Fulton added that he hasn't recommended anything to the cabinet about the trading stamp problem. Insofar as the stamp comprised advertising matter, he said, it appears questionable whether Parliament could legislate controls.

Police Charge Accused With Public Mischief

TORONTO (CP)—Police Tuesday charged a man in Provincial Court with public mischief after he allegedly received a call from a friend to say a woman he had been strangled and her body put in a trunk.

The charge came after a six-hour investigation by Toronto detectives and CPR officials who searched hundreds of boxcars on railroad yards.

The priest told police a man had come to him Monday and wanted to confess the slaying of his wife.

When police questioned the man they were told he and his wife had argued and he had thrown her body in a boxcar near their flat.

Police said they believed the woman, Bertha Hallwell, left the flat after the argument.

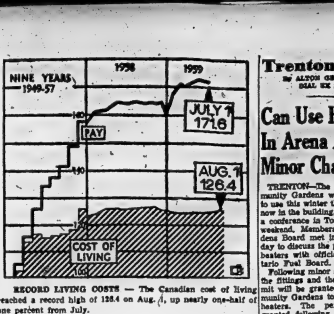
Kiwanis Club Honored by Local Red Cross

The local Kiwanis Club was honored Tuesday by the branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society for its many years of service to that organization.

President Gerry Wishart accepted on behalf of the club, a citation by local Red Cross branch president Arnold Wolfenden at the regular weekly meeting of the club in the Kiwanis Centre.

The Belleville Kiwanis Club is the only service club in eastern Ontario to be so honored since local branches decided to honor service clubs for their work on behalf of the Red Cross, Mr. Wolfenden stated.

The citation notes the club was honored for its generosity in loaning the use of the Kiwanis Centre for the Red Cross Society's mobile blood donor clinics during World War II, the Korean War, and the present operation of plan A of the Society's free blood plasma service. In addition, many Kiwanians have volunteered as blood donors and have provided free donors of rare blood types needed for emergency operations at Belleville General Hospital.



Mr. Wolfenden, in presenting the citation, said he hoped for the club's continued support, and noted the local Red Cross branch is a member of the Belleville United Appeal.

President Wishart announced a brief report by Malcolm Turnbull that grading and seeding of the area at the Fairgrounds for the proposed club — sponsored baseball diamond will start this week.

During the entertainment portion of the meeting Kiwanians were treated to a thrilling re-enactment of the 1958 Grey Cup game between Hamilton Tiger Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers via a colored film entitled "1958 Grey Cup Festival". Included in the hour — long film were highlights of the Grey Cup parade, half-time entertainment and jubilant antics of the fans who poured into Vancouver for the annual grid classic.

Next distance visitor this week was Mr. William T. Hume, of Edinburgh, Scotland, father of Kiwanian George Hume.

RECORD LIVING COSTS — The Canadian cost of living reached a record high of 126.4 on Aug. 1, up nearly one-half of one percent from July.

This graph (shaded area) traces the yearly average of the price index during 1949-57, its movements through 1958 and so far this year. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

Also shown is the index of average wages and salaries which stood at 171.6 July 1, last date for which figures are available. This compared with 171.9 June 1 and 164.6 July 1 last year. (CP Newsmap.)

Can Use Heaters In Arena After Minor Changes

TRENTON—The Trenton Community Gardens will be allowed to use this winter the gas heaters now in the building, as a result of a conference in Toronto over the weekend. Members of the Gardens Board met in Toronto one day to discuss the problem of the heaters with officials of the Ontario Fuel Board.

Following minor adjustments in the fittings and the units will be changed in the method of lighting these heaters. At the present time the heaters are lighted individually by hand. The fuel board recommended that this be changed so that the heaters are lighted by some electrical method or that the pilot lights be left on for a trial point by hand.

A representative from the Ontario Fuel Marshal's Office will be in Trenton in the near future to check over the new fittings and gages which will have to be made. All changes which must be made are expected to be completed that the cost of the changes will be reasonable. A representative of the Gardens Board stated that it was expected that the changes would be made and the gas heaters ready for operation within the next month.

Representing Trenton at this hearing were John Farrell, chairman of the Community Gardens Board, and Vagn Lange and D. R. Fraser, members of the Board.

Chlorine Gas Overcomes Man

TRENTON — A member of the staff of the Public Utilities Commission was overcome by gas at the filtration plant over the week-end and was rushed to the Trenton Memorial Hospital. Ernest Bedford of Bedford Street was overcome by fumes of chlorine gas at the filtration plant where he was working.

Officials state that Parent was cleaning out a cylinder of chlorine gas which was being used in the process of purifying the water when the accident occurred. Apparently one of the valves on the cylinder did not close completely and the escaping gas caused Parent to black out.

Council Rejects Motion to Rule Out Left Turns

City council in committee last night turned down a traffic committee recommendation which would have ruled out left turns for westbound traffic from Bridge Street onto Colemen Street during the early afternoon traffic peak.

The motion would have ruled out the left turns from four to six p.m. from Monday until Friday. Proponents of the motion said the intention was to clear the left turns from Coleman to James Street and in this way alleviate a traffic bottleneck on the James Street.

Opponents of the move, however, argued that westbound traffic still had room to pass to the right of cars waiting to make a left turn from Coleman Street.

The traffic committee will be expected to call a meeting of the various bus companies running local buses into the city with the view of ironing out franchise differences.

Council was told that the Rawson Bus Company who have an exclusive franchise in the city, object to other buses picking up passengers within the city for discharge at other points within the corporation.

At the same time council will formally notify the Rawson Bus Company that it has no objection to the addition of a Fairley Ave. bus route to serve the new Moira Secondary School area.

Weston Man Lands Three Muskies At Adolphustown, Two Get Away

Don't ever talk to Harry G. of Weston about the one that got away. He will only laugh and tell you about the two that got away and the one he'll also tell you about the three that didn't.

Young went fishing in the Bay of Quinte, off Adolphustown, last weekend, landing three fine muskies totaling 59 pounds, and stories of two more that came close to joining their finned friends in the Young deep freeze.

The biggest of the retained three weighed 24½ pounds and measured 44 inches in length with a 19½-inch girth. The other two tipped the scales at 17 pounds apiece.

Wonder what the pair weighed that got away?

Apparently Mr. Young was not the only visiting fisherman to find the Adolphustown waters to his liking either.

Russell "Tuffy" Trauger of St. Perkasie, Penn., landed another muskie in the same vicinity last Saturday evening, this one weighing 23½ pounds. Besides, it measured 42½ inches in length with a girth of 19¾ inches.

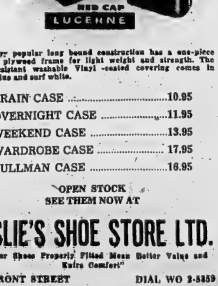
Mr. Trauger, who caught the big fellow with a 69-cent red and white spoon, said the muskie fitt up a great fight, leaping high in the air several times in an attempt to free itself.

Sounds like Adolphustown water has some sort of attraction for muskie, and for fishermen too, after last weekend.

Police Search For Kidnappers

NIAGARA - ON - THE - LAKE, Ont. (CP)— Provincial police are in the second day of search for two armed men who abducted Mr. and Mrs. George Rooney from their Fire Road home Sunday night and freed them unharmed Monday near Trenton, 200 miles away.

The pair drove away in the Rooney's car.



The gunmen, described as in their late 20's, entered the Rooney home and took $55, jewelry and clothing.

Police Chief Lou Warner said Tuesday that police had no definite suspects in mind.

The Canadian Press reported erroneously Monday night that police had issued warrants for the arrest of Ronald Lee Harvey and Peter Lee Madison, both Boston youths, on charges of armed robbery and kidnapping.

Police are still seeking the two youths, however. Their car was found abandoned Sunday near Lake Ontario east of Port Weller.

Municipal Board to Withhold Approval of Expenditures Until Inquiry Findings Given

Pending the completion of the judicial enquiry into the city's financial affairs, the Ontario Municipal Board will not approve in Belleville sharing in the cost of the proposed new Hastings county courthouse.

This was learned by city councillors Tuesday night at their first committee meeting following the summer recess when letters were read from the Municipal Board pertaining to applications for board approval for courthouse and for widening of College Street at an estimated costs of $127,000.

The board indicated that it would withhold approval on the city's cost in both projects until after the judicial enquiry scheduled to commence on September 28th. A recent audit of the city's books indicated an estimated city deficit of about $255,000.

The city's share of the cost of the proposed new Hastings county courthouse would be slightly in excess of one third. Total cost of the combined courthouse, county council chambers and registry office would be $581,000. The city does not share in the cost of the registery office nor Shire Hall accommodation.

Hastings county council has awarded the contract for the construction of the new courthouse to the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton. The contract was conditional on the Municipal Board approval of the project.

Widening of College Street North Front Street to Sidney Street will now be delayed as result of the withholding of approval by the municipal board for the expenditure of $127,000. It was intended that the work would be done under the general rate.

The matter was tabled until after the report on the judicial enquiry is received by council.

Hockey Matters Under Discussion By City Council

The cloes to 90 degree temperature was far from that normally associated with ice, but hockey matters were up for discussion by city council Tuesday evening.

The issue at hand was the reported sale of the contract of Jean Paul Lamirande by the Belleville McFarlands to the Windsor Bulldogs, and who was to receive the money from the sale. The team has been taken over by Harvey McFarland of Picton.

Alderman Ben Safe noted that the city had paid the cost of purchasing Lamirande and said it would only be right that any money coming from the sale of his contract should come back to the city.

Mayor Gerald Hyde noted that the contracts and employment of the hockey team had been offered by the city to Mr. McFarland but thus far he had neither accepted nor rejected the offer.

Alderman Claude Tice said the Belleville McFarlands as associated with the city had been declared defunct, therefore the Lamirande's contract was not owned by the city.

Then Mr. McFarland is selling something which he does not own," countered Mr. Safe. "I wouldn't say that either," Mr. Tice replied.

Discussion on the Lamirande incident ended without Alderman Safe receiving a satisfactory answer to his question, but the hockey topic was continued following receipt of a letter from City Solicitor R. A. Pringle, which advised that the city had no legal responsibility in the payment of back wages for members of the McFarland's hockey team or for outstanding accounts owed by the team and Arena committee.

The city solicitor noted in his letter that expenditures by any committee of council had to be approved by council.

Opinion expressed by several council members was that although there may not be a legal responsibility for the city to pay back salaries if the hockey players and to pay other outstanding accounts, there at least was a moral one.

Discussion on the matter ended with the Mr. Pringle noting that the letter was merely for the information of council.

Cinnibar Moths Continue to Arrive in City

Immigration to Canada has fallen off in recent months according to figures from the Canadian Immigration Department, but such is not the case at the Entomology Laboratory in Belleville.

New arrivals — insects that is — are continuing to reach the city from all over the world, as the big laboratory goes about its work in the biological control of harmful insects and weeds.

One of the programs being carried on at the moment calls for laboratory testing of the Cinnibar moth which in some areas has proven successful in the control of Tansy Ragwort, a pasture weed which is spreading rapidly in Western Ontario and in Nova Scotia.

Dr. R. P. Belmr, head of the Entomology Laboratory here notes that Cinnibar moths have been imported from many different countries, including the U.S.S.R., Japan and several European countries.

Last week the lab received a shipment of the moths from Ireland. This week another shipment of 500 arrived from Sweden, and so it goes. In addition insects from many other countries are received regularly.

The Cinnibar moths are tested in the laboratory and if they stand up to Canadian conditions and are proven successful in assisting in the control of Tansy Ragwort they will be released in the effected area to combat the weed.

Cats, Trenton Resume Series Tomorrow

Trenton Garretts and Belleville Bobcats will resume their Belleville and District Softball League finals at the CNIB Park tomorrow (Thursday) evening at six o'clock.

At the present time the four-of-seven series is tied at two games apiece, the Cats having won the first two and Trenton the next pair. The series was suspended because of OASA playdowns two weeks ago. Winners of this series will receive the Bill Orr trophy.

No definite date has been set for the sixth game in Trenton but it will likely be played some time next week. The Bobcats are engaged in the OASA Intermediate "AA" playdowns with Toronto East York at the present time. They lead that semi-final series one game to none with the next game in Toronto Saturday night at 7.45 p.m.

of territory claimed by India, Chou said it was not his country's maps "but British and Indian maps that unilaterally altered the way the Chinese-Indian boundary was drawn."

India has reported brief fighting on the border, but Chou insisted that recent border incidents have not developed into armed clashes.

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Outnumbered defenders at lonely Longju outpost on India's northeastern frontier held off an attacking force of about 500 Communist Chinese for a night, but finally fell back when they ran out of ammunition, it was reported today.

Official sources confirmed a story in the Times of India which for the first time gave details of the incursion by Chinese forces last month from Tibet.

The Times of India says an attack on Aug. 25 was described by the Assam riflemen who vacated the Longju outpost and reached Limeking, another garrison in the Subansiri division.

The men said a forward post was ambushed by Chinese troops and one rifleman was killed, a second wounded, a third was seen falling into a ditch and a fourth captured.

That night the Chinese besieged Longju outpost, but were held at bay by steady fire until the defenders ran out of ammunition the following day.

Chinese troops were still understood to be occupying part of Indian territory about three miles south of the border.

Errors in Summonses

Cannot something be done to improve the eyesight of the Peterborough police force?

Or, in the alternative as the lawyers would say, cannot something be done to improve the system which leads to the mistakes made by the Peterborough police force and, presumably, which must lead to similar mistakes by other police forces?

Twice in the past few months members of the editorial staff of The Ontario Intelligencer have received summonses for traffic infractions in Peterborough.

In neither case was the alleged offender even in Peterborough on the date in question.

If anybody thinks that this is a clear case of persecution of members of The Ontario Intelligencer editorial staff by members of the Peterborough police force, we are happy to be disillusioned them. The Peterborough police have already proven — well half-proven for the case of the second summonses is still undecided — that they bear us nothing but good will. They tore up one summonses — and it is hoped and anticipated hereabouts that the second summonses will get similar treatment.

But—

When this kind of thing can happen twice in a few months to people in such a small group as The Ontario Intelligencer editorial staff, it would be the most devilish of coincidences if these were solitary cases of misread licence numbers. There must be many other mistakes of a similar nature. The question that arises is whether this type of mistake is made only by members of the Peterborough police force, and if so why, or whether similar errors are made by other police forces, and if so what steps can be taken to remedy this situation.

For, in spite of the courteous manner in which the first mistake was remedied, it should be obvious that if enough errors of this kind occur some person is going to be not only unjustly accused but unjustly penalized. One of these times the offending car will be of the same make, color and model as the car registered under the wrongly-charged licence number. It seems obvious that traffic laws cannot continue to be enforced whereby the car owner's word for it that he was not the culprit. And did you ever try to prove that you were not a such-and-such a place at such-and-such a time two weeks ago? To do this satisfactorily, one must prove where one actually was. Where were you, dear reader, at 7.12 p.m. on the night of August 18? And, if you can remember, have you a witness who can also remember?

The Wrong Decision

The Ontario Municipal Association has voted for a resolution seeking a provincial lottery or sweepstakes to raise money for hospitals.

We believe the Association did not consider all aspects of this proposal.

We do not dispute the contention of delegates favoring the motion that gambling is commonplace, nor do we hold with the view of some opponents that sweepstakes are necessarily a racket.

It does seem to us, however, that there is something degrading about the spectacle of a rich and prosperous country like Canada depending upon the gambling urge to finance what should be a first charge on the purse of any truly civilized community, the proper care of its sick.

If the people want lotteries — and there is considerable evidence that they do — then let governments run them, let them abolish the present hypocritical ban which is so seldom adequately enforced.

But, if the proceeds of these lotteries are earmarked for anything in particular, let them go to finance the non-essentials, for broader highways, or better TV programs, or communities that can't afford public swimming pools, or civic stadiums, or Canada's Olympic Games entries, or a host of other things.

But not, please, for hospitals.

Let us not say, in effect, to the men and women broken in body or in mind that we shall endeavor to heal them — providing enough people want to take a chance on getting rich quick — but that we cannot possibly consider meeting their needs out of regular taxes because there are so many other more important things which must be attended to first.

Translating Bird Songs

New York Times

Some interesting studies are being made by scientists of various animal "languages." Experiments in translating ape and bird sounds seem to have progressed of late.

The study of bird songs in the ornithology laboratory of Cornell University reveals that all birds don't speak the same language. It was often wondered why two groups of seemingly identical birds never interbred or interbred. The scientists say it's because the groups have marked differences in their sounds and they 'tell' each other apart entirely by vocal means.

* * *

The songs are scientifically recorded by a sensitive and complicated machine called an audiospectrograph which turns sounds into writing. A bird's solo, which usually lasts about two seconds, is played hundreds of times, while progressively higher or lower notes are filtered through. Each time the audiospectrograph records the sound with a pen on a roll of sensitive paper. The finished picture represents the entire bird song in writing. It shows each note, the voice range and the pleasing harmonies of overtones. These experiments have proved that birds may sing several notes at once, thereby performing a true musical chord.

The next step is helping to trace the origins and evolution of certain species of birds; to learn more about bird language, and some varieties probably descended from others.

* * *

Long before the scientists, the poets, with their usual insight, sing the songs of the birds. Joy Kilmer, in "Trees," says speaking are the predominant themes. Shelley begged his lark to "teach me half the gladness that thy brain must know," and Keats wrote of "the voiced mystery" and the pleasing of God. But some students of nature say that the bird song is the expression of superabundant energy and happy excitement which finds relief in song. Others ascribe the sufficiency of food and possibly, a premonition of love. The ability to call animals and birds understand something of each other's language. In a recent hunter knows, a cry of alarm by a bird is often an alert for all the forest inhabitants to take cover.

Sometimes one species of animal will apparently answer or echo the call of another. A visitor to the Bronx Zoo, on a gray, winter's day remembers the strange cry of a bird from one side of the zoo answered at regular intervals by the piercing call of a bird from the opposite side of the zoo. They seemed to be talking as in a scholarly duet which sounded like a heartfelt lament for the world.

* * *

The Smithsonian Institution now has a project on for the recording of the birds' kinds and squeals of monkeys. Engineering scientists have been made to convince the scientists that similar have definite language — in short. There are from six to eight major sounds, with changes in loudness and inflection, and also, it is believed, in meaning. These sounds are used in the essential emotions of love, hate, joy, anger, fear, and sorrow.

A British jungle traveler told recently of observing a herd of adult baboons at feeding and playing in one area, while at a distance a group of small fish youngsters were segregated under the supervision of old matron baboon, acting as babysitter. She was making sounds ranging from scolding to cooing of emotions, and apparently her words understood perfectly.

* * *

Of course no studied translation of animal sounds is necessary for the most part as far as human understanding of them goes. Anyone, for example, can detect the triumphant note of challenge in the rooster's roar, during greeting to the dawn. Certainly no scientist is needed to interpret the purr of a cat this eloquent sound could only mean one thing—utter contentment. While we are experimenting, it would be interesting to make a high fidelity recording of that soothing, repetitive murmur and play it back to sufferers of insomnia. It would doubtless lead many of into quiet and peaceful slumber.

Garbage Men Have Hard Lot

Montreal Star

The city fathers of Paris have decided to banish noisy garbage cans. This is all to the good, of course. People do like to sleep of a morning. However, there is no denying that this will remove one means of regretting a disapproval of the human condition, and their is one thing which a Frenchman hates to have to do. And who could be more easily spared than the man who collects a city's garbage?

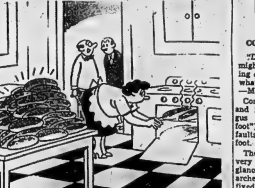
Consider what he must handle as the dawn begins to light the city's streets. Trash, that's what. Junk. Swill. The refuse of human activity, flung out carelessly and with little regard for sanitary packaging. A twice-weekly monument to the profligacy and wastefulness of man. Small wonder if he is inspired by a great disgust as he goes to the slumber all around him.

As he heaves a bin of malodorous ooze into the truck, he may speculate on how many victuals are on the crumbs that could easily have been salvaged. (Was it Pepys who reckoned that the waste thrown could be clothed with the cast-offs of the rich?) Or he may, in empty bottles, proclaiming unlikely events that he couldn't afford himself: a batch of tender letters, whose existence must have become unbearable to the souls who now exchange love-talk by telephone; a heap of long shattered doll that delighted some toasted head until she clobbered it with a brick and threw it with it.

If he reflects for long on this flotsam, he could get awfully steamed up about belonging to the human race. But he hasn't a wipe up after it. At times like this he can't temper to vent his spleen by slamming the emptied can back onto the pavement, and seeing how far he can send the lid flying.

Form Letters Not Helpful

Windsor Star



Most large corporations spend large amounts trying to popularize themselves. Too many of them, all too often, offset this by adopting a cold impersonal which tend to make them unpopular.

Form letters are an illustration. They are impersonally cold and unfriendly. There is no distinction as to the character of the individual recipient or, frequently, of the circumstances.

The experience of a Windsor man recently (and it is not exceptional) serves as an illustration. In a minor business transaction he made, quite inadvertently, a slip of the pencil and was one which could have been corrected in five minutes after a telephone call or a personal note.

Instead he got a form letter, containing a considerable fine. By implication the company indicated he was a deadbeat and even a cheat. Yet he had dealt with this corporation for years. It had in its record proof of his regular and acceptable if its official were personal friends.

An apology was forthcoming but that did not eliminate the embarrassment caused by the thoughtless, impersonal form letter. It was a long time in regaining its customer's respect — if it ever did.

"It's from an old family recipe - - - Her grandfather owned a bakery."

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 9th, 1939.

Sunshine in brilliant contrast with the sombreness of the occasion flooded Parliament Hill today as the fifth session of the 18th Parliament met to receive the Government's proposals for war cooperation with Great Britain. Just twenty-five years and twenty days ago on August 18th, 1914, the fourth session of the 12th Parliament met — hurriedly summoned because of a sequence of events similar to those taking place in Europe today. That war session lasted five days. Political observers generally forecast a present session of less than two weeks. Parliament assembled today for the grim task of passing upon the Government's plan to throw Canada's resources into the war against Nazi Germany at the call of the United Kingdom. Governor-General Lord Tweedsmuir read the throne, text of the Speech from the Throne. Honorable Members of the Senate; Members of the House of Commons, for you are only too well aware of efforts to maintain the peace of Europe have failed.

The United Kingdom, in honoring pledges given as a means of avoiding hostilities, has become engaged in war with Germany. Canada has been summoned at the earliest moment in order that the government may seek authority for the measures necessary for the defence of Canada and for co-operation in the determined effort which is being made to resist further aggression.

The responsibilities resting upon them were reflected in the serious looks of Senators and of Members of the House of Commons as they greeted each other in the lobby and corridor after a separation of just over three months.

HAVE COURAGE TO ASK

There is a story in the 12th chapter of Acts — almost an inspiring one — of how when Peter was in prison the disciples met in a prayer meeting and prayed earnestly that he would be delivered. When he was delivered by the miraculous hand of God, and a little maid named Rhoda heard Peter's voice, instead of Peter's knocking and returned hurriedly to say that Peter was standing without, the response of those who were praying was, "Thou art mad."

Here they were, praying earnestly for something be granted them, and when it was granted they refused to believe that their prayers had been answered.

This is typical of what happens in the lives of everyone of us. When God actually answers our prayers we are usually so overwhelmed with astonishment that we forget for some time at least that we believed we could. The fact that God has actually granted us what we asked for. Yet why pray if we do not believed we can never get it?

Our trouble is that we find it hard to believe that God actually wants to give us the desires of our hearts. We are afraid we are asking too much. The truth generally is that we are asking too little. God always wants to give us more than we have the courage to ask for.

To Your Good Health

COMMON CAUSES OF BURNING AND ITCHING FEET

"Dear Dr. Molner: What might cause burning and itching of the soles of the feet, and what is the suggested remedy? — Mrs. L. P."

Commonest causes of burning and itching feet (barring fungus infections or "athlete's foot") are faulty circulation, and faults in the mechanics of the feet.

The second may not sound very plausible to you, at first glance. However, tight feet, weak arches, or holding the foot in a fixed position (as on a long drive) can cause spasm of the muscles of the feet. The muscles rebel at being kept immovable and they retaliate by contracting tightly and tensely.

This in itself can be painful. It can, also, interfere with free circulation of the blood — which relates to the other main cause.

Now, as to poor circulation (by the time we are adults) have some "hardening of the arteries." With some of us, it is so mild that it never causes any disturbance that we recognize. With others, it becomes severe enough to cause one type of trouble or another.

The most likely trouble, if it is any, is that poor circulation is retarded to some degree. The feet and legs are particularly sensitive simply because, being at the lower part of the body, they are the region from which it is most difficult to serve in a circulation sense. It isn't difficult to get blood down there, it is hard to pump it back up again, and since work helps it get back, there isn't any room for fresh blood!

So, if the arteries are hardening, and not moving blood along in sufficient quantities, or if you have become varicose and it is difficult for blood to make the return trip around the circulation is impaired.

But keep this in mind: Circulation is a two-way job as is bathtub plumbing. It isn't just the delivery of the blood there, and then getting it back down the drain. In the body the vessels of tiny blood vessels, or capillaries, that distribute the blood. These may be carrying less blood than they should.

Excessive smoking can cause spasm of the arteries and reduced circulation as can hardening of the arteries from frostbite, or Raynaud's disease, or low metabolism (requiring treatment to step up the thyroid), all can be the basic cause of burning itching feet.

Thus the treatment (depending on the cause) can be anything from arch supports or medications which will dilate the arteries — or massage. For example, Buerger's Exercises to promote circulation in the legs and feet.

As I have mentioned so often before, the important thing is to find out the cause, then the treatment becomes easy. But salves and lotions and pills are not going to be of much help because they can't get at the basic cause we've been discussing.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I received your booklet on 'ear noises.' It did its duty, and now I have peace of mind.—M.C.R."

Thank you, and I'm happy. I don't know which category you mean — you got rid of the ear noises, or you have a chronic foot? are faulty circulation, and faults in the mechanics of the feet.

Note to Mrs. I. G.: No, menstruation will not occur if the cleis robel at being kept immovable and they retaliate by contracting tightly and tensely.

No Principle Involved Here

Hamilton Spectator

In these "touchy" times many people mistake a prejudice for a principle and go to ridiculous lengths in upholding it. The belief that politics has no place in the pulpit is a principle and so generally unquestioned as to be almost a cliche. The Polish political patriotism of Paderewski, who left his public's eyes, quite distinct from his gifts as a concert pianist and was received with honor by the Polish people, is an interest involved, as a pleasing personal quality and in contrast to the example of his fellow countryman, Chopin, who left his heart in Poland as his agonized country even when a little box of its soil was sent to him.

But Paderewski lived in the more liberal early decades of this century. Mr. Paul Robeson is not permitted the freedom of private political opinions. Times had changed.

Now from the other side of the Iron Curtain the world of music is assailed by political dogma. The Czech Philharmonic Orchestra was booked to appear in the Edinburgh Festival of arts and music, but when it learned that the solo violinist would be Madame Johanna Martzy, a Hungarian emigree, it refused to appear.

The reason given by the CPO was that it learned that Mme. Martzy has "personal and family ties with a group of postwar emigres of Hungarian Fascism."

"This attitude is one of principle," said the CPO, "and follows from Socialist realism as everything that is in any way connected with fascism."

The conclusion that can be drawn from this is the absolute necessity of keeping politics away of playing a violin.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A newspaper colleague of mine who has been a teetotaler all his life has been invited to spend the dance four years ago and one of the things his old-fashioned heart desired was a bottle of rye. He put a small nip of whiskey on arriving at the airport, another in the liner; and a nightcap of the same dimensions before going to bed. "I could give you pills," said the doctor, "what they call these pickup pills, or happens pills. And for bedtime, I could prescribe one of these light barbiturate concoctions. But I don't know enough about the end effects of these drugs, whereas I do know the medicinal effect of the short snort such as I have directed."

My colleague's wife is a lady of strong convictions whose influence never can be resisted but she had much to do with the teetotalism of my friend. It was a matter of strict deep hatred for what she had to witness daily the obvious disasters and ruin her husband's sorts are a vice. About the only thing that was to do with some ladies is outlive them.

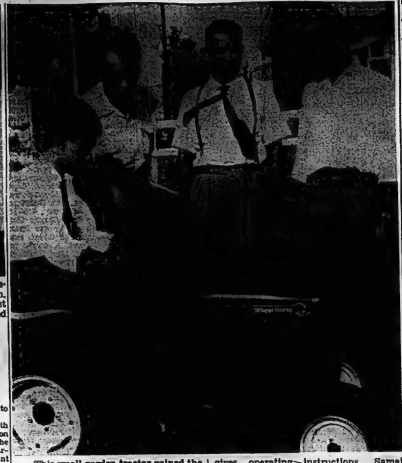
TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON THINKING

There is nothing great in this world that thinking didn't make it so. Behold achievements that have been dreams and plans. Great things don't "just happen." They have been thought out. Then prayed. "I'll think it over" is a familiar statement. Well, we do think it over, using our best judgment, we are saved from many an error.



Thinking is fuel to the mind. Never allow fuel to run out. It's like having the woodbox always full — before gas, oil, and electricity took its place. The efficient mind is a wonderful creation. The starting capacity is often amazing. Many a man has had to think his way out of a difficult position.

A single hour each day devoted to thinking might bring forth miracles. Ideas are life. Always first in—command. They have moved the world, and will continue to do so, no matter even if misused. Life is a sifting process, anyway. Only the best in any idea is preserved for the late comers. Thinking is the order and freedom of expression. We must never surrender the privilege. Thinking as we please. It's our life to make the most of.

I like to read stimulating books. Books that make me think. We can school ourselves to any procedure in life if we use that Godgiven privilege to think for ourselves, and tie to man's ideas only if they fit into our system of life. No one can corral our thoughts so long as we have birth-right of them.

Shown examining some seed samples at Bishop's Seeds are some of a delegation from Asian countries. From left to right: Wesley Henderson of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association; V. Rajagopalan of India, Bashir Ahmad, assistant director of agriculture in Pakistan, and Bill Bishop. The visitors were most impressed by the cleaning processes used in the local plant.

City Is Seeking New Temporary City Treasurer

The city of Belleville is looking for a new temporary city treasurer.

The need for the appointment of a new treasurer in an acting capacity stems from the fact that Gerrard Miner of the accounting firm of F. A. R. McFadden, who has been acting as treasurer since last May, is giving up the position to study for his chartered accountancy exams.

Mr. Miner was named acting city treasurer following the suspension of Drury Denyes when the city's financial position in connection with the McFarland's hockey club became known.

Possibility of a retired bank manager or some other qualified person taking on the job in a temporary capacity, was discussed by council. Council members were invited by Mayor Gerald Ryde to suggest anyone they might feel capable of filling the position and the matter would be investigated.

Experts From 4 Asian Lands Inspect Bishop Seeds Plant

Five agricultural experts from the countries of Pakistan, India, Burma and Thailand visited the Bishop Seeds plant yesterday afternoon. They were extremely interested in the local firm's cleaning and preparation of registered seed for the export and home markets.

The group, whose members are in Canada on travelling scholarships as a part of Canada's contribution to the Colombo Plan, will be in Canada for approximately four months. They will spend most of their time in Ottawa observing the procedures of the Plant Products Division, Production Service of the federal Department of Agriculture, with numerous trips about Ontario to visit seed growers and merchants. They will also visit the Royal Winter Fair.

Currently the visitors were on a trip to the seed trade field day being held at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph today. Along the route they visited the farm of Lt. Col. G. Reeves, a registered seed grower, at Bath before coming to Belleville.

Much delight was shown with some of the gardening tools on display in the showroom of the Bishop's firm and a small garden tractor was the focal point of interest. It was the general opinion of the visitors, however that a bullock was much more suitable for their climate.

A tour of the plant, conducted by Bruce and Bill Bishop, impressed the Asians considerably. In their countries the government handles the processing of registered seed and the cleaning methods used on any seed are usually done by the grower on hand machines. The business of retail competition amongst seed distributors was also something new to the guests.

The tour, and the fellowships, were contributed to not only by the federal government but by the Canadian Seed Growers Association, the Canadian Seed Trade Association, and the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Wesley Henderson of the seed growers' association and Mr. Douglas Parks, of the Kemptville Agricultural School, Indian representing the Ontario Department of Agriculture, were escorting the visitors on this tour. It was indicated that this visit, being tried this year for the first time, might become an annual occasion.

Mr. Bashir Ahmad, M. Sc. (Agric.), assistant director of agriculture for the Government of Pakistan, felt that there was much to be learned from the activities of Canadian seed growers and processors but that the direct application of Canadian techniques to the agricultural methods in his country would be difficult because of the different methods used and the types of farms. In East Indian countries the vast majority of farms are but a few acres in size and most of the processing is done by the individual farmer.

Upon being shown a pair of electric hedge clippers one of the group commented humorously that first his country would have to get electricity into the houses before his people could make use of such a device.

Reassessment of City Will Be Completed by End of '62

The general re-assessment of the city, ordered some months ago by city council, will get underway within the next few days with a completion date tentatively set for 1962.

The city assessment commissioner Leighton Thompson, said it was hoped the re-assessment would become effective in 1963.

The city's Bridge Street, ranging from the western outskirts to the eastern boundaries will be the testing grounds for the preparation of the new assessment manual. In this section assessors will be able to get appraisals on all types of residential properties ranging from modern ranch style construction to old dwellings and also most types of commercial enterprise.

"We would ask the co-operation of property owners and if there are any questions our men will be only too pleased to answer them," noted Mr. Thompson. If further information is wanted, owners need only call my office at the city hall."

In the new appraisal of properties in the city assessors will take into consideration the type of construction, age, the number of rooms, type of heating system, plumbing and wiring, whether or not the building has a basement, whether there is multiple occupancy, and other aspects of value.

WILL USE MANUAL

Mr. Thompson made it clear that the provincial assessment manual would be used, but this would be re-written wherever required to suit conditions in Belleville.

In an effort to further establish the level of today's values, assessors will seek information from local building contractors by way of quantity surveys.

The effect of the re-assessment will be to level out assessments. Under the scheme all assessments will undoubtedly be raised, but properties now under-assessed will be evened out.

The re-assessment will be done without additional staff in the assessor's office although summer help will be continued on a temporary basis, it was stated.

LONG CAREER AS JOURNALIST — Forty years ago a teenage girl got a job selling advertising on a 30-day basis for the Niagara Falls (Ont.) Review. Winnifred Stokes quit graduate from advertising and worked her way up as social editor and long-time police reporter before becoming managing editor. Miss Stokes — her married name is Mrs. Winnifred W. Hill — is shown here in the Review's composing room. (CP Photo).

Wyn Stokes Works Way To Managing Editor's Desk

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Forty years ago a teen-aged girl sat down in the office of the Niagara Falls Review not long after sunrise and waited for the publisher to arrive.

Winnifred Stokes was looking for a job selling advertising and writing social articles for an edition celebrating The Review's first five years as a daily.

Publisher H. S. Leslie, an early riser himself, arrived after a while and hired her on what was supposed to be a 30-day arrangement.

On Aug. 28 Mr. Leslie and his son, editor W. B. Leslie, arranged a 40 years on the desk of The Review's managing editor. The desk now is occupied by Winnifred Stokes-Wyn to her friends and colleagues.

"She has so much printer's ink in her veins now that I guess she is a permanent fixture," said Mr. Leslie.

"We never have kept banking hours in my plant," he recalls. "But this girl, so alert and early, startled me." Even at that, he admits he underestimated his "short-term" employee's zeal.

"I didn't take long for the girl to get out of the advertising department and into reporting and writing, her real love.

Wyn Stokes worked her way up as social editor and long-time police reporter before reaching the managing editor's post. During the next 40 years she has hurdled fences, climbed the Niagara Gorge and roughed it with the best of them.

But she's all feminine — declares one of her close associates. "As a journalist she's real hard-tack."

ENJOYS WORK

Looking back on 40 years of newspaper work Mrs. Stokes-her married name is Mrs. Winfred W. Hill—was asked whether she would enter the same field if she had the time over again.

"I certainly would. There is no profession on earth as fast-moving and as rewarding as the newspaper profession."

To youngsters with aspirations of becoming writers the veteran editor gives this advice:

"First, eat up as much education as you can, preferably university training in arts and journalism. Then dip your fingers into as much printer's ink as opportunity will provide.

"There is no substitute for practical experience in a newspaper office, even if it's just filling cuts in the morgue or carrying coffee for the hard - bitten editors."

She is a member of the Canadian Women's Press Club and the Canadian Managing Editors Conference. She is a member of the Niagara Falls board of education, was its first woman chairman, and was also the first woman chairman of the public library board and the community chest.

MARSH HILL — The September meeting of the Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Farley Lindenfield with 11 members, one visitor and three children present.

The president, Mrs. Farley Lindenfield, opened the meeting with a reading "Be Glad That Sing In Meditation."

Mrs. Leslie Pinkie read the minutes of the meeting for the bale which had been sent and also the 10 cents a pound.

Mrs. Bert Seaton, membership secretary, read "Our Reasonable Service."

Mrs. E. B. Finkle gave a temperance story which told how Alcoholism anonymous had helped a drunkard.

The members reported sending 33 cards, making five hospital calls and three house visits.

The president reported that the sectional Rally is to be held at Carmel on the Canniffon circuit.

The members decided to quilt a quilt for Mrs. David Little during the fall.

CALL TO WORSHIP

Mrs. F. Lindenfield gave the call to worship and Elaine Lindenfield read the Scripture.

Mrs. Lindenfield introduced the new study book, "Africa Disturbed."

Mrs. Harold Detlor read "Modern Noah to the Rescue," the story of a Biblical scene re-enacted as game wardens fight to save thousands of wild beasts from the ravaging waters of Central Africa's newly-erected Kariba Dam.

Mrs. Walter Lindenfield read a missionary story, "Under the Blood," telling of the experiences of a missionary couple.

The members contributed to the birthday box.

After the benediction, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughters, Elaine and Carol.

Women's Press Club President Is Unhappy

OTTAWA (CP) — Madeleine Levason of Montreal, president of the Canadian Women's Press Club, suggested today that some of its members may be falling into "the cult of mediocrity."

Addressing 100 delegates to the club's triennial convention, she said even the editors of the CWPC magazine N e w s p a p e r complain of "disgraceful copy" and that the club executive has noted "irresponsibility towards the simplest club obligations."

"Doesn't that indicate a serious lack of pride in our craft?" she asked. "Is this the way we approach our daily jobs? If so, can we dare to complain that women are not playing a more prominent role in this profession?"

Mrs Levason said there have been complaints that women are not playing a prominent role in journalism, but they are not being given a chance to handle responsible jobs.

"We even find complaints that men are being appointed to jobs as editors of women's pages.

If a protest were made by the men, she said, it is hard to answer would be that the man who got the particular job was better prepared to handle the job than the available women.

Many skilled women, were filling responsible press jobs but "we cannot assume that because one has succeeded, all the other women have a right to expect the same chance without making the effort."

The first business session of the week-long convention was told that the club had a total membership of 667 at June 1 last.

CRAIG—RIVERS

White gladioli and ferns formed a lovely setting in St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church, Tweed, on Saturday, August 30, at 21 a.m., when Shirley Mary Elizabeth Rivers, of Tweed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rivers, became the bride of Francis Calvin Craig, of Tweed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Craig. The Reverend Dean C. R. Baker officiated.

Miss Margaret Burns presided at the console of the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Jack Marsden.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her floor-length gown having a fitted bodice of French petit point lace, with "V" shaped neckline edged with silk organza and tiny sleeves accented by lily-pointed lace gauntlets. The bouffant skirt of lace was diagonally cut with inserts of organza. She wore a crown-type headdress encrusted with seed pearls and rhinestones with flowing veil of silk illusion, and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Jean Rivers attended the bride as maid of honor, and the Misses Irene Courneyea, and Nora Rivers as bridesmaids. The maid of honor was attired in pale flowered organza trimmed with radiant aqua, and having a molded bodice designed with rounded neckline and tiny sleeves. The bouffant skirt was enhanced by a radiant aqua cummerbund caught to a large butterfly bow at the back. She wore a large hulle picture hat in white showered around the crown with radiant aqua flowers and matching streamers; white wrist-length gloves, and a bouquet of coral and white feathered carnations completed her costume.

The two bridesmaids were gowned identically in matching party coral and carried white and aqua feathered carnations, with matching headdresses.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Bill Burkett, of Belleville, while Messrs. Leo Fobert of Cornwall and William Rivers of Tweed, were ushers.

The bride's mother received, wearing a pale blue brocaded satin gown with matching accessories, and corsage of red roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother, attired in old rose lace with white accessories and corsage of pink and white carnations.

For travelling to Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Rochester and Watertown, the bride donned a moss green sheath of antique silk shantung with white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig will reside in Tweed.

Guests were present from Kingston, Cornwall, Belleville, Toronto, Ottawa, Halloway, Oakville, Peterborough, Bath, Marmora and Madoc.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at two showers, one at the home of Mrs. Melvin Lalonde, and at the home of Miss Irene Courneyea, with Miss Nora Rivers as co-hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Calvin Craig are shown signing the register following their marriage in St. Carthagh's Church, Tweed. The bride is the former Miss Shirley Mary Elizabeth Rivers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rivers, of Tweed, and her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Craig, also of Tweed.

Quick and Popular Cookies For Lunches

by Mary Moore

Continuing with yesterday's idea of encouraging your young lunch carriers to "do-it-themselves", I have selected cookie recipes that are favorites with the young crowd and that they can make easily. Or, if necessary, you can make quickly.

Notice too that I have to get into the act by stuffing them with nourishing ingredients.

FRUIT DATE BARS:

2/3 cup sweetened condensed milk
1/3 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup flour.
1/3 cup pitted dates
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Sift the baking powder and flour together. Add chopped nuts and dates. Stir in sweetened condensed milk and vanilla and blend well. Line a shallow 8-inch square pan with waxed paper, butter it and spread mixture in smoothly to about 1/2-inch depth. Bake 30 minutes at 300 deg. Fahr. Remove from oven, invert pan and pull paper off at once. While still warm cut with sharp knife into bars and let cool.

ROLLED OATS REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

1 cup lard or shortening or butter margarine
2 cups brown sugar
2 unbeaten eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped raisins
1/4 cups sifted pastry or all-purpose flour
6 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats
1/2 cup chopped nuts

Cream the shortening very well then cream the brown sugar into it until they are both light and airy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well between each addition. Add flavor, then raisins. Sift together the measured flour with the soda and salt and add, along with the rolled oats and nuts, to the creamed mixture and beat well. Shape into rolls about 3 inches in diameter, wrapping each roll snugly in heavy waxed paper. Chill until hard. With sharp knife cut into 1/4 inch slices. Bake on ungreased cookie sheets at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 13 minutes. Do not overbake. With lifter or spatula remove cookies from cookie sheet and cool on cake rack. Store in covered tin. Note: This dough may be kept for weeks in refrigerator. Bake cookies as required.

BRAZIL JUMBLES:

1/4 cup soft shortening
1/4 cup soft butter
1/8 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/8 cups sifted all-purpose flour

1 to 2 cups shaved Brazil or other nuts

Cream together thoroughly the shortening and butter and sugar then beat in egg and vanilla. Sift together the flour, soda, and salt and stir in. Add nuts. (Note: Nuts may be omitted and tops of cookies sprinkled with a mixture of 1/4 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon after they are dropped onto 2 cookie sheets). Drop rounded teaspoonfuls about 3-inches apart on lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 8 to 10 minutes or until delicately browned. Cookies should still be soft. THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Ellen L. — She compares men to her late husband.

Greta J. — I can't help it — he was so wonderful.

* * *

Ellen L. — My sister is a widow in her early 50's. She has a married son and daughter and is living by herself.

Greta's husband has been dead for five years and I tell her it is high time she started looking around for another man. She is healthy and good looking and there is no reason why she should spend the rest of her life alone.

I've told Greta to join some organizations to meet people. She joins and then gives up after a couple of weeks. Occasionally, she has gone out with a man, but she always compares him to her late husband. I tell her this is a mistake but I can't convince her.

* * *

Greta J. — I know that it's not the right thing to do, but I can't help making comparisons. My husband was such a wonderful man — so handsome, generous and kind. There couldn't be another like him.

When I visit these clubs my sister recommends, I am always amazed and upset at the number of women in my situation. All they are interested in is men — and there just aren't enough men our age to go around.

I really would like to meet a nice, companionable man, but it's easier said than done — especially for a fussy woman.

* * *

The Council: Unfortunately, Greta is in a poor frame of mind at this time to meet a companionable man and form a permanent mate.

She appears to have fallen into a pattern of self-pity and anger with the world at her lonely situation.

When Greta sings the praises of her former husband, it is not purely to honor him, but a way of detracting from some other man. Comparisons of this sort are ugly and unreasonable. Greta is really calling on some imaginary force to view her loss and unhappy fate. This blinds her to any good qualities the new man may have — and he undoubtedly has them.

When Greta enters an organization to meet people, she bears a chip on her shoulder. She does not go in with the idea of being helpful and companionable to others. She wants to take something from the group and is hurt and frightened when she realizes that it is not going to be handed to her on a silver platter. Other people in the organization have needs, too. Greta is appalled at the sight of the other women with the same idea she has. She takes a very harsh view of them, but a very kindly, pitying one of herself.

Underneath, Greta is frightened at her situation and has taken refuge in coddling herself. But this will never bring her a fuller life. When she is ready to make a contribution to others, she will lose her fears and her loneliness since. The man with whom she would like to share the remainder of her life may evidently appear without her looking.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

PROPER FOR GRANDPARENTS TO BE SEATED WITH PARENTS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

May I ask your advice about a special problem we most particularly have in our daughter's wedding plans? My husband's mother and father are not living. But my mother and father are coming to the wedding from Florida. Neither is very well or robust, but they are valiant, never complain, expect no extra attention, are always co-operative. I would very much like to have them seated in the first pew with my husband and me my husband leading her as he has always done in our daughter in marriage.

The bride, who has always loved them dearly, and has spent a major part of her vacations in their home, also very much wants this. But we have never been asked, so her sophisticated, very active friend we have asked. So, Mrs. Beeckman, would it be proper for my parents to be seated before the ceremony-hour, so that grandparents' parents, and then are escorted up the aisle. An usher comes to you mother, offers his right arm to her, and ceremoniously escorts her up the aisle, your father either following them, or if there is a wide aisle, walking by his wife's side. All this is a most gracious and dignified procedure.

— Bride's Mother

Entirely proper to seat grandparents with the bride's parents or to seat grandparents with the groom's parents' . . . and there is an appealing grace about this action under the special circumstances you describe. They should plan to arrive at the church at least five or fifteen minutes before the ceremony-hour, so that grandparents' parents, and then are escorted up the aisle. An usher comes to you mother, offers his right arm to her, and ceremoniously escorts her up the aisle, your father either following them, or if there is a wide aisle, walking by his wife's side. All this is a most gracious and dignified procedure.

19 Representatives Attend Bay Of Quinte WMS Leaders School

Nineteen representatives including five Belleville girls attended the 27th annual School for Leaders of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, held from August 17th to 21st at the Ontario Ladies College, Whitby. Mrs. A. Stewart of Arnprior, the Dean of the School, along with Mrs. L. Elliot of Tweed, the exceptionally welcomed the more than 225 delegates upon arrival from the Presbyterial of Lindsay, Peterborough, Renfrew, Kingston, Belleville, Cobourg and Oshawa. Mrs. W. D. Grant of Halloway was assisted by Mrs. R. Pratt as pianist in the opening and closing devotions.

CONDUCTING OF THE HYMN SINGING

MRS. F. W. K. HARRIS

The Bible Study Hour for women was based on the Gospel of St. Mark and presented by Mrs. F. W. K. Harris of Peterborough, who said "Truth about Jesus Know" for when he read about Jesus he said "someday, somehow will a truth about this man Jesus and every business man will and I need to know his partners and his salesmen for it will tell the story of the founder of modern business. He waited but no one wrote the story so he decided to do it himself. Barton said "Only strange people men inspire great enthusiasm and build great organizations. Jesus was the physical weakling for he pushed a plane and swung an adze as he went about his carpentering. He was a lover of nature and slept under the stars. His mothers were so strong that when he drove the money changers from the temple, nobody dared to oppose him. He was no kill-joy but the most popular dinner guest in Jerusalem. The criticism which proper people made for him was that he spent too much time with publicans and sinners (very one of twelve men from the bottom ranks of business and forced were called into an organization that conquered the world. If you would like to have the measure of a man, the late afternoon is the time to watch him. We are not a half inch taller in the morning than at night, and it is easier to see how a man can say things when the mind is rested, than after a day of petty annoyances.

It was late afternoon in Gallilee when Jesus' disciples were refused admittance to a certain village and requested that they be call down fire to consume the village. There are times when nothing a man can say is nearly so powerful as saying nothing. To say brings him down to the level of those with whom he argues; silence conveys them of their folly. Jesus had come to save mankind and use this teaching to purify the Christians, forcing witness to be made as in the early days of Christianity. I feel that a great spiritual movement is just ahead, saving the whole man, and as well as body. Referring to the coming of Krushchev to this continent he said "This is our opportunity of sending him back more aware of our love for Jesus Christ and for all peoples of the world. He referred to Pakistan as an example of where good-will is being built up by the pouring of money by the Western, countries for the building of power projects, improvement of agricultural methods, etc. While they were, a bit dubious at first, there was the consciousness in Pakistan that what Christian countries were doing did not have to be done. The greatest factor for the spread of Christianity is the changed lives that have been lived by these missionaries against odds almost unsurpassable. The fruits of their labors are proof of their wisdom; in that not all men are equal in the sight of God. Art. 6 Godfrey gave stories of these. Christian missionaries that I saw in Africa were "sweet stones."

HOME MISSION SECTY

Mrs. M. Lowery, Mission Executive Secretary addressed the delegates regarding new ministry organizations. She said Prince P.E.I., stands a church with a plaque bearing the names of pioneers who met in 1825 as they were interested in missions. Little did they realize they were forming the nucleus of the WMS. At that time women were not allowed to pray audibly so the minister had to be present to lead in prayer. That time is a thing of the past for today women are ordained to preach the gospel and can be in full partnership with the men of the church. Today we are deeply concerned about missions in the home, in the community and in the church.

APPRECIATION EXPRESSED

Mrs. Ray Weldon of Lindsay expressed appreciation to Mrs. Lowery, "Having traversed the length and breadth of this vast country, entering the homes, churches and the hearts of its needy peoples, Mrs. Lowery has the very pulse beat of our nation. It has been said of our Gracious Queen that she is the Symbol of the British Empire as she walks by. So Mrs. Lowery has been the Symbol of our WMS throughout her wonderful service," introduced Mrs. Weldon.

MRS. J. H. LEWIS

An interesting report of the Annual Meeting of the Executive Board was given by Mrs. J. H. Lewis of Petersboro who had been a delegate appointed to attend.

DOMINION BOARD PRESIDENT

Mrs. E. E. Long, D.D., the president of Dominion Board WMS said "The Church and the Mission are in total unity in their endeavor to bring Jesus Christ to mankind, thus accepting God in Christ, reconciling the world to Him. Let us not be thinking of us

Smart City Strollers

what we are doing, but of what we have left undone. Not of what we are giving, but of what we are withholding." Dr. Florence Murray and Ruth Saunders as nurses while serving in the new hospital built in Korea. A new Centre to assist new Canadians has been set up in Toronto. Few realize that one person in four living in metro Toronto is a new Canadian. She spoke of Isobel Stiller on the border of the Bamboo Curtain ministering to the needs of the 29,000 Chinese refugees huddled across the border. There are more than ten million Chinese living outside Main China.

A welcome visitor at the luncheon hour was Miss Florence Fee who, after work in China for several years, then at the Indian Reserve at Rama is now at the All People's Mission in Hamilton.

Miss Aiko Chujo of Nagasaki, Japan who is a Scholarship Student of W.M.S. was interviewed by Miss Isobel McFadden and graciously thanked the delegates for her flawless English. She came to Canada in B.C. and then by train to Toronto arriving only last week. During the next two years she will attend the University of Toronto, Emmette, who spoke on the Study Book subject — Africa and also showed a film entitled "I'll sing new ery". Following a question-naire on this film, a skit showing what has been done and the wide comprehensive plans for future development in Angola, was presented by Mrs. Cowie, Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Haywood, and Mrs. Grassi.

Another skit was presented by work in Northern Rhodesia

Miss D. Edwards of Lindsay, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Brayshaw, Mrs. R. Stevens, Mrs. D. Found, Mrs. G. Coulter and Mrs. Ray Weldon. The adversary and his forces tried them bearing the brunt of criticism from both whites and blacks, and they need help in bridging the gap.

A third skit on "Women in Changing Africa" picturing an ancient people moving into the 20th Century with amazing speed, often within one generation was presented by Mrs. Graham, Mrs. McIndoe, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Dunsford and Mrs. McBride.

DR. KATHERINE HOCKIN

Dr. Katherine Hockin spoke on "Recruiting" pointing out the extensive training, financial support, screening and advice required by candidates for the Mission Field and this is being supplied by the W.M.S. She pointed out the increasing importance of the laity, both members and adherents, and insisted that the real frontier is the home, the school, business, work — wherever people are found. In Angola they have no dentist and other needs are as great. Our responsibility through Church and Auxiliary is to challenge young people and to ask them to consider God's work. High requirements are necessary for candidates must measure up to the best for a God who deserves the best. Following quotations from China, Dr. Hockin has been on the staff of the Training School and also being a real railroad she visited India and Africa. Miss Beslie French of Montreal, Que., a beloved Home missionary told two stories of travelling Canadians indicating graphically how the laity preach. She titled her address "Tour of Discovery" and told some experiences in work with juveniles, boys' camps and senior citizens. She spoke of the urgent need for young people to make this their life work which she has found so challenging and which novels others.

The day began with silent worship in the lovely College Chapel made available to the W.M.S. delegates by Dr. and Mrs. L. S. Osborne, gracious host and hostess. One evening Dr. Osborne rendered musical numbers on the chapel organ and gave an interesting insight into the beautiful stained glass windows. The spacious recreation room and the refreshing swimming pool were also available to the delegates and in charge of Mrs. E. C. Amaron.

Mrs. R. H. Soper, president of Conference Branch, Mrs. J. H. McKinney, past president of Conference Branch, Mrs. Armitage, Mrs. Dunk along with Miss Brownlee and her younger girls conducted inspirational worship services.

The final day brought splendid demonstrations of the work of the various Study Groups proving the value of the School.

The following were in charge: Mission Circle, Mrs. B. Davis; C.G.I.T., Mrs. L. Griffin; Explorers, Mrs. O. Bertrand; Mission Band, Mrs. Chase; Baby Band, Mrs. G. S. Young; Auxiliary, Miss I. McFadden.

Mrs. E. C. Hopkins reported that more than $300 worth of books had been sold to the delegates during the School.

A few brief words by the Dean, Mrs. A. M. Stewart brought this period of spiritual education and refreshment to a close. Plan now to attend next year's school for leaders.

Farewell Gifts Made to Chair Members

WELLINGTON — Nineteen members of the United Church senior choir met in the Memorial Park last Friday evening. All enjoyed a hearty sing-song of old and new songs. This was a bit of practice before Wednesday when their weekly rehearsal will commence after the summer recess. There will be a few familiar faces missing from the choir this year.

The members who are leaving were addressed by Mrs. J. McNeill, the organist and choir leader. As a token of the esteem in which they were held, a hymn book, containing words and music, was presented to each of the girls, Miss Carol Marvin, Miss Beverley Alyea, Miss Margaret Head and Miss Gail Ellis. Mrs. Ralph Ellis received four silver tea spoons and a gift was held for Mr. Douglas Trumble, who was unable to be present.

All lovingly expressed their thanks for their gifts, which will remind each one of pleasant memories.

Hot dogs and marshmallows were roasted on a barbecue and ice-cold pop was served, bringing a pleasant evening to a close.

Mrs. H. Smith conducted the devotional based on "The Joy of Living." Mrs. Burton Sharpe was pianist. Mrs. J. Mulheron read the Bible Mrs. Percy MacMullen read the meditation, and Mrs. C. Holmes and Mrs. J. Johns led in prayers.

The two sessions for October 14th were planned and duties allotted after which light refreshments were served.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes announced the dates for the last three rallies had been changed and are as follows: Madoc section at Cooper, October 20th; Belleville east at Carmel on the Canniton charge, October 21st; and Napanee north at Enterprise on October 22nd. The speaker for these three rallies will be Miss Dulcie Cook, A.T.C.M., evangelist missionary at Kanazawa, Japan.

The speaker for the Mount Pleasant rally, also those at Wellington and Odessa being held that week, will be Miss Frances M. Wallbridge, B.A., missionary on furlough from Lotarno, Africa.

Girl Ordained As Minister

EDMONTON (CP) — Wilena Brown, who as a young girl thought she'd like to be a church deaconess, today is one of four women ordained as ministers of the United Church in Alberta.

She took over the complete duties of the large congregation at Robertson United Church here for the summer months. She is the regular assistant minister at the church.

"People are often sceptical about a woman in the ministry," she said. "But once they become well acquainted they lose their doubts."

Miss Brown conducts baptisms, weddings and funerals besides preaching.

She says her favorite duty is perhaps the most difficult one, that of counselling people.

"All kinds of people with all kinds of problems go to the minister. Most difficult of all are family problems. Although there are many types of problems, there is usually a connection with religion."

"And that's a good thing. Without that questioning stage they would never reach a firm basis for their convictions later in life."

PLAN DEMONSTRATION

VALLETTA, Malta (Reuters) Malta was under heavy police guard today as crowds gathered for a "day of protest" called by Labor leader Dom Mintoff to protest "British colonial oppression." Party organizers expected demonstrations to be the island's biggest mass rally ever, with about 50,000 persons taking part.

10-Year Project Started to Wipe Out Malaria

By DON ATTFIELD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is being called on to help eradicate the world's worst disease—malaria.

All that is needed is money.

The appeal comes from a dark-robed, soft-eyed 70 - year - old woman from India who is a special representative of the World Health Organization, an agency of the United Nations.

Rajkumari Amrit Kaur arrived in the capital Monday night for five days of talks with officials including Prime Minister Diefenbaker, External Affairs Minister Green, Finance Minister Fleming and Health Minister Monteith.

She said in an interview she hopes for a major contribution from Canada to the 10 - year W.H.O. project, to cost a total $20,000,000.

The Rajkumari is a member of India's upper house, former minister of health for 19 years and secretary 16 years to the late Mahatma Gandhi to whom she says "I owe everything."

SENSATIONAL RESULTS

She said malaria control was begun in India in 1953 and within three years the annual incidence of the dread disease was reduced to one per cent of the population from 85 per cent.

This success led to the decision to try to wipe out entirely the mosquito-carried sickness which in 1955 affected 200,000,000 persons and killed 3,000,000 in 146 countries of Asia, Africa and South and Central America.

Malaria is the cause of a higher sickness and death rate than any other disease in the world.

Eradication is achieved by spraying every house and hut of a country in the malaria season —following the rainy season—for three or four consecutive years to kill off the carriers, while at the same time treating persons affected so mosquitos cannot pick up the disease from them to spread it.

To be effective, the program must be carried to every country where malaria is found.

"We hope for a large contribution from Canada," said Miss Kaur, "although Canada already is doing a great deal to help less fortunate countries."

WAR NEWS BROADCAST — The threat of war was brought home to the Canadian people as Prime Minister Mackenzie King (right) went on the air after an emergency cabinet meeting that followed Britain's declaration of war on Germany Sept. 3, 1939. The broadcast announced special measures for public security, including price controls and censorship. Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe sat beside the prime minister during the broadcast. Canada declared war Sept. 9. (CP from National Film Board.)

ON WAY TO WAR — The Second World War was a week opened by a Quebec Liberal member who introduced an anti-war petition, and by J. S. Woodsworth, then leader of the CCF. The motion for war passed Sept. 9 at 10.25 p.m. but there was no recorded vote. The next day a special edition of the Canada Gazette contained the proclamation of war on Germany. Approval of Canada Going Into Second World War Not Unanimous When Vote Polled

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada was already hustling on the road to war when Parliament was called into special session Sept. 7, 1939.

The German Reich had invaded Poland at 4:45 a.m. Friday, Sept. 1. Britain declared war on Germany Sunday, Sept. 3, at 11 a.m., and that same night the U - 30 torpedoed the British liner Athenia off the Hebrides.

The Canadian government called out the militia, provided for censorship and price controls and performed the thousand and one acts necessary to convert a nation suddenly from peace to war status.

DEMOCRACY'S WAY

Unlike Hitler, the Canadian government required approval for its actions and the fifth session of the 18th Parliament was hastily summoned.

The only business of this session was war. The brief speech from the throne opened: "As you are only too well aware, all efforts to maintain the peace of Europe have failed."

It ended: "My ministers are convinced that Canada is prepared to unite in a national effort to defend to the utmost liberties and institutions which are a common heritage."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the government's policy was immediate participation in the war. When this policy was approved by Parliament, the government would issue a formal proclamation declaring the existence of a state of war between Canada and the German Reich.

TENSE DEBATE

Approval, of course, was not unanimous.

Maxime Raymond, Liberal member for Beauharnois - Laprairie, on Sept. 8 presented a petition signed by thousands opposing participation by Canada "in any extra-territorial war."

CCF Leader J. S. Woodsworth said the "immediate situation has been due almost entirely to the bungling" of Neville Chamberlain, the British prime minister. He said he would be more proud of a boy who was a conscientious objector than a boy who enlisted for war.

Mr. King demanded: "Where did our liberties and freedom come from?"

"We get our many freedoms as an inheritance from those men of Britain and France who never hesitated to lay down their lives for freedom and those of their descent who followed their example on the soil of Canada itself."

CANADA'S STAND

Mr. King said later: "We stand for the defence of Canada; we stand for the co-operation of this country at the side of Great Britain . . .

"If we do not destroy what is evil it is going to destroy all that there is of good."

And the prime minister added this plea: "I hope that throughout this country our citizens will be as tolerant as they can of differences of view and belief that are honestly held."

Speaking in English, he asked: "Is it not worthwhile for us to preserve these very institutions and that freedom of expression which we enjoy in the Canadian Parliament?"

"I hate war with all my heart and conscience but devotion to peace does not mean ignorance or blindness," he said.

"Could Canadians in one section of the country compel other Canadians in other sections to remain neutral and to enforce such neutrality even against their own kind?

"Like faith, sympathy (for England and Poland) without works is a dead sympathy."

SUPREME NEED

Mr. Lapointe looked beyond the war in his plea for the "supreme necessity" for tolerance.

"Is it not imperative that no section of Canada, no race, no creed, should inflict upon the other creeds incurable wounds which might destroy our country now forever?"

On Saturday, Sept. 9, at 10.25 p.m., the motion for war came to a vote.

"On division," called out the member, meaning that many members disapproved it but would be no record vote. [illegible] Others, 11,109 dissenting.

The name of [illegible] recorded as Halibutt.

On Sunday, [illegible] Canada Gazette, dated 12.40 p.m., contained the proclamation of war on Germany.

A special war budget was passed and on the morning of Sept. 13 the special session of Parliament ended with the reading of the speech from the throne which concluded:

"I pray that an all - wise Providence may guide and protect this land, united in an effort to do what lies within its power to help defend and preserve the liberties of mankind."

So Canada went to war 20 years ago.

Nikita Will Display Best Brand of Polished Diplomacy When He Starts U.S. Tour

William L. Ryan, Associated Press news analyst, has observed Nikita S. Khrushchev closely both on his home grounds and in his favorite role of traveling salesman. To mark Khrushchev's visit to the United Sates Ryan has written a series of articles delving into the Soviet leader's background and philosophy. This is the first.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Nikita Sergeyevitch Khrushchev is a sort of human intercontinental missile. When he tours the United States next week, scattering verbal sparks along the way, he will be displaying his best brand of polished diplomacy.

For Khrushchev apparently sees himself as quite the diplomat.

"I got my diplomatic talent from my parents," Khrushchev told admiring Communists recently. "But I picked up some polish from my contact with American, British and Belgian engineers and technicians in my early days as a miner. They taught me the ability to get along with foreigners."

His means of getting along with foreigners as Communist party boss and premier of the U.S.S.R. frequently has been to brush all within earshot.

HARDLY POLISHED

The prospective visitor to the United States could hardly be described as polished. But he is a prototype of the new Communist proletarian elite, the small and privileged new ruling class which in itself is a distortion of Marxist notions of equality.

This is the new Khrushchev, post-Stalin model.

The new Khrushchev has tried hard for a bit of polish. Gone are the bell - bottom trousers and baggy, shapeless jackets which were the first step away from sloppy cap and drab, dark cloth-ing once affected by members of Stalin's inner circle.

The new Khrushchev leans to plaid, colorful clothes and Western styles, like the suits he imported from an Italian tailor shop. These had a capitalist look and a capitalist price: About $150 each. His winter Homburgs and summer Panama hats are in fair imitation of London's foreign office tradition.

The one - time coal miner and shepherd boy has come a long way. He likes to boast of his humble origins as grandson of a Russian serf. His parents eked out a precarious living at Kolinovka, where he was born 65 years ago. His birthplace, near the Ukrainian border, accounts for the heavy tinge of Ukrainian accent in his rapid, frequently ungrammatical Russian.

CUT DRINKING

Khrushchev never smoked. There are no ashtrays on his desks and he doesn't like visitors to smoke in his presence. He tries to discourage it among young Communists. He once was a two-fisted drinker, but he has tapered off in recent months, probably on the orders of doctors.

Most noted for his pungent off-the-cuff remarks, Khrushchev in reality is a ponderous, marathon speaker who perches spectacles on nose and reads hours - long speeches liberally sprinkled with the monotonous clichés of Communist jargon. These prodigious displays of oratory time and and again have stripped the veneer of liberalism from Khrushchev and shown him as a man whose communism is strikingly like religious fanaticism.

On his road shows, Khrushchev exudes a crude peasant charm which both shocks and captivates the more cultivated in his audiences. But the charm fades when Khrushchev is crossed. Then he roars, and one is aware that beneath the tin layer of personal charm, the man is hard as steel.

ONE SOFT SIDE

If there is any soft side about Khrushchev at all, it is in his family life. His motherly wife Nina pays little attention to her husband's stormy politics as she clucks over a brood of grandchildren.

Only recently has she emerged from the obscurity which for 40 years was the lot of wives of Soviet leaders. She has even abandoned her dark, unattractive dresses for livelier colors and snappier fashions.

Khrushchev is believed to have married Nina Petrovna in 1938, when he was vaulting into Stalin's politburo. Apparently his former wife died. Nina raised Khrushchev's four children and is helping raise his four grandchildren. One of Khrushchev's sons, Leonid, a pilot, was killed in the Second World War.

Champion Stock Will Parade for Junior Farmers

TORONTO (CP) — A million dollars worth of champion livestock will proudly hoof it through the Canadian National Exhibition's Coliseum area today.

Their parade features Farmers' and Livestock Day.

A calf scramble will pit 10 frisky Aberdeen Angus calves against 20 determined boys. Each boy who ropes a calf and wrestles it across the finish line will win a $100 certificate toward purchase of a pure-bred calf.

The day begins with a parade by junior farmers and 4-H Club members. In the afternoon $700 scholarships will be awarded to 4-H Club members for tuition in agricultural schools of their choice. The program includes farm safety contests, tractor safe-driving contests, judging of six-horse hitch teams and choosing of Ontario's Dairy Queen for 1959.

The dairy queen, who wins a two-week trip to England, will be chosen from the four girls who attended their way through Tuesday's semi-finals.

They are Barbara Logan of Woodstock, representing Oxford County, Frances Cruikshank of Shelburne, champion of Dufferin County, Anne Spaull of Warren, the milker in Simcoe district, and Ruby Scheel of Arnprior, queen of Renfrew County.

Today was the quietest day so far in the 16-day exhibition. Only 115,000 people filed past the turnstiles in the 90-degree heat as children returned home to classrooms. Attendance on the same day last year was 133,000 to 140,000 people.

Ken Evans, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, called a labor suggestion for an inquiry into high prices a "red herring."

He was commenting on a suggestion at a Canadian Luncheon Club by William Dodge, vice-president of the Canadian CMA and labor, join together in an examination of high cost of living. However, Mr. Dodge said they were not caused by higher wages.

Mr. Evans said Tuesday the suggestion "has the hallmarks of a good old-fashioned red herring calculated to take the heat off the unions and confuse the public on issues."

"If labor spokesmen think they can get away with pretending that ever - increasing wage demands can be conceded without any effect on prices, I can only say they underestimate the intelligence of the average Canadian."

Establishment of a Fixed Primatial See Discussed At Final Synod Meeting

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP)—The Anglican Church of Canada Tuesday completed its 20th general synod — and one of the most momentous ever held.

A concerted effort enabled the delegates to finish their business one day ahead of schedule. During a three-hour afternoon session they dealt with more than 40 reports and resolutions.

Topping the list were reports on recruiting new ministers and the establishment of a fixed primatial see.

Reports last week told of an urgent need to attract new men into the Anglican clergy. And suggestions for an all-out drive to bring older men and young students into centers of population.Tuesday Bishop E. S. Reed of Ottawa who said he believed "pressure" methods of recruiting were useless.

Only men with a true vocation could provide the sort of example which would attract others, he said.

Bishop Ivor Norris of Brandon urged that the church attempt, by the widely prevalent attitude that a young man entering the ministry is in some way "slipping down" the social scale.

Archbishop Howard Clark of Edmonton, the new primate, is strongly in favor of setting a fixed primatial see but the church itself is apparently in no hurry.

The committee which had been considering the question reported it was in favor of the idea but unable to agree where the fixed see should be.

It had been directed to consider "the vicinity of Ottawa" as a location but also studied Toronto and Winnipeg as alternatives. None of them received a wholly favorable vote, though Ottawa was given the fewest unfavorable votes.

The synod gave Archbishop Clark authority to appoint a new committee and lay out its frame of reference.

"I think the best way to pick a site might be to have somesort of blindfold himself and stick a pin in the map of Canada—like Queen Victoria picked Ottawa as the capital," said the primate.

A fixed see would allow a bishop to free himself from many of the purely pastoral duties he must attend to now and would give him more time for broader church affairs.

The synod's committee on evangelism reported that while a revival of religion is general and widespread, it appears to be on the decline in some classes of society and in many cases "extraordinarily superficial."

It has noted the exhibitions of "faith" or "spiritual" healing on television have aroused enormous public interest in some parts of Canada and that the revised edition of the prayer book provides services for such healing.

The synod voted to give $5,000 to the New Brunswick fund for families in the Saint John River valley affected by the storm which hit Northumberland Strait last spring.

It also decided to give its women deacons a permanent status and to allow women to be required to resign when they were married.

Management, Labor Learn To Understand Each Other by Meeting Together at Retreat

KAWENE, Ont. (CP)—Management and labor are learning to understand each other by forgetting squabbles and meeting person-to-person at a retreat tucked away in the northern Ontario forest near here.

The lesson is part of an experiment in human relations being carried out by the Quetico Conference and Training Centre, a non - profit organization aimed at developing leaders for virtually every phase of social, economic and cultural life.

The centre was founded a year ago at the site of a former provincial forestry department air base. Its white frame bungalow and conference halls nestle against a backdrop of jack pine, aspen and birch on the shore of tranquil Eva Lake, 100 miles west of the Lakehead.

WIDE INTEREST

The Quetico Centre borrows its name from the neighboring Quetico Provincial Park. It offers training facilities and advice for training and study groups with interests ranging from trade unionism to social painting, from industrial supervision to dramatics.

During the first year, more than 300 persons attended courses at the centre. They stayed in residence, pooling their knowledge, skills and views to improve their grasp of their specific fields.

While working to build the skills and knowledge required of leaders in their fields, the centre's directors keep in mind a broader objective. It's the development of what they call "human relations skills" — roughly, the ability to get along with people.

H. E. Thomas of Fort William, head of the centre's executive, regards this as the most important purpose of the experiment.

"While man has made tremendous advances in science and technology, his human relations skills have lagged behind," he said in an interview.

"The results of the lag are seen in the conflicts which powers have in resolving their differences over the conference table. The problems of union and management, man and white, colored and coloured are intensified by the lack of such skills."

The knack of understanding and getting along with people could be taught by traditional lecture methods, Mr. Thomas said.

"It has to be developed through a live — in, social experience. That's the purpose of the Quetico Conference and Training Centre."

The centre's isolation plays a key role in this development.

Dr. Roby Kidd, director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education and an adviser to the centre, describes the effect of remoteness on the organization's annual meeting.

"Even the great people as people — as threats, not as some-body from a different status, not as competitors-just as people."

The director of a mining company official who had been working with labor representatives on the centre's executive was typical.

Until now, the only time I got together with these fellows was when we were fighting like the devil over some contract or other. But now I'm getting to know them and they're a great bunch of fellows."

Dr. Kidd recalled the comments of a trade unionist after several sessions during a labor school with a lecturer who had been considered to be an management's side.

"That guy knows his stuff all right," the union man said. "The only trouble is we're getting to like the bezgar."

C. M. McIntosh, the centre's resident director, told of an incident that happened during a course for women handicraft instructors.

"Twenty-one women took part in the course, most of them from small northern Ontario communities in Northwestern Ontario. Among them they spoke 14 different languages.

OBSTACLE OVERCOME

"Shortly after they arrived, one of the women made it known she couldn't speak English. But she soon found herself being worked with the group for a day or so, she was getting along wonderfully.

"Through their common interest in handicraft instruction and craft work, the women were able to overcome the language barrier.

The co-operation evident in the study groups is also the aim of the centre's formation, Mr. McIntosh said.

When the lands and forests department indicated in 1956 that it planned to move its air base from the Eva Lake site, Mr. Thomas, Mr. McIntosh and a number of associates suggested to the department that a training centre be established there.

The government approved the idea and support, both moral and financial, was received from industry, labor and agency involved in leadership training in northwestern Ontario.

STARTED IN 1958

The Quetico Conference and Training Centre in May, 1958, was chartered as a non-profit organization.

"Financing the Quetico Centre is an example of successful co-operation among industry, labor, government, recreation, education and civic groups," Mr. McIntosh said.

At present, the centre can accommodate up to 50 persons at a time during the summer and 45 in the winter. A three-year development program has been planned to increase the capacity to between 75 and 100 persons. With 25 acres of crown land, the centre could be expanded to include several separate units, each with similar capacities.

Right now the centre offers chiefly accommodation and advice on the operation of training courses. McIntosh said.

"When the expansion program is completed, the centre is still supporting, we visualize a sort of wilderness college, its own staff of instructors and schedule of special study and training courses.

The centre hopes to draw students from all across the country, he said.

9,000,000 IN TOKYO

TOKYO (AP)—The population of Tokyo exceeds 9,000,000, the metropolitan government's statistics bureau reported Monday. The Aug. 1 total of 9,100,329 was 228,422 over last year. Longdon's population was estimated last year at 8,250,000 and New York's at just under 8,000,000.

'Jest a Second'

Yellowknife, One of Neatest Cities in North, Has Trouble Controlling Frisky Ravens

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Of all the scattered communities north of the borders of the province Yellowknife stands out as one of the neatest.

This impression of cleanliness and organization in the gold-mining town just 300 on the north shore of Great Slave Lake seizes you largely from the fact that there are no slums in the north.

But despite its trim appearance, you'll find Yellowknife is overrun by — and largely subservient to — ravens, some of the biggest, blackest, most mischievous ravens to be found anywhere.

They scream by like chickens—bigger than chickens — couples of them—have just about free rein in this point of the northern territories. They are scrawny and scattered, and winter rules out about nine months of the year.

They seem to be everywhere, strutting on rooftops and on the streets, getting into garbage and generally raising Cain, daring someone to do something about it.

Why doesn't Yellowknife do something about it?

Mayor Frank Brown asked this question in an interview, shrugged and grinned sheepishly.

"Oh, They're cute," she said.

"That's our problem," the mayor. "The people, especially the women, won't let us do anything about them."

"We've tried a couple of times to have them exterminated. Every time we do the women get together and form some sort of raven protection society and won't let us touch them.

Even as editor and publisher of the town's only newspaper, the weekly News of the North, Mrs. Brown has little public opinion against the birds.

Mr. Harper has sooner solving of the problems the ravens bring, however, than she was telling with serious enjoyment of some of their antics — particularly their infuriated golfers on the local course by plucking golf balls right off the fairways.

A favorite trick is to pair up and fly directly from dog to dog, tracts the dog's attention while the other makes off with Rover's grub.

The crafty birds regularly raise the news by stealing jewelry or other shiny baubles to store in a cache kept by each pair.

The burly mayor turned serious when it was to be remembered telephone calls from residents in the middle of the night, complaining of being kept awake by ravens scratching on roofs, and "the terrifying situation," he said.

Except for the heavily - populated areas, ravens are found all over northern Canada to the north. They are most numerous where carrion food is in plentiful supply, such as along the shores of large lakes like Great Slave.

Where food is plentiful and they are not molested, they are known to become as tame as chickens although—for safety for them — they are harder to catch.

Sheep-Raising Could Become Big Business

OTTAWA (CP)—Sheep-raising could become a major contributor to Canada's agricultural economy and a rewarding business for the farmer, a federal government survey of the industry has concluded.

Following a year's study of the industry, it was learned Tuesday that the committee recommended a number of steps to boost sheep-raising back to its once-prominent place in agriculture.

The report notes that the industry is unable to supply present demand for both wool and lamb, adding that the demand for products "will continue well into the future which cannot be said of many other farm products."

NOT MUTTON EATERS

Canadians rank ninth as eaters of lamb, consuming 112 pounds per capita a year compared with 122 pounds in Britain. But of this only 2.7 pounds is mutton or lamb and half of that is imported. Britain, these meats account for 23.3 pounds of the per capita annual consumption.

Canadian sheep breeders should look to the west for breeds to improve their position, the report says. The range sheep ram, Rambouillet, Canadian and corriedale — were suggested as the best to improve the quality of the wool.

To counter U.S. demand for lower sheep, the survey report suggests a premium of $2 a head be paid slaughterers and owners on lambs that will pass inspection as potential breeders.

Khrushchev Learned Politics From Old Master of Intrigue And Betrayal, Joseph Stalin

Nikita Khrushchev learned his politics from that old master of intrigue, Joseph Stalin. How do the two men compare? In this second of a series of articles on Khrushchev's background and personality, Associated Press news analyst William L. Ryan tells of the ways in which Stalin and Khrushchev are alike and unlike.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

So says proverb - loving Nikita Sergeyevich Khrushchev, who for most of his political life has lived with the wolves of Communist intrigue.

Vice - President Richard M. Nixon, assessing the Soviet premier who will visit the United States next week, summed him up as one who would have made a good machine politician in any country.

The round, ebullient Communist boss learned his politics from an old master of intrigue and betrayal, Joseph Stalin. But striking differences in method mark the plain Khrushchev can hardly hope to achieve the terrible if power which Stalin wielded.

Khrushchev is as noisy as Stalin was silent. He is as accessible as Stalin was hidden and mysterious. He is as eager for outside contacts as Stalin was suspicious of them. In many respects Khrushchev is a far greater adventurer, but of a different kind.

Like the role of international statesman. After the pally likeness television broadcast from Moscow between Randolph Churchill referred to Eisenhower as Macmillan's campaign manager.

Labor, traditionally a party of peace, has little to complain about in a period of economic stability and rising jobs for all. And Conservatives have adopted some of Labor's pet policies, blurring the differences between the parties.

This was claimed some of Labor's greatest post-war statesmen — Sir Stafford Cripps and Ernest Bevin—and Clement Attlee and Herbert Morrison have stepped down since the jubilant days of Labor's 1945 victory. The Conservatives, of course, have also lost ground through the retirement of Sir Winston Churchill and Sir Anthony Eden.

The Conservatives are favored by an automatic bias in the electoral system. Labor voters tend to be concentrated in certain constituencies, whereas Conservative strength is more evenly spread, making it possible for them to attract the greater number of total votes and still lose the election.

To all these points, Labor can muster plausible replies. Few political commentators are ready to count the opposition but. But the superficial signs, at present, give Macmillan good reason for thinking that luck is on his side.

Macmillan Smilingly Admits Things Are Breaking His Way

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister Macmillan smilingly admits that things are breaking his way.

With the disarming frankness that has become something of a political trademark, Macmillan acknowledges—privately and publicly—that fortune has favored the Conservative government in the last few months.

But, he says bluntly, you mustn't begrudge a politician a little luck now and again.

TOUGH TEST

Macmillan now is moving toward a date that will show whether his luck can last. Confirming an almost unanimous forecast, he announced Tuesday night that the general election will be held October 8 or Oct. 8.

As the 111-word announcement came from 10 Downing Street, a September sun shone from a flawless sky.

Figuratively, the political sun has been just as brightly for the Tories.

In fact, things seemed almost too good to be true. The weather was mild, jobless claims in a consolent, couldn't-care - less-about-politics mood, was one reason for Conservative optimism.

The list could go on and on. Opinion polls showed the government forces with a clear edge over the opposition Labor party. Little more than a year ago, Labor was in front.

It sounded Eisenhower's visit to Britain helped to cast Macmillan in the role of international statesman. After the pally likeness television broadcast from Moscow between Randolph Churchill referred to Eisenhower as Macmillan's campaign manager.

Labor, traditionally a party of peace, has little to complain about in a period of economic stability and rising jobs for all. And Conservatives have adopted some of Labor's pet policies, blurring the differences between the parties.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It was the morning of the day the McFarlands were scheduled to meet the Russians. Or, being more prepared, so to speak, some miles outside Prague. In the city's conspicuous International Hotel, the other tournament teams were bedded down.

This reporter wended his way through the near-silent rotunda after picking his way through the throng of Czechs that crowded the street outside the hotel entrance.

Thence via the sardine-can elevator to the second floor where Jean Paul Lamirande and Denis Boucher occupied a two-bed apartment.

In answer to a sleep "Come in" (it was approximately 8.30 a.m.) we pushed the door open and were greeted by Lammy sitting on the edge of the bed wiggling his "pinkies." Boucher stretched luxuriously, and waved a morning greeting.

The actual purpose of the visit was to pick up some photographic of other tournament teams which J.P. had secured for us (for a dollar a throw) the night previous.

Lamirande and Boucher gave the lie to subsequent reports that the Canadiennes were "nervous and as tense as a pre-game string" prior to the game with the Russians. This pair was about as tense as a wash-rag after a ten-minute immersion.

"How about it?" we asked.

Lammy squinted down a pajama-sheathed limb.

"How about what?" he countered.

We knew it was against continental policy to discuss games prior to playing them, but who cared for things continental at a time like this. Besides that big gazabo was wallaing for my daily news budget home and the three bucks American that went with it.

"The game tonight with Russia. How about that?"

"That," said Lammy, "is just another hockey game. There's a possibility it might be a tough one, but we'll take 'em. Throw over that shoe-horn, willya?"

Boucher was so "tense" he had fallen asleep and was snoring gently in French-Canadian from the bunk in the other room.

The conversation drifted to other players. Among them was what a pro and ex-Montreal Canadien star, after his string is played out and they haven't acquired enough lettuce ot retire to Florida, Ball-Ball, or a comfortable Cape Cod cottage where they run out the span clipping coupons.

"Most professional players," said Lammy, "who have run the hockey gamut from junior ranks to the NHL, have sufficient virus in their blood to want to continue in the game in some capacity or another, preferably coaching. That is what I want to do. In fact I have had an offer from the Swedish people to that effect — but I need time to think it over."

We phoned Lammy the other night after we had learned from McFarland manager Keith MacDonald he had been given his release so he could accept a player-coach job with the Windsor Bulldogs.

"It is a dream I have always cherished as I told you in Czechoslovakia," he said. "This is what I wanted. I hope I can make good. I think I can."

The 36-year-old native of Shawinigan Falls arrived in Windsor yesterday morning to assume his new duties. His family likely will follow later. "We are going to miss Belleville," J. P. told this corner. "We have made a lot of friends here, and it is one of the best cities we have lived in."

More than social friends are going to miss Lamirande. He will be especially missed behind McFarland blueliines when the whistles shrill and the pucks are dropped. The 180-pound backstopper was not given the "Best Defenseman Award" in Prague just for the hell of it. He had to be tough to succeed at stumbaton. What hockey he lacked in his feet he has between his ears. He used both sources of "know-how."

The coaching job and what goes with it is apparently what J.P. wanted. "It is a big break for me," was his comment.

The Bulldogs are not getting Lamirande for peanuts. He valued his services fairly high. The comment at the McFarland manager was, "We would not stand in the way of Lamirande bettering himself."

Coaching will be a new experience for J.P. He had a brief stint at steering a hockey club while he was with the Three Rivers club of the Quebec League.

'Old Early' Wynn Eliminates Other Clubs With 3-2 Win; Dodger Hopes on Drysdale

By ED. WILES
Associated Press Staff Writer

Chicago's White Sox set off on their last long road trip today, packing a five-game spurt with 15 to play. And that chuckle in the background is from Early Wynn — the guy who was too old to be much help in the American League pennant race.

It was spring when most of the guys who pick the pennant winners made their statistic. Casey Stengel and his New York Yankees were going to win again in the American League. The White Sox, with the 39-year-old Wynn drawing spot assignments at most, might finish second, but more likely they would come in third behind Detroit or Cleveland.

Now it's September and Wynn, at 39 years, eight months and three days, has won 19, top in the league, and has beaten every club in the league for the first time since 1941.

He did it Tuesday night, winning his third in a row with a 3-2 10-inning decision over Kansas City, it was the only game scheduled in the majors.

YANKEES OUT

It also was the White Sox' fifth victory—eliminating all the other clubs except second-place Cleveland and officially ending the Yankees' hopes of repeating as champions.

The seventh place Athletics, who now have lost 11 in a row, were the only club Wynn hadn't beaten this year. They had whipped him three times this year.

They almost got him this time, too. Shut out on three singles for eight innings, they broke loose in the ninth for a 2-1 lead before the White Sox could get it back then put it away in the 10th.

NINTH-INNING FUSS

The A's ninth-inning fuss when Russ Snyder lined his third single with one out and went to third on Hill's double. Harold Rapassed ball got Snyder home and a throwing error by catcher Johnny Romano on the same play moved Williams to third. Bob Cerv forced Williams to walk in a sacrifice fly.

The White Sox, who had scored an unearned run in the sixth, squared it on a pinch-single by Minnie Minoso, a sacrifice and Al Smith's single. They almost gagged it in the ninth when Cerv was way to third on Cerv's wild throw, but then was nailed at the plate by Sporting Lee when he tried to score on Bubba Phillips' foul fly to Minoso.

Jim Rivera scored the clincher in the 10th, opening with a pop fly that second baseman Wayne Terwilliger played into a double. Then Luis Aparicio's first attempt beat lefty Bud Daley (15 - 12).

Belle Defeats Sports Centre By 7-2 Score

By PETER CARVER

A five-run outburst in the first inning proved the undoing of Belle Cleaners' 7-2 victory over the Sports Centre last night in the second game of the best-of-seven Commercial softball league playoff finals. The series now stands at two games to none for Belle Cleaners. The next game is slated for Thursday.

The winners also plated singletons in the fourth and seventh to claim victory. Sports Centre's tallies came in the fourth and ninth innings.

Junior Day started for Sports Centre and gave up five runs before being relieved by Jim Adams in the first inning. They walked three, whiffed one between them and one scored at bat.

Bob Brooks starred for the losers with a home run and a single while "Shaker" Baker also hit safely.

Leo Goyer smashed a four-bagger for Belle Cleaners, Charlie Rowbotham a double, with Ellis, Potter, Wood and Whiting contributing one hit apiece.

Bisons, Jets Host Clubs In Playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The champion Buffalo Bisons entertain the last-place Richmond Virginians and Columbus Jets play host to the fourth-place Havana Sugar Kings tonight as the International League's best-of-seven semi-final playoffs begin.

The winners meet in another best-of-seven playoff to determine a representative to go against the American Association champions in the little world series.

Ken Lehman, who had a 13-8 log for the season, is Buffalo manager Kerby Farrell's pitching choice. He was 2-2 against the Virginians.

Zack Monroe (10-11) will pitch for Richmond. He had a 2-2 record against Buffalo in five games, allowing 15 runs and 25 hits. Lehman gave up 12 runs and 15 hits.

Columbus, at home for its first three games with the Cubans before the series winds up at Havana, has Joe Gibbon (16-8) oppose Ted Wieand (18-11). Gibbon was 3-1 in four appearances

Calls Bombers To Repeat Grey Cup Win

Ordinarily seventy - five - year-old Frank Pringle of Winnipeg is a mild-mannered gentleman, affable and easy to get along with.

But mention two words and his face will darken, his backline rise and his eyes pierce with argumentative fire.

"Tiger-Cats."

For former Belleville resident Pringle is a dyed-in-the-wool Winnipeg Blue Bomber fan — and has been since the club was formed, so to speak.

Mr. Pringle was born here in 1884 and moved to Winnipeg in 1910 where he has resided since. He retired from the CNR as a supervisor after 41 years of service.

He paid seven dollars for his first Blue Bomber season ticket back in 1935. He has bought them regularly since, missing only 1949 and 1950 for his 1950 edition.

Who is going to win the Grey Cup?

Don't be silly.

The Blue Bombers will again cop the coveted mug, and what is more they will defeat the Hamilton Tiger Cats again to repeat last year's triumph. So said Frank Pringle.

But he admits the Calgary Stampeders might give the Bombers some trouble and the Montreal Alouettes might cause some alarm in the Rouge Hill camp before the final decisions are made.

Mr. Pringle is quite sure the Big Classic will see the Bombers and Cats in the finals as others throats again with the big Blue team emerging victorious.

Mr. Pringle is spending a few weeks in the city a guest of his nephew, Jim Cook, and Mrs. Cook. Front Street.

Argonauts, Riders Coaches Wonder What Is Wrong

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coaches of the lagging Ottawa-Hamilton and stronger blocking on Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts were working overtime on the day to find out what is wrong with their Big Four Football Union teams.

Ottawa has lost all of its four games so far this season and Toronto has won only one—and that by one point over Ottawa.

Hitter coach Frayne Clair said Tuesday: "Something is wrong somewhere but I don't know what it is. Some changes might help, but there's no point in making wholesale changes just for the sake of making them."

After dropping a 31-30 squeaker to Argonauts in the season's first opener, Riders have gone steadily downhill, losing 23-4 to Alouettes in Montreal, 34-10 in Hamilton and 22-7 at home against Montreal last Saturday.

He said his biggest disappointment was the drab performance of veteran quarterback Frank Tripucka. "Tripucka is more disappointed in himself than anyone on the team."

STICKS WITH POOL

Managing director Lew Hayman of the Argonauts said Tuesday he has no immediate plans for any shakeup in the coaching staff.

Coach Hamp Pool, who has failed to get Argos into the Big Four playoffs since he took over two years ago, has received a figure from Toronto fans and football writers.

Pool, for his part said he isn't considering replacing quarterback Tripucka with rookie import Johnny Green from the University of Chattanooga.

Both Clair and Pool admitted they are looking for players out from National Football League clubs in the United States.

Clair declared, however, that his players were not playing as well as last year, when they carried their way to the Big Four final.

MONTREAL SURPRISES

"Maybe we haven't strengthened ourselves as much as the other teams have. Montreal is stronger than anyone thought they would be. And if Hamilton drops a game this year they will have to try pretty hard to lose."

Clair has already made a few changes. He has moved end Mack Yoho and brought in end Al Samuhe, a castoff from the NFL. Green Bay Packers who was with Argos in 1936. He is also going to try out Dick Evrench, defensive tackle and end cut by Chicago Bears of the NFL.

Pool said defensive coach Steve Owen will leave for the U.S. this week to seek player reinforcements. He wants interior linemen to give better pass protection.

Leafs Finished In Cellar, Lost $100,000

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs finished last in the International Baseball League this season and lost $100,000 doing it. But they're still confident of reaching major league status by 1961.

General manager Rudy Schaffer voiced the optimistic note Tuesday on top of an announcement about the loss estimate.

"Basically, I don't think we're that bad a club," Schaffer said. "Nothing went right this season. The pitchers didn't show up at the start and we had far more sore arms and other player injuries than is normal . . . we'll be sound up with only two starting pitchers available."

Leafs are entered in the Continental League which proposes to start playing in 1961 and talks of itself as a third major league.

"There is a tremendous amount of work to be done and changes to be made," Schaffer admitted.

Ed Leavens, first Canadian sports car driver to attempt an international land speed record, will be piloting the Austin-Healey Sprite (shown above) today on the Salt Flats of Utah. A 12-hour run will be attempted with a goal of an average speed of 120 miles per hour plus. The car has been prepared by the British Motors Corporation under the supervision of Capt. George Eyston, O.B.E., M.C., three times holder of the Land Speed Record since he first started such attempts in 1930.

Young Canadian

Will Attempt World Record In Sports Car Endurance Run

Today Canada enters a new field of international sports competition on the Salt Flats of Utah when an attempt by Ed Leavens, promising young London sports car racing driver to set a new world's speed record in a 12-hour endurance run with a specially-tuned Austin-Healey Sprite sports car. This will mark the first time any Canadian has made such an attempt.

The car which Leavens will be driving, together with Tommy Wisdom of Great Britain and Gus Ehrmann of the United States, is a product of a firm which has long been famous for setting world's speed records with engines from production cars. The British Motor Corporation, recently formed by the amalgamation of the Austin Motor Car Company and the Nuffield auto manufacturing organization, derives a wealth of experience in speed record attempts via the M.G. record attempts via the M.G. division as the former Nuffield group. Ever since 1930 when the M.G. EX 130 was piloted by Capt. George Eyston to new world's records on the Montlhery track in France there has been an interest in this particular firm of proving their cars reliable under the exacting conditions of setting those high speed performance.

It is the same Capt. Eyston who is today in charge of the modern company's attempt at new records with a new car and a new driver new to this heady sport of the gods of speed. The goal is for the 1622 c.c. engine (not to be confused with the 2 litre of a Chrysler engine, for instance) to maintain an average speed of 120 miles per hour over a 12-hour period. Following the conclusion of this attempt, speed records in the world high speed record run will be made. During this test it is hoped that the Sprite will reach a speed of 135 miles an hour.

These figures may sound fantastic, especially for the size of the engine being called upon to provide the performance, but Captain Eyston and Colonel Goldie Gardner, another record record breaker have been consistently doing this sort of thing for the past 20 years. There is no reason why, with this background of experience and technical know-how, new records should not be set today . . . and with a Canadian driver for the first time in history.

Other greats of the sports car racing world will be present at this undertaking. Stirling Moss, foremost British racing driver will be present to attempt record runs with a new M.G. machine. But for Canadians the centre of interest will undoubtedly focus upon the achievements of the first Canadian driver to cross the threshold into the world of international land speed record attempts.

Simpson Tops Big Four 'Point Getters'

TORONTO (CP) — Homebrew and Bobby Simpson, veterans of nine seasons with Ottawa Rough Riders, tops the Big Four Football League scorers.

He has 24 points though his team is in last place with four straight defeats.

The 29-year-old pass catching star scored his fourth touchdown Saturday as Riders lost 22-7 to Montreal Alouettes. Import halfback Veryl Switzer of the Als has been the highlight recent game up with the season. The former Calgary Stampeder, backfielder, traded to the second place Als for Pat Abbruzzi, counted three touchdowns to move into a four-way tie for second place.

The Canadian Press statistics show Simpson six points in front of Switzer, halfback Gerry Doogall of the undefeated league - leading Hamilton Tiger-Cats, end Earl Dekker of the Toronto Argonauts and halfback Boyd Carter of the third - place Toronto Argonauts. Switzer, McDougall, Dekker and Carter each have scored three touchdowns.

TWO HELD SCORELESS

McDougall and Carter, tied with Simpson for the lead last week, were held scoreless as Hamilton whipped Toronto 37-3 Monday. Dekker scored one touchdown to grab a share of second place.

Halfback Bill Bewley, Alouettes' placement-kicking specialist, is in sixth place with 17 points on nine converts, two field goals and two singles.

Steve Oorschin, Hamilton's field goal and convert kicker, follows Bewley with 11 converts, one field goal and one single for 15 points.

Red O'Quinn and Joel Wells of Montreal, Don Clark of Ottawa, Tommy Grant and Ron Howell of Hamilton and Cookie Gilchrist of Toronto each have 12 points with two touchdowns.

TIE FOR OPEN LEAD

In the Ontario Rugby Football Union import halfback Ernie White of Hamilton Bears scored five touchdowns and a convert Monday to move into a tie with import backfielder Terry Meyer of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen for the scoring lead with 26 points each. White has counted five touchdowns, five converts and a single while Meyer has scored six touchdowns.

Meyer, who led last week, got one touchdown Saturday.

Ed Beattie of London Lords is in third place with 20 points on six touchdowns. He has a one-point margin over playing coach Al Brune of the Lords who also scored three touchdowns, four converts, two field goals and a single. Mike Norcia of Kitchener holds down the fifth spot with 18 points on three touchdowns and 10 converts.

Minor Baseball

The deciding game will be played at the Alemite Field Thursday evening at 6:15 p.m.

McBride got excellent support from Rathwell, Brant and Bell on the way to his no-hitter. Boyle also threw good ball in defeat although three hits, Boomhower was tops for the Indians.

Dodgers scored three times in the second inning and twice in the fourth. Indians lone run came in the fourth.

Five Teams Are in Running For Major Leagues Pennants

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Five teams still can be considered candidates for major league pennants this year — three in the National League and two in the American.

One of them — Milwaukee Braves—won a pennant-last year. So what happened to make contenders of the other four?

The answer might be, in part, new blood.

Most of the players on the respective squads were with their same teams last year, and were capable performers. But they needed just a slight transfusion, and if the transfusion wasn't entirely responsible for their increased batting prowess this year, at least it has had something to do with it. DODGERS IMPROVED

Los Angeles Dodgers finished a dismal seventh last year with a .461 average. Currently they are tied for second at .540, three games off the pace.

During the winter the Dodgers acquired outfielder Wally Moon from the Cardinals. Moon is batting a respectable .29.

The pitching staff, it was discovered after the season started, needs bolstering, so Larry Sherry was brought up in July. Roger Craig in June, and Clarence Churn in August. Sherry has a 4-2 record, Craig has won seven, and Churn has done some nice relief work.

San Francisco Giants gave it a good try last year, finishing third behind the champion Braves and Pittsburgh. Currently they are on top in the National League with a lead of three games and a .563 average.

They made some profitable deals last winter. They acquired pitchers Sam Jones and Jack Sanford from St. Louis and Philadelphia, respectively. Jones has a 13-13 record and Sanford has won an even dozen.

They also got a capable catcher in Hobey Landrith from the Cards, and just recently came up with a first baseman who has been a sensation in the 35 games he has played.

He is Willie McCovey, from the Phoenix farms. He has 11 home runs, has driven in 28 runs and has a .366 average.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Chicago White Sox, who finished second to New York Yankees in the American League last year with a .630 mark, made a bid for more power in August when they acquired large Ted Kluszewski from Pittsburgh. Klu, Score's ineffectiveness Cleveland Indians, Harshman's 10-game deal with Boston Red Sox last month.

Before he joined the Indians Harshman's record was 3-9. Since he joined them it is 5-6.

Not Going To Lose Says Elroy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I'm just not going to lose this season. This is my year."

That's what Dodgers ace Elroy Face of the Pittsburgh Pirates says despite the lashing his pitching has taken of late.

Face made the statement here Tuesday as the Pirates took a well-needed rest from a safer disastrous 1-7 road trip.

The relief ace, who presently enjoys a 17-0 record and is just two victories away from two records, doesn't even consider the possibility of a loss seriously.

"The guys are taking pretty good care of me," said Face. "There have been some close calls but they come up and get me out of trouble or come from behind and win the ball game for me."

Face has only 13 more games in which to gain even more wins to tie the records of Carl Hubbell's major league mark of 21 straight in 1936 and Joe Bush's New York Giants in 1935 and 1937 and Tony Mornaud's record of 19 straight in one season with the Giants in 1912.

How About A Parade And a Band?

SEATTLE (AP) — The fish story of 1959 may well be "Did that crazy salmon sporting an American flag . . ."

Wearing of the flag by Amor - ican fish was decreed Tuesday by the Washington state fisheries department.

The department, apparently nettled by a remark at a recent international fi heries conference to the effect that there was no way to identify American-bred salmon, has ordered 10,000 salmon tags embossed with Old Glory.

The tags will be attached to dorsal fins at next spring's salmon-tagging operations in Washington state waters.

Upsets Shake Women's Section National Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Rod Laver and Roy Emerson, two of Australia's Davis Cup aces, shot into the men's quarter-finals Tuesday while upsets continued to shake the women's division in the national tennis championships.

Laver, playing with a strained groin muscle and a bruised hand, erased Whitney Reed, U.S. national college champion, 6-4, 6-4, 8-7, 6-4.

Emerson got a tiger by the tail in shiny Bill Bond of La-Jolla, Calif., and had to call upon his vast experience to beat the 17-year-old youngster, 6-2, 13-11, 6-2.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode, 34 - year - old matron from Forest Hills, pulled the third upset in the women's singles by eliminating the ailing eighth-seeded Sally Moore, of Bakersfield, Calif., 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Moore thus joined Angela Mortimer of Britain, fifth seed, and Renee Schuurman of South Africa, seventh seed, on the sidelines. Miss Mortimer was beaten Monday by 16-year-old Karen Hantze Susman, Californian and before England's Mrs. Shirley Brasher.

Miss Mortimer's teammate, second-seeded Sandra Reynolds, and England's Althea Gibson Haydon led the women's advance into the quarter-finals.

Sport Snapshots

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Prosperous or otherwise, 1959 likely will go down in Montreal's football almanac as the year of the resurgent homebrew.

Not since the late 1940s — and the glittering invasion of highpriced All - Americans from the United States — have domestic youngsters figured so prominently in the aspirations of the Alouettes.

Other clubs in the Big Four and the West's pro league also appear deeper in good Canadians. But none have long counted several among their first-stringers.

For the Alouettes it's a new experience.

GREAT POTENTIAL

Managing director Cornan Kennedy says flatly: "potentially we have the best crop of Canadian boys in Canada."

Kennedy acknowledged the powerful Canadian contingent of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats with that statement. But he added: "Next year we'll be even stronger in homebrewn. We should be tops in the country."

Like all football coaches, Montreal's rotund Doug (Peahead) Walker has his loud critics. In past seasons their main complaint has been that the slow-talking Southerner "never gave his Canadian players a chance."

Kennedy says "definitely not," when asked whether Walker in his eighth season in Montreal has revamped his policy on homebrews.

"Doug has always regarded Canadians just as highly as imports—provided they could produce as well. But you have to have the horses to go. And Doug had them before."

CENTRE SCOUT

The resurgence, said Kennedy, can be traced to the team's chief scout, Harvey Johnson, a softspoken man who played pro ball in the U.S. for six years.

Johnson joined the Alouettes' staff last year after piloting Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen to four successive championships in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

"Harvey has dug up most of the good new Canadian material we have. He's about 90 per cent his effort," Kennedy said.

In Montreal's first three games this season Walker fielded an impressive defensive unit that included only two imports—sophomore linebacker Jackl Simpson (Mississippi) and rookie half Jim Colclough (Boston University).

The front line comprised middle guard Bob Geary, tackles Ted Elsby and Ron Murphy and ends Doug McMichol and Ross Buckle.

Murphy and Buckle are first-year men. Ron came to the club from McGill University and Buckle once was London Lords of the ORFU.

GOOD SUPPORT

Backing the line with the two imports were Bill Bewley, Tom Moran, Bob Ashley, Stan Mac-Donald and Ed Mitchell or Johnny Blatcher.

Miller played with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs last year and was Montreal's first draft choice from the Senior Intercollegiate League.

Learn's work as a defensive halfback and punt-catcher has been impressive. He intercepted two passes in one game and has not dropped a punt. The 24-year-old Welland, Ont., native is a protege of Johnson's. He played on the club when Harvey was hired last year.

On offence Bewley—a six-year veteran with Montreal — has proved one of the team's best ground gainers in the league's long championship last year.

The Toronto-born halfback has been even more effective this season as a pass - receiver and ball - carrier although his point-pace is not quite so spectacular.

AT THE BELLE — Left, Darlin' Duo—Janet Munro and Sean Connery portray Irish sweethearts, Kathie O'Gill and Michael McBride, in Walt Disney's Technicolor production, "Darby O'Gill and the Little People", closing today at the Belle. Right—Susan Hayward, as she appears in "Thunder in the Sun", Paramount's Technicolor outdoor spectacle, which arrives tomorrow, Thursday at the Belle. Jacques Bergerac, Carl Esmond and Jeff Chandler are co-starred.

Quinte Trap And Gun Club

John Walsh shot a 25 to top all shooters at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club during the past week. Other good scores were: G. Hammett 24, G. Hagzis 24, J. Wardhaugh 24, G. Little 24, D. Johnston 24, Denny Rosatis 23, C. Robertson 23, M. Walcott 22, S. Keogh 22, Doug Day 22, V. Girard 22, A. Thomson 21, R. McKinnon 20.

Horses Doped, Two Trainers Are Suspended

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two trainers have been suspended within 10 days, seven others at the 21-day fall meeting at Winnipeg's Assiniboia Downs.

Trainer R. J. Watt and the horses of Max Freed's stable of Winnipeg were barred Monday from the balance of the fall meet, which ends Sept. 13, following detection of procaine in the system of May Sirome, winner of the fifth race a week ago.

The suspension does not affect the wagering. May Sirome paid $23.10 to win.

The other suspension involved Spud Murphy of Calgary, trainer of Hill Fire, also disqualified after winning a race when procaine was found in its urine system.

Procaine is a freezing agent used to relieve soreness. Its application is legal if applied externally, but use of a needle is barred.

Tightrope Indebted to Shows Of Other Years on Same Line

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A cops-and-robbers series climbed onto television's hot bandwagon Tuesday night as the first new CBS entry of the season. This one is called "Tightrope" and while the first show was well produced and expertly filmed it was heavily indebted to successful shows of other seasons built along the same general lines.

Tightrope! stars as attractive newcomer named Michael Corey who is never given a name, is just identified as a roving police undercover man. This, and the fact that he wears his artillery in a special holster in the small of his back, are the novel features of the show.

In addition, there is the usual incidental music, the gunplay, the fisticuffs, the bad guys, the good police and the assurance that the undercover man will live through a fair to middling emergency.

The season is still young and Tightrope! is a welcome change from all the repeats who-done-it's that have suffered through recently.

ABC's John Gunther's High Road on Labor Day officially kicked off this season's TV shows. The first of this series was a half-hour film account showing how the modern Congo dancers were picked for the successful African Ballet which toured the United States last year. The program after another two weeks will move into ABC's Saturday night lineup.

Although the first show had an interesting story line, this was too short to permit its development. More of the program was devoted to tribal dancing than to the search, but perhaps this is the sort of thing appreciated by armchair adventurers.

Edgar Bergen, sometimes with Charlie McCarthy, will turn up on TV again, this time at host on NBC's Rexall special series, which starts in October as Arthur Godfrey comes back to broadcasting with his TV spectacular Sept. 16 (CBS, 10-11 p.m. EDT) and resumes his daily radio show Sept. 28. Friends say he's looking great and feeling well.

Recommended tonight: The Dave King show, NBC 8 p.m. EDT, with Johnny Mercer as the British comedian's guest; the Cass Daley-Lou Nova on the U.S. Steel Hour, CBS 10-11 p.m. Wednesday night fights, ABC, 10 p.m. lightweights Joe Brown and Gale Kerwin.

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Schweitzer, 74, who used his $71 monthly relief cheques to accumulate $21,000 in securities by playing the stock market, died Monday night. Schweitzer received a suspended sentence last April 22 after he pleaded guilty to a petty larceny charge. He had paid back $17,000, the entire amount of relief granted him from 1935 to 1955.
